The published report that Governor Stokes and United States Senator John F. Dryden had entered into a compact, one of the primary purposes of which was to obtain the reelection of Mr. Dryden, was emphatically denied by Governor Stokes yesterday afternoon at Trenton.

The Governor said that the report was utterly without foundation.

BRIDEGROOM FORGOTTEN.

Delayed Wedding Two Hours, Made Bride Weep.

Trenton, Oct. 13.—A forgetful coachman delayed the wedding of Miss Dora Martinette to Joseph Garies three hours last night, threw the bride into tears, the bridal party into confusion, the bridegroom into a passion and sent the bridal guests scurrying after him.

Mr. Garies' name was last on the list of guests whom William Johnson, the coachman, was instructed to bring to the home of the bride, coaches being scarce just then in Trenton. All went well until Johnson reached Garies' name.

"I guess that fellow can wait till I get a drink," said the coachman.

He did. He waited until Johnson had got several and into a political debate.

Meanwhile the birdegroom was fuming at home. He waited two hours and then walked to the bride's house, where he found everything in confusion and the bride in tears.

Matters were explained, the searchers called in, and the wedding went on.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN IN SUBURBAN CHURCHES

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET PASTORS ORGANIZE FOR UNION SERVICES.

United evangelistic services, to run all through November, are being arranged by the churches of Dunellen and New Market. All the evangelical churches and pastors in the two places will combine in the campaign for souls, and the most spirited series of meetings ever held in the borough and village are expected to mark the revival.

The meetings will open on Sunday, November 5. The pastors have organized for the campaign, with Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the First Baptist church, New Market, as president, and Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, as secretary. Rev. H. N. Jordan, of the Seventh-day Baptist church, New Market, will organize the chorus choir to lead the singing. Other members of the general committee are Rev. S. K. Doolittle, of the Methodist church, and Charles E. Rogers, Edward Dunn, Eugene Runyon, F. H. Gise, W. J. Hamilton, A. A. Lake and M. L. Rarick.

The revival will begin with union services in Dunellen and New Market, the pastors exchanging pulpits. The meetings during the week following will be held in the First Baptist church, all the pastors leading in turn.

After two weeks of such services, Chester Birch, an evangelist, and his wife, will take charge of the meetings. Mr. Birch is a powerful speaker and with the spiritual preparation of the pastors' meetings to precede him, he is expected to produce a strong impression.

NEWSPAPERS IN SCHOOL.

Are Factors in the Education of Pupils.

Atlantic City, Oct. 13.—The important speaker Wednesday before the joint teachers' institute, consisting of 600 teachers of Atlantic, Salem and Gloucester counties, was Ruchard G. Boone, of Yonkers, N. Y., and in the course of his remarks regarding the modern aid which helped the teacher in giving instruction to pupils, he said the newspaper of today was a fact. In the absence of geography, he remarked, in commending the daily paper for use in the public schools, it could be taken as a fair substitute. The school life consists of seven years of seven months, of forty-nine months all told, too short a time for an education in the school room, but the development of outside aid enables the pupil after quitting the schoolroom to continue broadening his sum total of knewlege.

County Superintendent S. D. Hoffman, of Atlantic, presided, and State Superintendent Baxter, Miss M. V. Jenkins, of New York, and Miss Lillie A. Williams, of the Trenton Normal School, were among other speakers.

To Begin New Road Soon.

Paterson, Oct. 13.—The directors of the New York and New Jersey Rapid Transit Railway Company held their first meeting yesterday, and decided to begin at once the work of constructing the electric road from Paterson to New York. Engineers submitted plans and estimates. They estimate that the cost of building the road will be aboue $8,000,000. The greater part of the expense will be in boring a tunnel through the mountain of rock near Weehawken. Colonel William Barbour, head of the linen thread trust, is president of the new company.

Boys Break from Home.

Joseph Lepsey and Herbert Kingsland escaped early yesterday from the Newark City Home, in the Orange Mountains, near Verona. The runaways were inmates of Cottage No. 1, where the bigger boys are housed, and of which Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Briggs, of Philadelphia, recently assumed direction. Kingsland and Lapsey made their way to a window and jumped to the ground. Their escape was aided by the darkness.

Miss Jeannette Hynes, of Richmond street, is confined to the house by illness.

Cold and La Grippe Tablets.

At this time of the year, when coughs and colds are prevalent, it is quite essential to have a good, reliable remedy in the home.

We highly recommend Cold and LaGrippe Tablets. They not only give prompt relief, but cure colds, la grippe, neuralgia and rheumatism. Besides, they're so convenient and pleasant to take—being in tablet form, you can carry them with you

CITY AGAINST P. S. C.

New Brunswick Stirred Up Over Alleged Shortcomings.

New Brunswick, Oct. 13.—A call has been published for a meeting of local business men to consider the feasibility of the establishment of a municipal lighting plant. The call is signed by twenty-eight of the leading business and professional men of the city.

The meeting is to be held Monday evening, October 16, in Association Hall.

The call states that an invitation is extended to all interested in the subject with a view of discussing this important question, and in case of a general demand to organize an association to take steps looking toward the establishment of a municipal lighting plant. In New Brunswick both the electric light and gas companies are controlled by the Public Service Corporation. The municipal lighting plant project is an outgrowth of hostility to the Public Service Corporation because of alleged shortcomings in the way of service and alleged extortion in rates.

DRIVER KILLED.

Teamster Fatally Crushed in Accident Near West Summit.

George Davis, a teamster employed by J. G. Cornish, of Gillette, was almost instantly killed in an accident at Summit yesterday. He had driven to Summit with a large wagon for a load of dirt.

He started for home in the afternoon, and when he reached the steep hill along Springfield avenue, near West Summit, the pin in the whiffletree broke. The team of horses ran away, dragging Davis from his seat and along the road for a considerable distance.

The heavily loaded wagon ran across his back, and when some residents nearby, who witnessed the accident, reached his side he was unconscious. He was carried to the porch of Robert G. Hann's residence at that point, but within five minutes and before a physician could reach the spot he was dead. He was about thirty years old and unmarried.

—The cabinet of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this afternoon. Chairmen of the various committees will be appointed.

SAYS DOCTORS KISS NURSES.

Patient in Union Hospital Tells of Embraces.

Union Hill, Oct. 13.—That surgeons and nurses in the North Hudson Hospital here neglect the patients and embrace and kiss while in the wards and in the presence of those in their care is a charge made by a committee of women to the board of governors. Mrs. Robert Boulanger headed the delegation in making the complaint on behalf of the Ladies' Guild of the hospital. It was stated that a few weeks ago a girl who was employed by one of the most prominent and active members of the guild, Mrs. Willadsen, had fallen ill and was taken to the hospital.

"I have given a great deal of my time and some money to the benefit of this hospital," said Mrs. Willadsen, "and I thought the young woman would, on my account, be well cared for there. The physician in attendance in the hospital when she was taken there said that she was intoxicated, and such a charge worried the girl very much."

It was evident that Mrs. Willadsen did not like to say unkind things about the institution for which she had done so much, and she appealed to Mrs. Boulanger to complete the story, as the latter was familiar with the case.

"The girl had been there only a couple of days," said Mrs. Boulanger, "when she was told to get up and make her own bed. She was so weak she fell on the floor, and when the nurse was asked by a woman in the next bed to help the girl get up she said she could not bother just then.

"A day or two later the girl was told to go home, and was given five cents for carfare. She was hardly able to walk to the car. Another physician was called, and he said she was so weak that she should be sent to a hospital, and this time she was sent to St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, where she was well treated.

"The girl told me that in the North Hudson Hospital," continued Mrs. Boulanger, "the patients were neglected while the physicians and nurses were embracing and kissing each other in the ward in the presence of the patients."

The board of governors is to hold an investigation, and in the mean time the surgeons and nurses are indignantly denying that there is any truth in the charges made by the members of the guild.

Miss Clemens, the superintendent of the hospital, said yesterday: "The report is founded purely on hearsay and there is absolutely no justification for it. I and some of the pyhsicians connected with the hospitals have been talking over the matter and we are determined to seek redress for the scandalous statements that have been made concerning this institution.

"We have here one house physician and twelve visiting physicians. Six nurses, all young women, are employed in the hospital. Both the physicians and the nurses indignantly and emphatically deny that there is the slightest foundation for the statements made by the committee of the Ladies' Guild."

P. R. R. AND ELECTRICITY.

To Report on Its Substitution—No Early Change.

Trenton, Oct. 13.—Samuel Rea, fourth vice-president of the Pennsylvania, is chairman of a committee of the company's experts appointed by President Sassatt to prepare a report for the officers and directors of plans, route and method of construction for the electification of one of the company's lines between Camden and Atlantic City.

It is acknowledged by railroad officers that electricity is the coming power, but until it can be handled as cheaply as steam there will be no great change. On a line where there is constant traffic, electricity, it is believed, is superior to steam, but where the traffic is only at certain hours of the morning and at night, the question is whether the business can be done with elecrticity as cheaply as is now done by steam.

This is the question which the committee is to work upon. A high official of the Pennsylvania says that there is no intention at present of supplanting steam on any of the railroads of the Pennsylvania system, but it is deemed essential to have all the data on hand so that when the emergency arises there will be no delay in changing from one system to the other.

SELF-SLAIN TO JOIN WIFE.

At Fourth Suicidal Attempt Judge Succeeds.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 13.—Because of his love for his wife, who died about a year ago, Judge A. G. Brandner, sixty years old, committed suicide Wednesday by inhaling illuminating gas. In the dead man's hand was found a clipping from a magazine entitled "The Greatest Love in the World." Its theme was that the love of man for woman was the most potent and enduring of the human passions.

On October 3, 4 and 5 Judge Brandner attempted to commit suicide on his wife's grave in Omega, Kan. He kept a diary in which he recorded the hour at which he swallowed the grains of morphine. He was rescued each time. Judge Brandner spent his early life in Montana, where he was the first judge regularly chosen.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Emsbury Ave., cars Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 13.—If Mrs. Charles V. Fornes continues her efforts to secure a divorce from her husband, president of the New York Board of Aldermen, she will probably have to change the scene of action from Vermont. The case was fully expected to come up in Rutland County Court at this term, but yesterday it was continued.

Mrs. Fornes' counsel are extremely reticent in the matter, refusing to make any statement as to further steps. Some of the best lawyers here say, however, that the case will never be tried in a Vermont court in that Mrs. Fornes has failed to establish any legal grounds of residence in this State.

HAUNTED BY MURDERED MAN.

Prisoner Charged With the Crime Crazed by a Spook.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., October 13.—Haunted by the vision of the man he is charged with murdering, Stephen Forbes is believed to be rapidly becoming insane in the Northumberland County jail. He is charged with killing John Cozak, of Hickory Ridge, and spends all his waking hours pacing his cell and declaring to the guards who watch to prevent him from committing suicide that the spirit of the murdered man keeps with him all the time and prevents him from sleeping.

A couple of days ago Forbes tried to cut his throat, but was saved. Now he refuses to eat anything and is rapidly becoming mentally and physically weak.

FATHER SEEKS HIS CHILD.

Declares that His Wife Took Little Girl From Him.

Winsted, Conn., Oct. 13.—Albertus Nunn, a marine engineer, living at Orleans, N. Y., arrived here Wednesday from Great Barrington, Mass., looking for his daughter, Grace, nine years old, who, he says, was kidnapped in New York city more than two years ago.

"I lay the abduction of my daughter to my wife and her sister," he said, "but if I could find my wife and reason with her I think she would consent to give Grace to me even if she does not agree to live with me. I will give a reward to the person who will tell me where my daughter is."

DIDN'T USE KAISER'S WORDS.

Congressman Denies He Made Public Conversation.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 13.—In an interview Congressman Richard Bartholdt, who returned from Europe last Tuesday, denied that he had made public any part of the conversation of Emperor William made by the Kaiser in confidence. He said:

"Congressman McNary, of Boston, did give out an interview, much to the regret of the rest of our party. I understand the interview was highly displeasing to the Emperor, and justly so. The circumstances of our audience with the Emperor were such as to make any attempt at reporting the conversation highly improper."

SMASHED BY COLLEGE GIRL.

Football Player Floored with a Platter.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 13.—Seizing a big platter at her elbow, Miss Elsie Stevens, a dignified and handsome young woman student at Morningside College, Wednesday smashed it over the head of Arthur Tumbleson, a football player, as punishment for the theft of a plate of pancakes.

A waiter at the college dining hall served Miss Stevens first, and Tumbleson interposed that he had been first to order cakes.

He grabbed them and she smashed the platter on his head, stunning him, and then defiantly told him, "There is another platter here I will waste on you if you wish."

MRS. A. M'KINLEY MARRIED.

Widow of President's Brother Weds Capt. Allen, U. S. A.

Pittsburg, Oct. 13.—Mrs. C. G. Baer, better known by her stage name, Mabel McKinley, announces that her mother, Mrs. Abner McKinley, was married at Baltimore Tuesday night to Capt. John D. Allen, of Tampa, Fla. Capt. Allen is in the United States Navy and his bride is the widow of the late President McKinley's brother.

A marriage license was issued in Baltimore Monday to John H. Allen, of Tampa, and Annie E. McKinley, of New York.

Immodest Lingerie.

Boston, Oct. 13.—At the thirty-second annual conference of the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union in session at Cambridge, Mrs. Katherine, president of the Union, made a strenuous attack upon lingerie in all its branches.

"Our purity crusade," she said, "will be directed against the dangers of immodest dressing. Openwork has its place, but that place is not in public, and it is seen altogether out of place. The openwork stocking is full of danger to the purity of the youth of our land."

Mrs. Stevenson went on to lament the steadily growing tendency to immodest and unnecessary display of a woman's person.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

"Who accuses me—and of what am I accused?" he cried.

"You're a damned spy—" "Rebel—" "Traitor—" "Here, give us that letter, Squire," were the yells from the crowd. And then big Gale, the blacksmith, tore a way round to the side and waved under the pale, quivering face McKinnon's contribution to the evening's disturbance—the letter he would now have been glad to withdraw. "What have you to say to this, Mr. Lieut. Paul Ladue, Eleventh Alabama?"

"I say it's a forgery and a lie!" was the ringing answer.

"Any man would, fixed as you are," boomed the blacksmith. "Do you deny corresponding with your rebel crowd in Alabama, too?"

"No, and you can see their letters any time you wish."

"Damn their letters!" shouted Gale. Then facing the crowd. "Fellow citizens, what shall we do with him?"

Up went a chorus of curses and yells, in the midst of which Fred Benton sprang to the fence beside his friend, and his father vainly shouted, begging to be heard. "You be quiet, Squire," answered the nearmost. "We don't want you—you're all right." Fred was felled by a stone that struck him full in the forehead. Paul Ladue's legs were jerked from under him and he was dragged, struggling and striking at every face within reach, and borne away, the vortex of a whirlpool of raging humanity whose hoarse shoutings gradually died to distant roar as they surged onward down the slope to Market square, Benton and McKinnon vainly following, imploring and protesting. Then one level-headed lad ran like a deer to the quarters of a cadet company across the river, and while Elinor knelt there by her stricken brother, chafing his hand and bathing his disclored brow, the courthouse bell in rapid clang, pealed out the alarm of fire.

An hour later, limp and exhausted, in the care of a physician, and escorted to the pier by Benton and city officials, the victim of mob fury was borne to a stateroom on the "Northern Light" and so on to Chicago.

CHAPTER III.

THE FIRST UNIFORM.

For many a week there came no word from Paul Ladue. At the little frame cottage near the lake a sad-eyed, submissive, broken man sat long hours each day in a worn old rocking-chair, apathetic, uncomplaining, yet looking wistfully into the faces of the few who came to see him as though imploring news of his now doubly banished boy.

In every way did the squire seek to aid the needy household and, all unrebuked now, Elinor went day after day to see Ladue and the fragile woman, his wife, who never left her room. In one brief letter from St. Louis, Paul had announced his intention of making his way to Mobile. After that—who could say?

And Fred, too, Elinor's stanch ally and supporter, was gone. Denied a commission in the earlier regiments of his native state, for the reason that the men demanded the right to elect their officers from among these enlisting with them, a course which his father had forbidden, he had found life well nigh unbearable after the almost tragic events of that night in June, and so boldly wrote a long, urgent, appealing letter to a general officer—an old soldier of the old army—who, since before the days of the Mexican war and until recalled to active service in the spring of '61, had made the Badger state his home, and that vehement, vigorous letter the general took and laid before the president himself.

This was before the first serious eye-opener—the battle of Bull Run, and the tall, ungainly son of the west was still able to see the whimsical side of things, untinged by the infinite and suffering of the days to come.

"Wants to be a soldier and to sink the law, does he?" said the president, stretching his long, lean legs underneath the table and running his huge hand through the crop of bristling hair that crowned his forehead like a hedgerow, "and the squire won't let him enlist—I met Benton once at Rice's caravanseral there in Chicago—and the boy's won't have anybody that doesn't start even with them? Well, general, I see only one way out of this fix—that is to make him a second lieutenant of regulars, unless," he continued, with a twitch about the corners of his broad mouth, "unless I appoint him a brigadier general. According to some of the papers I may have done worse. Which shall it be?"

"The second lieutenancy will appeal to him, I think, sir," said the general, "and then I can appoint him aide-de-camp and teach him practical soldiering so that he won't be utterly a novice when he goes to his regiment. I know the lad and am under many an obligation to his father."

"So be it," said the president. And so it happened that two days later there came to Fred a wire from Washington bidding him join his general there forthwith, and within another 48 hours he was gone. For a few days in mid July he was home again as aide to the general, who had been ordered thither to help the state authorities in the organization of still more regiments. Tall and stiff and "swagger" he looked in his eastern-made uniform, a vivid contrast to many an old school friend whose first blue frock coat seemed more like an off-color edition of some clerical garment than the garb of a soldier. Fearfully and wonderfully were they made—those uniforms of our western volunteers, and much did they of the great army about Washington marvel and make merry at the sight of the officers of [illegible] regiments from Badger and [illegible]dom chosen to represent [illegible] on the "sacred soil" of eastern Virginia.

And about the first thing Fred Benton had done on his return was to snub, if not actually insult, his father's junior partner, between whom and that father relations were already severely strained.

Never yet had George McKinnon been able to satisfactorily explain how that letter addressed to Paul Ladue had come into his possession. Important as it doubtless was held to be, as evidence of Ladue's active sympathy with the rebellion, there were not a few responsible citizens who declared the postmaster gravely culpable for surrendering it to any but the lawful owner. Whereat the postmaster on hearing of the cry against him came out with a card in the "Watchman," insisting that the letter had been placed by the distributing clerk in the Ladue box, which was at least six feet from the general delivery window, and that neither he nor any one of the employes had subsequently touched it.

Naturally matters looked squally for McKinnon. He had been popular, but the better class of people felt that Paul Ladue had been harshly, even outrageously, dealt with, and that McKinnon's insidious, if not fiery, speeches were the direct cause.

A revulsion of feeling had set in. Before leaving for Washington there had been ample time for Fred Benton to spread abroad Ladue's declaration that nothing would persuade him to cast his lot with the south.

Such was the state of feeling that Gale, the would-be heroic leader of public sentiment, awoke to the fact that it might be wise for him to cross the lake and visit kith and kin among the Wolverines, for city officials had come and asked ugly questions, and there was talk of arrest and indictment for inciting riot.

McKinnon called at the Bentons and asked to see Miss Elinor, and Miss Elinor asked to be excused. Benton senior approved her conduct, for there had been words between the partners—unpleasant words. In the end, McKinnon withdrew from the firm and allied himself with his old partner's bitterest rivals.

Then came the general with aide-de-camp Fred, and the former responded to McKinnon's greeting with cold and distant civility. The latter asked him what he had done with Ladue's letter and refused his proffered hand. It was lucky the general had to take his young staff officer to the state capital, whence they were recalled to Washington just in time to meet the demoralized wreck of McDowell's raw, untaught regiments, drifting in from the disaster of First Bull Run.

And then the nation woke up in earnest to a realization of the fact that the south had men as brave as the best in the land and leaders more skillful than those we had yet sent afield. Then it became apparent that not until it was thoroughly organized, drilled and disciplined could a northern army hope to subdue the army of the south.

Honor Two Jerseymen.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 13.—By a strange coincidence, the only Jerseymen who succeeded in being elected to the Cornel musical organizations this year, were two school superintendents' sons, Randall V. Davey, son of Vernon L. Davey, superintendent of the East Orange public schools, and Dwight E. Foster, son of Superintendent Foster, of the South Orange schools. After a very close competition Davey and Foster succeeded in making the Mandolin Club and Masque, respectively. The Masque is the dramatic society of the university, and intends to present a comic opera this term. Since the number of men in these organizations is limited, the fight for places is very intense, and students who are fortunate enough to make them have to show no little ability in musical and dramatic circles.

BLACK HAS NEW ISSUE.

Starts Fight for Jersey Democrats.

Newark, Oct. 13.—Fresh and vigorous, as though he had not known the sting of defeat in a great State contest less than a year ago, Charles C. Black came before the Democrats of Essex county Monday night, and while sounding the opening note of the party's campaign here, read a broader and more far-reaching lesson containing the principles upon which, according to his light, the future hopes of New Jersey Democrats must be placed.

The recent candidate for governor of New Jersey on the issues of equal taxation delivered a carefully studied speech, in which he not only reproclaimed the dominance of the issue of an equal division of the burdens of taxation between the railroads and the individuals, but he advocated a Democratic espousal of the enactment of a corrupt practice act, for the purpose of forbidding the diversion of corporation trust funds for political purposes, under the penalty of forfeiture both of the charters of offending concerns and the office to which election has been obtained by such means. An attack on the Hillery maximum tax act, which he facetiously likened to "the yellow dog whom nobody caresses," and a declaration in favor of limiting public utilities franchises were other features of Mr. Black's speech.

In part he said:

"The events of the last year, and the subsequent events of the spring and summer following in quick and rapid succession, have demonstrated to the people of this county and State a peril and danger that threatens the life of the republic. The exposures in the city of Philadelphia, the secret alliance of the great insurance companies and the managers of trust funds, for political purposes, if not checked, will destroy popular government.

"It is the mission of the Democratic party to elevate the standards of public life; to destroy the alliance that now exists between the public service and railroad corporations and the party boss; to restore to the people representative government, and to make the parties responsive to the public will. Until this is done popular measures, such as equal taxation and limited franchises, are but idle dreams and academic discussions. The time has come for the Democratic party to add to its issues the passage of a corrupt practice act, by which it shall be made a crime for a corporation manager to contribute trust funds to political parties and to compel the party organizations to publish a list of their subscriptions and expenditures; corporations doing business or chartered under the State, violating its provisions, should be subject to forfeiture, to give to the defeated candidate a right of action and forfeiture against his successful rival, where the act has been violated."

ENTERS GENERAL DENIAL.

Britton Denies Wife's Charges and Files Counter-Accusations.

New Brunswick, Oct. 13.—In the answer he has filed in the Court of Chancery to the suit of his wife for separate maintenance, Israel Britton, the carpenter, denies all of her allegations of cruelty.

He charges, on the contrary, that within two years after their marriage his wife left his house without any cause and in his absence carted all of his furnitue away with the exception of one bed. Subsequently, he avers, she agreed to return to live with him provided he would convey to her his real estate.

This he declined to do, but did consent to give her the furniture. He denies in positive terms that he treated her with cruelty and says he agreed to give her $5 a week in the event of a separation.

WOMAN OWNS BON TON CLUB.

McAdoo Says She Is a "Lady of Quality"—Lessee Must Go.

Commissioner McAdoo, of New York, received assurances today from the owners of the house at 118 West Thirty-first street, New York, occupied by the recently raided Bon Ton Social Club, that the lease would be terminated on November 1, and the organization asked to vacate.

"The house," said Mr. McAdoo, "is owned by a woman of social prominence in New York, and I have from her son-in-law the assurance that she had absolutely no knowledge of the uses to which her house had been put."

In the records of the tax commissioner's office the owner of 118 West Thirty-first street is given as Harriet A. Loutrel.

SLEEPS IN STREET DRESS.

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—In a divorce petition filed in the Circuit Court today by Joseph H. Ames, against Mrs. Geraldine Ames, one of the allegations is that the defendant was for years accustomed to sitting up late at night reading and then retiring without removing her street clothes. It was also charged that she frequently allowed a setter dog to occupy the same bed with her.

Ames is assistant to the general manager of the American Car and Foundry Company, and lives at No. 4300 Maryland avenue.

MELTING "THE QUEER."

Barrels of Counterfeit Money Are Being Destroyed.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Barrels of pennies, dimes and dollar coins; stacks of green bills of all denominations, and a roomful of machinery for money making, such as dies, molds, printing presses and photographic apparatus, are being destroyed at the Treasury Department under the eagle eye of John E. Wilkie, chief of the Secret Service.

Although the mass of money will doubtless count up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, its intrinsic value is probably no more than a few hundred. It is all "queer" money, the harvest reaped from counterfeiters during the last three years by Secret Service detectives throughout the country.

Practically all the men who made this collection of bogus money, or owned the implements of its manufacture, are now serving time for their offenses against the Government, and the counterfeits and counterfeiting apparatus are no longer needed as evidence.

The Secretary of the Treasury orders the destruction of such junk as often as its accumulation warrants. Three clerks are appointed to take an inventory of all the material destroyed, and the gold and silver metal that comes out of the melting pot is returned to the Treasury.

WIFE WEDS AFTER HE SAILS.

Says Husband Told Her He Would Not Return.

On a charge of bigamy Mrs. Annie Genovese Login, twenty-nine years old, wife of Alphonse Login, of No. 209 Johnson avenue, Brooklyn, was held yesterday in the Manhattan Avenue Court, Brooklyn. Login went to Europe last summer. Two weeks after his departure his wife, it was alleged, was married to his first cousin. Login returned two weeks ago and caused her arrest.

Mrs. Login told Magistrate O'Reilly that when her husband started for Europe he led her to believe that he would never return, and she thought she was free to marry again.

Gets $10,000 for Loss of Leg.

Camden, Oct. 13.—A jury before Supreme Court Justice Garretson, in this city, Wednesday, gave a verdict for $10,000 in the suit of Joseph Gallagher against the Public Service Corporation to recover $25,000 damages for the loss of his two-year-old daughter's right leg. The child was run over by one of the defendant company's cars at Third and Mechanic streets last August.

Boy Missing from Home.

Although relatives and friends have made a thorough search for him, they have been unable to find George Rhodes, ten years old, who one week ago left his home, 72 Oak street, Paterson. He was last seen riding on J. B. Visser's farm wagon. Visser says the boy jumped from the wagon at Cedar Lawn and started back for Paterson.

Phillipsburg Man Drops Dead.

Phillipsburg, Oct. 13.—John Connor, seventy years old, fell dead at his home here Wednesday. He was a life-long resident of Phillipsburg and leaves four children. The sudden death occurred as Mr. Connor was passing from one room to another. He had been enjoying apparently good health.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Brotherhood, of the First M. E. church, is planning to give an entertainment within a short time.

The Classis of Philadelphia will hold its fall meeting in the Blawenburg church on Tuesday, October 17.

Raymond H. MacDonald, of Watchung and Mountain avenues, will lead the Epworth League meeting at Vincent chapel Sunday night, at 7 o'clock.

EXPLODING AUTO KILLS MAN.

Chauffeur Was Explaining New Carbide Gas Generator.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—One man is dead and another frightfully mangled as the result of the blowing up of a big "Peerless" automobile owned by Finlay Barrett, broker. The machine was at his summer home in Lake Forest.

Harry Brown, his chauffeur, was explaining the mechanism of a recently invented carbide gas generator to his friend, George Powell, when there was a tremendous explosion. Powell's right leg was blown off, both eyes destroyed and his left leg fractured. He died last night.

SAT WITH FEET ON BENCH?

Judge Is Thus Accused, and President Asks Him to Resign.

Washington, Oct. 13.—President Roosevelt has requested the resignation of Associate Justice Tucker, of the Supreme Court of Arizona. One charge against him is that he would hold court at Globe, Ariz., only on condition that the people of that place made him the gift of a residence. It was also charged that when presiding in court he sat with his feet on the bench.

An investigation was made by the Department of Justice, and upon department findings was based the request for the resignation.

GIRL OF 13 ELOPES.

Ran Away with a Man of Thirty, Who Will Be Prosecuted.

Jersey Shore, Pa., Oct. 13.—When the public school at Garman's Church closed Wednesday afternoon, Miss Myrtle Holt, aged thirteen, instead of going home, met her sweetheart, Charles Kissell, aged thirty.

They boarded a train for Corning, N. Y., but E. K. Garman, stepfather of the girl, learned of the runaway and telegraphed to Corning, directing their arrest upon their arrival.

Chief Ryan went to Corning and got the girl. Kissell will be prosecuted for abduction.

POLITICAL TIPS.

The Democrats of Bergen county held their convention yesterday in Hackensack, and nominated John E. Hoey, of Richfield Park, and Dr. Charles Colhoun, of Rutherford, for the Assembly. George Van Buskirk, of Hackensack, was nominated for sheriff. The platform condemned the use of the voting machines and the primary laws recently passed.

Before an audience that filled Carnegie Hall, New York, so completely that the police and fire departments forbade the entrance of another person into the building, William R. Hearst was named for Mayor last night by the Municipal Ownership League. John Ford was nominated for Comptroller and J. G. Phelps Stokes was named for president of the Board of Aldermen.

The Tammany County and Borough Convention last night nominated this ticket: For District-Attorney—James W. Osborne; for Judges of the Supreme Court—George L. Ingraham, Henry A. Gildersleeve, Joseph E. Newburger; for Judge of General Sessions—Thomas C. O'Sullivan; for Sheriff—Nicholas J. Hayes; for County Clerk—Peter J. Dooling; for Register—Frank Gass; for president of Manhattan Borough—John F. Ahearn; for Coroners—George F. Shrady, Jr., Peter F. Acritelli, Peter Dooly, Julius Harburger.

Girls Play Fast Tennis.

The first round of the girls' tournament in tennis at the Plainfield High School was completed yesterday afternoon on Pierson's court in Dunellen avenue. The best match of the afternoon was between Miss Irene Dunham and Miss Ethel Murray, the former winning in two well played sets, 6—4, 6—4. The second round will be played off today.

Why She Wants Divorce.

Marshalltown, Ia., Oct. 13.—Because, so she alleges, her husband has not bathed for twenty-two years and brags of the fact, Mrs. Phoebe Normann, wife of a farmer, today sued for divorce. She asks the custody of seven minor children and $8,000 alimony, one-third of the defendant's property.

Lecture on Japan.

Henry A. McGee gave his illustrated lecture on Japan before a large audience at the Monroe Avenue chapel last night. The proceeds were for the benefit of the Epworth League.

That was a bad break made by the Legal Voters' League of Camden, in nominating for Common Council a man who has been dead for some time, after having accused the Republicans of padding the registry lists with the names of phantom voters. If political signs are to be acones" now holding public office, but they were alive when elected or appointed.—Trenton Times.

Inspect Dover Fire Department.

Dover, Oct. 13.—The annual inspection of the Dover Fire Department was held Wednesday night, but owing to the storm there was no parade. The four fire companies were marshalled in the truck and engine rooms of the engine house and then inspected by members of the Common Council and the Board of Engineers. Only sixty-six firemen, a little over half of the full membership of the department, turned out.

Eugene Van Court, sixty-five years old, a prominent resident of Oak Tree, was seized with a sudden stroke of apoplexy while husking corn yesterday. His recovery is doubtful.

Sermon on the New Japan.

Rev. Dr. James L. Ammerman, of New York, will occupy Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck's pulpit at Trinity Reformed church on Sunday morning. The subject of his sermon will be "Lessons from the New Japan."

Rescued Physician's Bike.

Dr. Lufburrow, who is the city physician, forgot his bicycle at the curb in front of his house last night. Cop Flynn spotted the wheel before any loose-moraled wayfarer did and put it in police headquarters.

"Mr. Raffles" Will Be There.

There will be a "Mr. Raffles" at the Red Men's fair to be held in Vardon's Hall on West Front street during the week beginning October 30. He will visit the fair three nights.

TO ANNUL MARRIAGE OF MISS DEARBORN

PROCEEDINGS TO BE TAKEN TODAY TO INVALIDATE HER MARRIAGE.

Instructions have been given by the Dearborn family, in Montclair, to their lawyer to begin proceedings today for the annulment of Miss Cordelia Dearborn's marriage to Henry Gill, her former coachman. A young man who said his name was Dearborn and a friend of the family, but who refused to disclose his further identity, was at the house in Orange road last night. As he came out, a wagon loaded with trunks containing the effects of Mrs. Henry Dearborn and her daughter was driven away. The young man said the two women had not come to Montclair, but had left New York on a trip and would be absent a long time.

Questioned about Henry Gill, he said he had seen him the day before, but refused to say where. He said, however, that Gill was probably on his way for some distant point, as he had a wife and child, and that a warrant had been issued for his arrest on a charge of bigamy.

Mr. Dearborn, asked why he did not turn Gill over to the police, replied he did not do so to avoid additional notoriety and unpleasantness.

Gill was engaged to drive for the family last June while they were staying at Concord, N. H. He did not wear livery, and appearing to be a worthy men had their confidence from the start. It was customary for him to take Miss Dearborn out riding, and gradually he won her esteem and then her affections. Miss Dearborn is thirty-two years old and Gill is twenty-five.

The daughter sent a telegram to her family that she was engaged to Gill, and asked them to come to Brookline, Mass., where she expected to marry him. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Storrs at the Episcopal rectory in Brookline last Thursday morning. Young Mr. Dearborn said he became suspicious that all was not right with Gill and promptly sent af friend to Franklin, N. H., to look up his record. Then it was discovered, he said, that the coachman had a wife and child in that city. This was announced to Gill's new wife and her mother on Thursday almost immediately after the ceremony, and they came on to New York without Gill.

The Dearborns on October 1 signed a lease of the house of William H. Sears at Irving street and Orange road. Few of the household effects have been installed.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS.

The books of a club at Leicester, England ostensibly established for "mental and moral improvements, mutual helpfulness and rational creation," showed, in court, that about 14 cents a week was spent by the club on literature and about $35 a week on drink.

Sir Michael Hicks Beach was in a hurry when he passed through New York the other day, on his way to Singapore, to arbitrate in the transfer of the docks there from private owners to the government. No wonder, for he and two other arbitrators are to receive $400,000 for their services.

A cook, who had been summarily discharged by her employers for smoking cigarettes in the kitchen recently sued in vain for wages in an English court.

An advertisement from the Yorkshire Post: "Would any lady of means care to marry poor, crowded-out clerk, aged thirty-seven."

English poachers have adopted khaki for wear during business hours. They find it makes the evasion of watchful gamekeepers more easy.

For fifteen years no suicide of a Jew was recorded in the seven great districts that comprise the most populous part of central London. But of late there have been several cases.

The City of Edinburgh is in possession of $500,000 or more which it cannot spend. It was bequeathed by a public-spirited citizen named Usher, ten years ago, for the building of a city hall, but the town counsel has never been able to agree upon a scheme.

With its November issue Macmillan's Magazine, the oldest of the English shilling magazines, will join the sixpenny ranks.

During the past eleven months Oxford, England, has lost, by death, its Mayor, three Aldermen and four town councilors, which is considered a municipal record.

The religious service which precedes the election of a Lord Mayor of London has been held every year for 500 years. The first service was held before the election of the celebrated Dick Whittington to the first of his four terms.

Lacemaking is said to be dying out, not only in England but in Italy and in France, where Alenoon and Chantilly are no longer made. The Spanish industry is dear. Belgium now turns out lace of any required style or name.

The town of Lucerne has bought for $200 Schaffhauser's old guillotine, and announces that it will lend it to other towns at $5.50 an execution.

The Simplest Face Wash.

"I have never found a more satisfactory way to wash my face than this," said a woman who travels daily in the dust and grime of railway trains. "First I rub into the skin a good cold cream. This I wipe off with a soft linen rag. Next I wash my face water as hot as I can bear, with a Turkish cloth and a good soap. I rinse it in hot, then in gradually cooling waters, and finish by dashing it with a basin of cold water, into which I have dropped twelve drops of tincture of benzoin. The entire process takes about ten minutes every night. In the morning my skin feels soft and clean and velvety."

STOKES TO AID DRYDEN

Governor Will Assist in Senator's Re-election if He Has Good Support.

ALL EYES ON COLBY

Attitude of Essex County Candidates May Determine Result—Gossip About the State.

Although the election of the United States Senator to succeed John F. Dryden will not take place in the New Jersey Legislature until 1907, the possibilities that may arise have proved one of the most prolific sources of discussion among politicians interested in State affairs. That this discussion is justified is denoted by the facts that the men who are possibilities are engaged in negotiating and maneuvering for advantage. Considerable interest is evinced in the actions of former United States Attorney General John W. Griggs, whose sudden cordiality in various sections has been construed as the manifestation of a desire to again enter the political world.

But more significant than any other thing that has yet occurred in the campaign is the report that comes from a responsible source, which for obvious reasons cannot be revealed, that Governor Edward C. Stokes has entered into an agreement with Senator Dryden by which he will give all his influence to aid in the re-election of the Newark man if the latter be a candidate.

Mr. Dryden is generally regarded as a strong candidate, and as having naturally the strongest chances of re-election if the Legislature be Republican on joint ballot, as it probably will be in 1907, according to the present outlook. The alliance between the Governor and the Senator will be invincible if there be no conditions to it.

Whether there are any conditions cannot be ascertained positively at the present time, but it is said that the only condition was that he Governor would support the Dryden candidacy "if Dryden's chances were well founded," as it was put by one man. This is interpreted to mean that the Senator must have as a foundation for his candidacy the support of the delegation from Essex, his own county. If he has that support he can control other delegations from the northern part of the State, and if Governor Stokes throws in his influence with the South Jersey members of the Legislature, there will exist little doubt of the result.

In connection with the need for Senator Dryden to secure the Essex delegation in 1907, State politicians are wondering whether Everett Colby, who will be State Senator then, and his colleagues of the Assembly delegation, if they be of the same stripe, will support Mr. Dryden.

No expressions as to his position have been made by Mr. Colby since the September primaries, but the party leaders do not look with confidence on the prospect of aid for Mr. Dryden from him or from Colby Assemblimen, if such are returned in 1907. This supposed lack of sympathy is said to be indicated by the opposition that Mr. Colby and his party have shown to the Public Service Corporation, with which Mr. Dryden is closely identified, and to the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia, which is a heavy holder of stock in the Public Service.

This phase of affairs has brought some talk as to the position that Senator Dryden will take in the present fight in Essex county and whether he will be active in support of the Colby candidates.

It was said that it might not be a misfortune for Mr. Dryden if the Colby candidates were defeated and Democratic members elected to both the State Senate and the House this fall. If Democrats should be elected, it is reasoned Mr. Dryden could make a strong effort next year to have a delegation sent to the House that would be undoubtedly in his favor, and would probably succeed, because the county is normally Republican, and some settlement could be made of the troubles that now exist. It would be preferable to him to have eleven votes assured in the House than twelve, including the State Senator, doubtful.

$10,000 for Loss of Leg.

Camden, Oct. 12.—A verdict of $10,000 damages was yesterday awarded the parents of Catherine, the two-year-old daughter of Patrick Gallagher, for the loss of a leg mangled by a trolley car, by a jury in the Circuit Court. It is said to be the heaviest verdict ever rendered for an injured child in the State. The child lost the leg under a Public Service Corporation car in this city last April. Counsel for the parents brought out the admission by the motorman that the brakes of the car were not in working order and he was unable to stop the car in time to avoid the accident.

Money to Kill Mosquitoes.

To the fund that is being raised at Elizabeth for the extermination of mosquitoes ,the Central Railroad of New Jersey has offered to contribute $1,000. The city has given $2,000 and the State has contributed $500 to the local fund.

ANSWERS JAMES R. JOY

A. V. D. Honeyman Addresses Open Letter to Him on Mayor Smalley.

"BONAPARTISM"

Mr. Honeyman Says "Local God" Mr. Joy Worships is a Strange One —Makes Specifications Against Bossism.

The following open letter to James R. Joy, who presided at the Republican mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall a few nights ago, has been sent to this office by A. V. D. Honeyman, formerly president of the North Plainfield Board of Education:

To Mr. James R. Joy:

Having long been honored by your personal friendship; having also served with you delightfully for some years in a capacity where I learned to appreciate your high talents and sterling character, will you pardon me if I express in a public manner my own profound grief, and that of others of your friends, at the public position you have deliberately taken in favor of the re-election of Mayor Smalley for a fourth term? At the Saengerbund Hall meeting of last week, at which you deemed it an "honor" to preside, and at which you attacked me as an "arch-politician" and the Citizens' party as a bad institution, and praised up Mayor Smalley as a local god to be worshiped, you certainly provoked criticism.

If any apology were needed for addressing you in this public manner, it is sufficient to say that the influence you there sought to bring upon voters, backed by your exalted rank as religious editor and educator, deserves serious attention, to say the least. What you said against me personally may be set aside as byplay of no serious moment; what you said for your candidate was so "important, if true," that the matter is one of gravest import to the good morals of the entire communities of North Plainfield and Plainfield. For, if your declared position be correct, the political rings which govern our various local municipalities are untold blessings, tending to "good citizenship" and lofty civic results. If we fail now to rid ourselves of the bossism that is strangling us, other neighboring communities may lose hope.

If any apology were needed for addressing you in this way, some of the peculiar words spoken by you on that occasion, to be quoted presently, would seem to merit a most earnest reply. My personal esteem for you will make it as impersonal as possible.

What was said by the paid attorney of the borough, whose fight everybody understands is purely for his own retention in office, is of not much consequence to any serious-minded citizen. A representative of a county who left the State Senate branded with the stigma of "traitor" by his fellow citizens of every shade of opinion in that county, has a minimum of weight at a political meeting where those who know him best are the listeners. I do not propose to place myself upon the same political level as ex-Senator and never-to-be-again-Senator Reed by being provoked to any controversy with him. Nor do I propose to debate the question of the pure and lofty character of Mayor Smalley with himself. If he cannot see the indelicacy of trying to reinstate himself in office for another term by praising himself and his own administration, he may toot his own horn to the Judgment Day, and I will not be one of his audience.

But your case is entirely different. You are not an office seeker; you are a Republican from principle; you surely desire to have only clean men in power from the President of the United States down to the latest office holder in the borough of North Plainfield. Your nature, like my own, revolts at dishonesty, public or private, and certainly shirks from all manner of political foulness. You and I both abhor men who buy votes or sell them, as well as the grafter on the public treasury. You believe, as I do, and as that greatest American citizen, Theodore Roosevelt, does, in a "square deal for everybody;" that the poor citizen shall have a chance to vote without oppression, without bribery, without boycotting in business, as well as the rich citizen.

You have high civic ideals and this is what the Citizens' party claims to have, and yet if our ideals are supposed to be alike, how is it that we are miles apart on a burning local question? How is it that, when we agree on the best ideals for office holders, some of us loathe this open sore, known as Smalleyism, and believe it to be a Tammany excrescence on our borough politics, while you are entirely willing to publicly officiate at the high altar of Republicanism in celebrating the praises of this local Richard Croker as one fit to be compared with the distinguished President of our country!

Inasmuch as I shall not, in all probability, speak again at a public mass meeting in the borough prior to the election, being content to rest the case before the public with my published address of September 18 (which you took for your text but did not answer), and with this public letter, I choose to address you now, first as a Republican to a Republican, and then as a citizen to a citizen, and with the public as the listeners. If I am lengthy, the importance of the issues at stake justifies it. Either you are right or you are wrong. Assuming that your conclusions are conscientious, it is not possible for both sides to be right. Let me renew your attention to some pertinent facts which go to the marrow of the subject.

First, however, let me quote from your speech in Saengerbund Hall. In that address you denounced in vigorous terms the principles of the Citizens' party, whose platform, as it seems to me, every honest man can subscribe to heartily. You termed me an "arch-politician," although my sole offense seems to be to have spoken at a Citizens' meeting against the highway robbery of our best ideals in local politics. You lauded to the skies that "good citizen," our Mayor, and subsequently said that his initials might stand for "Napoleon Bonaparte" Smalley, adding, as I am informed by those who were present, "both are great men." You further stated that the Citizens' party of the borough were trying to "palm off upon the public a spurious image" of this, your model citizen; that the attempted blow he gave to our schools (in well known instances which you entirely ignore) was but the "real and helpful support" of "good citizenship;" and, finally, you said: "The real Newton B. Smalley is as real as Theodore Roosevelt, and has a good many of the same qualities."

All this is so astonishing in view of what I supposed everybody in the borough knew the facts to be, that these declarations have dwarfed into nothingness both the self-praise delivered by the Mayor himself and the declamation of the immaculate J. B. Cleaver, whose oration has not been given to the public, because unfit to print.

The case of the Public of North Plainfield versus Bonapartism (if you will allow me to adopt your simile) is not a novel one before the public at large. The entire county, I may say almost the entire State, understands it perfectly, although you do not seem to comprehend the length and breadth and height and depth of the political turpitude of the defendant now at the bar of judgment.

It must be assumed that you are largely ignorant of what has been going on in our borough for at least the past fifteen years, or you could not have uttered your similitude as to "Roosevelt" without a perceptible blush. I surely have a right to assume that you would not aid, knowingly, in any further debauchment of our local politics, beyond that which has been apparent before your eyes and mine for all these years; and, indeed, that if you were appreciative of the facts you would join with me in calling a halt to the exisiting conditions.

You have been a resident of the borough longer than myself, and yet it may be that you have not come into close contact with events which I supposed were the common property of the best as well as the worst of the voters in our borough. I came here to reside in 1892, and in a few brief sentences will sketch what has occurred to my personal knowledge since that date.

Having always affiliated previously with the Republican party, from principle, I soon became more or less intimate with some of those who were looked up to as local Republican leaders. I found the borough to be prosperous, but that at every local election the success or failure of the Republican ticket depended, not on the uprightness or ability of its nominated candidates, but wholly upon the approval or disapproval of this one "good citizen" whom you now so greatly admire. He was the most active man in all attempts to elect or defeat the Republican or Democratic candidates. At his nod the most degraded voter, and sometimes the most intelligent citizen, got to the polls. He handled the pasters, and he corralled in the newly naturalized or the non-naturalized. What is of greater importance, he not unoccasionally "handled the funds." By methods of which he was a unique master he had the Republican or Democratic ticket win or lose. He went to the Republican primary, but if, after a fair nomination, a candidate did not suit him, the other fellow was elected. The borough was overwhelmingly Republican, but he succeeded in having a Democratic Mayor elected about that same year, 1892, which I date, as not the beginning, but the first consummation of his party treachery.

The first man thus to go to defeat because his candidacy did not suit this "good citizen" was Mr. E. L. Bonny, a man whose character was as pure as gold. There was nothing to be said against his opponent, but Mr. Bonny was the unanimous Republican nominee and he was one of those citizens who "fitly constitute the State," and whom you and I should feel proud to honor.

At the next year's election I happened to be nominated for Mayor on the regular Republican ticket, at a primary which I had not attended. The nomination came without any previous knowledge on my part, and was only accepted at the personal solicitation of all the local leaders, except your "good citizen" and one other of his chums, who is now pleading so hard before the public that Mr. Conroy should not be elected lest he might lose the perquisites of his office. It is needless to say that this young "Napoleon" again squelched the Republican ticket, presumably because I was not of his ilk. (I may say here, parenthetically, that I never have been brought in personal contact with this "good citizen" in a political or business way in my life; have no personal feeling against him of any sort whatever; that so far from being his "enemy," I am an enemy to nobody in the wide world; that I should do him any proper favor, just as I would any of my fellow men, were he in any need of it, and especially if it would tend to the uplifiting of his ideals of ordinary party principles, or those of common public morality.)

But to resume. From the day last referred to until the present I have always, by my vote and influence, supported local or county Republicans for office when they were fit men, taking, however, like yourself, the position that, while the "politicians" might make the canvass and expend the moneys incident to a campaign, my duty as a citizen was best subserved by simply going to the primaries and to the polls and registering my vote. I never "managed" the Republican polls, just as you have not. All the same, however, I knew from the poll wokers themselves and from the various candidates, that party treachery and bossism were becoming so rampant that it was only a question of time when the better element of the Republican party and of the Democratic party must join together to overthrow these Tammany excrescences, or confess that the better manhood of good citizenship was overreached and its better ideals trailed in the dust.

During the years since, you and I have seen Republican after Republican in the borough, surely not all of them unfit men, go down to defeat through this man's treachery. One by one a Republican would be nominated at the primary with scarce an opposition, and then be cut down at the polls in cold blood.

I saw as worthy a citizen as we have, a man who has done more than almost any other local Republican, by pen and speech, for the upholding of his party principles in the borough, the county and the Congressional district—a clean man, who is not to be spoken of in the same breath with this new "Napoleon" of yours, regularly nominated, and then defeated by a few votes, chiefly through the antagonism of this one traitor within the party. He had had the "backbone" when he had previously been Mayor to fine this "good citizen" when the latter was a member of Council, for racing his horses on Sunday on one of the public streets of the borough; and from that time until now this "good citizen" has had no use for him.

I then saw the victorious Democratic candidate, Mayor Wilson, so far disappoint this "good citizen" after the election, by making a clean business record as Mayor, astonishing even his friends by the vigor and honesty of his administration, that the law was laid down to him by this same "good citizen" that the Mayor must turn Republican, in which case he "would be endorsed," or otherwise be deprived of re-election. The impossibility of the conditions imposed furnished the excuse for this deft manipulator of elections "putting himself in his place," without any compunctions whatever. (I suggest, by the way, that you now have a confidential talk with this honored ex-Mayor, who best knows what happened when he was succeeded in office by your daring young "Napoleon.")

Then I saw ex-Mayor Cooley regularly nominated for an important local office, that of assessor, for which he was peculiarly qualified by long previous training in that same capacity, defeated by the same kind of treachery.

At a previous date, as I am informed, Mr. George D. Hallock, an able Councilman, had been practically forced out of the Councilmanic office by this same manipulator.

You and I then kenw of first class nominations in the county (a conspicuous example was that of Mr. Frelinghuysen for Senator, Mr. Irving H. Hoagland for Assembly, and Mr. Van Doren for Surrogate, in 1902,) turned down upon the most paltry excuse imaginable, although today two of these estimable gentlemen are supposed to have the hearty support of this "good citizen," notwithstanding they are neither better nor worse than they were in 1902. The same "good citizen" one year, from spite toward his ticket, assisted to place Assemblyman Swackhamer in the office which he graced, and the next year attempted his slaughter "with shovel and tongs." Only last year we say the worthy nominee for sheriff and for Assembly knifed in the same manner by the same man, this time happily without effective results.

Can it be that these acts of treachery, gloried over still by the chief participants, are a sufficient cause for you, as a Republican, to deem it an "honor" to preside at a meeting intended to elect one of the traitors to office, and to secure the success of his fell conspirators? It is not the kind of Republicanism of which I have any reason to be proud. I refuse to support it. It is simply loathsome.

Upon the school question, may I say that I had from first sources the particulars of the open denunciation by this "good citizen" on the public street of the supervising principal of our public school, because he exercised the right of a free man to look in upon the events of the Legislature as a passive spectator. I know of his collecting together his votaries, and practically expelling from the school board, Mr. Henry A. McGee, Mr. George D. Hallock and ex-Mayor John H. Van Winkle, three of the most valuable members of that board, two of them honored representatives of the Republican and one of the Democratic party, and all citizens high in public esteem. This latter event was the first blow attempted at the public school system of the borough; it was the first wedge of political Smalleyism driven into the school board; and while you ignore this fact in your address, it was so well known and so unreasonable and unjustifiable that the event alone should have forever precluded you, as a firm friend of the school, from taking up the burden of proving that this "good citizen" is entitled to a continuation of municipal honors.

Then I saw the removal of the school physician, and heard of the plans laid to remove both the district clerk and the two janitors (which miscarried), and I was personal witness to the further attempt (in which, I regret to say, you lent a hand) looking toward the abolition of the borough High School, which had been created at such a large sacrifice and expense, and which was and is the most creditable thing we have in our borough.

If there is anything as to which I feel a pardonable pride in my record as a member of the school board, it is that I voted against all the propositions which were made to break up the High School, or to change the school physician for political reasons, or to prevent the erection of the magnificent school structure now on Somerset street, which were propositions fostered, if not initiated, by this same "good citizen."

You say that the influence of our "model" Mayor has always been cast for the best interests of the public schools. I say that he has done more than any other one man to make his own views dominant in the complexion of the school board and to break up the foundations of a sound education by assailing the very roots of it.

I grant you that the first term of this "good citizen" as Mayor, when, by his own connivance, he was elected to that office over the infinitely better man, was not discreditable. Everybody hoped that he had at last reached the station where he need not be a "Napoleon," but a real leader of good and substantial improvements. The next term, however, clearly proved that the office had turned his head. He became the absolute boss of every department of the bofough. The committees of Council were ignored in the ordering of work performed, a condition of things which exist to this day when repairs upon the streets, the laying of borough sewers and other important expenditures are directed without public bids and without any reference to the powers of the regular committees. If the most obnoxious example was that in which that conscientious member of Council, Mr. Robert Clark, Jr., was forced to abdicate his office, or otherwise pose in his position as a mere cipher in borough affairs, the same conditions met other men who proved more obsequious to the dictates of the boss. The chairman of the street committee, Mr. Arnold, is so completely under the Mayor's power today that he does not undertake to consult with any member of his committee upon street improvements, nor as to who shall be employed upon street work, but takes direct orders from the Mayor himself, only reserving the despotic right of seeing to it that many of the employees secure their various domestic supplies from a certain store, over whose door is the sign of "James K. Arnold." The brother of the Mayor frequently acts as receiver of contracts for the streets almost at his own good pleasure. Within the past six years the sum of $4,574.31 has been paid to A. I. Smalley, or his firm, and the proportion of it that has been done after open, public bidding is—so I am informed—too small to be seen even with a microscope.

It might be said—but surely not by you—that these are chiefly political and not fundamentally bad offenses; that "all things are fair in politics;" that if the borough is not actually cheated in dollars and cents, the administration should be undisturbed. This man "does things," and so let him go on, and let us patiently endure it!

For one I should be willing to condone his party offenses if I saw immediate signs of reformation. But the intolerable bossism is still unabated and there are yet no signs of reform in the horizon. Some of us might stand by and see either or both the Republican or Democratic party in the borough ruined, and also declare it is of little account whether the business of tae borough be conducted on lines of favoritism and nepotism or not, so long as no money be actually stolen from the treasury. But to what is this thing leading? Shall I as a citizen do nothing but fold hands?

You and I, who do not seek political public office, whose ideals are as much higher than these low ones as the heavens are higher than the earth, who wish to see clean government by clean and able business men, who believe in what is for the advancement of our fellows, have no occasion to quibble over petty matters of precise details. Whether you were ever asked by this Mayor to dismiss a teacher from the school or not—and no one charges that such was ever the case; whether he, or our most estimable and lamented friend, Mr. Valiant, is best entitled to the credit of having the school funds put directly to the board's account, as the law requires, instead of its slow payment in instalments as has been the custom (and I am as sure that the credit wholly belongs to Mr. Valiant, as you are that it belongs to this new "Bonaparte"), or not; or whether the school supervising principal left because of the politics injected (not by me, but by its Smalley members,) into the board or not, are all really unimportant details. The fact remains, that for years and years, this one man, whom you are so unfortunate as to liken to Theodore Roosevelt, has debauched the politics in this municipality, has almost ruined the Republican and Democratic parties as vital factors in local affairs, and has made our borough the laughing stock, and turned upon us the scorn, of county and State.

Can you wonder that, as a result of all these things, of which I have recited but a tithe, some of us plain voters, who do pay our taxes even if they are not so large as those of some other men, have become disgusted beyond all power of expression? Do you not think that such a condition of affairs is one which is properly styled "intolerable?" That I am not alone in this view is shown by the fact that in two most important elections, the views and men presented at the polls by this, your modern "Bonaparte," have been defeated by an outraged public sentiment, and that the contention is now "bitter" concerning his retention of a public trust which he has shamelessly betrayed.

Do you not desire to see a Mayor in the chair who will be respected by everybody? Have you any ground for believing that Mr. Conroy is not an honest, capable man, as far removed from bossism as day from night? Do you have the "fear," that is expressed by Mr. Reed, that if Mr. Conroy is elected Mr. Swackhamer, or myself, or some other one or two men not to Mr. Smalley's liking, might have some "influence" with the new administration? As to the latter point, let me say once and for all that Mr. Conroy was not singled out by me as a candidate, nor was any other individual; he was nominated solely because he was a good man to lead to victory; that if he is elected I do not expect to ask or receive any favors from the administration; that I have no axes to grind, no friends to put in office, no movements to inaugurate. If he will carry out the principles laid down in his letter of acceptance, the borough will be happy and prosperous without the assistance of Mr. Reed, or any advice from myself.

Do you object to the Citizens' platform? Will you carefully read it over and state to what single plank in that platform you take exception? Will you read once again the letter of acceptance of Mr. Conroy, and advise me what is in it to which you object, and that will lead you to withhold your support from such a clear-headed and Christian gentleman?

When it comes right down to the point, do you not feel deep in your heart that, when a Mayor licenses a prize-fight in our borough, after the Mayor and chief of police of Plainfield refused to permit it there, that it is pretty good evidence something or other is loose in the moral make-up of your "Napoleon?" And when, after the prize-fight came off, he was found endeavoring to hush up the facts, instead of laying them before the Grand Jury, does it not occur to you that he connived at a maladministration of justice?

Don't you think that when, at every election, this Mayor (unlike any other Mayor of whom I have knowledge, in North Plainfield or elsewhere) stands all day long in front of or within the polls, browbeating or cajoling scores of voters, sometimes Democrats and sometimes Republicans, by all the usual methods known to the regulation Tammany ward heeler, that it is something of which both of us, and all "good" citizens, should heartily be ashamed? Is it a crime for me to denounce such misdeeds?

Is it of no consequence to the children of our schools, to the youths of our borough, to those of us who feel a pride in our municipality, to have the Mayor say in a public speech that it was the glory of his reign that he "put John Goodwin on the bum," or that his party majority depends wholly "upon the amount of funds," or that the leaders of the Citizens' movement are "hellhounds?" Would you raise a monument of adulation to the memory of such a chief executive?

Is the turning of betters out of office from personal spite, or the placing of friends in office (as on the health board or police force, or in the fire department, for example) solely for personal ends, and many of them incompetents in the highest degree, of trifling consequence?

Do you not feel that, if the screws are put down hard, just before election time, on some poor man who has a job upon the streets, or at his trade, if he does not vote the Smalley ticket, and he lets up easy on him, or promises to furnish him with work, or to assist him to pay his rent, or sees that the usual "$2.00 a day" for services as "poll worker" on election day is forthcoming if he is pliant to boss wishes, this is a startling menace to our much-praised American institutions? I have heard of this thing by those close to the polls for years. Is it news to you? Is it all fiction?

In the Good Book, which you and I have learned to reverence, there is something like this: "Praise the Lord, for he hath delivered the souls of the poor from the hand of evildoers." Are you aware of the fact that many a poor man in this borough is sighing for the day when he can go to the polls as a free man, without any fear that the manner of ballot he votes, if distasteful to this "Napoleon," will so menace him afterward as to make his life miserable? The Citizens' ticket this year in North Plainfield is, in a very great sense, which I fear you do not comprehend, a "poor man's ballot." It is a ballot which is appealing, almost pathetically, against such tyranny and oppression as have rarely visited the laboring classes in any American community.

Do you believe that these matters now brought to your attention and insisted upon as true in all essentials, as well as some things of common notoriety which are better unpublished, are simply "campaign falsehoods?" If you do, why is it that they are so commonly believed? And what will you say, if I offer to convince you by undisputable evidence that they are facts? Would you then publicly attend a Citizens' meeting and declare that you had made a mistake, and that the best interests of the borough demands the election of another man to the mayoralty?

Are you willing to arrange with me for an investigating conference of a few men of equally high standing with yourself, half of whom shall be men who feel as you do on this subject, so as to sift the essential facts to the bottom? Do you desire to get the real truths concerning the executive of our borough? If so, I am with you heart and soul. There is no better time than now, when so many good people from knowledge or ignorance of the facts seem to be at the parting of the ways.

May I venture to say that, once you are possessed of the details against which your eyes are now holden, you will never again in public pat upon the baek the author of the unfortunate condition of things in our borough as a "good citizen," worthy of emulation, having Roosevelt's sterling qualities and so deserving of renewed honors. You will say, instead, that we need to have purer air in North Plainfield soon, or general asphyxiation of the entire community will follow. You will feel that the whole dose—if once you get it in its glaringness—is so nauseating that you will earnestly pray, in public and private, for a different sort of "civic righteousness."

If a reform shall come this year, as I firmly believe it will, our citizens may well "thank God and take courage." If reform does not come this year it must come soon, or some things that you and I prize as true and noble, and worth striving for, will be ground by Smalleyism to powder. I am only sounding the alarm; you and others of the voters who should work for purity in politics must take the responsibility.

With great esteem yours,

A. V. D. HONEYMAN.

The two women, who are residents of Paulsboro, had had some trouble over a sewing machine and, it is alleged, very harsh epithets were hurled on the highway in the presenceof a considerable portion of the town's populace.

Dr. A. Katherine Klein, of 172 Bowers street, Jersey City, was driving through First street, Hoboken, Wednesday evening, when her carriage ran into and over two boys. They are Dennis Marshall and Frederick Deda. Dr. Klein jumped out and carried the two boys into a drug store. The Marshall boy's head was cut. This was dressed and stitched by Dr. Klein, who then took the lad in her carriage to St. Mary's Hospital.

Trying to enter her home by a window, Mrs. Emma Schultz, of 714 First street, Hoboken, was injured seriously by a fall of three stories Wednesday night. She had reached home to find her family out and the door of her flat on thethird floor locked. She went to the rear and climbed out on the coping, expecting to pass along it to a window of her flat. But she slipped and dropped. In St. Mary's Hospital it was said her recovery was doubtful.

Because of a prank that so scared a woman there were fears for her reason, Maude Mackie and Anna Winters, each fifteen years old, were arraigned in the Bayonne Court Wednesday. Mrs. Charles M. Thomas, of West Tihtry-fifth street, answered a ring at her doorbell one night recently and the figure of a hideous-looking woman fell into the vestibule. The supposed woman was a dummy. Recorder Lazarus dismissed the case, deciding it was one for mutual arbitration by the families concerned.

Because his wooden leg made such a noise that it disturbed the other teants, Andrew Gerison, a Union veteran, was before the Second Criminal Court in Jersey City Wednesday on complaint of his landlord, Edward Sell, who said he had appealed in vain to Gerison, who comes home late, to do less thumping with the wooden leg. Gerison began to recount to Judge Manning in minute detail his part in the Civil War and could not be repressed. He was finally tied to the clerk's desk and signed a bond to keep the peace.

A Pirate Battleship.

Here is a story of the most thrilling event in naval history—a battleship maned by maniacs. The only sane aboard was the quartermaster, and his story of the terrible adventure makes lively reading. There is also the story of the New York Boys Who Carry Millions of Dollars daily; also a story about the Boxing Parson, and many other features that will surely interest any one who purchases a copy of next Sunday's New York World.

Selma Herman in "Queen of the Convicts" at the New Plainfield Theatre Saturday Matinee and Night.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Selma Herman, the talented emotional actress who will appear in Theodore Kremer's new and most sensational play entitled "Queen of the Convicts," will make her appear ance upon the stage her in the first act in her bare feet. The play is based upon the trials, tribulations, and rise and fall of the ill-fated Queen Draga of Servia. It shows faithfully and vividly her beginning from the poor little fare-footed peasant girl with no other thought in the world but that of milking cows and looking after pastures, to her final triumph and ascendancy to the throne of Servia, where "she ruled with an iron hand" and through the entry and machinations of unscrupulous parties, finally yielded her crown to the Goddess of Death. In the play, the queen does not die, for there is on hand a brave and ever faithful Yankee who serves and saves her in a nick of time and thereby brings the play to a pleasant, instead of tragic ending. The cast that will support Miss Herman is an exceptionally good one, made up of Metropolitan players, each chosen for their especial fitness for the roles assumed. The "Queen of the Convicts" will be at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night.

Private advices speak of "A Message from Mars," the attraction soon to be seen here, as novel, with a quaint atmosphere, droll situations and witty in dialogue. It is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Elizabeth Valentine in "A Message from Mars" at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

David Warfield, in "The Music Master," at the Bijou, will play two extra matinees in response to hundreds of requests from out of town patrons. David Belasco has arranged for one of these for Thursday, October 26. Warfield continues not only to crowd the Bijou nightly but to turn hundreds away at every performance.

"A Message from Mars" took an immediate hold on the popular fancy and its run at the Garrick in New York was second only to its successful two years at the Prince of Wales, in London. It will be seen here at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

"Happyland," which is being presented by De Wolf Hopper at the Lyric, is said to have broken the run of slap stick musical farce which for so long has been afflicting New York. The piece in question is the work of Frederic Ranken and Reginald De Koven, and it seems to be conspicious for its absolute freedom from horse play and jingles. It contains a legitimate story from which is evolved all the comedy of the piece, while its score is put down as being most musicianly. At the premiere of the work, on October second, was present a typical Broadway audience, which, waiting in vain for coon songs, received the entertainment somewhat coldly. Consequently, it was freely opined in the lobbies that the Shuberts, under whose management "Happyland" is offered, had out-stepped themselves and gone "over the heads" of their patrons. The newspapers of the following day, however, were enthusiastic in their praise of the piece and of the ambition which brought it forth. "It is not 'Happyland' that is now on trial," said The World. "It is the public. If the production does not appeal to a profitable popular taste, comic opera is an impossible proposition." To the surprise of almost every one concerned, the public has responded with avidity, and the present phrophecy is that Mr. Hopper will enjoy as long a run at the Lyric as did Mr. De Angelis in "Fantana." Thus has begun the renaissance of comic opera in America.

David Proctor in "A Message from Mars" at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

They say that the lasting success of "The Message from Mars" lies in the fact that it leaves a pleasant, good natured feeling and one that stays for a long time. With David Proctor and the original London company, it is announced for tonight at the New Plainfield theatre.

In "The Romance of a Hindoo Princess," to be produced shortly at the New York Hippodrome, in lieu of "The Raiders," will be witnessed the most gorgeous and brilliant spectacle ever conceived on any stage in the world. The scenic effects are beautiful and the illusion is so perfect that the entranced spectator is spirited away to distant India, amid whose wild jungles the scene of the drama is laid. In action rather than words is told the stirring plot. A haughty Indian prince is a suitor for the hand of the beautiful daughter of the ruler of an adjoining province. He is rejected in favor of another suitor. Angered by her refusal, the Prince determines to storm her father's castle and carry her off by force to his own country. At the head of his army and accompanied by a great herd of elephants, he succeeds in accomplishing his purpose in a midnight attack on the fortress, and dashes off with his captive. He is pursued by the enraged father and his followers on horseback and over-taken. Then follows a most exciting and realistic fight, possibly only on the Hippodrome stage, the largest in the world. The climax comes with the rescue of the Princess and the maddened elephants plunging terrorized into the great water tank.

"A Message from Mars" with the original London cast and complete staging is announced for a presentation at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Antcault.

A notable event for the Grand Opera House, Fred G. Berger announces the initial appearance of the distinguished young actress, Miss Maude Fealey, in "The Truth-Tellers," an original modern comedy, dramatized by Martha Morton from the novel of that title, a company of even merit. A Broadway production on Eighth Ave. first. That immense popular comedian, Dan McAvoy and his Fifth Ave. Girls will be the headlien featue act at the Grand's second October concert, closely following them in bids for applause will be those droll comiques, Matthews and Ashley; also those eminent eccentric dancers, Coakley and McBride. Others on a programme of sterling excellence are Tascott, St. Felix Sisters, Barr and Evans, Jolly and Wilde, Morton, Temple and Morton and pictures on the Kinetograph of the opening ceremonies of the initial trip under the recently completed North River tunnel to New Jersey.

Edna May continues to delight New York by her admirable singing, dancing and acting in "The Catch of the Season," which has begun its seventh week at Daly's theatre. The record which she is achieving in this production promises to surpass that which she made last season in the wonderfully - successful "School Girl." Crowded houses at Daly's enjoy every feature of the big production and positively go into ecstasies over Miss May and her share of the work. They encore "Raining" and "Buttercups," her two principal songs, until she is tired out from repeating them, and the other songs she sings are almost equally in favor. The wholesome fun of "The Catch," which is irresistibly interpreted by Farren Soutar, Fred Wright and Fred Kaye, the abundant delightful music, the great display of beautiful gowns, and the international beauty array, which the Paris, London and American show girls make are additional reason why people should see it. Edna May's popularity is bound to continue great while she remains at Daly's.

McIntyre and Heath in Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Ham Tree" have made a success at the New York theatre the like of which has not been seen in the big city in many years. This is a real comic show and the audience is convulsed with laughter from start to finish. If there be any complaint, it is that the piece is too comic and too severe a test of one's endurance in continuous laughter. But yet every patron delights in the piece and hundreds have seen it several times. The story is most interesting and introduces McIntyre and Heath in the famous skits on minstrelsy which have given them the reputation of being the two most entertaining comedians in America. Their company is an excellent one and their chorus a real beauty show. There is more fun in "The Ham Tree" for $1 than in any other piece of its kind now running in New York.

Teaching by Telephone.

According to a Pittsburg telephone manager, the telephone was put to a novel and unusual use in Washington county recently, enabling two boys, sons of farmers, to hold their positions in their classes in the public schools from which they will graduate in another year. Incidently the patience and long-suffering of the country school teacher was put to an admirable test. Smallpox broke out in the neighborhood in question and the two scholars were among the early victims. The home was quarantined and there was every indication that the instruction which they had been receiving would be cut off for an indefinite period. But the teacher was resourceful and willing. He called up the srticken home one evening and proposed that the boys study their lessons as usual and he would hear them over the telephone. The idea was eagerly received. Each evening they took down the receiver and the teacher, located several farms away, heard them recite. Neither suffered to an appreciable degree through their absence from school, and their chances for graduation are just as bright as before the disease entered their home.—"Telephony."

The fans have no hard feelings against Westfield, but simply feel delighted to know that the Daabsters applied the brush good and plenty.

SOME MISTAKES MADE DURING HONEYMOONS

"It is during the earliest days of the honeymoon that many young wives make mistakes, the consequences of which are likely to affect their whole married life," said an observing grandmother.

"Early impressions count for a great deal, and the woman who has just secured the man of her choice should carefully guard against representing herself in a doubtful light, either from exuberance of spirits or from the feeling that 'nothing matters now we are married.'

"To the newly made bride I would say: Do not presume upon your new honors to constitute yourself your husband's teacher, or rather keeper. Often, in a mistaken sense of her fresh responsibilities, a wife is apt to assume on the honeymoon a playfully dictatorial demeanor toward her lord. At the boarding house where they are spending their first holiday together she convulses the male and disgusts the female residents by her attitude toward George at meal time.

"'No, dear. You mustn't touch those pickles. You know pickles are not good for you.' And poor George sees the coveted condiment placed beyond his reach as if he were a naughty little boy. Or, 'Now, George, I cannot allow you to smoke any more this morning. That is the second pipe you have had since breakfast.'

"The unfortunate man's smoking materials are playfully annexed by his better half beneath the scornfully amused glances of a dozen onlookers. Perhaps in an ill-judged moment he asserts his right to choose and think for himself. There is a scene, and their first quarrel, when George, patient but sore, gives in. But if his wife has scored on this occasion, George is already dimly realizing the meaning of the term 'henpecked.'

"Don't indulge in semi-public banter and bandiage with your husband. I was recently visiting at a house where a newly wedded couple were staying. The man was quiet and reserved, but his wife was of quite the opposite temperament, and in his attitude I could detect the dawn of impressions concerning his wife for which she will some day be sorry.

"Her idea of amusing him was to perpetually pester him with frivolous banter, provoking elaborate answers to the most trivial observations, and generally, with gadfly-like persistence, keeping him on the move, under which treatment he was obviously ill at ease, and to which fact she was sublimely unconscious. The day is not far distant when that young husband will shun his wife's society.

"Don't, when he evinces a desire to loaf contentedly on the beach on some fine afternoon, show your independence by marching off for an excursion in company of some one else. Few things disillusion a man more than the discovery that the girl whom he likes to regard as a tender, clinging plant, is able and willing to seek her amusement in other society than his own. It destroys one of the most cherished illusions he possesses, and he is not inapt to retaliate in a manner that speedily brings pain and a feeling of neglect to the thoughtless wife even before the honeymoon has waned.

"Don't expect him to be lavish of his affections in society. 'George is so nice when we are by ourselves,' wails the young bride, 'but when we are with other people, he treats me as if I were his maiden aunt.'

"She cannot see, silly woman, that she has married an average man, who detests making an exhibition of himself, even to gratify the only woman he loves. And by the same token, she should avoid imitating the German manner in this respect, for, much as the average American objects to playing the lover before an audience, he detests infinitely more to be fondled and called by endearing names under the same conditions."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

CONCERNING MAHOGANY.

Chippendale owes his reputation to the fact that he published a book of designs with over 200 copperplate engravings, so that today any one who wishes may get them and reproduce them exactly or with such changes and improvements as suit his fancy, says an exchange. That they are capable of improvement Chippendale himself was the first to declare. Chippendale was one of the first makers of mahogany furniture. Before his time this precious wood was valued only for the medicinal qualities it was supposed to possess.

The idea of making furniture of mahogany wood appears to have been the result of chance. A certain physician in London had a great many mahogany planks, and, wanting a candle box, he sent for a cabinetmaker and instructed him to use the mahogany for the required article of furniture.

The man objected that the wood was too hard for his tools, and the doctor told him to get harder tools. The man did so, and when the doctor saw the box he was amazed at its beauty. Patients and friends talked about it, and at last the Duchess of Buckingham came to see it. She was enraptured and persuaded the doctor to give her wood for a similar box. As a result mahogany got to be the fashion.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

GRATITUDE — THANKFULNESS.

Philosophers will tell you never to expect gratitude.

But it would be a dreary old world if we neither expected nor gave gratitude for kind actions.

And no matter what our lives may be we all have a great deal to be thankful and grateful for, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

When you perform a kind action is it not pleasant to feel that it is appreciated.

Of course it is, and so you must not forget to show your gratitude when others are kind to you.

Never hesitate to express your thanks fully and freely; people may say they don't expect it, but they like it just the same.

And do not let your gratitude take the form of lip service only. Return the kindness in deed as well as in speech.

If you are invited any place, or if a friend gives you a present, put your whole heart into your acceptance of the invitation or the gift. Make the giver feel that you heartily appreciate his kindness.

And when it comes to a question of thankfulness, why, my dears, every one of us could fill volumes on the things that we have to be thankful for.

There are so many every-day blessings that we take for granted, such as youth and health and sunshine.

The mere fact of living in this beautiful world is enough to fill our hearts with thanksgiving.

But we whine and fret because we haven't good clothes or can't go to a dance or are not as rich as our neighbors.

The next time that you feel discontented and at odds with the world just sit down and enumerate your blessings for a change.

You will be astonished to see how many you have.

We take it quite as a matter of fact that we should grumble over our woes; but we seldom make it a practice to rejoice over our blessings.

Down where I have been visiting lately, an old elm tree grew close to my bedroom window.

A couple of bluejays built their nest on one of its swaying branches.

Mr. Bluejay conducted his morning exercises in full view of the window, and I watched him with never-ending interest.

After he had talked business on household concerns with Mrs. Bluejay he made his toilet.

He was a dandified fellow and titivated to a great extent, preening his lovely blue feathers until they shone.

When he was all through he sang his morning hymn of praise.

It seemed as though his little throat would burst from pure ecstasy.

No doubt about his gratitude for God's good world and the sunshine.

He taught a lesson—that happy little bird—and it was this, that every day I live I should be grateful for being alive and able to try and make the most of my chances.

It's a gratitude you all may feel if you want to.

Try it and see if it doesn't make you happier.—Newark Advertiser.

THE GENTLER SEX.

"You have nothing to complain of; you took chances when you married him," said Judge Mandell this morning to Selma Dussia, who admitted she married Albert Dussia to reform him, and because the reform process did not work, asked for a divorce. Selma tried to explain the exact degree of intoxication which Albert reached each evening, but the judge demanded more evidence.—Detroit News.

"We had a Swede girl working here as a chambermaid last week who certainly took the cake for 'hard-headedness,'" said Jack Malloy, chief clerk at the Hotel Baltimore, yesterday. "One morning I decided to sleep late, having worked until after midnight the night before. I was in a delightful snooze about 9:30 o'clock when I was awakened by some one trying to unlock my door. I had left my key in the door, so the efforts of the person outside failed. Then there came a loud rapping. 'What it is?' I called. 'Aye kum ta clean da room,' came from outside. 'Well, go away from here, Hulda, and let me sleep,' I growled. 'This room can be fixed up this afternoon. Now get out and don't wake me up again.' I went back to sleep and about half an hour later there came another loud rapping at the door. 'What is it?' I called gruffly. It was Hulda again. 'Meester Malley,' she said, 'da housekeeper tale me not to bother you, so Aye won't any more."—Kansas City Times.

A North Atchison widow has not only added a porch and a bathroom to her residence, but it is now said she will buy an automobile.—Atchison Globe.

The young men are complaining of the girls' high-priced tastes, saying that unless a fellow has gilt-edged security he can hardly take even a sweet little business girl out and give her exactly what she is expecting in the way of carriage, theatre seats, and perhaps a collation. A letter received from a young man says that he makes $20 a week and has several girl friends who are employed at $10 a week; when he takes them out, however, he finds they have all the expensive tastes of a rich man's daughter, who neither toils nor spins. He says $1 theatre seats are not good enough, and no place as desirable as the Bellevue-Stratford for refreshment. Since he can hardly afford this, he does not know what to do. A quandary, indeed! For girls, as we all know, are stubborn facts indeed, upon which neither reason, force, nor moral suasion has the slightest effect.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

MEN'S HATS WORN BY WOMEN.

The thimble-crowned hat, which is the latest novelty in smart headgear for women, was directly inspired by the masculine bowler, says the London Mail.

Though its brim curls upwards on the left side more emphatically than it does on the right, and though the crown soars higher than that of the bowler has done for many years past, the resemblance is pronounced. Trimmed, too, it is another departure from its prototype's stern lines. With a band of velvet threaded through a buckle and a handful of ostrich feathers or cock's plumage set at one side, it looks uncommonly like the extraordinary efforts in millinery worn by the police in Vienna.

Made of coarse braid straw, of felt as light in weight as a feather, and of velvet, this is the hat that has asserted its supremacy as the latest effort in autumn millinery at Doncaster, where as the accompaniment of the tailor-made gown it has looked particularly apposite. With a double-breasted waistcoat made of starched pique, surmounted at the throat by a satin stock and a turned-down linen collar, the costume bears a close resemblance to the riding gear worn by the Amazons of the past.

Milliners have also perceived possibilities in the headgear worn by the Jehus of old coaching days, the crowns of which were half-high, half- low, with a waist, and then an outward bulge at the summit, while the brims were delightfully curly at the sides. The Amazon is the model that should appeal to the English woman, while the "cocher," as the coachman's hat is styled, will find its firmest advocates in Paris, where it is to be seen daily upon the heads of the men who drive the useful fiacre, and in a more elegant edition upon those of their gracefully habited fares.

SOME UP-TO-DATE FASHIONS.

A strikingly pretty dress for a young girl is shown in fancy green and brown broken plaid with box pleated yoke and bretelles of the material edged with knife pleated taffeta in green.

A very rich model of velvet was shown in one of the local department stores. It was cut in Empire style, forty-eight inch length jacket, elaborately but neatly braid trimmed; the vest effect was of light blue, overlaid with wide braid; the sleeve was elbow length, with cuff of lace.

One of the beautiful negligee lounging robes shown is of light blue albatross. The skirt was made with a deep flounce with three large tucks. The body was made in jacket effect, with flowing sleeves and rolling collar, tucked and prettily trimmed.

A leading model is a dressing sacque, accordion pleated, in pretty light shades. The sleeves and front are trimmed with lace and ribbon; lace also formed the collar. This sacque is shown in both albatross and china silk.

A pretty model of a girl's coat is shown in panne velvet in beautiful shades of green, cut Empire effect, with epaulettes of Persian braids and lace medallions.

Many girls' coats are shown with shirred hoods, of broadcloth and fancy mixtures, taffeta lined.

Many other beautiful gowns are shown in moire, crepe, novelty plaids, nets, messalines and tweeds, in a variety of styles. Etons, blouses and fifty-inch length coats are among the popular ones.

BATHS.

Cold baths in the morning are undoubtedly beneficial, but only to those persons who have sufficient vital energy and nervous force to insure good reaction, with no subsequent languor or lassitude. Many persons who are greatly refreshed by their morning bath feel tired or languid two or three hours after it. When this occurs it is conclusive evidence that the practice is harmful. Persons who have an abundance of blood and flesh, who are lymphatic or sluggish in temperament and whose nervous force is not depleted, can take a cold morning bath to advantage. Others who are inclined to be thin, whose hands and feet become cold and clammy on slight provocation, who digest food slowly and assimilate it with difficulty, who are nervous and who have much on their minds, should avoid early cold morning bathing. For such a bath before retiring at night is recommended, as it should be followed by rest of brain and body till equable conditions of circulation are re-established. Some persons who are weak in nerve power have such excitable nerves that they get at once a perfect reaction from cold bathing, but lose in after effects more than the value of the bath. This class of individuals should not bathe too often, and should always use tepid water, choosing the time preferably before retiring.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Hits the Nail on the Head.

The Camden Post-Telegram hits the nail squarely on the head on the Justice of the Peace question, when it says:

"The office of Justice of the Peace need not be abolished if a better method of filling it than the one in vogue can be devised. If Justices were appointed by the court, after an examination as to ability to fill the position, there would be fewer ignoramuses, scalawags and grafters exercising legal authority in a constitutional office."

There is probably no office with the same amount of power attached to it, where there is so little attention paid to the selection of candidates, and there is certainly no office wherein greater care should be exercised in the selection of men,—with at least a good share of horse sense. The average Justice of the Peace is not expected to be a thorough student of Blackstone, but when he is lacking in all knowledge of the law, and a little short of common sense, the average defendant has poor chance of justice in his court.—Woodbury Constitution.

What Tunnels Mean for North Jersey.

The tunneling of the Hudson by several different railroads, and the completion of rapid transit routes, like the subway from Newark and the elevated from Paterson, to the big city, is going to bring hundreds and thousands and hundreds of thousands of New York business men to this section of the State for residence. Brooklyn was built up vastly by the bridge, but it is now such a big city itself that it takes longer to reach the suburbs than it does to reach Harlem. With the completion of tunnels, and railroads that will run frequently to and from Paterson and New York, what does it mean for this city? It means that in a few years there will not be enough vacant ground left within the city limits to lay out a tennis court. It means that we shall have to extend our borders, and take in Clifton and Passaic, and no doubt acquire additional territory across the river in Bergen county.—Paterson Call.

Paterson is Prosperous.

Paterson is just now enjoying an era of prosperity. Merchants all say that trade was never better and they look forward to a season of brisk trade. The railroads and the trolley companies are doing a rushing business, all of which shows that the factories must be flourishing and paying out large sums of money. Employers in many instances declare that so many have steady work that they can obtain help only with difficulty. Because of the scarcity of help very few new buildings are going up and every available place for business or living is renting at substantial figures.—Paterson Guardian.

Saving the Forests.

The New Jersey Forestry Commission will try to save the remaining forests of the State from destructive process and encourage the reforestation of large tracts, now barren of anything but scrub pines and entirely worthless for agricultural purposes. If the commission can succeed in this laudable purpose, it will confer a benefit not only on its own State, but the entire forest-covered sections of the Union, which suffered only to a lesser degree from the same destructive methods that have prevailed in dealing with New Jersey timber.—Ocean City Sentinel.

To Check Profanity.

The Holy Name Societies are accomplishing much, and in the parishes wherever they are performing their work the habit of profanity has been greatly lessened, and will continue to lessen. This is an organization which should strongly appeal to the young men in the parishes everywhere. It is hoped that the resuelt of the great rally in Jersey City will be the rapid growth of the Holy Name Societies and a spread of the movement generally until blasphemy will be checked, and in New Jersey, at least, profanity regarded as the great evil it is.—Elizabeth Journal.

Scott Scores on Record.

The effect of George Record's effort to drive Robert H. Scott off the Assembly ticket in Hudson county has been the enthusiastic indorsement of Scott by the Republican clubs of Jersey City and Bayonne.

These organizations have loyally declared that they will support the entire Republican legislative ticket. This seems like heaping coals of fire on the heads of the other Republican nominees who joined Record in the attempt to push Scott back to the tall timbers.—Trenton State Gazette.

November Bathing.

If the present spell of warm weather keeps up Atlantic City will witness the rather odd sight of city life guards on duty in the month of November with ocean bathers numerous.

The Mayor finds day by day that the people who wish to bathe in the ocean grow in numbers and he is forced to continue men on duty. We will now surely establish our right to be called "the Florida of the North."—Atlantic City Press.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE DAMAGES EMBOSSING PLANT

$20,000 Estimated Loss to the Crescent Company From Early Morning Blaze.

FIREMEN OVERCOME

Splendid Work of Department Saved Factory from Destruction—Sixty Hands Thrown Out of Employment.

From an origin as yet a mystery to the owner and Chief Doane, fire broke out on the second floor of the Crescent Embossing Company's factory, located off West Second street, near Elmwood place, at 5:50 this morning, badly damaging the structure and a large amount of stock. It was one of the hottest conflagrations the local department has had to contend with in years and it was only by the hardest kind of work that they saved the plant from complete destruction. Every company in the city was out for nearly three hours, and several of the members were overcome by smoke, but there were no serious accidents. The loss is estimated at $20,000, of which $15,000 is on stock and equipment. It is partially covered by insurance.

Micijah Secor, the night watchman employed by the company, had been at work in the cellar of the building during the early hours of the morning and the blaze had been in progress, as near as can be estimated, for half an hour, when they were discovered by George Taylor, the well known baseball player, who resides on West Second street, directly in front of the plant. He is also employed by the concern, and running to the place broke in through a window, in this way summoning Secor. Both unreeled the factory emergency fire hose and sought to put out the flames, but they had too much headway.

About the time that Taylor made the discovery the blaze was seen by August Hendricks, another West Second street resident, and he turned in an alarm from box 46 at Second and Liberty streets. With the arrival of Captain Townley and the apparatus from headquarters a second alarm was sent in, bringing the entire city department. Five streams of hose were laid in, and though dense volumes of smoke were pouring out from all sides and the heat was intense, the men crawled through the windows of both the second and third floors, the latter being little more than an attic, and held the nozzles until compelled to retreat to save their lives. Two of the call men were completely overcome and were revived with difficulty. Chief Doane personally directed the work, and it is due to his quickly grasping the situation that the building was not burned to the ground.

The factory is practically in two parts, a main building twenty-six by ninety-six feet and a side addition forty-six by fifty, both three stories high. The former was erected in 1897 when the plant was moved here from Rahway, and the addition was made a short time ago. The flames originated on the second floor of the main compartment near the end facing Elmwood place. Being built of pine timber for the greater part, the fire spread rapidly, but it was kept from getting down to the first floor. It made its way upward and destroyed walls and floors, but the outside remains intact. The valuable presses and machinery were damaged slightly, but none of it will have to be replaced. A great deal of completed stock was on the first floor and the water coming down ruined a large part of it.

The Crescent Embossing Company is one of the best known in this part of the country and does a big business in the manufacture of fancy holiday cards, calendars and pictorial effects. Its busiest season was just beginning and the loss of the holiday trade is beyond estimation. The working force up to the present time had consisted of sixty hands, many of them girls, and the number was to have been greatly increased next week.

Fred C. Lounsbury, of Plainfield avenue, is the head of the concern, and when seen this morning, declared the factory would be rebuilt as soon as the plans could be perfected. He was at a loss to throw any light on the origin of the fire, but the accepted theory, and the one believed the most plausible by Chief Doane, is spontaneous combustion. A great deal of oil is used in cleaning the presses, and frequently saturated waste is placed in almost the exact

EUGENE P. VAN COURT SUCCUMBS TO APOPLEXY

DIED YESTERDAY WITHOUT REGAINING CONSCIOUSNESS AFTER ATTACK.

Eugene P. Van Court, a well known resident of Oak Tree, where he has lived for forty years, died yesterday afternoon, following a short illness. He was in his cornfield husking Thursday afternoon when he was stricken with apoplexy. He was carried to his home and despite the best medical aid he never regained consciousness.

Mr. Van Court was born at Schuyler Lake, New York, sixty-four years ago. He spent his boyhood days there and at the outbreak of the Civil War enlisted in the New York Light Artillery, serving three years as a private. After the war he moved to Oak Tree, where he continued his residence to the time of his death. He was a member and trustee of Marconnier chapel and a highly respected citizen. He was also a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city.

Mr. Van Court divided his time between farming and securing all kinds of furs, which he marketed in New York. He was an expert in the selection of furs and preparing them for market, and he was very successful in this business. While in New York last winter he had a slight stroke of apoplexy, but this did not affect him very much. Prior to the stroke on Thursday he was feeling very well and had not complained of any illness.

He is survived by a wife and three children, William E. Van Court and Mrs. Bryant, of Oak Tree, and Mrs. William Randolph, of West Front street. Mr. Van Court's son is engaged in the coal business at Oak Tree.

The funeral services will be held from Marconnier chapel Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

WAS NOT WHITTMORE'S WIFE, COURT RULES

DECISION BY JUDGE SCHENCK IN CELEBRATED SOMERSET COUNTY CASE.

Judge Schenck, in the Orphans' Court at Somerville yesterday, appointed Deputy Surrogate Anderson the administrator of the estate of the late Stephen G. Whittmore, of East Millstone, for which Bona Koch, or Whittmore, the illegal wife of the decedent, has been battling in court for some time.

When Bona Koch-Whittmore claimed the estate as Whittmore's widow and applied for letters as administratrix, the dead man's father and brother disclosed the fact that she had been married to Whittmore while the latter had a wife living. Judge Schenck ruled yesterday that although Bona Koch-Whittmore had honestly thought she was wedded to Whittmore and had lived with him many years after the death of the real wife, her marriage to the decedent was not valid. The court held that the case was one where a disinterested administrator was best, and accordingly appointed Mr. Anderson. The case has been a celebrated one in the Somerset courts, and the judge's decision will arouse much interest.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS' PLANS.

Cabinet Decides on Increased Religious and Social Activity.

Chairmen of the various committees were appointed at the meeting of the boys' cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, and a general discussion of plans and outlook was held. The chairmen are as follows:

Outing, Stanley Robbins; social, Russell Morris; rooms, Howard Freeman; membership, Fred Smith; religious work, W. B. Caldwell. All the committees, excepting one, are composed of five boys. The athletic committee is made up of all the gymnasium leaders; the chairman has not yet been selected.

It was decided to enlarge the religious and social work during the new year. Entertainments of informal character, with home talent, are to be held monthly in addition to the regular boys' star course.

Visit from Y. M. C. A. Boys.

The members of the boys' department of the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A., under the guidance of Secretary Buckalew, will visit the local association this afternoon. They will start from New Brunswick early in the morning and picnic on Chimney Rock, and from there walk to this city. The trip will be climaxed by a plunge in the Y. M. C. A. pool.

REWARD IN CHANCERY

Trenton City and County Solicitors File Application for Injunction.

AIM TO STOP SUITS

Van Nuis and the Plainfield Police Will Have to Prove Claim to Chancellor—Order Would Block Farmer's Action.

City Solicitor Bird, of Trenton, and County Detective Conrad, acting for the Mercer county freeholders, have taken steps to have the question of the payment of the Long reward thrown into chancery. They filed requests with the Chancellor yesterday for an injunction restraining Franklin Van Nuis and Detective McCarthy and Patrolman Higgins from prosecuting suits against the city or county for the $500 involved. If the order is granted the farmer and the officers will have to prove their claim before the Chancellor. The money is paid over to the Chancery Court with the issuance of the order, and when the one claim or the other is established, the money will be paid over by the court. This course saves the city and county from the expense of suits and the possibility of paying damages to a wronged claimant.

Van Nuis has already brought suit for damages against the city and county, but the injunction would estop the action. The officers having been recognized by the city and county officials as the true claimants have been satisfied merely to file application for the money.

P. E. CHURCH CLUB MEETS AT DINNER

GATHERING THURSDAY NIGHT AT ELIZABETH TOWN AND COUNTRY CLUB.

The Church Club, composed of the laity of the Episcopal Church in the diocese of New Jersey, gave a dinner Thursday evening in the Elizabeth Town and Country Club. These dinners are given four times a year in different cities in the diocese and the gatherings are of a social nature.

John N. Carpender, of Burlington, the president, presided as toastmaster, and at his right was the Rev. Henry H. Oberly, D. D., and on his left Rev. Otis A. Glazebrook, D. D. Others present were Rev. Alfred Baker, D. D., of Princeton; the Rev. Henry H. Sleeper, Ph. D., William D. Olier, of Burlington; Francis Collingwood, George C. Thomas, Joseph Gales, Warren R. Dix, Melville Egleston, Charles Townsend and Christopher R. Carter.

The Rev. Dr. Oberly was the first speaker, and by request he spoke on the "Means, Scope and Use of Church Clubs." Dr. Glazebrook spoke on the "Upright Man," and William D. Olier made a brief address suggesting that the Men's Club should assist in raising a special offering for missions, to be given to the general convention to be held in 1907, in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary.

A committee was appointed which will have power to appoint other committees in all parts of the diocese, who will assist in raising the fund and the membership should run up into the thousands. The Rev. Alfred Baker, of Princeton; Rev. Dr. Oberly, Rev. Dr. Glazebrook, Rev. Mr. Jones, Messrs. Francis Collingwood, Charles Townsend and John N. Carpender are the committee.

Baptist Convention at Westfield.

Members of the local Baptist churches will be greatly interested in the approaching fifty-fifth annual convention of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday School Association to be held in the Baptist church, Westfield, Tuesday, October 17. There will be sessions at 10 o'clock in the morning, 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7:15 o'clock in the evening. At the evening meeting Rev. Dr. Goritand Myers, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn, will make an address.

Accepted Dr. Jackson's Resignation.

The congregation of the Mt. Olive Baptist church has accepted the resignation of Rev. Dr. E. E. Jackson, tendered last Sunday, and a committee appointed by the members will take steps to secure a successor to him. Dr. Jackson expects to become the pastor of the Waverly Place Baptist church, New York, to which place he has been called.

To Farm in Virginia.

James McMillan, of Sherman avenue, has completed asrangements to remove to Virginia. He has purchased a farm there and will work it. Mr. and Mrs. McMillan expect to start for the South next week.

FREEHOLDERS FAIL TO MAKE GOOD

SOMERSET COMMITTEE STILL TRIFLING OVER BRIDGE MYTTERS.

Another unsuccessful effort to secure a bridge over Green brook on West End avenue, was made this morning, when the committee from the Somerset County Board of Freeholders failed to meet the committee from Union county at the Iroquois Hotel. The Union county committee was there, but only two members, Freeholders John Emmons and William Demler, were present to represent the Somerset county board.

The Union county members were quite indignant over the failure to meet and do something, inasmuch as it was the Somerset county members who requested the meeting. They waited fully an hour, and then decided to go home. The two members from Somerset county could not understand why the other members of the committee failed to appear, unless it was that the County Democratic Convention at Somerville was responsible for it.

Mayor N. B. Smalley arrived at the hotel just as the members were leaving and he was very frank to express his opinion over the matter.

It was finally agreed to call a meeting for Tuesday afternoon, October 17, at 3 o'clock, in this city, when a final effort will be made to authorize the building of the bridge.

The plan now is to use concrete, instead of iron. This will cost less and it will be possible to complete the bridge this year. The amount appropriated by the two counties was $7,500 and by the use of concrete it will be possible to put up the structure for this sum.

FEAST OF TABERNACLES.

Last of Hebrew Holidays Begins Today.

Succoth, or the Feast of the Tabernacles, the last of the Jewish holidays, began today and continues until October 21. In Biblical times the feast was celebrated by the Israelites living in booths during the festival. Even today many of the orthodox Jews and their families take their meals in booths, or succoth, which are covered with vines, greens and fruit to celebrate this harvest festival.

The day following the Feast of the Tabernacles in Simchah Torah, or rejoicing of the law, which, as the name implies, is a day of general rejoicing in the orthodox synagogues. There will be services in all the synagogues of the city today and daily throughout the festival.

Mr. Dunham Not Improving.

There is no improvement in the condition of Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, who is suffering from injuries received by a fall from a trolley car. He cannot remember names, yet he recognizes friends. The case is very puzzling to the physicians in charge, although they expect that he will eventually recover.

Conducted Rally Social.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of Grace M. E. church, conducted a largely attended rally social last evening. A programme provided consisted of vocal solos by Miss Grace Carroll; violoin obligato by Dyckman Winckler and readings by Miss Helen Whitney. Refreshments and a social period followed.

—Neuman Brothers makes a specialty of fruits and vegetables but their store is headquarters for everything in the grocery line, strictly high grade but low-priced. Their delivery service is not excelled anywhere in the State.

MISSION WORKERS MEET

Large Gathering of Baptist Women From This Section Yesterday.

MANY ADDRESSES

Mrs. B. J. Shreve Among the Speakers—Mrs. Dudley Presides—138 Delegates.

The semi-annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the East New Jersey Association, was held in the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday, with morning and afternoon sessions. Interesting addresses were made and a review of the work for the past six months showed steady progress in this branch of mission enterprise. Mrs. J. M. Dudley, of Elizabeth, president of the society, presided at the sessions. There were 138 delegates, representing thirty-five Baptist churches in Plainfield, Elizabeth, Newark and intervening places.

The morning session opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. J. V. Ellson, of Elizabeth. The greetings to the delegates were given by Mrs. Peter Wyckoff, of the Park Avenue Baptist church. After the transaction of some minor business, there was an address by Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, of Elizabeth, on the subject of "What Is Your Circle Doing This Year?" The talk was filled with helpful suggestions and was very inspiring, tending to encourage the members to greater effort. Then followed the response by representatives from the various Circles, telling what had been done in each. Then the members engaged in a general discussion of the work for the coming six months.

Mrs. B. J. Shreve, of the First Baptist church, who holds an office in the State society for foreign missions, spoke on the subject "Our Girls in Training," in which she gave brief incidents to show of the progress in preparing women for mission work. Mrs. F. C. Foster, of Newark, followed with a talk on "Our Equipment," and urging more hearty support of the work.

This closed the morning session and the women of the Park Avenue Baptist church prepared and served dinner to the delegates. Mrs. T. I. Runyon was chairman of the committee on dinner, Mrs. W. S. Lowry had charge of the waitresses, Mrs. Tennant and Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson comprised the reception committee, while Mrs. James LaRue and Miss Thompson looked after the enrollment. They also, together with Miss Helen Cuming and Miss Mary Clark acted as ushers during the sessions.

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock with a memorial service, in which eulogistic words were spoken of those who passed away since the last meeting. Among the departed members referred to was Mrs. Peter Letson, of Stelton, well-known to all of the members of the society. Mrs. I. M. Littell, of Elizabeth, conducted this service.

"Impressions of Northfield," was the subject of a talk by Mrs. Lumbar, wife of Rev. W. T. Lumbar, of Newark, the only member present attending the Northfield Conference.

"How to Use Christus Liberator in the Circle," was the subject of another address by Mrs. Alonzo Pettit. This was full of suggestions which will undoubtedly prove of much value to the various Circles.

The address of the afternoon was by Miss Newcomb, a missionary to India, who told of the work there. She is an unusually interesting speaker and during her talk she related many incidents which brought the work nearer to the hearts of those who are striving to support it.

Miss Newcomb said that when she first went to India, the natives looked upon her as one divine and whenever she appeared the people would run and hide. She said that it was a difficult matter to convince these people that she was simply a messenger of the Gospel of Peace, but once succeeding she had no trouble in reaching the natives and imparting the Word to them. Miss Newcomb brought many encouraging reports concerning her work, showing that the labor is not in vain.

Mrs. F. C. Foster, with Miss Carro Bird, Miss Ada Fountain, Miss Pauline Denton, of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Alice Brown and Miss Anna Clark, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, gave what she called "A Father Light Fagot Party," demonstrating how children can be taught to contribute to missions. She exhibited a miniature stove and had each one of her assistants place something of value therein to represent contributions to the work, all of which was to be a sacrifice for the cause of missions. The demonstration tended to show that what some people are inclined to think is a very unin-

"THE WALDORF" NOT AFFECTED FINANCIALLY

BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS HAS TO DO WITH HOUSE AT ASBURY PARK.

The bankruptcy matter of E. V. & A. L. Waldorf, mentioned in yesterday issue, does not affect the business of "The Waldorf," on Crescent avenue, as that house is run by Mrs. Waldorf's mother, with Mrs. Waldorf as manager. The bankruptcy was caused by the bad season last year of the Ocean Grove hotel, run by Mr. and Mrs. Waldorf for the past two years. Many of the debts incurred there then were paid off this year, but as it was impossible to pay all the creditors, and many of them were not willing to wait for another season's business, the Waldorfs were obliged to file their application in bankruptcy. Most of the creditors are wholesale dealers in New York, Philadelphia and Asbury Park. The few Plainfield creditors of the individual members of the firm had to be included under the terms of the law, and the assets noted were merely part of the furnishings of the Ocean Grove hotel owned by the firm, and also had to be noted in the schedules filed.

"The Waldorf" on Crescent avenue is well and favorably known, not only in Plainfield, but also in other parts of the country, as a model family house, and the many friends Mr. and Mrs. Waldorf have made in Plainfield are extremely sorry of the failure financially of the Ocean Grove venture.

S. ARMY DEDICATE NEW BUILDING NOV. 5

ELABORATE PROGRAMME ANNOUNCED FOR THE OCCASION.

The local corps of the Salvation Army is preparing to dedicate its new building on East Second street, on Sunday afternoon, November 5, at 3 o'clock. In connection with the dedication there will be a musical festival on Saturday night, November 4, at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. This will be in charge of the staff brass band. Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock Col. Peart, second in command of the United States forces, will preach in Trinity Reformed church.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Col. Gifford will assist Col. Peart in the dedication of the new building. At 8 o'clock there will be a salvation service in the new building, also one in Hope chapel. These churches have promised to take up a collection for the building fund: First Baptist, Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Trinity Reformed, Grace Episcopal and Hope chapel.

The new building is located in East Second street, adjoining fire department headquarters. It is built of brick, with white pressed brick front. The ground floor will seat 300 people and it is so arranged that the platform can be removed and in conjunction with a rolling partition, form a commodious Sunday-school room at the rear. Above the hall in front are six well-furnished rooms, which will be used as living quarters for the commanding officers. The building is fitted up with every modern convenience and is a credit to the army as well as to the city.

GOT RID OF RUNAWAY.

Harvey Bennett Placed Where He Belongs by the Police.

Harvey Bennett, the twelve-year-old Whitesville runaway, who had been on the hands of the police for four days, was sent home in charge of Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayers yesterday. He turned the boy over to the Whitesville authorities.

The police breathe easier, grateful that Harvey is safely off their hands at last. It took them two days to establish the fact that he belonged in Whitesville, and after he had been sent on his way for home, he returned unexpectedly with a tearful tale of a lost ticket. He gave the authorities more bother than any other runaway they ever had hold of.

Sold Her Farm.

Mrs. David Moore has sold her farm near the Country Club links to a wealthy New York lawyer. Mrs. Moore will spend the winter with friends on East Sixth street.

Prizes in Doubt.

Two of the prizes offered in the several monthly shoots are in dispute, on account of two doubtful targets. The awards will be settled next week.

S. S. CHILDS RENOMINATED FOR STATE SENATOR

Somerset Democrats Again Choose Restaurant Magnate to Head Their Ticket.

A GOOD PLATFORM

Elston M. French Declines to be a Candidate for Assembly Nomination—McMurtry May Be Named.

Samuel S. Childs, of Bernardsville, known to fame as the restaurant man, was unanimously renominated for the State Senate at an enthusiastic convention of Somerset county Democrats at Somerville today. Coupled with his nomination is a platform far superior to the "machine" variety which have been so plentiful in the present campaign.

The platform declares for:

Equal taxation for all classes of property.

Limited franchises.

Legislation to provide for municipal ownership of public utilities.

Legislation to provide for the conduct of life insurance companies for the benefit of policyholders.

Legislation that will prevent reckless speeding of automobiles.

County Chairman Jacob Shurtz called the convention to order. It was shortly after 11 o'clock when the delegates had taken their seats in the old Court House and the proceedings began. George E. Pace, of East Millstone, was made temporary chairman.

Mr. Pace made a short speech, in which he referred to a state of peace and harmony in the Democratic ranks. The time is ripe, he declared, for Democratic victory.

Former Sheriff Selah Schoonmaker, of Somerville, was made temporary secretary.

North Plainfield's delegates are L. D. Townley, William Ricketts, David J. Carney and Elston M. French. From North Plainfield township is Francis Boden, and from Warren township J. D. Bornman and Horace Coddington.

Among the North Plainfield spectators are Mayoralty-nominee W. J. Conroy, Col. John F. Wilson and former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer.

Elston M. French was prominently mentioned this morning for the Assembly nomination, but he positively declines to allow his name to be used. Among those spoken of in connection with this office are Calvin D. McMurtry and Stuart Kenney, both of Somerville.

These committees were appointed this morning:

Permanent Organization — Selah Schoonmaker, Bridgewater; R. B. Beebe, Branchburg; Francis Boden, North Plainfield township; A. S. Dixon, Montgomery; W. R. Moore, Basking Ridge.

Rules—Ira Hodge, Bridgewater; George Myers, Bound Brook; L. D. Townley, North Plainfield borough; C. M. Wyckoff, Bedminster; F. V. Conover, Franklin.

Resolutions—F. S. Sutro, Bernards; L. Moore, Bridgewater; D. J. Carney, proxy for W. L. Saunders, North Plainfield borough; Stanley Brampton, Bound Brook; Horace Coddington, Warren; E. D. Latourette, Bound Brook.

J. P. OWENS SLATED.

Will Be Named by Democrats for Assembly.

John P. Owens, of this city, was slated as a candidate for an Assembly nomination at a meeting of the Union county Democratic committee last night in Elizabeth. The other two agreed upon are City Attorney Dobbins, of Rahway, and W. D. Stanford, of Elizabeth.

Edward Nugent, of Elizabeth, will be offered the nomination for State Senator, but it is not known whether he will allow his name to be used. For sheriff both Freeholder Swain, of Summit, and Fire Commissioner Collins, of Elizabeth, are mentioned.

The county convention will be held in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, Wednesday night. Plainfield is entitled to thirteen delegates, there being ninety-eight in all.

Explanatory.

"Initiative and referendum" is the name applied to a system of government where people express their desire to direct vote for or against a given measure. Several State granges have passed resolutions favoring it.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Borough Clerk DeGroff is arranging to have the workings of the voting machine demonstrated in the borough hall for the benefit of the electors a number of evenings before Election Day. One of the Democratic workers said yesterday that it was his intention to have a working wooden model of the face of the machine made in one of the Plainfield shops to use in instructing voters how to cut their ticket in such a way that misunderstanding will be impossible. The great criticism of the machine is that it makes the voting of a split ticket with intelligence so hard as to be almost an impossibility for those not thoroughly initiated in its workings.

The piano given to the Presbyterian Sunday-school by E. E. Pouch, of Brooklyn, in memory of the late E. E. Touzeau, will be used tomorrow for the first time, and the pastor, Rev. W. W. Casselberry, will preach a special sermon on it in the morning. Special music will mark the occasion in the afternoon.

Through cars from Newark to Bound Brook, every half-hour, will be run by the P. S. C. hereafter. The alternate cars will stop, as hitherto, at the loop. The last car for Bound Brook will start out of Elizabeth at 12:03. This gives a welcome continuous service to outlying sections up to a reasonably late hour.

Taxes are coming in rapidly. Collector Day reports a heavier flow of cash than in many years past. A reason for the readiness to pay may lie in the fact that the rate is lower than it ever has been in the history of the borough as a separate municipality.

Freeholder Staats has been put upon a committee to oversee the laying of a P. S. C. gas main under a joint county bridge leading into Bound Brook. The main is one to be laid in connection with the piping of this section by the company.

The Dunellen eleven is scheduled to meet the crack Hamilton Lyceum team, of New Brunswick, on the latter's grounds this afternoon. They look for a continuance of their fine record.

A postoffice inspector who inspected the local office without warning of his coming has reported that Dunellen's postal business is in admirable shape, and admirably cared for.

Garretson & Gray have installed an antique stove in their office. It is an old-time Franklin, of the opengrate variety, and its years number at least fifty.

John McMahon saw the New York Giants defeat the Philadelphia Athletics in the world championship game at the Polo Grounds yesterday.

Hickory nuts are falling thickly in this neighborhood, and nutting parties among the young people are becoming the usual afternoon thing.

Freeholder and Mrs. P. C. Staats are entertaining their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Griggs, and children, of Newark.

C. T. Rogers has been entertaining J. D. Rogers, of Oxford, N. Y., his nephew.

A subscription dance, to be held in Apgar's hall next month, is being arranged.

Rally day exercises will be held in the Methodist church tomorrow night.

Miss Mary Baldwin entertained friends from Somerville yesterday.

Chestnut trees are bearing plentifully.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A pet dog belonging to Mrs. Frank Hosinger was run over on Park avenue yesterday afternoon and so badly injured that it had to be shot. The driver of the automobile never brought his machine to a stop to see how badly the animal was injured.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be as usual: Sunday school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching by the pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, at 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15, followed at 7:45 with the evening preaching service.

Rev. Mr. Hoffman, who preached at the Methodist church last Sunday, will lead the weekly prayer meeting tonight and occupy the pulpit again at tomorrow's service.

The summer season at Glenside Park is about over, although there are still some families who linger to enjoy the autumn foliage and bracing weather.

The Saengerbund fair, which has been held in Saengerbund Hall every night this week, has been attended by many from town.

The All-Plainfield-Daabsters game at Crescent Oval this afternoon should be one of the most interesting of the season.

Only the regular routine business was transacted at the Township Committee meeting held last night in the town rooms.

The local hunters are out nearly every day trying their luck at woodcock, but the birds are reported to be scarce.

Jessie Ryno has purchased another draught horse to take the place of the one he lost with colic two weeks ago.

George Ogden was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday suffering from an attack of painters' colic.

Mrs. Maria Noble has taken up her home for the winter with her son, Morton C. Noble, in Newark.

PLOT TO ABANDON BABE?

Police Tell a Story of a Clever Scheme.

After an investigation covering several days, the police of Paterson have unearthed a scheme hatched by two sisters to rid themselves of a baby, of whom one is the mother.

About a week ago Mrs. Hilda McNair, of 163 East Twenty-third street, New York, went to police headquarters with a baby in her arms. She told Captain Bimson some strange woman had visited the McNair home and left the baby there. Pinned to the child's clothing was a note which read "Do what you like with the baby."

Detectives started an investigation. The story told at the McNair home aroused suspicion. The aunt of the child when pressed admitted her sister Irene, recently married, was the mother of the child and that she was a party to a scheme to abandon it, because Irene's husband refused to have anything to do with the child.

Irene, when arrested, admitted that she tried to dispose of her offspring. She told the police that her husband's name was Nicholas Bay. She was unable to furnish bail and was committed to the county jail.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Conner, of Pittsburg, is visiting at the home of her son, William Conner, of Hillside avenue.

Russell Beekman, of East Front street, is out after a long confinement to the house with an attack of tonsilitis.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clifton will spend several weeks in the South. They have planned to leave the city next week.

Mrs. E. E. Dorman, of Central avenue, who spent the summer in Maine for the benefit of her health, has returned home strengthened and improved.

Mrs. John Clapp, of Mercer avenue, who has been travelling abroad during the summer and autumn, will sail for home in the early part of November.

Rev. M. E. Dwight, of New York, formerly of Rockview avenue, has been appointed chairman of the conference committee on meetings at the Church Federation to be held in New York city next month.

Don't Fidget.

Don't fidget. This is one of the cardinal points of etiquette. If inclined to be restless, girls should never admit that they are nervous. Avoid rocking chairs when you are entertaining or being entertained. Keep your feet still and never call attention to them by crossing your knees and thrusting your foot forward. Hobbledehoys belong exclusively to the male sex and a girl need never be at a loss to know what to do with her hands and feet. Don't play with the tassel of a shade, a table cover or an ornament lying close to your hand. When at table, learn never to touch anything until you are served and the meal has fairly begun.

The Ideal Woman.

I have watched the ideal woman in many places, at home and in society, with the result that she is the one of our sex whom men most persistently avoid. They are quite civil to her when she is thrown in their way; they will even admire openly her demeanor or the way she keeps house or nurses her invalid mother, but they do not seek her out, and they do not marry her.—A Spinster in "The Truth About Men."

—The committee has made an especial effort and has been at considerable expense to make the Y. M. C. A. Star Course of entertainments this year a pronounced success. Reserved seat tickets will be on sale at the box office of the Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening. For particulars see advertising columns.

Nasal catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for nasal catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. A cold in the head immediately disappears when Cream Balm is used. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

THE PLAIN TRUTH.

What More Can Plainfield People Ask?

When well-known residents and highly-respected people of Plainfield make such statements as the following, it must carry conviction to every reader:

Mrs. Martha Snedeker, of 224 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Some six weeks ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that had been annoying me for a long time, procuring the remedy at Randolph's drug store. My main symptoms were severe backaches and pains in the top and back of my head, a stiffness in the limbs—especially my arms—and a sediment in the urine that looked like brick-dust. I had a languid feeling of weakness and depression and physicians did not help me. Doan's Kidney Pills did seem to reach the cause of my trouble, however, and that very quickly and now all those aches and pains I have described have disappeared and the kidney secretions are perfectly normal, all of which is due to the healing virtues of Doan's Kidney Pills and their direct action on the kidneys."

LIFE INSURANCE.

In all industrial affairs "God takes care of those who take care of themselves." Take out then a good policy in a sound life insurance company—a non-forfeitable policy—as large as you can afford, and as years roll on, thank God that, should you die, your family will not fall into the bitter woes of poverty.

A Wonderful Saving.

The largest Methodist church in Georgia, used 32 gallons of L. & M. mixed with 24 gallons of oil, thus making paint cost about $1.20 per gallon. They calculated to use 100 gallons of other paint. Saved about $80.00, and also got a big donation of L. & M. Dealers gladly sell L. & M., because their customers call for it, and say they used it 12, 14 and even 30 years ago.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for linseed oil, which you do in ready-for-use paint.

Buy oil fresh from the barrel at 60 cents per gallon, and mix it with L. & M. Paint.

It makes paint cost about $1.20 per gallon. Sold by

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SEEN IN LOCAL SHOPS.

One of the handsome tailor made gowns shown at one of the local shops is made of garment broadcloth, the coat cut in fifty-inch length. The skirt is made with clusters of sun pleatings, trimmed with tiny velvet buttons of the same shade. A narrow vest effect of light Persian braid gives a stylish appearance to the costume. The coat is finished with a triple collar of the cloth.

A handsome afternoon toilette is shown in golden brown taffeta silk. The skirt is cut very full and is knife pleated from the waist. A pretty blouse of embroidered net and lace is worn with the little empire jacket, which is trimmed profusely with narrow pleated ruffles and miniature gold buttons.

Brown and green checked broadcloth was used in the construction of a handsome street gown. The skirt was made in clusters of fan pleats, starting from bias bands at the hips. The jacket was an Eton model with the vest of plum colored velvet overlaid with narrow Persian applique. The blouse was of white taffeta silk with small velvet bows fastened with gold buckles.

Noticeable among the new fall neckwear are short boas of white maline and chiffon, scattered with dots of velvet. They make a pretty addition to the evening gown.

A pretty collar and cuff set is shown to be worn with the Eton coats, so much in vogue. The foundation is of white mousseline de soie, embroidered with escurial braid and appliqued with ornaments of Irish lace.

Another set is of white tucked chiffon covered with ruffles of narrow valenciennes lace. The chemisette is cut in point and is an effective addition to a stylish gown.

HOW ABOUT YOUR EDUCATION?

Are you educated or ignorant?

You may possess a diploma from a high grade university, and yet be in doubt as to the question, for, according to a Chicago University professor, it is quite possible to be a college graudate and yet be uneducated, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

Here are some questions the professor recently formulated, which will help you to settle the problem. Unless you can answer all of these in the affirmative you may as well step back into the ranks of the uneducated:

Has education given you sympathy for all good causes? Has it made you easier to interest in them? Has it made you public spirited, so that you look beyond your own dooryard and take interest in a clean city?

Has it made you a brother to the weak?

Have you learned the proper value of money and time?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know how to be a friend yourself?

Can you look an honest man or pure woman straight in the eye?

Do you see anything to love in a little child?

Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be high-minded and happy in the drudgeries of life?

Can you think washing dishes and hoeing corn are just as compatible with high thinking as playing the piano or playing golf?

Can you be happy alone?

Are you good for anything to yourself?

Can you look out on the world and see anything but dollars and cents?

Can you look into a mud puddle and see the blue sky reflected? Can you see good in everything?

Can you look up to the sky at night and see beyond the stars? Does your soul claim relationship with the Creator?

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinsey have removed from North avenue to East Front street.

Miss Stillman, of the Irving School factulty, has recovered from a brief illness.

Mrs. Harry Bouton, of Park avenue, has returned from a stay with relatives in Bayonne.

George Clark, of East Second street, is back at business after a severe siege of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dodge, of East Front street, are entertaining the latter's sister from Bayonne.

Miss Ada Smith, of New York, is spending a week with Miss Ada Clark, of East Front street.

Miss Lillian Duckworth, of West Third street, has returned from a visit to friends in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Mary Ryno, of West Fifth street, has returned from a week's stay with relatives in Newark.

Mrs. George Strathey, of Plainfield, has returned from a two weeks' stay with her mother at South Branch.

Mrs. Howard Hankerson, of Washington street, has recovered from a severe illness which required her removal to the hospital.

Mrs. Peter Doeringer, of Duer street, is spending two weeks in upper New York State for her health. Her daughter, Mrs. Charles Kelly, of New Market, is taking Mrs. Doeringer's place in the household during the latter's absence.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Stafford says he pleases discriminating people and can please you.

Putnam & DeGraw have received their shipment of new fall dry goods which are well worth your inspection.

When in need of a plumber call on John J. Leahy, of Richmond street, He will promptly attend to your work.

There is no need to go to New York, Madame, for your chic suit. H. Schwartz, West Front street, can make it for you.

W. W. Warnock's bakery, West Front street, turns out the best bread and cake to be had anywhere. Ask his customers.

Big jobs are handled readily and in a thoroughly satisfactory way by H. J. Wierenga's trucking force. Small jobs are, of course, easy. North avenue.

There is one place to go to satisfy a hungry appetite, and that is Timbo's restaurant on North avenue. He also keeps a full line of cigars and tobacco.

Is there to be a midwinter coal strike? Nobody knows, but maybe there will. Be on the safe side and order now from L. A. Rheaume, East Fourth street.

Haven't you purchased that new fall hat yet? If not, stop at O. M. Dunham's store in Park avenue and get it. The quality is the best and the price low.

F. J. Huff, Esq., of West Front street, is thoroughly posted in all matters of law and attends to business promtply. Consult him when in need of counsel.

John Herrmann, the Somerset street stair builder, has recently completed some large contracts. Why not let him have that one you are preparing to give out.

Want your house painting, interior or exterior, done right? Then commission Woolston & Buckle, North avenue. Little jobs receive as much attention as big ones.

The best place in the city to get trees, shrubs or plants is at Forrestel's Belleview nursery. The stock is one of the largest in the State and the prices at this time are very low.

H. A. Voehl's bakery is located at Somerset and Harmony streets. Send your orders by telephone for bread, cake or pies and they will be delivered anywhere in the city or borough.

Collectors of china find many tempting bits at J. W. Gavett's store, West Front street. Those in search of china or porcelain sets see a highly attractive line there. Prices for every purse.

The candy sold at Kolb's West Front street confectionery is made fresh every day—no held-over goods. When you buy Kolb's candies you can be assured that you are getting the best. Only pure materials used in their manufacture.

If you want to please husband, father or big brother, the best way to do it is to present him or them with a box of cigars bought at J. P. Kirch's North avenue smoke shop. The very best grades are sold there lower than you can buy them anywhere else in the city.

The extensive improvements made by L. W. Randolph at his drug store in West Front street are the admiration of all. Costly fixtures of original design, together with new show cases and large plate mirrors, all combine to make this one of the leading pharmacies in the State.

The man who needing fall or winter clothes and furnishings, and buys them anywhere but at Harry Werner's store, West Front street, makes a mistake that is felt in his pocketbook if his appearance does not show it. To secure the same dressy effect with clothing not purchased at Werner's, you must pay more than Werner asks.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Frank Cleaves, of West Front street, has entirely recovered from a recent illness.

Mrs. I. L. McVoy, of East Front street, spent Thursday visiting friends in Rahway.

Mrs. Theodore Lister, of Grove street, has been entertaining a cousin from Philadelphia.

Mrs. John Young, of Westfield, a former resident of this city, has been visiting local friends.

Paul Beardslee, of Millstone, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. George White, of the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Smith, of West Fourth street, have returned from a visit with relatives at Westerly, R. I.

Agent Hayes, of the Grant Avenue station, has returned to his position after being detained at home by illness.

James Moran, of East Fifth street, who has been suffering with a protracted illness, is slowly returning to full health.

Mrs. P. A. McVoy, of East Front street, is spending a week at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Linbarger, of Brooklyn.

Miss Bertha Beekman, of this city, who has been at Martinville for the past two months for her health, has returned home greatly improved.

J. K. Arnold, of the borough, and Mrs. Augusta Dodge, of this city, were guests at the wedding of Miss Lillian M. Tice and Edward E. Brown in New Brunswick on Wednesday night.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Roosevelt as a Democrat.

If President Roosevelt were living in Burlington county we believe he would vote the Democratic ticket this year.—Burlington Gazette.

Debatable.

Whether there exists in Camden any latent sentiment to stir the people this year will be debatable until the election returns are read.—Newark Advertiser.

Merely a Coincidence.

Perhaps it is only a coincidence that kerosene rose steadily during the week preceding the day Mr. Rockefeller called the happiest of his life.—New Brunswick Home News.

The "Machine" Must Be All Right.

The independent movement against the Plainfield Republican machine has failed, and there isn't even a Democratic ticket to object to a continuance of the people's wrongs.—Trenton True American.

Opposition to Avis Has Disappeared.

Having no solid ground to stand on, the opposition to Assemblyman Avis in Gloucester county has disappeared, and it looks as if he would come to the Senate with an unusually large majority back of him.—Trenton State Gazette.

Can Turn a Trick Neatly.

The State Board of Education has given Trenton a surprise by ousting the Mercer county superintendent and putting a new man in his place without giving anybody a hint in advance what was up. That's a way the board has. Everybody has recalled that it was able to turn a trick neatly ever since the board arranged it so it could appoint a State supervisor of high schools.—Newark News.

Good Logic.

Where a corporation is shown to have been responsible for the loss of a human life, heavy damages are certainly justified and juries are to be commended for bringing in verdicts for large amounts. At the same time it is a pleasure to record the action of Somerset county juries in refusing to place excessive values upon wagons damaged by being bumped by trolley cars, when no one was hurt.—Perth Amboy Chronicle.

Bitter Taste of Democratic "Square Deal."

The people of this county, State and nation are well acquainted with that "square deal" policy of the Democratic party. We tasted the "square deal" morsel when William J. Thompson ruled the State of New Jersey; when the Hudson county ballot box stuffers thwarted the will of the people; when the State Treasury was looted and only a few years since when "starvation and soup houses" were the watchwords instead of "liberty and prosperity."—Woodbury Constitution.

Primitive Transportation Facilities.

Some day when Paterson grows to be still a bigger boy and Passaic is absorbed and given all the freeholders it wants, it may be possible to get from one part of Greater Paterson to the other at any time of day or night. Every time a story is told of people missing the last trolley or train to Passaic and having to remain in Paterson over night, the thought comes to mind that tracings of the primitive methods of traveling a century ago remain quite distinct here. Last night two young girls visiting at the home of a friend hurried to the City Hall only to find that they had missed the last car. They asked help of the police.—Paterson Guardian.

Want the Voting Machine.

Atlantic City gets both of the new voting machines. This is as it should be and by the efforts of Senator Lee is this made possible. The voting machine is popular here. The voters are intelligent and know how to cast a ballot, split or straight. They needed very little instruction. The First and Second wards have been selected for the new machines. It is earnestly hoped by politicians that the day will come when every precinct will be equipped with machines. It means an accurate count, a quick result. It will do away with all night sessions of election boards, and the holding up of counts on close contests. Ten minutes after the polls close the result of the entire city can be posted. Let the machines come along. They cannot be placed any too soon.—Atlantic City Press.

Jerseymen Among the Notables.

New Jersey continues to furnish plenty of notables for the great metropolitan district. Charles E. Hughes, who has been asked by the Republican city convention to be the candidate for Mayor against Mayor McClellan, in New York, spent a number of years in Newark and is well known among North Jerseymen. Mayor McClellan, who will again be the nominee for the Democrats, was a resident of New Jersey for many years and lived in Orange, while his father was Governor of New Jersey. Democratic Candidate Metz, who is after the comptrollership in New York, lived in Newark for many years. Police Commissioner McAdoo, who is likely to be retained in case of Mayor McClellan's re-election, was such a fine Jerseyman that Hudson county insisted on sending him to Congress for several successive terms.—Jersey City Journal.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Hugh Jennings, captain of the Baltimore Club, will resume the practice of law in Baltimore, this fall.

The Giants will play the Ridgewoods at Ridgewood Park, tomorrow. Linderman will oppose the champions.

The banquet at the Hotel Iroquois tonight to Manager Daab and his team, will be started as soon after 8 o'clock as possible.

The Boston Americans now have thirty-five men under contract and reserve, including a couple of collegians now in college.

Among the Plainfielders who witnessed yesterday's game at the Polo Grounds between the Giants and Athletics, was "Lou" Wiltse.

"Hubby" Smithson, formerly of Westfield, but with the Fargo, South Dakota team, this season, has signed with the latter club for next year.

While "Jack" Dunn is receiving great praise for his work in the Eastern League, the fans agree that he is too good a player to be in a minor league.

What else may be said in reference to baseball, all the fans will admit that Pete Cregan, who guards left field, is the peer fielder of any player in these parts.

"Pete" Kiernan has made a good record this year with the stick and at short. Whenever a hit was needer, "Pete" was there with the goods and his infield work has been brilliant.

"Jack" Dunn, manager of the Providence team, winners of the Eastern League championship, has been presented with a handsome three-stone diamond ring for putting his team in first position.

Frank V. Dunn, of the Boston Nationals, recently offered Barney Dreyfuss $10,000 for Hans Wagner, of the Pittsburg team. The offer was promptly refused and Barney added that he would not sell Hans for $20,000.

It is the general opinion that Frank Chance, this year's captain of the Chicago National team, is likely to succeed Frank Selee as manager. Selee has been ill this year and it is not thought that he will be able to continue with the team.

Harry McCormick, who formerly played with the Pittsburg and New York National Clubs, and who was a member of the Westfield team this season for a time, is now located at the works of the Pennsylvania Steel Company at Steelton, Pa., where he is perfecting himself in the mechanical part of the business. During the past ten months he has been employed in the sales department of the steel company in New York, and has shown his capabilities to such an extent in so short a period, he has merited his advancement. His going to Steelton has caused great joy among the football fans there, and he has been elected captain of the eleven at that place. Harry expects to remain at Steelton three years and it is his intention to organize a baseball team there during the summer to represent the steel works. Although professional baseball has seen the last of McCormick, he still has an attraction at Hoboken, where an accomplished young woman will continue to hold his attention.

GOLF.

The play at the Park Golf Club today will be for the President's and Club trophies, handicap and scratch events.

The chief event on the golf course at the Plainfield Country Club, today, will be the weekly play for the Golf Committee cup. Tonight there will be a recital under the direction of W. E. MacClymont, at which time Mrs. Jessie Hall-Buckout will sing. A week from today there will be a mixed foursome play.

FOOTBALL.

The Orange Field Club eleven will play the Cranford team at Cranford, this afternoon.

Leal's football eleven will play Montclair Military Academy at Montclair today.

The Muldoon Guards Organize.

Plainfield, N. J., October 14, 1905.

In the New York Mayoralty contest there are two Jerseymen already nominated. One is Mayor George B. McClellan, who will win in a walk, and the other is W. M. Ivins, who may get a few thousand more votes than William Randolph Hearst.

Mud-slinging and misrepresentation never bring any good results to those who make a practise of such methods in campaigns. People do not like personalities to figure as the issue of a political contest. What they want is sound, sober arguments.

It was a source of great satisfaction to those interested in the welfare of Plainfield's new theatre to note the personnel of the large audience that witnessed the production of "A Message from Mars" last night. For the greater part it was composed of representatives of wealth and culture of the city, demonstrating that Manager Counihan's efforts to cater to all amusement seekers are being appreciated. As a dramatic attempt "A Message from Mars" could hardly be improved upon, and it was shown on the local stage as superbly mounted as was the production that amused New York for a year. There have been other good plays in Plainfield since the theatre opened and many others are coming, and audiences like last night's are the kind that should encourage Manager Counihan to get only the best companies on the road for his cosy playhouse.

THE FORUM.

Former Mayor's Criticism.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Quoting from President Roosevelt's condemnation of those who wantonly inflicted injuries in outdoor college games of professionalism and the taint of money making in athletic sports, I alluded in remarks made at Citizens' meeting to the character of the disgraceful Saengerbund sparring exhibition, contending it was a brutal affair, given for mercenary motives. My criticism of Mayor Smalley was for permitting and sanctioning such an affair, not saying or intimating as was reported, that his motive was gain. Space for this correction and oblige.

Respectfully,
H. E. NEEDHAM,

Deserter Arrested.

Karl Beach, an acknowledged deserter from the United States Marine Corps, of League Island, Pa., fell into the hands of the Elizabeth police, and is being held to await investigation. It is known from a letter found on the man's person that he fled from the corps because he was charged with a double misdemeanor. What the offense was is not known. The authorities at Philadelphia have been communicated, with, and it is expected that a reply will reach Elizabeth today.

Girl Dared Him to Kiss.

Bristol, Tenn., Oct. 14.—Because he accepted a dare and kissed a pretty girl who attended his church, the Rev. W. W. Hicks, a prominent minister of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, in charge of a church at Chilhowie, Va., was yesterday adjudged guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister and sentenced by Bishop Duncan to six months' suspension. The convicted minister announced that he would appeal the case.

HERE'S YOUR DEAD WIFE.

Woman Declares In Divorce Suit Her Husband Has Another Spouse.

Mrs. Florence A. Wilson, of No. 82 Cutler street, Newark, filed yesterday a petition for divorce against her husband, Robert Wilson, an electrician, formerly of Newark, but at present supposed to be in St. Louis.

In her deposition Mrs. Wilson declares that Wilson left her without cause in April, 1903, when they were residing in Manhattan. Later, she says, she learned he had married a young woman of St. Louis and was living with her at the home of her parents. Mrs. Wilson says she also learned that Wilson won the St. Louis girl when posing as a widower. She followed him to St. Louis and, presenting herself before him, announced:

"Here is your dead wife now!"

A brother of the St. Louis wife appeared on this interesting scene, Mrs. Wilson declares, and threw Wilson out of the house. The petitioner has not seen or heard from him since.

COLBY CHALLENGERS.

New Party Started by Petition to Safeguard the Polls.

Petitions were circulated yesterday in Newark for signatures in the interest of a new political party known as the Citizens' Reform party. The names of George Yeomans and Charles T. Day, both of Newark, are on the petitions as candidates for Assembly.

The fact that the petitions were in the hands of well-known members of the Colby movement and that the Republican challengers to be appointed for the coming election will be selected by the regular organization led to the belief that the Citizens' Reform party is an offshot of the Colby movement and that its existence is due to the desire of the Colby men to secure the services of challengers who will be in sympathy with the candidates.

SIR HENRY IRVING DEAD

Acknowledged Greatest Actor of the Age Dies in Harness.

London, Oct. 14.—Sir Henry Irving died suddenly at Bradford last night.

The death of the distinguished actor was totally unexpected. He was engaged in a tour of the provinces, appearing nightly, and a few days ago spoke at a public meeting in advocacy of the movement for a municipal theatre.

Sir Henry played as usual last night at Bradford, and returned from the theatre to his hotel, where he was seized with an attack of syncope, dying at 11:30 o'clock.

Irving's last appearance was as "Becket" in the Lord Tennyson play of that name.

The Associated Press last night received the following telegram from Sir Henry's manager, Bram Stoker:

"Very terrible news. Sir Henry Irving had an attack of syncope after returning from the theatre to the hotel tonight and died suddenly."

WHAT TAX RATES ARE IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY

HIGHLAND PARK HAS THE HIGHEST AND NORTH BRUNSWICK THE LOWEST.

County Collector Serviss, of New Brunswick, has received the tax rate for all the cities, boroughs and townships in Middlesex county for this year except two. Assessor Perkins, of South Brunswick, and Assessor Fulton, of South Amboy, have not yet given him the rates for their districts but all of the others have done so.

The lowest tax rate is found to be in North Brunswick township, where the taxpayers must pay $1.34 on every $100 worth of the valuation on their property. The highest rate is in the new borough of Highland Park where the tax will be levied at $2.50 on every $100 of valuation.

The rates for the other taxing districts are as follows:

New Brunswick, $2.42 on $100; East Brunswick, $1.74; Cranbury, $1.39; Monroe, $1.35; Madison, $1.69; Sayreville, $1.54; Perth Amboy, $2.12; Woodbridge, $2.22; Piscataway, $1.46; Raritan, $1.76; Dunellen, $2.24; Helmetta, $2.04; Jamesburg, $1.72; Milltown, $1.82; South River, $2.22; Metuchen, $2.16. The rate in South Brunswick last year was $1.46 and in South Amboy, $1.68.

There are but two districts this year where the tax rate will be higher than it was last year. These two districts are Cranbury, which is two cents on $100 higher and Raritan township, where it is one cent higher.

The greatest decrease is shown in the borough of Helmetta where the rate is 38 cents lower this year. In Dunellen it is 28 cents lower, in South River 25 cents lower, in Milltown 32 cents lower, in Woodbridge 24 cents lower, and in New Brunswick 20 cents lower.

The rate last year in the several districts was as follows:

New Brunswick, $2.62 on $100; South Brunswick, $1.46; East Brunswick, $1.86; North Brunswick, $1.44; Cranbury, $1.37; Monroe, $1.45; Madison, $1.71; Sayreville, $1.58; South Amboy, $1.68; Perth Amboy $2.25; Woodbridge, $2.46; Piscataway, $1.55; Raritan, $1.75; Dunellen, $2.52; Helmetta, $2.42; Jamesburg, $1.95; Milltown, $2.14; South River, $2.47, and Metuchen, $2.27.

Drowned in Philippines.

Word was received yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. William Thorney, of Elizabeth, that their son, Lawrence Dawson Thorney, a sailor in the United States navy, had been drowned in the Augusen river, Philippine Islands, September 30, while in bathing. The cablegram which told them of the sad occurrence was very meagre in its details.

teresting subject, can be made interesting. This concluded the programme and the meeting adjourned.

During the afternoon session there was a pleasing vocal solo by Mrs. vonBrakle, accompanied on the violin by Miss Arline Brown.

The officers of the society are as follows:

President, Mrs. J. M. Dudley, of Elizabeth; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Miss Grace Davis, of Newark; recording secretary, Miss Florence Bogart, of Roselle Park; Junior secretary, Mrs. F. C. Foster, of Newark. Mrs. D. J. Yerkes and Mrs. W. H. Freeman, of this city, are first and second vice presidents.

POLITICAL TIPS.

William Travers Jerome, present district attorney of New York county, who failed to receive a renomination at the hands of Tammany Hall, failed to receive the nomination by the Republican county convention last night, in the Murray Hill Lyceum, New York, despite the efforts of a delegate, backed by a crowd in the rear of the hall, who made an attempt to stampede the convention at the mention of Jerome's name. Former Police Magistrate Charles A. Flammer was nominated, the vote being 237 for Flammer and 9 for Jerome. The rest of the ticket was: Mortimer C. Adams, George L. Ingraham and Joseph E. Newburger for justices of the Supreme Court; Otto A. Rosalsky, for justice of the Court of General Sessions; Ambrose O. Neal, for sheriff; Frederick L. Marshall, for county clerk, and H. A. G. Anderson, for register.

Miss Mabel Cardner, of the telephone exchange staff, has returned from a stay in Springfield, N. J.

I HAVE a large number of pictures in colors and black and white that are exquisite; they will make good studies to passe partout or frame for Christmas presents; head studies, scenery, etc.; would be sold in art stores from 25 cents to $1; I will sell them for 5 cents to 25 cents; buy at once while the choice is good; art stores excluded from this offer. Thomas Henry Stafford, the Printer, 125 East Front St.

N. Y. TO TAP CATSKILLS TO BAR WATER FAMINE

PLANS CALL FOR EXPENDITURE OF $106,212,000; GREATER WATER SUPPLY.

New York, October 14.—Recommendations for an additional water supply to cost not less than $106,121,000 were presented by the special commission on water supply Thursday to the board of estimate and apportionment. The plan is suggested as the only feasible means of forestalling a water famine or preventing a disastrous conflagration, as is threatened under present conditions. A greater water supply at a cost of $161,857,000 was also suggested.

The specifications, maps and estimates were laid over for further consideration, and what action will be taken by the board of estimate is problematical though it is said that the scheme has strong backing.

The plan provides for a supply of 250,000,000 gallons per day at a cost of $106,212,000, with an aqueduct suitable for the ultimate development of the works to 500,000,000 gallons per day, and an enlargement of the scheme provides for 500,000,000 gallons per day and 200,000,000 for Brooklyn at a cost of $161,857,000.

All this water is to be brought from the Catskill mountains, near Esopus, in an aqueduct to New York, where it will be delivered to a great reservoir, provided the part of the plan that recommends this is adopted.

AMUSEMENTS.

Bernard Shaw's new and unpublished play, "John Bull's Other Island," about which there is more anticipatory interest than there was in connection with any other of his dramas presented here, was given for the first time in America in the Garrick theatre by Arnold Daly's company on Tuesday evening. As "John Bull's Other Island" is not yet in book form, the play may be said to be ringed about by interrogation points. The Shaw devotees who devoured "Candida," "You Never Can Tell," and "The Man of Destiny" between book covers before seeing them on the stage are in a fever of expectation to know what new principles Mr. Shaw sets down in "John Bull" and what new methods, expressions and points of view he has assumed therein for satirizing and castigating society. Mr. Shaw sacrifices not one of his characteristic ideas, though perhaps he presents them in a new and differently colored light and with more force and incisiveness. There is no less verbiage in "John Bull' than in the other Shaw plays, but there is more action and the language perhaps is more drastic. Mr. Daly's company remains largely the same that helped him give such luminous performances of "Candida" and "You Never Can Tell."

The first performance on any stage of Mrs. Humphry Ward's "The Marriage of William Ashe," will be given in the pretty new theatre on Thursday evening, October 26, when Plainfield's theatregoers will have the pleasure of greeting Miss Grace George in a role that very well might have been written for her, so well does it seem, in prospect, to fit her personality, temperament and artistic method. It required an adroit managerial stroke to acquire the stage rights in Mrs. Ward's famous novel, for with the demand that sprung up on both sides of the Atlantic immediately following publication came applications for the right to act from managers all over the world. William A. Brady, quick to recognize the suitability of the character of Lady Kitty for Miss George, was, however, if not the first in the field, at least the man with the best inducement, to wit, an actress who satisfied Mr. Ward's ideal. His appreciation of the demands of the novel may very well be understood from a glance at the cast of well known English and American players engaged. The allotment of roles is: "William Ashe," H. Reeves Smith; "Lord Parham," William J. Constantine; "Lord Grosville," Frederick Sidney; "Geoffrey Cliffe," Ben Webster; "Eddie Helston," Mortimer Weldon; "The Little Dean," Alfred Woods; "Lady Tranmore," Maud Williamson; "Lady Grosville," Mrs. Reginald Carrington; "Lady Parham," Blanche Stewart; "Mary Lyster," Miss Davenport Seymour, and "Lady Kitty," Miss George. A large delegation of "first nighters" will come from New York for the performance, which will be given after many weeks of careful preparation.

Miss Selma Herman, the talented emotional actress, who is to appear this season in the new play entitled "Queen of the Convicts," under the management of P. H. Sullivan, a brother of Tim Sullivan, the well known Tammany leader, arrived in the city Thursday to begin rehearsals. It is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. The play is in four acts and twelve scenes and is based on the Queen Draga affair, but after the first act the stage queen is depicted as a good woman. A gorgeous production has been provided for the play at an expense of $20,000. During the four acts Miss Herman will wear eleven elaborate evening gowns. In preparation for the new piece Miss Herman has been taking fencing lessons from a famous fencing master in New York. The dancing diversions in the production have been arranged by Alberta, the well known stage manager of ballet effects. In this new play Miss Herman will do a number of striking stunts.

Thomas Jefferson, who now is the only Rip Van Winkle of the Jefferson family, and the senior actor of that name, holds the affectionate well wishes of a vast public which had grown to love his father, Joseph Jefferson. Well may it be said that men may come and men may go, but "Rip Van Winkle" seems to go on forever, for old as is the dramatized legend, it is bright and interesting whenever seen in the hands of capable actors. It is presented in Wallack's theatre by Thomas Jefferson, who has inherited much of his father's histrionic talent. In appearance he resembles his father very much, and in acting he carries out the character of "Rip" in much the same manner as his sire, whose portrayal of the part is so familiar to all theatregoers. Associated with the star are Frank Bangs, Earl Weston, Russell Bassett, Malcolm Duncan and Ethel Fuller.

Henry E. Dixey's return to the legitimate stage, and as a star at the head of one of the best acting companies that any New York manager has given us of late, is gratifying to all who have admired this clever actor. "The Man on the Box" is an interesting play, and the Madison Square theatre, where the star and play may be seen, should not lack for generous patronage. The play is entertaining for two acts, and in the third and last act the situations are so humorous and dramatic as to compel interest. "The Man on the Box" presents a variety of color, ranging from farce and comedy to straight drama, so that all tastes should be satisfied. The success of this play comes at a time when the New York stage is not overrun with dramatic surprises. Walter N. Lawrence has selected a role for his star which in every way gives Mr. Dixey abundant latitude, and that he makes the most of his opportunities is evident by the success he has made as Lieutenant Robert Warburton, who masquerades as a groom, for a lark, and then wins the woman he loves while wearing livery. Carlotta Nillson is a strong second to the star, and in a comedy part has shown that she is an actress of rare versatility.

The moving pictures showing the blowing up of Port Arthur and many other incidents of the war between Japan and Russia are attracting thousands of visitors to the Eden Musee, of New York City. These pictures are shown at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and 9 in the evening. They consist of about twenty different scenes, commencing with the massing of Japanese troops around Port Arthur, the gradual advance upon the fortifications, the monster guns in action during the bombardment of the forts, the trenches which concealed the soldiers, the blowing up of the fort with tons of dynamite, the interior of the fort after the explosion, the surrender of the Russian officers, the marching away of the prisoners, and finally the departure of the crowded train containing Russian officers released on parole. In these pictures are shown General Stoessel, Baron Nogi, and many other distinguished military officials, including the foreign military attaches who reviewed the victorious troops. Seeing these pictures is almost like a birdseye view of a great battle, and a large proportion of the visitors have been military officials. These are the pictures that were restrained by the Japanese Government until a short time ago, when they were released and placed on exhibition in London, where they attracted the attention of all Government officials, including King Edward.

GOOD DRAMATIC PRODUCTION.

"A Message from Mars" Given by a Thoroughly Capable Company.

Those who were at the New Plainfield theatre last evening, and the number was very large, witnessed in "A Message from Mars" one of the best dramatic productions it has been the good fortune of a local audience to attend in years. In the hands of a thoroughly capable company the strong parts of the play, which means all of it, were brought out in a manner that roused the spectators to a high pitch of enthusiasm. There is plenty of good, wholesome humor in the piece, while the story is absorbing.

David Proctor as "Horace Parker" revealed genuine dramatic ability and acted with a naturalness that gave him four curtain calls at the close of the second act. Miss Elizabeth Valentine as "Minnie Templer" was pleasing and a splendid bit of characteristic work was accomplished my Cyril Young in the role of "A Tramp." The play was handsomely staged.

Do You Believe It?

A Western minister claims to have two sinless children. It is greatly to be regretted that the reverend gentleman's position precludes negotiations with a dime museum manager. Such kids would help a lot—for exhibition purposes.—Trenton True American.

—The entertainment committee of the Park Club is gradually preparing its plans for the coming season. It is hoped to have an exceptional programme of entertainments and dances.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

Lincoln's rugged features had already begun to take on a shade of anxiety. The lines were digging farther in about the sombre eyes and the broad humorous mouth by the time the tall, gaunt president, in the abnormally tall top hat—the fashion of the day—took to driving out to Kalorama in the August evenings, Mr. Secretary Seward dwarfing at his side—to take the air and look at the one western brigade of all the commands then being molded by Gen. McClellan into what was to become the grand army of the Potomac. While at first Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania had been represented in the huge command assigned to Fred Benton's general, with one exception all eastern regiments were transferred to other divisions as more Badgers arrived, and finally, when the first frosts of October had turned the Virginia shores to fire and, strongly entrenched, the union army covered the long front from Alexandria to beyond the Chain Bridge, it was a brigade of four strong, stalwart regiments, three from Wisconsin and one from Indiana, not an eastern or middle state represented in their array, that this compact command was designated, of all others, to encamp upon the beautiful Arlington estate, and the general and his staff were directed to occupy as headquarters the fine old mansion, long the seat of a famous family. The Badger brigadier moved in and took possession of the homestead of his old-time friend and associate in the corps of engineers, when as junior officers they were building Fort Monroe, and 4,000 men of the west pitched their white tents on the lands of Virginia's knightly soldier—Robert E. Lee.

CHAPTER IV.

WHAT WAS FOUND AT MANASSAS.

Dark and dreary the winter of the first year of the war closed in on the camps about the capital. Between the Long Bridge and the heights of Arlington lay a sea of mud. Dull red, the Virginia roads were gullied deep by the wheels of cannon, ambulance and army wagon that sank now to the very hubs in sticky mire, and time and again stalled the needed supplies almost within sight of their destination. In vain the darky drivers doubled their teams and plied lash and blasphemy. Hour after hour the order would ring through the swarming streets of the nearest camp: "Turn out, boys—more wagons stuck in the mud!" and by whole companies, regulars or volunteers, the men would wade knee-deep to the scene, and with fence rails as levers and drag ropes over the brawny shoulders, prying, pushing, hauling and shouting they would "yank" the heavy rolling stock, one by one, from the slough of their despond and tide them over to the next camp beyond, and so, from slough to slough, pass them on their final destination.

But while the roads and flats were quagmires, up along the wooded heights the ground was fairly dry and well drained, and there the four regiments, three of which had drilled through August on the broad, level plateau of Kalorama, and much of the early fall about Chain Bridge, were now kept from morn till night busily at their soldier task. The general held that the less time soldiers had to kill the happier and heartier they were, and determined was he that the splendid material confided to his charge should be molded into equally splendid, soldierly shape—that the one exclusively western brigade of the now well-organized army should be second to none in point of instruction, discipline and efficiency. To this end, drills by squad, company and battalion, all three, were of daily occurrence, followed by dress parade at sundown, and all this supplemented by long, searching inspections every Sunday morning. Presently, too, he was able, by a mile march through the woods, to reach an open plain out toward Ball's cross roads, and there have brigade evolutions twice a week. Then the full uniform of the regulars had been drawn for the entire command, the Indiana boys shedding the semi-Zouave garb of gray in favor of the army blue, as had certain of their Wisconsin comrades at Chain Bridge as early as September. One Badger regiment, the Second, whose men lorded it somewhat over their fellows because they had been all through Bull Run and, despite fairly heavy losses, retired in good order—had even obtained the quaint, stiff, Kossuth hat, looped up on one side and garnished with cord and brasses and feathers—the headgear of the regulars at the time—and were dubbed the "Black Hats" by envious comrades of other commands. Their original field officers had disappeared somewhere about the time of that initial battle, and in their place had come a stocky little black-bearded West Pointer as colonel, with a most soldierly ex-captain of state militia as his second, and then the whole brigade had to be fitted out with white gloves, and some nearby regulars were detailed to show them how best to polish their belts and boxes, and great was the competition among the four regiments to win the honor of headquarters guard and orderlies.

Then, as freezing weather set in with December and it became possible for carriages to come bumping and swaying over the icy bowlders and ridges into which the almost liquid mud had been transformed, many generals of rank, and statesmen by the score, and even the president himself, began paying visits to Arlington and bringing curious and distinguished foreigners with them.

There was one visitor who could not come too often. He came, however, only twice or thrice. He never left his carriage, but sat there lounging comfortably on the back seat, usually with Secretary Seward by his side, just as he used to come to nearer Kalorama, and, after he had chatted with the general a while, he would drive through the regimental camps to receive the tumultuous greeting of "the boys," to wave his hat and smile at them, and sometimes, when they crowded about him, to stop and shake hands with the nearmost, and once or twice to tell some whimsical story that would set his hearers shouting with glee.

But if the rugged features beamed with kindliness and sympathy early in the December days and had ever a smile in return for the greeting of the shouting boys in blue, senior officers who best knew him became aware of a growing anxiety and impatience on his part ere Christmas came in, and the crowded camps were jubilant with feasting and good cheer. The beloved little commanding general had been taken ill with a fever and confined to his bed. The president to whom he owed his appointment had as yet no information as to that general's plans, and, strange as it may seem, the two or three men in his, McClellan's, confidence were strangers at the white house and the departments. When, in his anxiety and sympathy, the president called in person at the invalid's house, he was neither asked to the bedside nor given information as to when the general would be able to resume duty. As a consequence the president had to turn to other sources, and Fred's division commander, McDowell, was the first he sought. He was forever asking questions as to the condition of the roads, the possibility of moving guns and trains, and showing not a little eagerness when told that through January, at least, they ought to be hard and firm, but rough.

And yet, save for more drills and ceremonies, and in spite of the clamor of the nation, the press and the government, the army moved not, and the fine weather of December was gone and January came, and stories went from fire to fire that the president and the people had become irritated at the long delay, and that Little Mac was being urged and importuned and even blamed. "Let Little Mac alone," said the boys. "He knows what he's about;" for even in their impatience nothing could shake their loyalty.

At last the president took the law into his hands and issued his first order directing the advance of an army in the field. And at last, its corps organization completed now—though with generals not of McClellan's choice—to the glorious music of the innumerable bands, in splendid weather and in splendid spirits, the long blue columns filed out from the shelter of the circling fortifications and took the road to Centreville.

Promotion had by this time carried Fred's division commander to the head of a corps and his brigade commander to the head of the fine division, in which until now the wild westerners had been numbered as the First brigade. Now they became the Third, and were both astonished and disgusted to find that their numerical destination depended not, as they were inclined to say, on their soldierly superiority, but upon the relative rank of the brigade commander. It galled them, to tell the truth, to find that the promotion to division rank of the West Point soldier who had organized, drilled and taught them from the start, involved a corresponding setback for themselves. Some Badgers took the matter so much to heart as to declare that the general should have declined promotion—let somebody else step up to the command of the division rather than see his old comrades moved from the right to the left of the line, from front to rear of the column. In vain were they assured that it really made no earthly difference, that the brigade would take turns at the head of the column on the march, and, as for the line of battle, they would get just as much fighting on the left as on the right.

However, the brigade strode away most vigorously on the march to Manasses, was one of the first to reach the storied stream that wound along at the foot of the heights, was one of the most disgusted to find the "impregnable system of powerful works" held only by Quaker guns and abandoned impedimenta, but to Fred Benton and his general there came a lively sensation in the report from the lips of the bearded colonel of the "Black Hats." His men had stumbled on a lot of letters and luggage unaccountably left behind even in the calm deliberation of the confederate withdrawal—the property of certain officers of the Eleventh Alabama.

CHAPTER V.

A STARTLING RESEMBLANCE.

Most skillfully and leisurely had "Joe" Johnston, the confederate commander, withdrawn his army to the line of the upper Rappahannock. When the first of the union cavalry under Averell came twinkling into view along the heights of Centreville, the last of Johnston's 50,000—all he had to face McClellan's field force of probably double that number—was reluctantly riding away from Manassas. More for exercise and the name of the thing than with the idea of a fight, "Little Mac" had sent his big corps forward to the scene of McDowell's defeat of the previous July, and for a whole day Fred Benton and his Badger comrades wandered about the Junction, the Henry house, the Warrenton pike and the old Stone Bridge, gathering relics and information, and it was while so occupied that a squad of busy searchers had stumbled on two or three boxes in an abandoned hut—boxes that when burst open were found to contain letters, papers and clothing belonging to men of the Eleventh Alabama, and as luck would have it, to First Lieut. Paul Ladue.

"NOW, WHAT HAVE YOU GOT TO SAY?"

"Now, what have you got to say?" demanded officers of the Montgomery guard, a home company, as one of them shook under Benton's paling face an open letter addressed to Ladue. "Will you own up that he was a reb all the time?"

"No," said Benton sadly. "He would have remained there taking care of his old father if it hadn't been for that mob, and more than one of your men was in it, Capt. O'Kane, as you very well know."

Eight months had passed and the matter of that purloined letter was as deep a mystery as ever, and now here at Manassas, and, of all others, to the men of the Badger brigade had come confirmation of the statement insisted on by McKinnon and denounced as a lie and forgery by Paul Ladue—that the fiery young southerner was actually an officer of the Eleventh Alabama. The absent are ever in the wrong, and with sad heart poor Fred listened to the chorus of denunciation that followed the discovery. He knew that within 48 hours a dozen letters would be flying homeward with the exciting news, so what was the use of attempting to suppress it?

By his general's advice he wrote to his father forthwith, telling him of the finding of letters and luggage belonging to Paul, the letters all tending to show that he was now an officer of the Eleventh Alabama—but that he, Fred, still believed Paul's statement to the effect that he had accepted neither commission nor appointment up to the time he was banished from his northern home. The general added some words of his own, and then as a courier was to start for Washington from McDowell's headquarters that evening, Fred was given leave to ride thither, and thereby assure their letters going ahead of the others.

It was an unusually bright and beautiful afternoon, as, followed by his orderly, the young officer took the Sudley Springs road and trotted away northward in search of the corps commander. As he came in view of the now famous Henry house and the cleared fields up the slope to the right, it lacked two hours to sunset. He was now barely a mile from the Warrenton pike and, with abundant time to spare, he decided to ride to the crest and have a look at the battle ground of the previous year. In front of him, 100 yards away, stood the old Virginia homestead about whose walls the battle raged that hot July Sunday of the year gone by—beneath whose shattered roof the poor mother died, stricken by whirring fragments of shell. Riding thither and skirting the enclosure, he passed on, unchecked by silent, saluting guardsmen, and as he rode something prompted him to glance toward the house again, and there at a jagged shell hole, just under the eaves, peering at him between the shattered clapboards, his keen eyes caught an instant glimpse of a haggard face—a face that, at his glance, was instantly withdrawn.

HIS BODY EXHUMED.

Vitals Taken to Discover if McCarthy Was Poisoned.

Prosecutor Berdine, J. B. Smith, president of the Board of Health, of New Brunswick; Dr. Haines, of South Amboy, County Physician Carroll, of Dayton, and Dr. J. A. Degheux, of Manhattan, went yesterday to the South Amboy morgue to examine the body of Thomas McCarthy, which had been exhumed. It was buried last June.

At the time of his death there were rumors that McCarthy had been poisoned. No official investigation was made, as the rumors were believed at the time to be idle gossip. Since then, it is said, some things have developed which indicate that there may be some truth in those rumors.

Dr. Degheux dissected the body and placed the intestines in a glass vessel, which he sealed and took for examination at the Lederle laboratories, Manhattan.

ALL DAY SHOOT

Plainfield Gun Club Preparing for Big Event Next Saturday.

Arrangements have practically been completed by the Plainfield Gun Club for its third big all day shoot to be held on the East Second street grounds, one week from today. It will commence at 10 o'clock and will continue until darkness. Several of the best known cracks in the country will be present and from present indications the shoot will go far ahead of any the club has yet held.

The prize list is large and will be sure to attract a big entry list. The display is to be seen in Harry Dreier's show window and is daily being added to. The committee which has charge has made arrangements to provide lunch on the grounds.

WIFE GRANTS DIVORCE.

Document Freeing Husband Offered in Evidence in Suit.

"I, the undersigned, Mrs. B. Kettell, nee Ida F. Wilson, do grant to my husband, B. Kettell, an absolute divorce from me on grounds unknown to the public and not to be mentioned.

"MRS. B. KETTELL."

When Mrs. Ida F. Kettell's application for alimony and counsel fee, in divorce proceedings instituted by Bernard Kettell, was made yesterday in the special term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, this document was produced by her husband's lawyer. It was dated December 29, 1901. No action was taken on the application, as Judge Maddox gave counsel for both sides an extension of time to produce additional affidavits. Kettell is a clerk in the New York postoffice.

Arcturus, the Giant Sun.

There are other suns in space that are infinitely larger than the one which gives us heat, light and life. The star Arcturus, which is known to be a sun for a faraway system of planets, is 11,500,000 times farther removed from us than is our solar luminary. His diameter is 71,000,000 and his circumference about 224,000,000 miles. Our sun is but 866,000 miles in diameter, a fact which proves that Arcturus is at least 551,000 times greater in bulk than is our "great orb of day."

INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE

New Concern Coming into Jersey Field When Bonds are Issued.

MAY BE MERGER

U. S. Independent Telephone Company May Take Over Subsidiary Lines in This State.

The United States Independent Telephone Company, which has asked New Jersey financial institutions to subscribe to its bonds, will operate an independent telephone system in Newark and other parts of the State at some future time if it can obtain necessary franchises. This announcement was made yesterday by Richard V. Lindabury, one of the counsel for the company.

In connection with this announcement a canvass of Newark is under way for subscribers to the Coast Line Telephone Company's proposed system, by which, it is alleged, the company has already obtained some 2,200 tentative subscribers. According to the blanks carried by its canvassers, no charge will be made for local service or service in adjoining cities for six months after the installation of the instruments, and thereafter the subscriber is to pay $1 a month for unlimited service. Out-of-town messages are to be paid at the usual toll rates. Whether this canvass has any connection with the proposed invasion of the United States Independent company is not known. It is said, on authority of the canvassers employed by the Coast Line company, that the latter is owned by the Keystone Telephone Company, of Philadelphia, which, in turn, is said to be controlled by the United Gas and Electric Company, of the same city, which also has a large interest in the Public Service Corporation.

Now that the United States Corporation is organized and, according to its officials, on a safe financial footing, controlling franchises covering Manhattan and the various other boroughs of Greater New York, there is a possibility that this State may yet have active competition in telephone service. Among the smaller companies which may become a part of the greater independent system are the State Telephone Company, of Trenton, with its subsidiary corporations; the Suburban, of Paterson; the Interstate, of Elizabeth; and the Home Telephone Company, of Trenton; the Coast Line, of Jersey City; and, perhaps, the Keystone, whose service extends into Camden and adjoining territory.

The latter concern is said to be independent of the Bell Telephone Company. The possibility of its coalition with the United States Independent Company is based on the rumored discord between the Public Service and the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, the latter of which is affiliated with the Bell companies. It is alleged that in a number of instances the requests of the New Jersey Telephone Company to string wires on the poles of the Public Service Corporation have been refused. It is also said that an official of the Public Service has stated that the new independent company had asked permission of the Public Service for the use of its electric light conduits.

The circular sent to Jersey bankers by the financial institutions offers a portion of $17,000,000 5 per cent. collateral trust gold bonds, secured by a mortgage on the franchises and material holdings of the company, dated October 2, 1905, and to mature October 1, 1935, with the privilege of redeeming all bonds at any interest period by a payment of $1,150 and accrued interest for each $1,000 bond. With each $1,000 bond the subscriber will receive stock script, representing $400. Twenty-five per cent. of the subscription is due on application and the balance on October 31.

PRINCETON FRESHMEN, HAVING PICTURE TAKEN, SHOWERED WITH FLOUR BY "SOPHS"

Princeton, Oct. 14.—The Princeton sophomores had another opportunity Thursday to work their revenge when the freshman class assembled secretly to have their pictures taken. The sophs won.

The 1908 men passed the word around and laid in a big stock of flour, which was neatly done up in small packages by the energetic members of the class. When the freshmen assembled on the steps they were surprised to see their old enemies line up in front with hard countenances that boded no good.

As soon as the posers had gathered in a large group the word was given and for a moment the air was filled with a white cloud, which blew away to show the unfortunate freshmen covered with a white coating. Volley after volley was sent into the crowd, until the little black caps on the younger students looked like they had just passed through a snow storm. It was impossible for the 1909 men to keep still, and, although the photographer exposed several plates, the sophomores accomplished their object by making the undertaking a complete failure.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Doctor Stephen A. Aldrich has opened a dental office at 178 East Front street, near Watchung avenue.

—Fourteen Y. M. C. A. juniors, under the guidance of Secretary Robbie, went on the West Point trip this morning. They left on the 6:57 train and will be back in town about 9 o'clock tonight.

CLOSED PORTALS.

At a business meeting of the Elizabeth Lodge of Elks Thursday night plans were made for a beefsteak and vaudeville entertainment to be held later in the season. Arrangements were also placed in the hands of a committee for the annual lodge of sorrow, or memorial services of the Elks, which will be held this year on the first Sunday in December.

NEWSY NOTES.

Seized with dizziness while making coffee, Mrs. John Louisatt, aged fifty years, of Millville, N. J., fell to the floor and was scalded so severely by the coffee that she died.

President Roosevelt is playing a tennis series with M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador.

In a collision with the torpedo boat Dupont, off the Brenton's Reef Lightship, the torpedo boat Blakely's bow was bent, and she must go into drydock for repairs.

In order to keep the bench out of factional politics Philadelphia's judges have refused permission to the reformers to hold in a court room the magistrate's hearing of former Director of Public Safety English and others accused of conspiracy to defraud the city of $150,000.

Dr. L. O. Howard, United States Government yellow fever expert, says the fonts of holy water are, in many instances, breeding places for yellow fever mosquitoes and a source of danger.

During September the fifty largest cities in the United States took in $6,513,500. Brooklyn showed the largest increase. New York's receipts were $1,391,731; Chicago's, $1,095,237; Philadelphia's, $446,265; Boston's, $415,821, and St. Louis's, $293,704.

A Bishop's Pun.

Henry Niles Pierce, Episcopal bishop of Arkansas, was as inveterate and clever punster as the noted English divine, Sydney Smith. On one occasion a lady in expressing her admiration of his erudition exclaimed: "Why, Bishop, you are a perfect ocean of learning." "No, madam," was the modest rejoinder, "I'm only a part of the see of Arkansas."

Fair at Mrs. Parvin's.

The fair held at the home of Mrs. Parvins Thursday afternoon, for the benefit of the children, was a decided success in many ways. As a result about fifty dollars was added to the treasury of the home through the efforts of the young children. A great quantity of fancy goods was disposed of and ice cream and cake were on sale.

POINTS ABOUT PEOPLE.

Dr. Marcus Fitscherbert Wheatland, a colored physician of Newport, R. I., is recognized as New England's leading specialist in electro-therapeutics and the X-ray. In early life he was a shoemaker.

Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia, is working steadily on the writing of the memoirs of General Jubal A. Early, the distinguished Confederate leader. The Senator has but recently returned to his home in Washington from an extended trip in search of material for notes and additions to the book.

Among Lord Roberts' countless claims to distinction it is little known that he is one of the best and hardest riders in the British army. In his younger days he was nicknamed "Jehu," "because he rideth furiously," and even today his staff must be good riders and well mounted in order to keep pace with him.

George Bernard Shaw, who has been indulging in some acrid criticism of American literary taste, has the most unpardonable set of whiskers which ever grew out of a man's face. A recent critic remarked: "There are many things for which a man may not be censured, but his whiskers are his own fault." Shaw has a set which diffuses itself all over his collar and shoulders, and makes it impossible to determine whether he wears a collar and shirt.

Mr. Gillilan, the president of the Newspaper Jokers' Club, that visited John D. Rockefeller, at Cleveland the other day, gives an entertaining account of the visit ,which concludes as follows: "Others may know Rockefeller as a monster; others may know him as the riches man in the world; others may know him as a caricature and the butt of the jests of us who were that day his happy guests. But we who were there know him as a pleasant, young-old gentleman with a pleasing voice of gentle, benevolence intonation, with unbounded courtesy, with a boy's enthusiasm and enough energy to carry him through many more phenomenally eventful and successful years."

Earl Spencer is to preside at the unveiling in London of the national memorial of the late Mr. Gladstone, on October 21, and the ceremony will be performed in the presence of a representative assemblage of politicians and civic notabilities. Invitations are being sent out, but the programme has not yet been settled. Statues of the deceased statesman already exist in Westminster Abbey, and the central hall of the houses of Parliament, the former having been erected at the public expense and the latter by private subscription. This national memorial, however, is not to be a statue only, but an important monumental group. The bronze statue itself represents Mr. Gladstone in the picturesque robes of chancellor of the exchequer, and is said to be an impressive rendering of a fine personality.

UNION COUNTY CHAMPION TEAM DINED AND TOASTED

Plainfield's Crack Nine the Guest of Local Fandom at a Big Feast.

TWO MAYORS THERE

Rattling Good Speeches—Pennant Presented—Gift for Manager Daab—A Good Dinner.

Manager Philip Daab and his baseball team, winners of the Union county championship, were dined and toasted in royal fashion at the Hotel Iroquois Saturday night by local fandom. The affair, which had been the talk of the fans for sometime, was replete in every detail, and not a thing happened to mar the pleasure of the large assemblage. The fine dinner served by Proprietor Jerome W. Leary, the presentation of the championship pennant, as well as the presentation of a handsome gold watch fob by the members of the Plainfield team, and the speeches, all combined to make the occasion a memorable one. There were many pleasant features and the fans who have regularly attended the games throughout the season were glad of the opportunity to sit about the festive board with the ball players who have made the town famous in the national game.

Manager Philip Daab.

In addition to giving a dinner to the Daabsters, the members of the All-Plainfield team, which opposed the champions on the diamond Saturday afternoon, were also guests. Among others present were Mayor J. F. Buckle, of this city; Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, and many other city officials who are closely identified with the game. All united in one grand song of praise to Manager Daab and his team, and the announcement by Mr. Daab that he expects to return here another year was hailed with delight.

The banquet room was decorated with flowers, while stretched across the room was the championship pennant, bearing the words "Plainfield, Champions 1905."

After enjoying the fine menu, which included many delectable dishes from blue points to demi tasse, the speechmaking of the evening was started by City Judge William N. Runyon, who made an ideal toastmaster. He paid deserving tribute to Mr. Daab and his gentlemanly lot of players, who, he said, had won the admiration and respect of every fan. He likened the gathering to an insane asylum which he visited once, presuming that all fans are crazy, and he expressed the opinion that Plainfield had every reason to be proud of the achievements of the Daabsters this season. He paid his compliments to the Westfield team, remarking that the local team was quite in contrast to the Denmanites, who were known to resort to devious methods to win, while Plainfield's team had won its honors fair and square.

Mayor Buckle was the next speaker, his toast being "Our City." He praised the city and its people, telling of their many excellent qualities, of which he was proud. He praised Mr. Daab and his players, referring to them as true sports, and he did not forget Umpire "Jack" Merity, who, he said, he admired for his equitable decisions and ability to back them up.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley responded to the toast of "Our Sister City," saying that he had been greatly interested this year in Plainfield's baseball. He paid high tribute to Mr. Daab, who, he said, had "delivered the goods," and had given the city the best baseball in her history. He also referred to the fact that every member of the team is a gentleman in the highest sense.

To the toast "Our Baseball Club"

Captain "Dave" Driscoll.

Captain David F. Driscoll remarked that all he had to say was that he hoped to be in Plainfield next season. The modest "Chief" is no speechmaker, but he is one of the most popular ball players and his men are loyal to him.

Mr. Daab was called upon to respond to the toast "The Next Season." He expressed the pleasure of coming to Plainfield this year with his team and of winning the county championship, due credit for which he gave to the players. He said that he fully appreciated the many kindnesses shown to him and he hoped to be here another year. Referring to the players, he said that he did not see where he could change a single player and improve thereby. He was glad that the fans were pleased with the team and the results, and he predicted the same success next season, when he hoped that the championship would again come here. He heartily thanked the local newspapers and reporters for the courtesies shown this year.

Editor William Baxter, of the Hoboken Inquirer, spoke for "The Press," and in a few pleasant words expressed his pleasure at being present to enjoy the festivities. He realized that "The press" could either make or break and that it is an important factor in any community. He praised Plainfield and the results attained by the ball team and said that he was perfectly willing and glad to continue the relationship.

"Baseball, Past and Present," was the toast assigned Benjamin A. Mumford, and he stirred the hearts of all by his review of the history of baseball here in former days. He was glad to join with all in celebrating the victory of Plainfield over Westfield and the winning of the pennant, and hoped the day would soon come when an organization would be formed and a commodious clubhouse erected for all kinds of sports. He offered to furnish the pole from which the pennant will float next season, and the offer was accepted.

One of the happy surprises of the evening to Mr. Daab was the presentation by Umpire Jack Merity, on behalf of the team, of a handsome gold watch fob, in appreciation of what he had done for them. The fob was beautifully engraved, there being a figure of a ball player and a diamond on the face of it, while on the back was the inscription: "Presented to Mr. Philip Daab, Manager, Plainfield Baseball Club, 1905." In presenting the gift, Mr. Merity said that it was not the cost, but the spirit in which it was given, that represented the true appreciation of the players. Mr. Daab responded, saying that the gift was a total surprise, and he wished to thank the donors heartily for it. Last year the team gave Mr. Daab a silver loving cup.

Bogart Conklin, who represented the West Ends, of Somerville, was called upon for a few remarks, and said that it was his pleasure to celebrate with the fans in their victory. He hoped that next season there would be a series between Plainfield and Somerville and pledged his word to do all in his power to bring this about.

At this time the championship pennant was presented to Mr. Daab and the team by Robert V. Hoffman, on behalf of the Courier-News. His remarks were very appropriate and called forth much applause. He said that, being a resident of Westfield,

REGULARS WON HANDILY

Dixon's All-Plainfield Nine Defeated by Score of 6 to 1.

BAND WAS THERE

Wiltse, McLaughlin and Montross Took Turns in the Box for the Picked Nine—The Game in Detail.

In an atmosphere of rattles, stagefright and sweet melody the All-Plainfield team fell into the yawning pit dug for it by Manager Dixon at the Oval Saturday afternoon. The hole measured 6 to 1, which is not quite so deep as a lot of folks thought it would be. The art and craft of the trio of flingers rung in by Manager Dixon held the Commute band within decent and reasonable limits.

It was a nice game of the four-o'clock-tea kind. The opposing camps mingled in pleasant and stingless intercourse, and airy persiflage rippled all about the diamond. Bandmaster La Vere's orchestra and some big league vocalists went through a lovely programme without an error, making musical hits all through the game.

Another social feature of the pleasand little affair was the reappearance of William McCullough Tierney, alias Big Bill, in public, clad in the full working clothes of a hide handler. Bill played here in the days when Tuck Turner was shedding his baseball milk teeth, and not so long ago was one of the Hon. P. Daab's hired men in the pretzel burg. Bill gambolled on the side lines and presented a continuous performance of that innocent pastime called playing-the-goat. Out of the largeness of his heart and a select stock of humor, Bill coached for the town band as well as the hired talent. In the eighth Bill butted into tae game in Chief Dave's place place, and burned the atmosphere with a screaming foul and a long fly.

It was great weather for baseball, and a large assortment of beauty and chivalry was out to see the clash. With Bill and Ben La Vere living up to their reputations the b. and c. had a good time, but there wasn't much to the game to make 'em interested.

The All-Plainfield athletes scattered about the infield suffered palpably from stagefright, and went up into the air at crucial periods. Willie Deegan didn't strain himself on the firing line, but he held the Dixon assortment safely. They got five hits, two of which were wrenched off by Lou Wiltse and Warry McLaughlin. Howie Craig increased his social popularity and his rep as a welter by peeling two clean hits, one of them a fluke two bagger.

But for an error by Kiernan the All-Plainfields would have flitted away with a string of goose eggs about their necks. They had plenty of apparent chances to score, but Willie put the clamps on with men on bases and sharp fielding froze them to the alleys. Bright bits of work garnished their play, especially in the outfield. Dodge made a spectacular catch of a low-flying hoist, and Lou Wiltse pulled the fans to their feet with an amazing one-handed scoop of a short center ball after a sprint that carried him off his pins. He rolled completely over, but clung to the leather as if it had been grafted to his hand. Craig's pick-ups were snappy, and George Allen caught the trio of flingers in faultless style. He was a terror to would-be stealers and whacked out a beautiful single to demonstrate that he was there in all the departments of the game.

The Commuters didn't splurge any, but they worked properly and rose to the occasion when it came around. Wally Cosgrave pulled down a long fly with two fingers and Mike Leonard clung to a red hot liner that looked as if it would bore a hole in anything it struck.

The Daabsters got seven hits. Wiltse pitched the first three innings, and Pete Kiernan stung his first good fling for a leftfield rap. Smiling Jimmy Montross took up the box burden in the fourth, and Driscoll, Deegan and Dalton landed right. Warry McLaughlin went in in the seventh, and Dalton, Deegan and Kiernan got safeties off his delivery.

Craig scored the All-Plainfields' one tally at his first appearance on Pete Kiernan's crazy chuck over first. The leather went so far into the open that Dave didn't bother to go after it and Howie strolled in. The Commuters got that run back, and one more for good measure, in the next stanza on a very cheeky squeeze, Cosgrave and Dalton were on third and second respectively, mainly by virtue of a bad foozle by Brit Martin, with two out and Pete Cregan at the stick. When Lou's arm went up for his second chuck to Pete, Wally shot for the plate like a streak, with the Kid, who had been laying

GRAND JURY TO EXAMINE WITNESSES OF AUTO CRASH

SERVE SUBPOENAS ON PLAINEFIELDERS FOR APPEARANCE TOMORROW.

Another chapter in the Stanbery auto accident at Dunellen will begin tomorrow, when the Middlesex county Grand Jury will have the principals before it to conclude its investigation to fix the responsibility for Mrs. William A. Westphal's death. Constable Robert Pierce, of New Market, was in the city today and served a batch of subpoenas on witnesses who either saw the crash or were on the scene directly afterward.

The Grand Jury has had the case under consideration all along and at Prosecutor Berdine's instigation a representative attended the trials at Dunellen brought about by Oscar Harrison's suit against Stanbery to recover damages. All the testimony was secured and will be used in the investigation. When the body convened instructions were given by Judge Fort to look into the matter thoroughly and if anyone had been at fault in causing the accident, to bring about an indictment and trial.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL AT COUNTRY CLUB

WM. E. M'CLYMONT AND MRS. HALL-BUCKOUT THE ARTISTS

A delightful musical was given at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday night by William E. MacClymont, who gave a Pianola recital, assisted by Mrs. Jennie Hall-Buckout, dramatic soprano, of New York. The programme, a select one, showed the possibilities of the instrument. It was handled by Mr. MacClymont in a capable manner. Mrs. Hall-Buckout is one of the leading sopranos of New York. She possesses a beautiful dramatic voice of great range and sweetness and the singing of her first two songs, Ecstasy, by Beach, and My Dreams, by Tosto, elicited hearty applause. She was obliged to respond to an encore.

Mrs. Buckout is the soloist at Holy Trinity church, New York, where Mr. MacClymont is choirmaster and organist. She was accompanied by Mr. MacClymont at the Pianola. During the evening Mr. MacClymont gave several selections on the Pianola, which were interspersed by the vocal selections by Mrs. Buckout.

CANDIDATE DECLINES PLEDGE TO NEGROES

DR. LAWRENCE WILL NOT PROMISE COLORED MEN ON JURY WORK.

Dr. William H. Lawrence, Republican candidate for sheriff, has declined to make any binding promises to the negro voters who want a pledge that they will be put on juries. The colored voters, it is said, declare that if they do not get what they ask for this year they will make it hot for the candidates, and Hawkins declares that they will stand together and will demand their rights.

This is the letter sent to the colored men's committee:

"Summit, Oct. 12, 1905.

"Henry Van der Veer, Joseph Bingham and Walter Thomas, Committee.

"Dear Sirs—Replying to your letter under date Oct. 11, I can only reiterate what I recently said to you in person, that I will not make any promises or pledges as to what I will or will not do if elected to the office of sheriff, other than the one I made to the delegates representing the Republican party in the convention at which I was nominated, namely, that I stood upon the platform then adopted by that convention, and if elected I would conscientiously and faithfully discharge the duties of the office in the interests of all the people of this county.

"I know that I shall be the best able to do this, and to act judiciously and with justice to all if I am untrameled by any pledges or promises other than that made by me to the convention.

"Yours truly,

"WILLIAM H. LAWRENCE."

Miss Brown's Marriage Announced.

Mrs. Margaret C. Brown announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Eva Brown, to Frederick Coe Adams, which took place Wednesday afternoon, October 11, at Hamilton, Ontario. Mr. Adams formerly lived here and for several years was a deacon in Trinity Reformed church. The couple will be "at home" after November 8, at 240 North Seventh street, Newark, the home of the groom.

PERCY C. OHL IS DEAD

Once Prominent and Well-to do He Dies Poor in an Insane Asylum.

HE LIVED LAVISHLY

Made Some Money, Spent it Quickly and Then Went to Work—Had Many Friends.

Percy C. Ohl, some years ago a prominent and wealthy citizen here, died Saturday night at the New Jersey State Hospital for Insane at Morris Plains, where he was committed in July of last year demented and poverty stricken.

For a year and a half prior to his commitment he resided at the Lane homestead, off Central avenue. He was possessed of the hallucination of a plot against the life of President Roosevelt, and had written several letters to the chief executive offering to divulge the alleged information to him in consideration of receiving $20 and a pair of shoes. No attention was paid to the letters by the President or the secret service men.

At one time Mr. Ohl, together with his father and brother, owned an interest in the Clyde Steamship Company, and when they disposed of their stock it was said that Mr. Ohl received $150,000. In those days he lived in lavish style and devoted a large part of his time to sports, his hobby being trap-shooting, hunting, fishing and breeding thoroughbred dogs. Gradually his fortune left him and within a few years he became dependent upon his relatives and friends.

For a time Mr. Ohl lived in Maryland, where he was engaged to take care of a large kennel, in which he was an expert. His own kennels in this city were considered to be among the finest in the county. Personally, Mr. Ohl was of a genial disposition and had a host of friends. He was generous to a fault and always ready to help his friends, who later in life found it a pleasure to help him for what he had done. He was a stanch Democrat and when the party was successful in this city he was one of the leaders.

Surviving Mr. Ohl is a wife, two daughters and a son. One daughter, Miss Adele von Ohl, is engaged in the chorus at the Hippodrome, New York.

Arrangements are being made to have Mr. Ohl's remains brought to this city by A. M. Runyon & Son, and announcement of the funeral services will be made later.

MRS. COOK DEAD.

Former Well Known Plainfield Resident Passes Away at Newark.

Mrs. Addie O. Cook, a former well known resident of this city, and who resided for several years with Mrs. David Rogers, of West Second street, died Saturday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Leach, of Newark. She had been ill for two years with a lingering complaint, which first became serious when she went to Newark on a visit two years ago. Besides Mrs. Leach she is survived by two sons, Harry and William Cook, both of this city.

The funeral will be held from her late home tomorrow night and interment will be at Flemington Wednesday morning.

Informed of Mother's Death.

Mrs. Andrew Muir, of Essex street, was summoned to Brooklyn this morning by the death of her mother, Mrs. Jeannette McMaster, which occurred during the night. Mrs. McMaster was in her eighty-second year and was quite well known in Plainfield, having resided here at one time. The funeral will be held from her late home tomorrow afternoon and in terment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Warren Chapel Plans.

The congregational meeting of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held at the church Wednesday night after the prayer meeting to reconsider the resolution hertofore adopted, in order to enable the trustees to erect a frame building for Warren chapel, if it is deemed advisable.

Recorder Manager Ill.

John Hiscox, the efficient manager of The Sabbath Recorder, owing to illness, has been obliged to give up his position temporarily. He expects to take a vacation of two or three months in the hope that the change may result in the complete restoration of health.

In Crescent Avenue Pulpit.

Rev. Dr. William S. Hubbell occupied the pulpit at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday, in the absence of the pastor.

BRAKEMAN DROPPED THROUGH CAR BOTTOM

THOUGH TRAIN WAS RUNNING AT HIGH SPEED HE ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY.

Abbert J. Rhodier, whose home is on Stebbins place, and who is employed as a brakeman by the Central Railroad, had a miraculous escape from death a short distance west of the Cranford station at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He was running over the cars of extra No. 412, comprising freight and flat cars. As he sprang upon a gondola loaded with crushed stone the hopper bottom dropped, allowing the brakeman to go through to the tracks. He was thrown out between the tracks, landing outside the rails. The train was running 35 miles an hour at the time. As the rear of the train passed him he sat up and waved to Conductor A. Reid to stop the train.

Dr. W. C. MacConnell, of Cranford, was summoned to the scene of the accident by the trainmen. Upon examination it was found that Rhodier suffered from a badly wrenched back and a slightly bruised leg. He was sent to his home. Rhodier is well known in Plainfield and was formerly in the employ of the Public Service as a trolley conductor on the Newark-Dunellen line.

JUMPED FROM FREIGHT TO ESCAPE HOLD-UP

COP FINDS WAYFARERS WITH TALE OF GUNPLAY—ONE HURT.

Officer Messler met two young men on Liberty street early last night who looked as if they had been through a threshing machine. One was covered with blood that flowed from a cut in his chin and the other was dusty and rumpled.

The cop stopped them and asked some questions. The injured one said his name was William Davitt and his companion called himself Richard Ray. According to Davitt's story, they were compelled to jump from a moving freight train in the West End, to escape a hold-up at the hands of three hoboes. They were returning to their homes on Staten Island, they claimed, riding on the bumpers, when the hoboes from above thrust revolvers at their heads and demanded everything of value on them. Davitt jumped and Roy followed suit. The former struck on his chin, but the latter escaped injury. The tramps did not fire.

Dr. Lufburrow took four stitches in Davitt's wound at police headquarters. The two were arraigned for trespassing on the railroad's property in the city court this morning, but Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

NAY, NAY, SAYS OWENS.

Young Lawyer Sponges His Name from Democratic Assembly Slate.

The Democratic county committee will have to substitute some other name for that of John P. Owens, of this city, on the Assembly slate. The committee, at a meeting last week decided on the young lawyer as one of the three candidates, but he made a positive declination of the proffered honor this morning with an emphasis that leaves no room for doubting his sincerity.

"You may say for me that I will not accept a nomination to the Assembly under any circumstances," said Mr. Owens to a Daily Press reporter. "I am not looking for a nomination and could not be induced to take one. Make my declaration as strong as you please."

TALK ON JAPAN.

Rev. Dr. Amerman's Appeal at Trinity Reformed.

Rev. Dr. James L. Amerman, of New York, who has spent some time in Japan, spoke at Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning on "The New Japan." He made a strong appeal on behalf of foreign missions, comparing the new Japan with the old and drawing vivid lessons of the conditions in Japan and encouraging persons to contribute toward this work.

Rev. Mr. Amerman spoke of the desire of the Japanese to learn about Christ and their welcome of the gospel in that country. The talk was listened to with great interest by a large congregation.

Fair Closes Tonight.

The fair of the Gesang and Turn Verein, which was in progress at Saengerbund Hall last week, will close tonight. For the conclusion the committee has arranged for several features that aresure to please. Special interest will center in the close of the prize bowling contests.

DURLING FOR ASSEMBLY

Somerset Democrats Finally Get Running Mate For Childs.

SPEECH BY LINDABURY

His Nomination of Restaurant Man Arouses Enthusiasm — North Plainfield Row Over Executive Committee.

Senator Samuel S. Childs, of Bernardsville, was renominated by acclamation at the Democratic county convention in Somerville Saturday afternoon, according to programme. The nomination for Assemblyman, which went begging up to the hour of reconvening, fell to Walter Durling, of Somerville, a well known ex-member of the Board of Commissioners.

Interest centered on the Assembly nomination because of the apparent hopelessness of getting any man of weight to run. Calvin McMurtry and Stewart Kenny refused to allow their names to be used. S. S. Swackhamer and Elston M. French, although approached by some of their admirers, were never regarded favorably by the men at the helm. The prospect of dragging the North Plainfield mixup into the county campaign was very distasteful to them, and they made no bones about telling their lieutenants so. During the recess the leaders did little but chase around after an Assembly nominee. The coyness of acceptable candidates brought things to such a pass that it was even suggested that the ticket be allowed to go out without an Assembly nominee at all.

Somebody finally remembered that Walter Durling said he would run if nobody else cared to take the nomination, and Major Dungan hurriedly sent out scouts for the faithful Durling. The latter agreed to stand, and a concerted sigh of relief came from every member of the executive committee.

Senator Childs was placed in nomination by R. V. Lindabury, who lives in Bernardsville. The lawyer was greeted by a great demonstration. After thanking the convention for its greeting, he made a vigorous speech that aroused frequent explosions of applause. He declared, among other things, that the corporations should be curbed, and the sentiment aroused a tumult of cheers and handclapping. In part Mr. Lindabury said:

"Gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure to come here as one of your citizens to exchange views on public affairs. Your committee on resolutions have considered well their actions and have placed before you a platform, such as the present need of has been widely discussed. This convention is of special importance on account of its being held to select a candidate for Senator and for Assemblymen. A year ago your State convention adopted a platform which is now the accepted dogma of the people of the State; adopted by Republicans in many conventions, and is now the cause of great dissensions in two of the largest counties of our State. The corporations should be made servants rather than masters of the people. They have proven untrue to the people and have held liberal franchises to the subversion of the people that should now be curbed in all those respects."

Senator Childs made a short speech of acceptance. He was loudly applauded. S. S. Swackhamer also spoke.

The complete platform adopted by the convention is as follows:

"The Democratic party of the County of Somerset in convention assembled hereby endorses the last National Democratic platform and the last Democratic State convention.

"Taxation should be equal. All classes of property of all corporations should be taxed upon the same basis and at the same rate as that of individuals. We favor such a change in our tax laws as will produce that result.

"The granting of unlimited franchises has given to corporations a power over municipalities. Exclusive privileges of great value have been obtained by corporations and the returns to the municipalities are of little value. We favor legislation to the end that franchises shall be limited and some reasonable method established whereby proper compensation therefor can be secured to the municipalities.

"Water, gas and electric light are public as well as private necessities. We favor legislation which shall enable municipalities as well as individual consumers to protection against unjust charges, by municipal ownership or otherwise.

"We favor legislation which will protect policy holders of life insurance companies, whereby their earnings shall be appropriated for their individual benefit. Appropriate legislation should be enacted preventing the use of such trust funds in specu-

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Special services were held in the Presbyterian Sunday-school yesterday afternoon to mark the first use of the piano given as a memorial to the late Francis E. Touzeau, who was an earnest worker in the school. The pastor spoke, paying a high tribute to the character and works of the young man whose recent tragic death in the far West brought a shock to a large circle of friends and admirers.

A number of local young people attended the game between the Plainfield and the All-Plainfield teams at Plainfield Saturday afternoon, to witness the playing of Howard Craig and James Conway, two of the Dunellen team's star infielders. Dalley, who played first base for the All-Plainfields, covered that position for last year's borough team early in the season.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church will give an entertainment on Thursday night of next week. The attraction will be the Sagamore Musical Club, of Plainfield. The club appeared here last year and scored a great success.

Word has been received from M. F. A. Nittinger, who went to California a month ago. His health is good, and he is hopeful of a satisfactory business success in his new home.

Midshipman McCauley, of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, has returned to his studies after a visit to his brother, W. L. McCauley, of Greenbrook road.

The P. S. C. is said to have instructed its men to rush the laying of the gas mains without further delay for any cause that may be possibly overcome.

Miss Mary Baldwin graduated from the Plainfield Business College last week. She passed her final test on Friday, by an unusually high percentage.

The boys who stole four chickens and some eggs from J. Y. Ruppel's hennery last week have been compelled to make restitution.

Tunis Melick, the eccentric mayor of Pluckamin, who is well known in this section, was a visitor in the borough Saturday morning.

There was a large attendance at the Methodist church last night, when special music marked a fall rally of the members.

Miss Lizzie Hunt has recovered from the illness which confined her to the house last week for several days.

A. A. Parker continues to suffer with his serious illness. His friends have been concerned over his condition.

All the lathing work on the lower section of the new Siriski building has been completed.

Samuel B. Merrell will return from a week's visit to relatives in Newark today.

John Peters has been appointed to the Democratic County Committee.

P. C. Staats visited friends in Newark Saturday.

Daniel Moody is recovering from a week's illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The extending of the main line of the Public Service Corporation cars to Bound Brook has made the service far from satisfactory to the travelling public, as the schedule seems to go wrong every day. On Saturday afternoon after the ball game, people from here and Westfield had to wait forty minutes for a car at the Plainfield terminus.

The Daabsters had but little trouble in defeating the All-Plainfield team at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, but the game itself was interesting as it gave the fans a chance to see some of the old favorites in the game once more. The banquet following at the Iroquois practically marked the closing of the season.

Rev. G. M. Shott, formerly pastor of the Baptist church here, has accepted a call to the Lyons Farms Baptist church. Mr. Shott has many warm friends in town who are pleased to hear of his receiving a call to this old historic church.

Rev. Mr. Hoffman, who has occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church for the past two Sundays, will continue as pastor until the presiding elder appoints a regular pastor for the church.

Augustus D. Shepard, Jr., was one of the interested spectators at the automobile race for the Vanderbilt cup, held Saturday over the Nassau Circuit, Long Island.

Rev. Mr. Mulford, of All Saints' church, led a well attended and interesting meeting of the B. Y. P. U., held last night in the church parlors.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Rev. Mr. De Wolf, of New York, was the guest over Sunday of Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of the Manse.

Miss Kate Day, who has been visiting Miss Annie Ryno, has returned to her home in Plainfield.

Thomas Farrell, of Garwood, spent Sunday with Jacob Shackleton, of Park avenue.

Miss Susie Parse spent Saturday with Mrs. Frederick Stephenson at Lincoln, N. J.

Mrs. John Miller entertained friends from out of town over Sunday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The late warm days have greatly advanced the growth of the winter wheat, so that some farmers fear that its top growth may turn yellow.

Delegates from the Baptist Sunday school will attend the Sunday school convention at Westfield tomorrow.

W. E. Smith and family will move to Plainfield for their winter residence in about two weeks.

Lewis D. Walker has returned from a ten days' visit with friends in Tarrytown, N. Y.

Pastor Cubberley preached at the Piscataway home for the poor yesterday afternoon.

In Perfect Health at 95.

Mrs. Catherine A. Schomp, of Millstone, is ninety-five years old, yet she walks a mile each way to and from church every Sunday. She writes many letters and is an expert at fancy work. Her father, George Schomp, was in the Revolutionary War. A great-grandmother was an Indian. Her health is perfect.

Brutality in Football.

No man, no matter how valuable he may be to a football eleven, should be allowed to enter a game if he is known to be a man of dangerous impulses. Too often in the past have men of known brutality been sought and honored largely for this character and for the "vim" they bring into the game.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

—Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of West Front street, drove his prize polo pony yesterday from his former home at Atlantic Highlands to this city. He expects to use the horse in connection with his business.

What Is Better to select a Top Coat full of dash and style, snap and elegance, or—to get one of the other kind?

We'll leave it to you. But we do know this;—if you want one of the first kind you'll find it at Watson's.

Watson toppers are made that way,—every one cut by hand, every shoulder hand-tailored to stay, every collar cut to cling. We don't know a point of excellence the best custom tailors give their Top Coats that haven't been given to the Watson make.

Will you come see what we mean? You'll find the coats just what we say—and then you'll be 'way ahead in satisfaction.

Coverts, in tans or browns—Worsteds, smooth or rough—Thibets and all the weaves of fashion and comfort.

NEW YORK TO MAUCH CHUNK BY POWER CANAL BOATS

PLANNED BY RECENTLY ORGANIZED COMPANY.

Arrangements have been made for the organization of the Delaware Valley Navigation Company, which will run boats on canals between New York and Mauch Chunk. It will also establish a vessel building plant at Trenton. The new company expects to commence its transportation line with the opening of navigation in the spring. The intention is to build the vessels during the coming winter.

Then enterprise is headed by C. M. Coen, president of the Coen Vessel Company, of Atlantic City. He is now looking for a site for a manufacturing plant. The vessels are intended to do without the use of mules for power. They will be of steel, eighty-five feet long with fourteen feet beam and have a capacity of 125,000 tons. Each will cost about $5,000. Each boat will be equipped with a steam or gasoline rotary engine, which will be made by the company. The engines will develop forty-five horsepower and the boats will draw but little water.

The company will run its boats from New York through the Delaware and Raritan Canal through the feeder, across the Delaware River at Lambertville to the Pennsylvania canal and thence to Mauch Chunk, Pa.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

F. Pawlik, of Watchung avenue, is an experienced tailor and will do your work right.

Harry G. Adams, of East Front street, offers the best life insurance at the most attractive rates.

TenEyck & Harris, of West Front street, sell the best coal mined. Better let the firm fill your order.

The Hotel Iroquois caters to permanent as well as transient guests. Ask for rates. The accommodations at the hotel are equal to any in the State.

Prescription work is made a special feature at B. J. Schreiner's pharmacy. Only experienced clerks are allowed to do the work and satisfaction is guaranteed.

"Belle Mead Sweets," fresh and delicious, are to be found at Dudley S. Miller's pharmacy on Park avenue; also the best drugs and medicines and toilet articles.

When looking for a suitable wedding or birthday present go to Charles E. Vail's jewelry store in Park avenue. He has just what you want and at right prices.

William H. Kirch, the Duer street contracting carpenter, will cheerfully furnish estimates upon request. He is recommended by many Plainfielders who have given him their work.

I. Shrager, of Madison avenue, is recommended to men who like their clothes pressed and cleaned properly. He knows how to do it and never charges anything but an honest price.

Some people never can save money, but if they place their earnings in the Dime Savings Institution, they will be safe and at the some time draw liberal interest. Open an account now and save your money.

Meat that comes from Frank Neidig's Somerset street market is never anything but the best. You can send your orders by telephone and they will be filled as carefully as though you had called in person.

Now that winter is approaching, those awnings are not needed and they had best be put away. Van Camp & Franklin, of Front and Somerset streets, will do the work. This is in their line and they know just what should be done.

One of the most reliable firms in the city is that of S. Scheuer & Co., the grocers and butchers. For years this firm has continued to sell the highest grade groceries and best meats and the trade is constantly increasing. Fair dealing, the best goods and right prices are to be found at this store.

It requires but a single trial to show anyone that the White Label canned goods are superior to any other brand on the market. The vegetables are selected with especial care and they are packed in the most modern and scientific manner. Neuman Brothers are the selling agents for these goods in Plainfield and they guarantee them personally to be just as represented. Why not make a trial purchase and be convinced as others have been.

CHURCH PUBLICATION COMMENDS MR. TYLER

THE PILOT SAYS HE DID HIS DUTY IN RAIDING GOFF'S PLACE.

In its last issue, The Pilot, Grace church's monthly publication edited by Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, contained the following comment on Councilman Tyler's raid on Goff's saloon:

"Councilman William S. Tyler has given additional evidence of strong principle and determined purpose. The raid of September 3 upon an unlicensed saloon, provoked by the alleged flagrant and continued violation of the municipal enactment, deserves the commendation and approval of every self-respecting citizen in the community. When a constitutional enactment has been made to control any matter of public concern, it is the common duty of the properly constituted officers to enforce that law, and it is the business of the taxpayer to see that it is so done. It is idle to discuss the popularity or unpopularity of any measure. If it is law, it must be enforced, or respect for the law will quickly go. In this case the obvious imputation is that the police failed to do that for which they are paid by the people. If this imputation is well founded the people may naturally consider the proposition as to whether it is advisable to transplant the police conditions of neighboring cities to our community. If so we shall need to be protected from our protectors, and hire another force to watch our watchers. Happily there seem to be those who don't quite approve this plan, and more power to their right arm, say we. The usual reward of reformers may very reasonably be held out to encourage Councilman Tyler. Some day his political head may come off in one fell swoop. But never mind, he will have the satisfaction of having done his clear duty. That is something few people enjoy in these days."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Union Bible Class taught by Rev. D. M. Stearns will meet at the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

The Union Bible Class taught by Rev. D. M. Stearns will meet at the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. All, but especially Sunday-school teachers, are invited.

The Men's Club, of the First Presbyterian church, will meet on Thursday night for the first time this fall. The special business will be the election of officers and arrangement of plans for the fall and winter.

There was a large attendance at the men's meeting of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, to hear the address of H. C. Krebs, principal of the borough schools. Mr. Krebs took for his subject "Young Men and Their Opportunities," and gave many illustrations of poor boys, who, through their own efforts and persistancy, have risen to the highest positions in the world of commerce, finance and education. Mrs. Walker, the noted colored jubilee singer, accompanied by W. P. Dain, rendered several solos in a pleasing manner. W. C. Leek led the singing, and F. H. Martin had charge of the meeting.

PERSONAL.

Miss Maude VanBoskerck, of West Seventh street, has returned home from a pleasant stay at Bernardsville.

David Carr and daughter, Miss May Carr, of Newark, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Liefke, of West Front street.

Joseph O'Connors, of Westfield, is rapidly recovering at the hospital from injuries received on the railroad at Westfield a few weeks ago, and his physician thinks he will be able to return home within a short time.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council has fixed the seventeenth day of October A. D. 1905, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, Smalley Building, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Elliot T. Barrows, Evarts Tracy and Lewis G. Timpson, the Commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to lay out and open Stebbins Place from the southeasterly side line of South Second Street to the northwesterly side line of West Fourth Street," approved June 6, 1905, and the resolutions of the Common Council in the premises, adopted September 26, 1905, to meet and proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises, and make their estimates and assessments under said ordinance and said resolutions and the statutes in such case made and provided.

The street to be laid out and opened to extend from the southeasterly side line of South Second Street to the northwesterly side line of West Fourth Street, the center and side lines of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map therein referred to and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled, "Map showing proposed laying out and opening of Stebbins Place, from South Second Street to West Fourth Street, Plainfield, N. J., January, 1905."

The lands, real estate and appurtenances intended to be taken for such purposes in addition to the lands already dedicated to the public, are described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the northwesterly side line of West Fourth Street, where the same is intersected by the northeasterly side line of Stebbins Place, as laid down on said map, and running thence along said side line of Stebbins Place, north forty-eight degrees and forty-nine minutes west, a distance of one hundred twelve and sixty-one one-hundredths feet to an angle point; thence north forty degrees and twelve minutes west, a distance of two and ninety-eight one-hundredths feet to the rear line of the West Fourth Street lots; thence along said line, south thirty-eight degrees and forty-six minutes west, a distance of fifty and forty-nine one-hundredths feet to a point in the southwesterly side line of Stebbins Place as proposed, thence along said side line, south forty-eight degrees and forty-nine minutes east, a distance of one hundred thirteen and forty-four one-hundredths feet to a point in the northwesterly side line of West Fourth street; thence north forty-one degrees and eleven minutes east, a distance of fifty feet to the place of beginning, as shown on said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for a more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.
Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.
Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

George Wiltse, one of the star twirlers of the New York Giants, will spend the winter at his former home in Syracuse.

Means for flying the Daabsters' pennant are now assured. Ben. A. Mumford has offered to furnish the staff for next season.

Howard Craig, who played shortstop for the All-Plainfield team, made a fine showing, securing two hits off Deegan and making the only run.

Many fans regret that the season is at an end, but they declare that they will give their united support next season to Manager Daab and his team.

The Daabsters were more than pleased with the entertainment Saturday night and before they left town were convinced that they are held in high esteem.

It was the unanimous opinion of all Saturday night that Manager Daab is a true sport, that he is a man of his word and not once has he disappointed the public throughout the season.

The fans will be delighted to know that it is Manager Daab's intention to return to Plainfield next season and that Plainfield will continue to have the best article of the National game.

Editor William Baxter, of the Hoboken Inquirer, has a warm place in the hearts of many Plainfielders who have made his acquaintance, and his interest in Plainfield and good baseball is growing.

There was only one thing to be regretted about the banquet to the Daabsters. "Happy" Kiernan, the star short-stop, did not attend. No explanation was offered, but it is presumed that he was anxious to return home.

Ben. A. Mumford, the enthusiastic fan, entertained "Pete" Cregan and Mike Leonard at his home over Saturday night. "Kid" Dalton was the guest of "Warry" MacLaughlin. The players who remained over, returned to Hoboken yesterday forenoon in time for the afternoon game.

Unless Manager Daab is able to secure the New York Nationals for Saturday, there will be no more baseball games here this season. He communicated with the Giants' manager on Saturday, but as yet has received no word. However, it was understood that the Giants would give the Plainfield team a game on Saturday.

A Union Echo Meeting.

Those in charge of the local Christian Endeavor Congress have fixed Thursday night, October 26, as the time for holding the union echo meeting of the Baltimore convention. It will be held at the First Presbyterian church, and J. T. Sproull, the State president of the Christian Endeavor Society, will be the speaker of the evening. There will be special music and other interesting exercises.

Operated Upon for Appendicitis.

Charles Leland, of West Fifth street, was operated upon at the hospital at 10 o'clock Saturday night for appendicitis. His case was a bad one, complications having set in, and the outcome cannot be determined for several days.

Still After That Bridge.

The joint committee from the Union and Somerset county Boards of Freeholders will meet here tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock to make another effort looking toward the erection of a bridge on West End avenue.

Plainfield, N. J., October 16, 1905.

Tammany's tiger has dressed itself in sheep's clothes. It has approved of Theodore Roosevelt's work.

Charlie Denman, he of "sport for sport's sake" fame, was not at the baseball banquet. "Crow for his."

The Trenton Times, one of the three best newspapers published in the State, has entered upon its twenty-fifth year. If circulation speaks for anything, the Times is a strong factor in Mercer county.

The windup of the basebal season was fittingly observed Saturday night, local fandom tendering to Philip Daab and his aggregation of pennant winners a feast and a rousing good time. The presence of Mayor Buckle, Mayor Smalley, Judge Runyon and other officials of the city and borough gave to the occasion the recognition it deserved. Plainfield is proud of its baseball team and it is equally proud of the nine's manager. Since Mr. Daab's advent here he has made everyone his friend and we voice the sentiment of the community when we say that his return next season will he coupled with a hearty welcome, and the well-founded expectation of another championship pennant.

MANY TRAINED VOCALISTS AT TURN VEREIN CONTEST

PRIZE WINNING CARLSTADT SOCIETY AMONG THE PARTICIPATES.

To mark the approaching end of its annual fair, the Gesang and Turn Verein conducted in Saengerbund Hall, yesterday afternoon, the first sacred concert it has held in many years. Singing societies from nearby cities participated and the programme rendered was enjoyed by a large audience.

The visitors numbered 150 in all and represented delegations from the prize winning Concordia society, of Carlstadt; the Garwood Luder Tafel; the Phoenix society, of Newark; the Arions, of Jersey City; the Aurora society, of New Brunswick; the Eintrrcht, of Hoboken, and the Maennechor, of Elizabeth. They were welcomed by Henry Haurand, who had charge of arrangements, and were first served with dinner by the women's section and the committee which has been conducting the fair. The concert was a distinct novelty to many Plainfielders who were privileged to enjoy it and gave the majority of them an insight to the musical abilities of the societies. The delegations sang individually and every number was encored, in some instances twice. There were three leaders in all, William Laufenbarg, of Carlstadt; F. W. Steins, of Sayreville, and Herman Eichorn, of Newark. There were also instrumental numbers by Frank Jellig's zither orchestra, accompanied by Herbert Harold and B. A. Paroubek on the piano and violin. In conclusion the visiting vocalists and the Gesang and Turn Verein's society united in singing under the leadership of Herman Eichorn, "Nach der Meimath moegt ich Wieder" ("Would That I Might See My Old Home Again").

The Carlstadt society is the one that holds the State trophy won in competition at Trenton a short time ago. It also holds several other records and is considered one of the best trained choruses in the East. The large gathering that heard them yesterday numbered several of Plainfield's cultured musicians and they were loud in their praises of the society's rendition.

Mrs. Morggan Taylor, of Colorado Springs, formerly of Rockview Terrace, is visiting friends in town.

CHAMPION TEAM DINES

naturally he wouud have liked to seen the pennant go to the Westfield club, but he was sure that Plainfield had won it honestly and fairly and it was his pleasure to present it to Mr. Daab.

Interspersing the speeches there were songs by "Bill' Tierney and "Nick" Parker, while the fans joined in singing popular songs to enliven the occasion. It was about midnight when the celebration terminated and all united in singing "Auld Lang Syne" in parting.

The Plainfield team has made an enviable record this season, winning twenty-one contests, losing eight, playing one tie game and being shut out but twice.

The results of the games are as follows:

April 15, Plainfield, 7; Jersey City, 1; 22, Plainfield, 10; Elizabeth Stars, 4; 29, Plainfield, 3; Philadelphia Giants, 2; May 6, Plainfield 8; Cuban X-Giants, 5; 13, Plainfield, 4; Philadelphia Giants, 2; 20, Plainfield, 12; Philadelphia Professionals, 2; 30, a. m., Plainfield, 2; All Americans, 1 (10 innings); p. m., Plainfield, 12; All-Americans, 2; June 3, Plainfield, 6; Newburgs, 4; 10, Plainfield 11; All-Collegiate, 1; 17, Plainfield, 6; Philadelphia Giants, 11; 24, Plainfield, 0; All-Cubans, 1; July 1, Plainfield 16; All-Americans, 4; 4, a. m., Plainfield, 5; Newburgs, 0; p. m., Plainfield, 11; Newburgs, 3; 8, Plainfield, 12; Rahway, 2; 15; Plainfield 4; Westfield, 0; 22, Plainfield, 5; Westfield, 4; 29, Plainfield, 3; Westfield, 1; August 5, Plainfield, 2; Westfield, 7; 12, Plainfield, 1; All-Cubans, 4; 19, Plainfield, 2; Westfield, 1; 26, Plainfield, 2; Westfield, 4; 23, Plainfield, 2; Westfield, 9; 27, Plainfield, 4; Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., 8; October 7, Plainfield, 0; Jersey City, 3; 14, Plainfield, 8; Holyoke, 8; 21, Plainfield, 6; All-Plainfield, 1.

The Plainfield team comprised the following: Captain David F. Driscoll, first base; Pete Kiernan, short stop; Michael Leonard, third base; Herbert Dalton, second base; Peter Cregan, left field; Walter Cosgrave, center field; Daniel Connolly, right field; William Deegan, pitcher; John O'Neill, catcher; extra, "Tuck" Turner. Only two changes were made during the year. Dalton was secured in place of "Rube" Oldring, who went South, and "Tip" O'Neill was secured as catcher in place of "Pete" Lamar, who went to the Lackawanna League.

THE FORUM.

Political Reflections.

Editor The Daily Press:

A very respectable citizen who believes in charitably turning disappointments into flattering comment, and humorously passing over the little things of life, incidentally entered a local restaurant and calling for an oyster stew from the bill of fare, took up your popular paper with the open letter of Mr. A. V. D. Honeyman to James R. Joy, Esq., and was soon lost in the verbose learning of this good New Jersey taxpayer. When he finally awoke to his craving appetite for his favorite stew, he failed to appease his hunger, and just prior to his leaving he took the bill of fare and wrote:

From all that dwelt below the stars
That shine in orbs of golden hue,
Let mortal praise just fill our hearts
For that one oyster in my stew.

And beneath the Honeyman subscription to the great letter he wrote:

Go spread your holy Seraph wings,
And don your starry crown,
For you're too good to live and die
The only saint in town.

As the gentleman was leaving, he was head humming the familiar playhouse chorus, "The Only Tin Can on the Dump."

Respectfully,
N. W. PIKE.

SIX GOLF CONTESTANTS TIE FOR FIRST HONORS

REMARKABLE FEATURE OF SCORING ON COUNTRY CLUB LINKS.

The golf course of the Plainfield Country Club was well crowded with players on Saturday, the delightful weather and fine condition of the course making it a pleasure. The only event was the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, and a remarkable fact was that six contestants were tie for first honors with a net score of 79, each receiving one point. As a result of this play, C. B. Morgan now has 10 5-6 points, and is a close second to E. B. Shoemaker, who has thirteen points for first place. This weekly competition will close with the play on Saturday, October 28, and Mr. Morgan hopes to be able to secure the lead by that time.

Commencing Saturday, November 4, there will be the playoff for the T. R. VanBoskerck consolation cup among those who end the competition for the Golf Committee cup with three points.

The leading scores returned Saturday for the Golf Committee cup are as follows:

C. B. Morgan, 79, 0—79; Morris J. Dumont, 83, 4—79; Arthur Murphy, 84, 5—79; C. A. Stover, 89, 10—79; W. L. C. Glenney, 98, 19—79; Howard Huntington, 94, 15—79; M. D. Rae, 94, 10—84.

The play at the Park Golf Club on Saturday included the weekly competition for the President's and club trophies. Charles A. Reed and Raymond B. Carroll were tie for first honors for the President's cup, and S. St. John McCutchen and Alex. Gilbert were tie for the remaining point. For the scratch cup, Raymond B. Carroll won first honors, S. St. John McCutchen finished second and Charles A. Reed third. These scores were posted for the two cups:

Charles A. Reed, 103, 15—89; Raymond B. Carroll, 86, plus 3—89; St. St. John McCutchen, 100, 7—93; Alex. Gilbert, 105, 12—93; Reuben Knox, 107, 13—94.

It is expected that the play for these cups will end the latter part of October. It has been very close and exciting and as a rule low scores have been returned each week by the contestants. There will be no special events at the club until Election Day, when several extra competitions will be arranged.

lative schemes, and we should seek to restrain the excessive salaries which their officials now receive. In the County of Somerset there are hundreds of poor people who make weekly contributions to the support of life insurance companies through which they seek future protection for their families. The recent disclosures upon investigations in New York, warrant legislative action touching the conduct of the life insurance companies in New Jersey, to correct any existing evils and protect this trust fund from 'graft' of any character.

"Legislation should be enacted forbidding the use of the funds of corporations for election purposes.

"Republican legislation has materially increased the expense of Bridgewater Township, by creating the office of road supervisor and by increasing the number of Town Committeemen from three to seven, under the guise of a population for the township of 4,500 for road supervisor, and 8,000 for Committeemen. Eliminating Somerville and Raritan over which the road supervisor and Township Committee have no control, the population remaining is only about 2,000. This legislation is office creating and expensive, and it should be repealed.

"While we urge the importance of the attendance at primary meetings of all patriotic citizens, we favor such modifications in the present primary law as will make it less cumbersome and less expensive.

"We endorse the demand of the citizens of our county for the enactment of such legislation as will result in effectively curbing the recklessness of automobile drivers, and such as will secure to all of our citizens the safe enjoyment of the use of the public roads of our county.

"We commend the action of our Senator, Samuel S. Childs, in his legislative course, hereby expressing our unbounded confidence in his honesty, ability, integrity and moral worth.

"We hereby pledge our united support to the candidates this day to be named by the convention and earnestly solicit at the ensuing election all citizens, without regard to prior party affiliations, to aid in the election of our candidates who will carry out the principals here enunciated."

Cold and La Grippe Tablets.

At this time of the year, when coughs and colds are prevalent, it is quite essential to have a good, reliable remedy in the home.

We highly recommend Cold and LaGrippe Tablets They not only give prompt relief, but cure colds, la grippe, neuralgia and rheumatism. Besides, they're so convenient and pleasant to take—being in tablet form, you can carry them with you.

LEALS SCHOOL DEFEATED BY MONTCLAIR M. A.

LOCAL ELEVEN LOSES FIRST LEAGLE GAME BY SCORE OF 29 TO 9.

Montclair Military Academy played her first game in the Inter-Academic Leauge series Saturday morning at Montclair, defeating the Leal's School eleven, of this city, by the score of 29 to 0. Although the two teams were well matched in point of weight and age, the Montclair boys outplayed their opponents in all departments of the game. Both teams juggled with the ball a great deal, Leal's School losing many good gains through this fault.

Montclair received the kick-off and rapidly advanced the ball by assaults on her opponent's line. Leal's center was continuously pounded, and within the first few minutes of play the ball was carried into the visitors' territory. Leal's made a stand within a few yards of her goal, and it seemed as though the Academy would lose the ball, but an end run resulted in a gain, and upon the next play the ball was carried over for Montclair's first score by Captain Cornwell. Burnet and Dilworth crossed the line for two more touchdowns during the period, the score being 17 to zero when the half ended.

Cornwell started the scoring in the early part of the second half, being shoved over the line during the first eight minutes of play. Leal's School braced up somewhat and several times compelled the Academy to punt. The greater part of the half was fought out in the center of the field. In the last three minutes of play Partridge, the Academy left halfback, caught the ball on a punt and ran for fifty yards through the whole Leal's team for a touchdown. This ended the scoring of the game.

In the last minute of play, Bennings, the Leal's School quarterback, was tackled and thrown so hard that he was knocked insensible. He was carried from the field, and Dr. J. S. Brown was called. He succeeded in reviving the boy.

King Cornwell, the Academy captain, played an excellent game at fullback, in addition to scoring twice, also making several hard tackles. Lyman and Dallas played well for Leal's School. The score which Montclair ran up Saturday was a duplicate of that which Polytechnic Preparatory School tallied against the Academy last week. The lin-up follows:

Montclair M. A.		Leal's School.
Schwartz, Murray	right end.	Wilson, Brown
Holden	right tackle.	Bronslouf
E. Rand	right guard.	Eoff
C. Rand	center.	Haughy, Alpaugh
E. Kenney	quarterback.	W. Bennings
Dilworth	right halfback.	Lyman

Score at end of first half—Montclair M. A., 17; Leal's, 0; final score—Montclair M. A., 29; Leal's, 0. Touchdowns—Cornwell, 2; Burnet, 1; Dilworth, 1; Partridge, 1. Goals from touchdown—Kennedy, 4. Time of halves—20 and 15 minutes. Referee—Cooley, of Plainfield. Umpire—Surbrug, of Princeton.

Good Time at West Point.

The Y. M. C. A. boys who went to West Point Saturday afternoon had a great time. The trip was started on the 6:57 train from here, and they reached West Point, on the Albany Day Line boat, at 12 noon. The return trip was started at 5:52 o'clock in the afternoon.

AMUSEMENTS.

It is a novelty given to few people to make the personal acquaintance of a man like Richard F. Outcault, the creator of that wonderful little character, Buster Brown. This will be given to thousands this winter, when Mr. Outcault tours the country in what he calls a 'Cartoon Lecture," appearing in various cities and telling the children just how he draws Buster. He will also tell them many amusing stories, illustrated by rapid sketches in colors. At the close of each entertainment, he will meet the little folks in his audience and chat with them. The children should not miss the opportunity. At the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night.

RAIDED HER BUILDING.

Jersey Society Woman Owned Gambling House.

New York, Oct. 16.—The police have found that the building at 118 West Thirty-first street, which Inspector Schmittberger and Captain Dooley raided two weeks ago, because it sheltered the Bon Ton Club, a negro organization, said to be a "blind" for a poolroom, is owned by Mrs. Harriet A. Loutrel, widow of Colonel Cyrus F. Loutrel, of 157 Raymond avenue, South Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Loutrel was until recently, it is said, one of the society leaders in the Oranges. She is a prominent church worker and has a handsome house in South Orange. She lives at the Raymond avenue address with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson acted as Mrs. Loutrel's agent in renting her property. She acquired the Thirty-first street building in 1902. In the hearing now going on at police headquarters, the avowed purpose of which is to ascertain if Inspector Schmittberger and Captain Dooley used undue brutality in raiding the place, Commissioner McAdoo sought to find out from his men who owned the property. Schmittberger said he didn't know; so did Captains Dooley and Cottrell.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council has fixed the seventeenth day of October A. D. 1905, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, Smalley Building, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Elliot T. Barrows, Evarts Tracy and Lewis G. Timpson, the Commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to lay out and open Sycamore Street from the southeasterly side line of East Fourth Street to the northwesterly side line of East Fifth street," approved March 7, 1905, and the resolutions of the Common Council in the premises, adopted September 26, 1905, to meet and proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises, and make their estimates and assessments under said ordinance and said resolutions and the statutes in such case made and provided.

The street to be laid out and opened to extend from the southeasterly side line of East Fourth Street to the northwesterly side line of East Fifth Street, the center and side line of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map therein referred to and filed in the office of the City Clerk, entitled, "Map showing proposed laying out and opening of Sycamore Street from East Fourth Street to East Fifth Street, City of Plainfield, N. J., January, 1905."

The lands, real estate and appurtenances intended to be taken for such purposes (the largest part of said street having already been dedicated to the public) include that part of the property now or formerly of Elizabeth Chapin described as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the northwesterly side line of East Fifth Street with the northeasterly side line of Sycamore Street as proposed, and running thence along the said side line as proposed, north forty-four degrees and forty-four minutes west a distance of seventy and eighty-five one-hundredths feet to a point in line of lands now or formerly of Charles H. Hand; thence along said line south forty degrees and thirty-one minutes west, a distance of ten and eight one-hundredths feet to the westerly corner of the said property now or formerly of said Elizabeth Chapin; thence along the line of said property, south forty-four degrees and fifty-five minutes east, a distance of sixty-nine and forty-eight one-hundredths feet to a point in the northwesterly side line of East Fifth street; thence along said side line of East Fifth Street, north forty-nine degrees and seven minutes east, a distance of nine and eighty-four one-hundredths feet to the place of beginning, as shown on said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for a more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.

ELECTION NOTICE.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

Public notice is hereby given that in accordance with a resolution presented to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, and adopted on the second day of October, A. D. 1905, and approved by the Mayor of said City on the third day of October, A. D. 1905, and of which the following is a copy:

RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR THE SUBMISSION TO THE LEGAL ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD OF THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF THE PROVISIONS OF AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT TO ENABLE CITIES TO SUPPLY THE INHABITANTS THEREOF WITH PURE AND WHOLESOME WATER," APPROVED APRIL 21st, 1876.

RESOLVED, That the question of the adoption of the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water," approved April 21st, 1876, be submitted to the legal electors of the City of Plainfield at an election to be held in said city on Tuesday, the seventh day of November, A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Five, that is to say, at the general election required by law to be held at that time and place; that the City Clerk of said City be and he hereby is directed to cause public notice of the time and place of holding such election to be given at the time and in the manner provided by the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled, "An Act to regulate elections, Revision of 1898," Approved April 4th, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and that, in addition thereto, said City Clerk cause public notice of the time and place of holding such election to be given by advertisements signed by himself and set up in at least twenty (20) public places in said city, and published in one or more newspapers printed therein, for at least six days previous to the day of such election; that said Clerk be and he hereby is directed to provide for each elector voting at such election, ballots to be printed, or written, or partly printed and partly written, upon which ballots the following proposition shall be printed beneath the list of candidates thereon, with the word "for" and the word "against" printed above and immediately preceding such proposition, viz: "The adoption for this City of the provisions of an act entitled 'An Act to enable cities to supply inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water;'" it is further resolved that the polls for such election shall be held at the usual places of holding the annual charter election in said city, that is to say:

First District, First Ward, 152 North Avenue.

Second District, First Ward, 545 East Third Street.

First District, Second Ward, 319 Watchung Avenue.

Second District, Second Ward, 699 South Avenue.

First District, Third Ward, "Casino," West Seventh street.

Second District, Third Ward, Clifton's Barn, Corner West Seventh Street and Spooner Avenue.

First District, Fourth Ward, 204 West Second Street.

Second District, Fourth Ward, 672 South Second Street.

Third District, Fourth Ward, 921 West Third Street,

and shall be opened at 6 o'clock in the forenoon and closed at 7 o'clock in the afternoon, and such election shall be conducted by the proper election officers of said city for the time then being, and in the manner as may then be prescribed by the ordinances (if any) of said city regulating elections therein, and such officers shall return to the Common Council of said City a true and correct statement, in writing, under their hand, of the result of said election, the same to be entered at large upon the minutes of said Common Council.

an election will be held in said City of Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday, the seventh day of November, A. D. 1905, that is to say, at the general election required by law to be held at that time, in the places hereinbefore designated in said resolution (the polls to be opened at 6 o'clock in the forenoon, and closed at 7 o'clock in the afternoon, as in said resolution provided) for the object and purpose of voting "for" or "against" the adoption for this city of the provisions of an act entitled, "An Act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water." Approved April 21st, 1876.

The Board of Registry and Election will meet in their several districts at the places above named, on Tuesday, October 31st, 1905, from 1 to 9 p. m., for the purpose of revising and correcting the original Registers.

By order of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SOME GOOD THINGS.

Some delicious oatmeal cakes are said to be, by those who know them, far and away more delicious than the baker's kind. And they are as easy aspossible to make. Mix two and a half cupsful of rolled oats, a cupful of sugar, two eggs (yolks and whites beaten separately), a tablespoonful of melted butter, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, a level saltspoonsful of salt and a teaspoonful of vanila. Drop onto buttered baking pans, leaving a generous space between the little cakes to allow for running, and bake.

A favorite way of cooking the sweet potato in the South is in a syrup with plenty of butter. Slice cold boiled sweet potatoes, put them in a baking dish, cover plentifully with butter and sugar and let them bake until they are brown on the top. Then turn them and brown them on the other side. Brown sugar is best for the purpose. A little water in the baking pan is used by some cooks in the order that less butter may be necessary. The result is every whit as satisfactory. A little lemon juice is sprinkled on the potatoes by some Northern cooks, says an exchange.

A delicious and easily prepared jelly for meats is made of apples. Red apples give the richest color and should be selected for the purpose. To half a peck of apples, cut up without peeling or coring, add a quart and a half of vinegar, a pint of water, an ounce of stick cinnamon and half an ounce of whole cloves. Boil until the apples are soft. Then strain through a jelly bag in the usual way, by dripping, not squeezing, and to every pint of liquid add a pint of sugar. Then boil the same as other fruit jelly and turn into jelly tumblers.

Didn't Get Saloon Keys.

We are told that Mayor Greenlie, of Passaic, gave the keys of that city to the delegates of the W. C. T. U. now assembled there in State convention. It must have been purely a formality, however, for we have not heard of all the saloons being closed since the event. Probably the keys to the saloons were withheld; then, again, perhaps the saloons in Passaic don't have any locks on them being open all the time.—Perth Amboy News.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council has fixed the seventeenth day of October A. D. 1905, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, Smalley Building, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Elliot T. Barrows, Evarts Tracy and Lewis G. Timpson, the Commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinances entitled, "An Ordinance to lay out and widen Park Avenue from the southeasterly side line of West Second Street to the northwesterly line of the right-of-way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey," approved May 1, 1905, and "An Ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance to lay out and widen Park Avenue from the southeastly side line of West Second Street to the northwesterly line of the right-of-way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey,' approved May 1, 1905," approved June 6, 1905, and the resolutions of the Common Council in the premises adopted September 26, 1905, to meet and proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises and make their estimates and assessments under said ordinances and said resolutions and the statutes in such case made and provided.

The street to be laid out and widened to extend from the southeasterly side line of West Second Street to the northwesterly line of the right-of-way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, the centre, curb, side and building lines of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinances and shown on map therein referred to and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Map showing proposed laying out and widening of Park Avenue, from the southeasterly side line of West Second Street to the northwesterly line of the right-of-way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, Feb. 1905."

The lands, real estate and appurtenances intended to be taken for such purposes include all that part of the several properties now or formerly of the Plainfield Trust Company, Charles W. McCutchen, Rachel R. Boice, Anna E. Boice and Sarah R. Runyon which lies between the southwesterly side line of said avenue as now laid out and opened and a line parallel with the center line of said avenue and distant therefrom thirty-six and sixty-two one-hundredths feet in a southwesterly direction as shown on said map and said ordinances, to which reference is hereby made for more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

Three minutes later, out on the northward edge of the plateau, he unslung his field-glass to study the country outspread before him. Still thinking of the face at that jagged hole, some sudden impulse prompted him to quickly turn in saddle, to bring the powerful lenses to bear on a little window under the peak of the roof of the Henry house, and there was the face, again, furtive, frightened, he could swear, and again, instantly it popped out of sight.

But his heart had given leap as sudden as the sight. He whirled his horse to the leftabout and rode straight for the rear entrance to the garden. Another moment and, dismounting, he rapped loudly at the door. A tall, slim man of middle age appeared and, with grave courtesy but without welcome in his tones, asked the purpose of his coming.

"I am Lieut. Benton, sir—aide-de-camp to the general commanding the division guarding your premises, and I have a question to ask as to the occupant of your garret."

Instantly there came from just within the doorway to an inner room a half stifled cry—a gasp—a rustle of skirts. The tall man turned thither a quick glance of warning and rebuke, then, visibly paler, again faced his caller.

"You see the condition of my house, sir. It is a mere wreck as the result of the cannonading it sustained—from both sides—in the battle of last July. We have been trying to make it habitable, and have given succor here to sick neighbors or friends who had no roofs left to cover them—only to the sick, sir."

Benton paused, irresolute. The tall Virginian spoke with so much dignity and sadness. The house, as he said, seemed barely habitable. The garret, especially, was little better than a ruin. The face at that peep-hole on the eastern side and at the little window away up under the gable eaves at the north might well have been that of some of the household, yet, even at the distance and at the first glance there was a something about it that caused his heart that leap of sudden joy and that kept it bounding still. And then—if it should be true—if what he hoped—and feared—were really so, what would be his duty to his general—to his country? "Against all enemies or opposers whomsoever"—the words of his oath of office came ringing to his ears—blazing before his eyes in letters of fire—and without further ado he briefly said: "I am sorry to intrude, sir, but what I saw at that window makes it necessary that I should see the garret. Will you lead the way?"

For a moment the Virginian hesitated, then, lifting his hat stepped backward to admit his unwelcome visitor. "We are in your hands, sir," was his half reproachful answer. "Enter if you will."

But then came sudden barrier to further progress. Quickly there stepped into view and stood confronting him at the doorway to the inner room the tall and slender form of a young girl. Eighteen she might have been but not more, though anxiety and grief had paled her pretty face. But her great, glorious dark eyes were all ablaze as she folded her slender arms and looking the young officer squarely in the face, said, "This is my room, sir, and not subject to search."

Slowly Fred Benton's gauntleted hand went up to the visor and the natty forage cap was uplifted. The kindly, yet kindling eyes of blue gazed one moment into the unflinching, unmelting eyes of deep, deep brown, then turning deliberately the aide-de-camp inquired:

"Is there another way to reach the stair?"

"Only by going round the house to the other door, sir," was the Virginian's reply; whereat Mr. Benton, with bow as ceremonious as though he, too, hailed from the shores of the James, the York or Rappahannock instead of the bustling, pragmatical northwest, looked once more long at the lovely oval face, now surely blushing before him, then turned and left the room.

Three minutes later he had searched both garret and the upper story and not a sign of occupant was there.

CHAPTER VI.

A STRANGER WITHIN OUR GATES.

When Lieut. Benton rode away from the Henry house that sunshiny evening the long shadows were slanting across the levels, and the dazzling shield of the day god was well down at the west. Shadows, too, had fallen on the blithe spirits that had been his in the earlier hours. Surely he could not have been mistaken about that face, thinned and haggard as though from recent illness, and livid with the consciousness of imminent peril; and, if he had not been mistaken, just as surely he had been tricked—tricked in all probability by that defiant and yet most attractive Virginia girl. Virginian he believed her to be, partly because her accent so resembled that of the very palpable Virginian, the owner, and partly because that courteous and well-mannered native, in answer to somewhat imperious question, said "The young lady, suh, is a daughter of old Doctor Chilton, of Charlottesville."

To the very natural question that followed, "What was Miss Chilton doing there?" the Virginian had an answer equally prompt and dignified. Her brother, a lieutenant in Stuart's cavalry, had been accidently shot by the pickets the dark night of March 4th, had been left with an attendant at the Thornton place across Bull Run, too badly wounded to be moved when Johnson fell back from Manassas, had bribed his friends to send him away in a cart when he heard of the union advance, and cart and contents had been run down by other troopers—Averell's—before they reached Manassas. The wounded boy, delirious with fever, was even now lying in the room his sister guarded. Dr. Alexander, of Gen. McDowell's staff, had twice been to see him. Dr. Chilton had come, bringing his devoted daughter, and then gone on to Fairfax in hopes of obtaining from Gen. McClellan permission to take his son home on parole by slow stages, to Charlottesville, and Miss Chilton meanwhile remained there under what was left of a roof, and what he, Mr. Henry, could offer by way of care and protection. Brief conference with the guard without did much to confirm Benton in his faith in the truth of the statement. They assured him that if anybody else was harbored or hidden there he could not escape, for they were ordered to prevent the occupants from leaving, as well as to protect the premises from harm.

At five o'clock, therefore, the young aide-de-camp went his way, not fully satisfied by any means, but content to seek explanation at corps headquarters and to investigate further on his return. In point of fact he was doubtful as to his duties and prerogatives in the matter and needed his general's advice. He meant to tell him just what he feared or suspected—that Paul Ladue himself, in some unaccountable manner had become separated from his regiment, possibly through illness or wounds, and was concealed within the shattered walls of the old Virginia farmhouse. But, just at the time when he most needed the instructions of his own division chief, he was destined to be cut off from him—and for many a day.

It was after sundown, and long after, when at last, riding some miles at swift trot, he overtook the corps commander with his staff on the road beyond Centreville. "Ah," said that soldierly leader, "the general is prompt. What time did he start?"

"Start, sir?" said Benton, his heart beating quick and hard again. "I don't know. I was instructed to deliver this letter and to ask to have these others sent on to Washington by your courier to-night, but I thought to find you west of Centreville, not on the march, sir."

"Then my orders had not arrived when you left? Why, what hour did you leave, sir?" and McDowell's face reddened as it would when he was annoyed.

"About four o'clock, general, but——"

"Four o'clock; sir! Then where on earth have you been all this time?"

"I came by way of the Henry house to look at the old battle-field, general. We had no idea of your moving, and there was plenty of time before dark," answered poor Fred, noting with much concern the ominous silence of the listening staff and orderlies.

"You must have stayed an unconscionable time there," grumbled the general, who had not yet ceased to feel touchy at any mention of Bull Run the First. ("Longer than he did last July," laughed O'Kane, of the Montgomery's, when told of it.) "Ah, I remember. That pretty daughter of old Chilton's is there. You saw her, I suppose?"

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP DEAD?

Not Good for Chicago, Even Though Other Cities Should Adopt It.

Municipal ownership will have its day and its vogue like roller skating and the bicycle. It was attractive to many when it was a novelty, but it does not improve upon acquaintance. Manifestly it is not becoming more popular. New communities are not taking it up and some of those that eagerly embraced it at first wish to drop it now. Mayor McClellan, of New York, in an excellent speech the other day, repudiated it. He said that "that community is governed best that is governed least," and he is about right. Municipal ownership is not making headway in Chicago. It has not been tried in any important public utility and there is no indication that it will be for many years. The unwisdom of it is apparent to most persons who have had either political or business experience. Mr. Dalrymple saw it at once, and said that it was not practicable in Chicago, under present conditions. And he was chosen as an "expert" by Mayor Dunne to bring in a verdict in its favor. So far as the traction proposition is concerned, Mr. MacVeagh put the case pithily when he said:

"The efficiency of the existing city service has long been to all intents and purpose completely broken down by the weight of city politics, and no new or added city service of any sort and certainly not one of the magnitude of a transportation service could be established under present conditions with hope of possible success."

Municipal ownership in Chicago now is advocated chiefly by men of little experience in business affairs or by visionaries or self-seeking politicians. And the latter are beginning to abandon it, because they see it does not contain the elements of political success.

Even if municipal ownership were adapted for other communities it would not be for Chicago, with its large numbers of newly naturalized citizens all looking for "jobs," and all more or less ignorant or heedless of the financial difficulties of the city and the incompetence of its government. When the breakdown of the city service in every direction is known and admitted, when a first effort is being made to expel politics and graft from the Water Department and the Stree Cleaning Bureau, how hopeless it seems to talk of extending municipal activity to the transportation lines. Then there are the serious legal difficulties in the way, the unextinguished right of the existing companies, the prospect of protracted and almost endless litigation.

When the physical, financial and legal obstacles are added to the political unfitness of the city administration and the little prospect of improvement in it, the movement toward municipal ownership in Chicago for some time seems likely to be almost glacier-like in its slowness.

As an issue in local campaigns municipal ownership soon will be counted out.

SHERIFF'S SALE. NEW JERSEY SUPREME COURT. Aaron Ward & Sons, a corporation vs. John T. Flournoy. On Contract. Fi. Fa. de bo et ter. On Docket. Judgt.

By virtue of the above stated writ, to me directed, I shall expose for sale, by public vendue, at the Sheriff's Office, in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., on WEDNESDAY, THE FIFTEENTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1905,
at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all those two tracts of land situate, lying and being in the City of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey.

First Tract: Known as Lot No. Eight (8) on a certain map made by F. A. Dunham, Civil Engineer, for William Cortwright, November, 1887, as filed in the office of the County Clerk for Union County, New Jersey, having a frontage of thirty (30) feet on Fourth Street and one hundred and fifty-seven (157) feet on each side line and thirty (30) feet in the rear, with all the rights and privileges of said Fourth Street as a public highway.

Second Tract: Beginning at a point in the southeasterly side of West Fourth Street distant one hundred (100) feet northeasterly from the northeasterly side of Plainfield Avenue being a corner of L. E. Hart's land, now or formerly, thence running in a southeasterly course parallel with Plainfield Avenue and along the rear line of lots fronting on Plainfield Avenue and now or formerly owned by Hart, Coddington and Kitchen, and land of William Cortwright, one hundred and fifty-seven (157) feet more or less to a stake in direct range with the rear line of other lands of said Conway; thence northeasterly and parallel with West Fourth Street eighteen (18) feet more or less to the southerly corner of said Conway's other lands, thence northwesterly and along the line of said Conway one hundred and fifty-seven (157) feet more or less to the southeasterly side of West Fourth street; thence southwesterly along the southerly side of West Fourth Street nineteen and two one-hundredths (19.02) feet to the place of beginning, with all the rights and privileges of said West Fourth street as a public highway. Being a portion of lots 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 on Map of Desirable Building Lots on Plainfield Avenue, Fourth and Fifth Streets, Property of William Cortwright, Plainfield, N. J., November, 1887, on file in the Clerk's Office of Union County.

close to the three-quarter station, rounding the turn after him. Pete waited for the ball without batting an eyelash and calmly pushed it away. The globule rolled to Martin, who picked it up in a daze. He was so amazed at such doings that he stared helplessly at the runners with the ball in his hands. Wally and the Kid were all in by the time Brit got out of his trance, and he didn't have any time to get Pete at first. "Well, I'm darned," said Brit, "nobody ever did that sort of thing on the Clinton Avenue team. There ought to be something in the rule book against it."

That was the practical ending of the game as a contest. The All-Plainfields never had a real look-in at another tally, and the Commuters garnered their other four with more or less ease. To spare the feelings of some old friends and genial fellow townsmen particulars will be suppressed.

Joys and sorrows of the ballyard:

HOBOKEN. 3; ALL AMERICANS, 2.

Hoboken, on the St. George Cricket Grounds, yesterday defeated the All Americans, 3 to 2. Deegan was invincible until the ninth inning, when three hits and a wild pitch enabled the visitors to score two runs. The Jerseymen bunched their hits in the sixth and seventh, scoring enough runs to win. The score:

Spoke at Friends' Meeting.

Sarah B. Flitcraft, a prominent member of the Chester, Pa., Friends meeting, attended the meeting of the Friends' Society on Watchung avenue, yesterday morning, and spoke for a half hour, preaching a forcible sermon. There was a large attendance of members. While in the city Mrs. Flitcraft was the guest of her nephew, Lewis Booth, of Watchung avenue.

Has Key to School.

The school authorities are looking for somebody with a key to Whittier School in his possession. The janitor has found the school door open after hours three times in the past week, and traces of unauthorized visits inside. Nothing of great value has been taken. It is supposed that one of the pupils in some way obtained a key that works the school lock.

Factory Fire Remains a Mystery.

Though Chief Doane and Fred C. Lounsbury have continued their investigations as to the cause of the fire at the Crescent Embossing factory, Saturday, the origin still remains a mystery. The insurance adjusters representing the various companies in which the firm held policies will visit the building tomorrow and begin their appraisals.

Entertainment Postponed.

The entertainment which was to have been held at Marconnier chapel tomorrow night, has been postponed on account of the death of Eugene P. VanCourt, whose funeral services will be held this afternoon from the chapel.

No Fresh Air Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home Association, which was to have been held Saturday night, was postponed on account of the inability of Founder Morgan to attend. The new date has not been fixed.

Mrs. William L. Saunders, who has been in France for several months, returned home on Saturday on the Campania. The homeward journey was a very tempestuous one, several people being swept from the deck of the steamer and a large number of passengers being sick. Mrs. Saunders is very much improved in health and expects to return with Mr. Saunders, to their home in the borough on Wednesday.

MR. MELICK HOST FOR THE HUNT CLUB

ENTERTAINMENT MEMBERS AT DINNER AFTER E CHAS

The Watchung Hunt Club held a successful run Saturday afternoon, starting from Mt. Pleasant, from which point the many riders had a lively chase after the hounds. At Metuchen there was a welcome check, and after a rest and giving the hounds a drink from a nearby brook, the run was continued to Park avenue and the Lehigh Valley Railroad, there being some good jumping of fences en route. There was another check at Oak Tree, and after a short rest the riders continued the run to the Plainfield Country Club, where, in sight of the clubhouse, the riders jumped two fences in sight of the large crowd that had assembled and was awaiting the riders.

The club was then entertained at tea at the clubhouse by Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, and a delightful social time was had.

Those who rode in the hunt were Charles D. Freeman, George P. Mellick, J. Hartley Mellick, Miss May Holly, George M. Kirkner, W. deLa. R. Anderson, Fred Anderson, Lewis E. Waring, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Dr. M. O'M. Knott, Jr., of Plainfield; Earl Milliken, of East Orange; George C. White, of Glen Ridge; Chauncey Sayre and Robert Howard, of South Orange; Dr. Bulkley, George Alpers and Dr. Proctor, of New York; Miss Gertrude Noe, Mrs. W. S. Brown, Harry Bourne, of Westfield; George Wildey, of Brooklyn; C. S. Bellows, of Netherwood, and Dr. M. O'M. Knott, Sr., of Ireland. In addition to the above the following followed the riders in carriages: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. M. O'M. Knott, Mrs. Shebbeare, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Runkle, Mrs. Chauncey Humphrey, Mrs. C. S. Bellows and Mrs. W. deLa R. Anderson.

Rev. A. S. Peck Declines Call.

Rec. A. S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, who recently received a call to become curate of the church at Tuxedo, N. Y., announced at the service yesterday morning that he had declined the call and would continue as rector of the church here. This announcement was received with much rejoicing on the part of Mr. Peck's parishioners.

FINE NEW HOME FOR THE RIDING AND DRIVING CLUB

Club House and Show Ring, Stables and Grand Stands to be Built at Once.

PURCHASE 25 ACRES

Tract Bounded Randolph Road, Woodland and South End Avenues—Big Improvements Are Planned.

The Riding and Driving Club has purchased twenty-five acres of land in the southeastern end of the city, on which it will build a show track, clubhouse, riding school and some other things belonging to the activities of a smart horsey organization. The plant will be one of the most complete and attractive to be found anywhere, and cannot fail to give Plainfield a rank and standing in the fashionable horse world second only to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, where the top-notch shows are held.

Work on the grounds will begin next week. The men will be pushed to the limit, and it is expected to have the whole group of tracks and buildings completed in time for the third annual show next spring. Plans and preparations for the erection of a plant have been going on quietly for some time among the men interested. The plans were further advanced at a meeting held in the Casino last night. Designs for tracks and buildings are being completed by the architect and the general idea of how the grounds will look has been given to the club.

The tract stretches along Randolph road for 547 feet, along Woodland avenue to South End avenue about 1,250 feet, and down the latter thoroughfare for the same distance as on Randolph road. One side of the tract touches Fanwood, and the grounds adjoin those of the Country Club. The trolley line runs close to it. One little strip within the boundaries noted, at Woodland and South End avenues, is not in the club tract.

Near the corner of the tract formed by Randolph road and the rear line an oval show track will be built. It will measure 280 feet long and 160 feet wide. Around it will run a ten-foot pathway, and around that a twenty-foot parkage oval. The ring is modelled on and measures exactly the same as the famous Wissahickon track, Philadelphia.

On the side away from Randolph road the grandstand will be erected. It will have private boxes, and the usual features of a thoroughly appointed, spacious stand.

Over toward the South End avenue corner will be the stables. These, as all the other structures, will be equipped with every fitting modern detail.

The clubhouse will be built close to the Woodland avenue end of the show ring. It is to be largely a temporary structure, but will lack nothing in the way of appearance or appointment for that reason. It will be handsome in design and handsomely furnished, with everything for comfort and enjoyment of members and their guests. It is quite certain that a very few years will make a large clubhouse necessary.

There will be two other features to the plant, a covered riding ring and a pony steeplechase track.

The covered ring will be built on the South End avenue side of the grounds. This will be used as a school, where instruction may be obtained by members untrained in riding or driving.

The cost of the plant will reach a high figure. Its construction is made possible by the interest taken in it by a group of wealthy men, chief among whom is Charles J. Fisk. The committee of the club members in charge of the construction is made up of L. E. Waring, W. J. Buttfield and R. A. Fairbairn.

The Riding and Driving Club is scarcely more than a year old. It grew from the first horse show held here, at the old Driving Park, in 1904. So much interest was manifested in that show and the enthusiasm having increased to such an extent when the second one was arranged a year later, that the organization of the club almost brought itself about. When the club was actually launched it gave surprising evidences of abiding strength, and it has been steadily growing stronger. Plainfield promises to be as decidedly a horsey suburb as Lakewood, Orange and the Long Island towns to which the New York fashionables flock.

D. S. Maclaren has returned from an extended trip in Europe and taken up his residence in Central avenue.

200 DELEGATES AT BAPTIST S. S. MEETING

PLAINFIELD CHURCHES REPRESENTED AT CONVENTION AT WESTFIELD.

The fifty-fifth annual convention of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday School Association, in which the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist churches of this city are members, is being held today in the First Baptist church, Westfield. There are about 200 delegates present.

The morning session opened with a prayer and praise service led by Rev. G. A. Guenther. The address of welcome was delivered by W. A. Dempsey, of Westfield, and the response was by Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market. Two interesting addresses were delivered, one on "The Bible School," by Rev. G. M. Shott, formerly of Scotch Plains, and the other on "The Alternate Lessons, Blakeslee or International," by Rev. W. G. Fennell, of Newark. These were followed by an informal discussion of the subjects.

Rev. C. F. Stanley opened the afternoon session with a prayer and praise service, which was followed with an address on "The Adult School, the Hour of Meeting," by J. B. Applegate. Rev. J. V. Ellson, of Newark, spoke on the subject of "The Decision Day," and "The Child Christian" was the subject of an address by Rev. C. F. Stanley, of Newark.

The service tonight will be opened with a prayer and praise service led by Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of Scotch Plains, after which the address of the evening will be made by Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, pastor of Baptist Temple, Brooklyn. His subject will be "The Second Mile." Many Sunday school workers and others from this city who were unable to attend the sessions today have arranged to hear Dr. Myers tonight.

STOKES ON THE SIDE OF THE OSTEOPATHS

WITH HIS HELP THEY ARE LIKELY TO GAIN LEGAL RECOGNITION.

Millville, Oct. 17.—The Cumberland County Medical Association, at its recent meeting here, discussed the introduction of a bill into the Legislature at the coming session for the recognition of osteopath physicians, and to allow them the same rights as other practitioners, who are compelled to pass a regular examination.

The society is decidedly against any such bill, but with Governor Stokes on the side of the osteopaths it will offer no protest. The Governor is a personal friend of Dr. Howell, an osteopathic physician of Vineland, who has opened offices in this city, and himself believes in the value of the new treatment.

P. S. C. MEN DINE.

Trolley Trip Feature of Their Outing.

Several officials of the Public Service Corporation, accompanied by their wives and friends, had a dinner at the Hotel Kensington Saturday night, after a delightful trolley ride over the lines in two special cars. The trip occupied the greater part of the afternoon and it was 8 o'clock when the party of forty-two arrived at the Kensington.

Proprietor J. A. Staats had prepared a fine menu, which pleased his patrons very much, and the party left here at 10 o'clock on the return journey. Among those in the party were these:

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. VanCleve, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Courter, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. VanNess, G. D. Harrison, R. W. Drake, Albert M. Gray, of Irvington; Miss Ethel E. Curtis, of Trenton, and Miss Gertrude I. Parle, of Morristown.

Central Gets Concessions.

A joint committee from the Elizabeth Common Council and the New Jersey Central appointed for the purpose of effecting a readjustment of traffic conditions in Elizabeth, met last night. The railroad officials promised to construct arches and make other improvements, if permitted to close certain streets at grade crossing in that city.

Reform Hall Programme.

A good programme has been arranged for the meeting at Reform Hall, tonight. It will consist of moving pictures, stereopticon views, vocal and instrumental music and a temperance address by John B. Oakley, of Elizabeth.

MUCH STREET WORK IS NOW UNDERWAY

IMPROVEMENTS IN WEST END ARE ABOUT COMPLETED.

During the present favorable weather conditions Street Commissioner Gavett has been able to make considerable progress in street matters which have been underway for some time. The street improvements in the East End of the city are about completed, and work has about been started macadamizing Randolph road. The work under contract, which includes the macadamizing of New street, is about completed, Contractor Meeker being ready to roll down the top dressing.

At the October meeting F. E. Kinsman and others asked to have Sherman avenue macadamized, and an ordinance was adopted authorizing that work, after the property owners had first deposited their share of the expense with the city treasurer. This will be completed before cold weather arrives.

Mr. Gavett is much pleased with the progress of the work at the sewage disposal farm being done by Richards & Gaston, contractors from Somerville. The concrete work is about completed and within a short time everything will be in readiness for the filling in process. The contractors have had exceptional weather for their work and have made far better headway than usual with this kind of work. At the present rate the new beds will be ready for use in the near future, making it possible to take care of a large quantity of additional sewage matter.

LARGE CROWD AT CLOSE OF SAENGERBUND FAIR

THE TOTAL RECEIPTS EXPECTED TO REACH AT LEAST $700.

With the largest attendance of any during the time it progressed, the fair of the Gesang and Turn Verein in Saengerbund Hall closed last night. Its success is far beyond what was expected and it even surpassed all previous records. The net receipts will aggregate between $700 and $800, all to be applied to liquidating outstanding notes on the reconstructed building.

While the dancing floor was crowded all night, much interest centered in the bowling, where experts continued to roll for prizes. George Voehl stodd in the lead and captured several, one of them a fine large imported cheese. In the awarding of other prizes, aside from the bowling, Rudolph Spiegel secured a silk umbrella; Charles Duvier, a chiffonier and writing desk, John Neal. The articles remaining on the various tables were auctioned off and many brought good prices.

The success of the affair is in a great measure due to the efforts of the general committee, which worked unceasingly to make it so. It consisted of August Wolff, Frank Jellig, Rudolph Bleier, Frank Smith and Joseph Haurand. They were assisted by the following sub-committees: Women's section, Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel, Mrs. Charles Meyer, Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Anton Stenzenberger, Mrs. August Melcher and Mrs. John Retzer; Singing section, Henry Haurand, William Claassen and Rudolp Spiegel; Bowling section, William Claassen, John Wirth and John Retzer; Turning section, Charles F. Meyer, Sr.

Boy Delegates.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will be represented at the State convention of the association juniors at Camden October 27-29. The delegates from the local department are Russell Morris, Stanley Karner, Leroy Woodhull, Harold Robins, F. B. Smith, Charles Line and W. B. Caldwell. These, under the guidance of Secretary Robbie and Dr. N. H. Probasco, of the boys' committee, have arranged to attend the gathering, and other members of the department are likely to accompany them.

King's Daughters' Session.

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union, King's Daughters, will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Thursday afternoon, November 9. This is the meeting when gifts of jelly and other useful things for the nurses' closet are most acceptably received. There will also be interesting reports of the past season's work and other features.

Contract Case Adjourned.

The contract case of Frank Cullen against John A. Kriney, in Justice Hand's court, has been put off for two weeks. J. P. Owens is the plaintiff's counsel.

Ohl Funeral Private.

The funeral of Percy C. Ohl, who died Saturday, will be held at his home and will be strictly private.

FIGHT VOTING MACHINE

Dunellenites Circulating Two Petitions Against Use of Contrivance.

OPPOSITION IS STRONG

Democratic County Committeeman and Borough Assessor Handling One, Republican Gathering Signatures on the Other.

Opposition by Dunellen citizens to the voting machine assigned to the borough last week by the Secretary of State has chrystalized into two petitions against the use of the contrivance at the coming election. Many signatures are being collected and a determined effort is to be made to induce the State authorities to take the machine out of Dunellen.

The opponents of the machine put forward the accepted ground against it—that the average voter is confused by the contrivance, and intelligent voting, except by a certain percentage among the electorate, is harder than by the old method.

Daniel Gulick is handling one of the petitions and Assessor John Peters the other. Gulick is a Republican and Peter is a Democrat, but the signatures are not being gathered on a partisan basis. Gulick, in three days, has secured over fifty signers and Peters, in less time, has gathered almost as many. They hope to get a majority of the 400 voters in the borough to sign.

Political leaders who are either favorable to the machines or indifferent say it is hopeless to work against its use at the coming election. They do not expect the authorities to pay any attention to the petitions, but the machine's opponents are convinced that the men who can take the contrivance away if they care to will not wish to compel the borough to use it in the face of the protest they hope to register against it. Even if the State authorities insist on having the machine tried at the coming election, simply as a matter of principle, the leaders of the crusade against it believe their protest will compel its removal after that one occasion, so the anti-machine movement would continue even if positive statement from those in authority to the effect that the contrivance must remain for the balloting of November 7 were received before the protest was filed.

"Practically nobody among the voters wants the machine here," said Assessor Peters yesterday, "and there are good grounds for the opposition to it. It makes intelligent voting twice as hard as it should be. Take what happened in South River last year as an example. Down there the Prohibition ticket usually gets two or three votes; last year, when the machine was put there, twenty-eight votes were registered for Prohibition. Think of that in South River! It is a certainty that twenty-five of those votes were never intended for the Prohibitionists—in other words twenty-five voters were practically disfranchised. Under the old style of balloting such a thing could never have happened. With paper ballots a man knows what he is voting for, and sees his vote go in where it belongs. With the machine he takes a chance of doing the right thing and never knows to a certainty whether or not his vote is counted right."

Assessor Peters is one of the Democratic leaders of the borough, and a member of the Democratic County Committee. He is influential in party councils, and may succeed in making the opposition to machine voting more than a local movement.

WIFE WANTS DIVORCE.

Mrs. Josephine Elizabeth Greene Sues on the Ground of Desertion.

A petition for divorce has been filed by Mrs. Josephine Elizabeth Greene from her husband, Frederick B. Greene, Jr., on the ground of desertion. Mrs. Greene lives in North Plainfield. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Joseph, of Willow avenue. The husband lives in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Greene was married in the borough October 24, 1900. She charges that Greene deserted her in August, 1903. The bill of particulars was filed October 10. Reed & Coddington are the petitioner's lawyers.

E. O. Jago to Speak.

Ethan O. Jago, of New York city, will speak at the regular meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance to be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Friday, October 20, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Jago is a clear Bible teacher and eloquent speaker. Miss Miriam H. Cromwell, of Cranford, will sing the "Glory Song," so much used at the Torrey meetings.

Philip Currin, Jr., of Mountain avenue, is detained at home by a severe attack of quinsy sore throat.

COMMISSIONERS TO HEAR PROPERTY OWNERS

STREET OPENING AND WIDENING THE MATTERS UNDER CONSIDERATION.

Elliot T. Barrows, Evarts Tracy and Lewis G. Timpson, commissioners appointed by the Common Council in the matter of the widening of Sycamore street between Fourth and Fifth streets, the opening of Stebbins place, and the widening of Park avenue from Second street to the railroad, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Common Council rooms. They will proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises and make their estimates and assessments under the ordinances providing for the several improvements.

It was found impossible for the street committee from the Common Council to secure a satisfactory adjustment in the matters referred to, hence the appointment of commissioners. The Sycamore street widening matter has been underway for a long time, but not until now has it appeared possible to make any progress. A majority of the property owners want the street widened, as is also the case in the proposed opening of Stebbins place, while in the Park avenue widening there will be the Plainfield Trust Company, Charles W. McCutchen and Boice estate to treat with in effecting this improvement. It is expected that the commissioners will make a report of their work to the Common Council at the November meeting, after which steps will be taken to make the improvements.

PHYSICIAN TESTIFIES TO COLLEAGUES ERROR

IN ALBERT DIVORCE CASE IN WHICH SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY FIGURES.

Master in Chancery John H. Van Winkle finished taking testimony in the divorce case of Joseph Albert, the Scotch Plains ball player, against his wife, Catherine Albert, yesterday afternoon. No defence was put in, but many witnesses were examined on account of the peculiar circumstances surrounding the wife's alleged desertion.

Medical testimony plays an important part in the evidence, and most of it is of an unusual and highly sensational character. Dr. Long was the main witness at yesterday's hearing. His testimony showed that another physician had made a grave mistake in his diagnosis of a case that had an important bearing on the Alberts' marital relations.

It is understood that Mr. Van Winkle will recommend a decree of absolute divorce when he turns the papers over to the Chancellor. Lawyer George Ball represents Alberts.

JAP IN HIS HOUSEHOLD.

Umi Mori a Protege of F. T. Woodhull.

Umi Mori, a bright little Jap, is an interesting member of the household of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, of West Front street, and he has been making many friends since coming to Plainfield. He is prominently connected in Japan, his parents being wealthy and occupying a high social position. Young Mori had the choice of going to war or coming to this country for an education. He chose the latter, and some day he expects to return and take a Government position.

Umi Mori attends the public school a half a day, being a pupil in the sixth grade of the Whittier School. The other half he is employed at Mr. Woodhull's home and his evenings are devoted to study. He is quick to learn and is rapidly acquiring knowledge of American ways and customs. He speaks fairly good English and like the people of his race, he is very pleasant and polite. Although he has been at Mr. Woodhull's home but a short time, he is already considered one of the family and he is not only well pleased with his opportunities, but has found true friends in Mr. Woodhull and his family. Mori is now a member of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school and attends the church services.

Anderson Case Near Its End.

The long-fought case of John C. Anderson, administrator, against Bridget Burke, et als, of this city, over a Catholic Benevolent Legion death benefit, which has dragged through the courts for three years, will come up before the Court of Errors and Appeals for final adjudication on November 21. At the last clash between the legal forces, in the Court of Chancery, Burke et als won. John P. Owens is their lawyer. William Newcorn represents Anderson.

CARNEY HAS LIMBARGER OUSTED FROM COMMITTEE

LATTER MAKES UNSUCCESSBUL FIGHT AT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

David J. Carney and Lorenzo Townley, one of his friends, were chosen on the Democratic County Committee at the Somerville convention Saturday afternoon, after a squabble with Walter Linbarger, leader of the other North Plainfield faction, on the convention floor. Of the four borough delegates, Elston M. French, John Conover, Carney, and William Rickett, the last named was the only regularly elected one, the others being proxies. Rickett, who is a supporter of Linbarger, presented his name for the committee, ignoring the nomination of Carney and Townley by the other three delegates. Linbarger claimed the election on the ground that the proxies, under the new law, had no right to vote, and he and Carney went at one another with sharp sticks. An opinion by Richard V. Lindabury, to whom the chairman appealed, that precedent appeared to have established the proxies' right to vote, led to a ruling that defeated Linbarger.

The latter still insists, however, that he is the only legally chosen committeeman, and intimates that he will carry the fight to the committee. The committeemen's credentials are issued by the county chairman.

GARRET DUNHAM NOW REGAINING HIS MEMORY

LEAVING HOME SUDDENLY GOES ABOUT ACCUSTOMED PLACES.

Eluding nurses and members of his family who had been watching him, Garret T. Dunham, the victom of a trolley car accident, slipped away from his home Saturday night and made his way to the office of the Pond Tool Works where he is employed. Though suffering a partial brain paralysis by reason of his injury and for the greater part of the time since unable to recall names or places, he wandered about the factory and conversed intelligently with several friends. The latter made no attempt to hold him, believing he had recovered sufficiently to get about and from the works he walked down town. He called on acquaintances in several stores and though he talked rationally, two of them watched his movements and afterward saw him safely home.

The result of Mr. Dunham's accident left his mind a blank for a long time and for several weeks his recovery was doubted. He is now regaining and though he does not recall Saturday's experience it shows that the brain paralysis is gradually lifting. In the hope that absolute quiet and proper treatment might restore him mentally and physically he has entered Dr. Cooley's sanitarium and will remain until the trouble is entirely overcome.

NO CIVIL SERVICE QUIZ.

President Surprises Federal Employes With Special Order.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The President today through the State Department published an executive order of importance to every employe in the civil service of the United States. No explanation of the underlying reason for its issue is given. The order is as follows:

"No officer or employe of the government shall directly or indirectly instruct or be concerned in any manner in the instruction of any person or classes of persons with a view to their special preparation for the examinations of the United States Civil Service Commission. The fact that any officer or employe is found so engaged shall be considered sufficient cause for his removal from the office.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Kills His Father.

Trenton, Oct. 17.—William T. Bevins, Jr., is under arrest here today charged with the unusual crime of patricide. He shot and killed his father last night while protecting his mother from a murderous attack. The crime was committed aboard the young man's houseboat in the Delaware River, where Mrs. Bevins had sought refuge from her husband.

A Chimney Fire.

Hose Company No. 3, from the West End house, was called to 134 Plainfield avenue at noon today for a chimney fire. It was quickly extinguished without any damage occurring.

Voting Machine on View.

One of the new voting machines is now at the city clerk's office, where demonstrations of it are made. This machine is in some respects different from the ones used last year.

GRACE CH. CLUB SMOKER

Pleasant Affair Begins New Season in New Parish House Quarters.

MUSICAL AND SPEECHES

President Fox Introduces Tenement House and Child Labor Problems, and Urges Country Dwellers to Help City Reformers.

The Men's Club, of Grace P. E. church, held its first meeting and social affair of the season, at the new parish house last night. The large gathering of members enjoyed a musical and smoker.

Before the programme of entertainment the rector, Rev. E. V. Stevenson, and the president, Hugh F. Fox, spoke briefly. Mr. Stevenson touched on the aims, the objects and the field of the club.

"It is for the social, as well as the religious betterment of the men of the parish; and the good it can do is not limited to the men of the church," he said.

Mr. Fox is a member of the State Board of Guardians, and he introduced some of the questions of reform in child labor and tenement house construction to the attention of the club.

"It is the duty of we who are fortunately situated in the suburbs to take an interest in the problems that confront those in congested centres and lend our aid to their efforts to better the conditions," he said.

The programme included piano solos by Porter Steel, who also did a little trick work with piano and cornet together; vocal duet by William Tallamy and H. Bernard Coombe, accompanied by W. E. MacClymont; solo by J. B. Baker, accompanied by Lewis Williams; vocal quartette, Rev. E. V. Stevenson, H. Bernard Coombe, Wilbur Chamberlain, William Tallamy. Refreshments were served. The entertainment committee was made up of Howard Fleming, chairman; J. P. Nolting and Arthur Murphy.

The programme of the club meetings and affairs for the season is a full and interesting one. It is as follows:

November 13, all the Parish Guilds, ladies' evening, presentation of Grace church activities; Sattels' Quintette; refreshments. December 11, annual meeting, change of constitution; entertainment. January 8, lecture by A. McClean Parker, "Panama Canal" (Illustrated); reception to Men's Clubs of the other churches. February 12, informal talk by J. O. Averill, "Formosa." March 12, address by Rev. E. V. Stevenson, "The Church of Our Fathers." April 9, discussion, "The Public Health;" led by Dr. William H. Murray, member of the State Board of Health, and L. R. Thurlow, Plainfield health officer. May 14, club supper and smoker.

NEW O. F. C. CAPTAIN.

No Truth in Report that the Eleven Will Not Play.

Charles Hillyer was elected captain of the O. F. C. eleven last night in place of Frank Simmons, who resigned. The meeting was held at the home of George McVoy, East Front street.

The O. F. C. eleven is rapidly rounding into shape, and will fill out a busy season. There is no truth in the report that the team will not play this year. The men have been a little late in getting together, but the combination will be on the field as strong as in past seasons from now until the schedules close.

The players will be out tonight for heavy practice at Concert Park.

Miss Eoff's Engagement Announced.

Miss May Eoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Eoff, of Crescent avenue, gave a pink luncheon today at the Park Club, at which she announced her engagement to Dr. Frank Brown Bostwick, of Gibraltar. Covers were laid for twelve. The announcement comes as a culmination to a romance that began when Miss Eoff and Dr. Bostwick met recently while the former was enjoying a European tour.

Burned in Fighting Fire.

Micajah Secor, the night watchman at the Crescent Embossing factory, was severely burned about the face and head in fighting the fire which all but destroyed the plant Saturday morning. He has since been confined to the house, but is recovering nicely.

Johanna Haley Expires Suddenly.

Johanna Haley, widow of James Haley, and for many years well known about the city, died suddenly at Westfield yesterday. Interment will be made in the Plainfield avenue cemetery tomorrow afternoon following a service at the grave, to begin at 1:30.

Among the guests of Andrew Carnegie at Skibo Castle, Scotland, are Bishop and Mrs. Potter, who are seeing the Highlands at their best. After their visit to the ironmaster the Bishop and Mrs. Potter will travel to London, where they will be the guests of the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth Palace. Bishop Potter will discuss with the English prelate the subject of the Pan-Anglican Congress, which, it is proposed, shall be held in 1908.

Attended by ceremonies fitting to the occasion and in the presence of a large gathering of interested citizens, the cornerstone of the new Young Men's Christian Association building at Elizabeth was laid Saturday afternoon, an event which had been looked forward to and worked for by members of the association for five years. The stone was lowered by a derrick placed at the corner of the building, the partial structure of the first story forming a sort of enclosure in which a large crowd was assembled.

S. S. Teachers' Class.

The class organized for the training of Sunday-school teachers will meet in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This class is open to all women of any church, and will study "The Teaching of Bible Classes," by Edward F. Lee. The teacher of the class is Miss Elizabeth Chadbourne.

CHURCH OBJECTS TO MASON PASTOR

MEMBERS OF CONGREGATION SAY BRICKLAYERS SHOULD NOT PREACH.

Passaic, Oct. 17.—There is a division among the members of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, over the selection of a pastor to succeed the late Rev. Dr. Philo French Leavens. Dr. Leavens died last Christmas after a short illness, after serving as pastor of the church for thirty-six years. The selection of a pastor was left in the hands of a committee of nine, at a meeting of the congregation held a month after his death.

It is in the calling of the Rev. Joseph Atchinson Jones that the congregation is divided. At the meeting the other night three-fourths of those present were in favor of extending a call to him.

Before studying for the ministry, Mr. Jones was a bricklayer in this city, but was always a faithful attended at church services. It was while he was working at his trade that Dr. Leavens became interested in him. He assisted Mr. Jones through college, and preached the sermon at his ordination a few weeks before his death.

It is Mr. Jones' former occupation that has caused the members of the congregation to split in calling him. Those who are opposed to him are the residents of the "hill" section of Passaic. They say that while Mr. Jones is a good preacher and was a friend of Dr. Leavens, they don't think that they should listen to a man who worked by the sweat of his brow before entering the ministry. The congregation of the First Presbyterian church is the wealthiest in this city, and counts among its members many of the leads in local society. It is these that are opposed to calling Mr. Jones.

This is the season of the year when kindling wood is a household necessity. John Mobus, the Watchung dealer, is ready with the best, as well as grate and cord wood.

Seaman Williams, of Sandford avenue, has had many years experience in carpentering. He has erected scores of houses in Plainfield and can furnish the best of recommendations.

Carpentering is Herman Hanson's business and he has made it a life study. He resides on Watchung avenue and a postal addressed to him is all that is necessary to have him call and furnish estimates.

It is folly to think that bargains in groceries are hard ot find. Herman A. Weber, the Liberty street dealer, has them every day in the year. Give him a trial order over the telephone and be convinced as others have.

Medicines are not the only stock in trade at J. P. Powers' Somerset street pharmacy. It is there you can obtain high grade toilet articles, the best soda water in town and pure Havana cigars. Prescriptions will be called for and delivered.

A. M. Griffen, the hardware merchant, advises you not to wait too long to have your furnace or heater put in first class condition for the winter. He can promptly attend to the work now and it will be to your advantage. Mr. Griffen also contracts to install all kinds of heating systems and sanitary plumbing.

Dont overlook the attractive line of dress goods now being shown at Woodhull & Martin's store. These goods, suitable for fall and winter weight, represent the product of the best mills and are guaranteed to give entire satisfaction. An inspection of the stock will show you that you can do as well here as in New York. This is true of every department in this big store. An attractive department just now is that devoted to carpets, rugs and curtains. Look these things over at your first opportunity and you will surely purchase some of the goods.

Recovered Speech and Hearing.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I commenced using your Cream Balm about two years ago for catarrh. My voice was somewhat thick and my hearing was dull. My hearing has been fully restored and my speech has become quite clear. I am a teacher in our town. L. G. Brown, Granger, O.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cents or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

—The adjourned auction sale of elegant household goods will be held tomorrow in the vacant store at 207 Park avenue. P. H. Latourette, auctioneer. See adv.

Downpour of UMBRELLAS.

More than 1,000 in this Sale.

Dependable, new, clean Umbrellas in a variety of kinds unprecedented and qualities that simply o'ertop any we have ever been able to offer at equally low prices. Fully 1,200 Umbrellas have been secured for this sale---all good ones---and fitted with wonderfully pretty handles, including every staple and hundreds of novelties.

The fact that a prominent importer of fine handles turned over to us a goodly portion of his surplus stock makes possible the remarkably low prices we quote in this week's sale. In many instances, the prices we ask for the complete umbrellas do not more than cover the actual worth of the handles.

Interesting details follow:

Taffeta Silk Umbrellas, the biggest lot in the sale, particularly well made; on strong frames with slender rods, including an astonishing variety of the most beautiful handles we have ever seen.

Handles of Pearl and Ivory; posts with sterling silver trimming; gun metal, plain and sterling trimmed; long Pearl and Ivory with gold and sterling trimmings; Long Gold and Gun Metal, plain and with inlaid sterling trimmed; Cartridge Posts and Pearl Mounts with gold and sterling trimming; Ivory and Cape Horns, trimmed with sterling; Cartridge Posts with inlaid colored Dresden ball; Fine English Boxwood and French Furze; Sterling trimmed, and carved handles in rich designs.

Among the handles for men are beautiful solid gun metals, square and crooked Cape Horns; English Boxwood with sterling band and cap; handles identical to many seen in our regular $5 lines; handles in most instances worth what we ask for the complete umbrella; to go in this sale at the very low and popular price of 1.95

Piece Dyed Taffeta Silk Umbrellas; men's and women's sizes; good stocky weight; guaranteed strictly fast color; made with tape edge; mounted on strong imported paragon frames with slender steel rods; fitted with a large variety of pretty and novel handles of a kind usually found on much higher priced umbrellas; case and tassel with each; worth no less than $2; in this sale at 1.50

"Niagara" Umbrellas, well known as the best $3 umbrellas on the market; sold exclusively by this house; made of silk serge with tape edge; offered in a variety of handles; to meet and please the tastes of practically every one; men's and women's sizes; during this sale only 2.69

Taffeta Silk Umbrellas for men and women; of a grade we have used for years, and which have proven exceptionally satisfactory; medium weight stock; fine lustre; fast color; paragon frames with steel rods; handles include Boxwood, Welchsel, Cape Horn and Congo plain and silver trimmed; and in a variety of shapes; 26 and 28 inch sizes; case and tassel with each; easily worth $1.50; in this sale at only 95c

English Gloria Umbrellas of a quality that will give perfect satisfaction, strictly fast color, made with the popular tape edge, good for everyday use, the kind you can easily afford to lose, or to loan, which means the same thing, mounted on paragon frames, with steel rods, 26 and 28 inch sizes, in a variety of pretty handles, some silver trimmed, would be cheap at $1.00, sale price 69c

Boys' and Girls' Umbrellas of English Gloria and Taffeta Silk, all imported, good stocky weight, guaranteed absolutely fast color, made with strong steel rods and paragon frames, fitted with handles of a sort that will please the children, including many novelties, kinds that should sell at $1.98, for 98c; those that should sell at $1, for 79c

MUNGER A BEAUTY.

Won Prize at Physical Culture Show.

O. H. Munger, formerly of this city, but now of New Haven, won the point competition for the week at the Physical Culture Show held at Madison Square Garden last week, defeating C. R. Pettit by three points. He also won several other valuable prizes, taking second honors in the 220-yard run on Saturday; second in the two-mile run; first in lifting the weights, lifting 950 pounds, and the climbing rope contest, attaining a height of thirty-two feet three inches.

The metropolitan press speak in the highest terms of Mr. Munger's achievements during the past week, and the fact that he won the several honors on the true merits of his ability.

IN AUTO TO DIVORCE COURT.

One Suit Granted, One Pending, As Consequence of Trip.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—One divorce granted and one suit pending is the consequence of an automobile trip from Chicago to New York last July. In the party were Mrs. and Mrs. F. T. Encil, Mrs. Oliver B. Main and David Beaton, Jr. Mr. Encil was the owner and driver of the touring car. Mrs. Main has just received a decree on the ground of cruelty.

Mr. Encil in his petition says he left his wife in the Astor House on July 21 on account of discoveries he made there. He does not name any man, except to say, "she received undue attentions in New York from a personal friend."

T. F. Ryan Not in This.

Representatives of Thomas F. Ryan denied yesterday that Mr. Ryan was interested in any of the independent telephone companies which are seeking franchises from the Board of Estimate to operate in New York. Reports have ben circulated that Mr. Ryan, the Elkins-Widener syndicate, and James Hazen Hyde were interested in the movement. The spokesmen for Mr. Ryan said that none of these interests was connected with an independent telephone movement in any way.—N. Y. Times.

Defeat for Big Leaguers.

There were many surprises in baseball Sunday. The Ridgewoods, with Linderman and Farmer as the battery, defeated the New York Giants, world's champions, by a score of 5 to 2. Ames and Elliott pitched for the champions. The Visitations defeated the All-Leaguers with "Big Chief" Bender, of the Philadelphia Athletics, opposing them. The score was 2 to 0. Paterson defeated the Philadelphia Athletics by a score of 2 to 1.

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

"Willie" Deegan has returned to his position as instructor at St. Joseph's Institute for the Deaf and Dumb at Westchester, N. Y.

After all is said, it must be admitted that Plainfield has had a fast article of baseball this year, and they can thank Manager Daab for it.

Now that the baseball season has come to an end, the fans will scarcely know how to spend their Saturday afternoons during the fall and winter.

The manager of the Lynn, Mass., baseball team, has decided to take the players to Cuba this winter. They will be able to keep in practice and have their board besides.

Bogart Conklin's suggestion that there be a series next season between Somerville and Plainfield was a good one. It would be productive of great sport and increase the interest.

Mayor N. B. Smalley's offer to furnish the ball for the new flag pole that will support the champion's pennant next season was timely, and Manager Daab promptly accepted it.

The fans will greatly miss the weekly visits of the Daabsters to town. These games afforded the only outdoor amusement many Plainfielders have, and they certainly regret the termination of the contests.

There is little possibility of the New York Giants playing on Crescent Oval on Saturday. It is reported that the team will disband on Thursday for the winter, and if this be true they will not come to this city as Manager Daab hoped they would.

The Elizabethport Stars won the championship series with Rahway by defeating the Rahwegians at Elizabethport on Sunday by a score of 7 to 5. The Stars also won the Elizabeth city championship by defeating the Y. M. C. A. team of that city in a series of five games.

Through the good will and friendship for "Red" Waller, Manager Denman, of the Westfield Baseball Association, has secured a good position for the auburn haired twirler as a cash register in a shooting gallery on the Bowery, New York. "Red" will keep score and otherwise fill an important position.

Manager Daab hinted at the banquet Saturday night that a baseball league in this vicinity next season is a possibility. If the towns and teams are properly chosen there is no reason why such a league should not pay. If the towns are convenient to one another so that the fans can reach them easily by trolley or train great interest and large patronage would result.

"Bill" Stalling, the well known baseball player, who appeared with Westfield early in the season, was married Sunday night to Miss Mamie Berkhardt, at the home of the bride in Bayonne. Stalling formerly played with the Bergen Point Field Club football team, Bayonne baseball team, Elizabethport Stars and Matawan baseball team. He has one of the best records as a football and baseball player.

TENNIS.

Two matches were played yesterday in the opening of the girls' tennis tournament under the auspices of the Plainfield High School. The tournament is being played on Pierson's court, Dunellen avenue, and considerable interest was shown in the initial play. In the first match Miss Irene Dunham beat Miss Eva Rogers, 6—1, 6—0, and in the second match Miss Marion Pierson beat Miss Florence Smalley, 6—2, 6—2. This afternoon the finals will be played between Miss Dunham and Miss Pierson. Miss Dunham has been playing an exceptionally strong game and it is conceded that her opponent will have to play her best to win the finals.

GOLF.

The annual meeting of the Cranford Golf Club, for the election of officers and transaction of such other business as might be presented, was held on Saturday evening at the clubhouse, on Lincoln avenue. Silas P. Wood was elected president; Fred P. Davis, vice-president; J. C. Edgecumbe, secretary; George M. Hendricks, treasurer; secretary for golf, George K. Fullerton; chairman of greens committee, George Hansel; trustees for three years, H. P. Wood, R. J. Mix and T. A. Sperry; trustee for one year to fill unexpired term of Frank R. Bourne, deceased, William Gellatly.

CONSCIENCE MONEY.

Unidentified Man Hands Cash to Municipal Treasurer.

Jersey City, Oct. 17.—City Treasurer William F. Ely Saturday was accosted in his office in the city hall by an unidentified man who said:

"Will you take $2,000 that belongs to Jersey City, and give me a receipt for it?"

"Conscience money, eh?" observed Mr. Ely.

"Well, you can enter it that way," calmly answered the visitor. Then he handed over a thousand-dollar bill, a five-hundred-dollar bill and the rest in hundred-dollar bills.

Plainfield, N. J., October 17, 1905.

Plainfield will not have another opportunity to add to its string of victories. The New York Giants have cancelled their date here.

Elizabeth's Common Council has the right idea as to the value of trolley franchises. The terms it offered the P. S. C. last night show that the people are awakening to the real worth of the great privileges given to corporations for a trifle.

Now is the time to get down to work for another championship nine. Manager Daab brought a winning article to Plainfield and he shouldered the entire responsibility. Next season he should be given more general support and it would not be amiss at this time for some representative men to join together with this end in view.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD IN ANNUAL SESSION

PLAINFIELD DELEGATES AT THE MEETING IN CAPE MAY.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel; Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, and L. N. Lovell, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, are among those attending the session of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey, which began at Cape May last night. This is the eighty-third annual meeting of the synod, which will last for three days. The opening sermon was preached by the retiring moderator, the Rev. Dr. James DeHart Bruen, of Belvidere. After the celebration of the Lord's Supper, the Rev. Dr. George W. Swain, of Allentown, was elected moderator. There are 300 delegates in attendance.

This is the first time the synod has met at Cape May, the sessions having been held previously at Asbury Park and Atlantic City. In 1899 the Presbytery of West Jersey met at Cape May and at that time the church where the synod meeting is now being held was just completed.

As the synod meets right on the eve of the contemplated revival movement of the general assembly's committee this fall throughout the State, it is expected that evangelistic work will occupy much of the attention of the members.

MR. VAN COURT'S FUNERAL.

Large Gathering Attended Service at Marconnier Chapel.

The funeral of Eugene P. Van Court, who died suddenly at his home in Oak Tree Friday, was held in Marconnier chapel before a large gathering of friends yesterday afternoon. So many attended from that vicinity and this city that some were unable to gain admittance. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was in charge, assisted by Rev. J. A. Cubberley, of South Plainfield. During the service two solos, "Rock of Ages" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," were sung by E. E. Runyon. The floral tributes were very numerous.

The interment was made at Hillside cemetery, and at the graveside a delegation from the local Grand Army Post, of which he was a member, assumed charge and conducted the military burial service. Those who acted as pall bearers were Alexander Noe, William Kelly, Oliver Kelly, George Harrison, William Morrison and Theodore Lane.

NEW TRACTION COMPANY FOR NORTH JERSEY

AUGUST BELMONT, OF NEW YORK, IS SAID TO BE BEHIND RIVAL TO P.S. C.

Articles of incorporation of what is believed to be an opposition company to the Public Service Corporation, which controls the trolley systems in Northern New Jersey, were filed yesterday in the office of the County Clerk at the Court House in Jersey City. The new concern is known as the Hudson Street Railway Company, and it is capitalized at $3,000,000. These are the directors:

William M. Barnum, Pliny Fisk, Walter G. Oakman, W. G. McAdoo, Andrew Freedman and David Young. With the exception of the last named all the directors are well known in banking and commercial circles in this city. Mr. Young formerly was general manager of the Public Service Corporation.

The new company has established offices at No. 55 Montgomery street, Jersey City. At a meeting of the directors these officers were chosen: President, W. G. McAdoo; vice president, Andrew Freedman; secretary, K. B. Conger; treasurer, William C. Kinney.

It is understood that August Belmont is behind the new company. The McDonald-Whitney interests are identified with the Public Service Corporation, which has a monopoly of the trolley service in Hudson county.

William G. McAdoo, president of the company, said:

"The Hudson Street Railroad Company was organized for the purpose of increasing and improving the local transportation facilities throughout the principal cities and towns of Hudson county, with a view to operating these lines in connection with the tunnels now being built under the Hudson River. We believe that the present local street railroad facilities in Hudson county are entirely inadequate, and that this deficiency will become all the more noticeable after the Hudson River tunnels are completed. The system will develop a large amount of territory throughout Hudson county, which either has no street railway lines at present or is so far removed from existing lines as to be difficult of access.

"The new lines will have superior track construction and most modern equipments, and will reduce the time between the residential and business districts of New York and New Jersey to practically one-half of that now required to get across the river."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The annual offering for the American Baptist Publication Society will be received at the First Baptist church on Sunday.

"Two Ways of Treating Jesus," will be the subject of the mid-week prayer meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow night.

The Mission Study Class of the Congregational church will meet on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Miss E. F. Clark will be the leader.

"Memory as a Help and Inspiration," will be the subject of the prayer meeting to be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow night.

The Boy's Mission Band, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will hold its first fall meeting in the parlors of the church on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Bishop Scarborough will visit St. Stephen's church on St. Stephen's Day for confirmation, and Rev. A. S. Peck, rector, has started a class of instruction in preparation for that event.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Schorb, 115 East Front street.

Trinity Baptist church, of Morristown, has extended a call to the Rev. James Shaw, of Newark, to become pastor of the church. He has accepted and will begin his duties there November 5.

The "Children of Mary" will give an entertainment, followed by a sociable, in St. Mary's Hall, Friday evening, October 20, at 8 o'clock. William Romain and Walter Sherwin will take part.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, is expected home tomorrow from Maine, where he has been attending the funeral services of his mother, who was buried yesterday.

The Girls' Mission Club, of the Congregational church, will meet at the church Wednesday afternoon to begin the study of Africa. The subject will be "Basketry." Supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet in the lecture room of the church this afternoon to fill up another barrel with clothing, bedding, dry goods and bank bills for the Dakota missionary.

The silver anniversary supper being planned for by the Women's Home Missionary Society, of the First M. E. church, will be held in Vincent chapel on Tuesday night, November 14, instead of Friday, November 10, as previously announced.

The women's class for training Sunday-school teachers will meet in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Elizabeth Chadbourne will be present to lead the class. All persons interested in teaching are invited.

The Women's Home Missionary Society, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will hold its meeting for sewing Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock, in the church parlors. A full attendance is desired that the work for the boxes may be accomplished as promptly as possible.

The Rev. Father J. P. Reilly, in charge of Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church at Westfield for the past two years, conducted his last Sunday service there Sunday. Father Reilly leaves Westfield to become assistant priest of St. Henry's church at Jersey City. He will be succeeded by the Rev. Charles Smith, of St. Henry's church.

Charles V. Vickrey, of New York, will give a stereopticon lecture on Friday night in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Young People's Association. His subject will be partly the history of the Young People's Missionary Movement, an interdenominational organization of which he is the general secretary, but mainly a presentation of the need of evangelizing the whole world. All the young people of the congregation, whether members of the association or not, are urged to attend.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Rev. John Edgecumbe's incumbency as rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Cranford, was appropriately celebrated with a reception at the rectory on Saturday evening and an anniversary service at the church Sunday morning. The Right Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of New Jersey, who consecrated Trinity church on October 16, 1881, assisted the women of the Parish Circle in receiving the two hundred or more guests at the reception Saturday and Sunday he delivered an address and administered communion at the anniversary service.

Loughlin Hearing Adjourned.

The hearing of the charge of disorderly conduct made by Former Sheriff W. T. Kirk against Cornelius Loughlin, who is alleged to have used profane and indecent language on a trolley Sunday night, was adjourned for a second time this morning in the city court. Loughlin will be arraigned tomorrow. He is represented by J. P. Owens; F. J. Blatz is lawyer for the prosecution.

Henry's Lesson.

Henry Alexander, colored, raised a fuss in a lunch wagon at Park avenue and Second street early this morning, and sassed Cop Martin when he told him to keep still. Martin placed him under arrest, and he tried his hand at cop fighting. He had some sense beaten into him and nursed a choice collection of bumps and bruises in the coop overnight. Judge Runyon added to the lesson in good behavior this morning by sending him to jail for forty days.

He Broke His Pledge.

Jack Hogan secured a suspended sentence on a charge of drunkenness in the city court last November by volunteering to sign the pledge. This morning he was arraigned for the fourth time since then on the old charge, and Judge Runyon made it sixty days straight.

Colored Voters to Assemble.

The colored Republican voters will hold a meeting in the Republican Good Government Club rooms tonight in charge of Walter Bernardo. An address will be given by Rev. Mr. Hall, of Grove street.

SOME NOTED MEN TO BE AT THE BANQUET

KEAN, STOKES, FOWLER VOORHEES AMONG THE SPEAKERS.

Guests at the banquet to be tendered to the Superior Officers' Police Protective Association of New Jersey tomorrow night in Bender's Hall in Roselle Park will have an opportunity of listening to speakers who have attained a State, and, some of them, a national reputation. Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees will be toastmaster. The speakers selected and their subjects are as follows: Governor Edward C. Stokes, "Our State;" United States Senator John Kean, "The President;" Congressman Charles N. Fowler, "Our Country;" Mayor Samuel J. Berry, "Our City;" Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, "Our Police;" City Attorney James C. Connolly, "Our County;" Frank Bergen, "Our Press;" and Police Commissioner John C. Rose, "Our Guests."

Besides these eight speakers there will also be at the head of the table twelve invited guests. Some of these may respond to toasts. The entire number of guests at the banquet is expected to number 250. Of these about 100 are members of the Superior Officers' Protective Association. The banquet will be conducted on a scale of unusual elaborateness. Four years ago a similar banquet was held in Bender's Hall. Tomorrow night's affair is expected to outdo it in attendance and importance. The banquet is tendered to the association by the branch of the association made up of members from Union, Middlesex and Monmouth counties. The committee arranging for it consists of Chief Tenney and Captain Peters.

In the afternoon there will be a convention of the State Association in the hall. Matters of interest to the superior police officers in the State will be debated. The officers of the State Association consist of Captain John J. Cleary, of Trenton, president; Chief Tenney, of Elizabeth, vice president; and Captain Peters, of Elizabeth, secretary and treasurer.

YOUNG WOMAN WIELDS WHIP.

Lashes Boy Who Forced Her to Dismount.

Hackensack, Oct. 17—Horsewhippings do not happen very often in this place, so the unusual incident on Saturday created no end of talk. Miss Carrie Ackerman was the young woman who swung the lash, and John Schuer was the victim of the young woman's wrath. She says that young Schuer deliberately forced her into the gutter and she was compelled to jump from her bicycle to prevent a collision.

The young woman seized the whip from the wagon and proceeded to chastise the driver. The lash encircled the boy's face. He opened his mouth and caught the lash between his teeth. He soon lost his hold, and the excited woman was playing the whip on the boy's back when his boss arrived and rescued him from further punishment.

Those who saw the confusion say that the boy was not to blame and that the woman was entirely too hasty in using the whip. The boy was not badly injured.

Pastor Becomes Episcopalian.

Orange, Oct. 17.—The ordination of a former clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal church took place in Grace church, Orange, yesterday morning, and this afternoon the young son of the newly ordained clergyman was baptized and named after Bishop Edwin S. Lines, of the Newark Episcopal diocese. Bishop Lines officiated at the ordination and also at the baptism. The Rev. Lorne eBrnard Johnston, who took the course at Drew Theological Seminary, the Methodist institution at Madison, was ordained.

Doctors Take Down Bars.

ELIZABETH'S COUNCIL VALUES FRANCHISES

P. S. C. MUST PAY FOR TROLLEY ROUTE PRIVILEGE.

There is slight prospect of the Public Service Corporation building the proposed trolley line between Elizabeth and Rahway, owing to what it defines as the severe restrictions of the ordinance adopted by the Elizabeth Common Council. The corporation has declared that it will not accept the franchise under the conditions of the ordinance, claiming that the line cannot be operated successfully under its provisions.

The Elizabeth Common Council met last night and adopted an ordinance by a vote of 19 to 3, imposing three conditions, among others, in granting a franchise to the Public Service Corporation. The three important conditions are that the franchise shall be for fifty years, that the city shall have a voice in the adoption of a schedule, and improvements and in case of controversy, there shall be elected three arbitrators, one from the city, one from the corporation and the two shall select a third. In case the third cannot be chosen, the courts shall be resorted to. The third condition is that the yearly two per cent. of the gross receipts shall be in force for ten years, and at the expiration of that time three per cent. of the gross receipts shall be added, the amount to be paid to be determined upon the ratio of the mileage of tracks in Elizabeth.

The company is given thirty days in which to file its acceptance, but as a letter was received from the company requesting that the petition for the franchise be withdrawn, it is the general poinion that the line will not be built at present.

WILLIAM McINTOSH DEAD.

Resided on Lower End of Woodland Avenue for Many Years.

William McIntosh, for many years a resident of Woodland avenue, near the city line, died at his home yesterday afternoon, in his eighty-first year. He was a farmer by occupation and was well known in this vicinity. He was a regular attendant at Marconnier chapel. Surviving him are two sons and two daughters.

The funeral will be held from his late home Thursday afternoon and interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

Wants Cordova Released.

New Brunswick, Oct. 17.—Application will be made at the next sitting of the Court of Pardons for the release from State prison of J. Frank Cordova, the former South River Methodist minister, who was sentenced a few months ago by Judge Strong to serve four years in jail and to pay the costs of his convictions of assaulting his wife and deserting his family. Cordova eloped twice with Miss Julia Bowne. Mr. Cook, who defended Cordova in his two trials, will make the application for his release on the ground that he has already served sufficient time for the crime he committed. He will also urge that the sentence was excessive.

Champion Boy Bone Breaker.

Morristown, Oct. 17.—Although three years old, Claude, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mooney, of Stanhope, is making a record for accidents. Yesterday while playing he fell and fractured his elbow. It is a bad break, but owing to his youth it is supposed that the fracture will heal without leaving the arm stiff. A year ago he fell and broke his collarbone. When he was only eighteen months old he had his first experience in falling. He then dislocated the elbow which now is broken.

DITCHED HIS AUTO; DRIVER CRUSHED

CHAUFFEUR OF WRECKED CAR HAD BOTH LEGS BROKEN.

While trying to negotiate a curve on Bennett's Hill, Georges road, near New Brunswick, in an automobile going at the rate of forty miles an hour, F. L. Palmer, of 1945 Hazel avenue, Philadelphia, ditched the machine. There were four men in the party, Robert A. Pitts, Edward Leeke and William Rewalt, all of Philadelphia.

The auto did not capsize, but was jammed five feet head-on into the clay bank of the deep ditch into which it was thrown. Three of the men were thrown clear, and escaped with bruises, but Palmer, who was driving, was caught and squeezed as the machine buckled under the impact.

Both of Palmer's legs were broken. He was brought to Wells Hospital, New Brunswick, and is still there. He is very badly hurt, but it is hoped amputation can be avoided. The auto was a wreck.

AMUSEMENTS.

Next Monday, at the Manhattan theatre, New York, Harrison Grey Fiske will produce Maurice Maeterlinck's famous drama, "Monna Vanna," which, although it has been applauded in every great European capital, has never been seen in English either here or abroad. Mr. Fiske has made elaborate preparations for this event, and the production will be one of the most beautiful and impressive that the New York stage has known. Aside from the fact that this will be the first English performance of "Monna Vanna," the event takes on a special interest as it will introduce to the public Madame Kalich as an English star under Mr. Fiske's direction. Madame Kalich will have an exceptional opportunity in "Monna Vanna" to disclose her finer talents as an actress, as this drama has served several of the most famous actresses of Europe as a medium. In fact, its popularity has been such that an opera is being composed from it for production in Paris during the present season. In the opinion of those who have studied Madame Kalich's personality and work, she is destined to take a very high place on the American stage; and certainly she could have no better prospect than that offered by "Monna Vanna" as an introductory play.

Mrs. Humphry Ward's "The Marriage of William Ashe" will be given in the New Plainfield theatre on Thursday night, October 26, when Plainfield's theatre-goers will have the pleasure of greeting Miss Grace George in a role that very well might have been written for her, so well does it seem, in prospect, to fit her personality, temperament, and artistic method. It required an adroit managerial stroke to acquire the stage-rights in Mrs. Ward's famous novel; for, with the demand that sprung up on both sides of the Atlantic immediately following publication, came applications for the right to act from managers all over the world. William A. Brady, quick to recognized the suitability of the character of Lady Kitty for Miss George, was, however, if not the first in the field, at least the man with the best inducement—to wit, an actress who satisfied Mrs. Ward's ideal. His appreciation of the demands of the novel may well be understood from a glance at the cast of well-known English and American players engaged. The allotment of roles is:

William Ashe ....H. Reeves Smith
Lord Parham ..Wm. J. Constantine
Lord Grosville ...Frederick Sidney
Geoffrey Cliffe .....Ben Webster
Eddie Helston ...Mortimer Weldon
The Little Dean .....Alfred Woods
Lady Tranmore ..Maud Williamson
Lady Grosville ..Mrs. R. Carrington
Lady Parham .....Blanche Stewart
Mary Lyster .....Miss D. Seymour and Lady Kitty .....Miss George

A large delegation of "first-nighters" will come down from New York for the performance, which will be given after many weeks of careful preparation.

Short Term of United States Court.

In the United States District Court at Trenton Friday, before Judge Cross, Mary Neuglas, of Elizabeth, indicted by the September Grand Jury, 1903, on the charge of passing counterfeit money, retracted her plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Judge Cross suspended sentence. After the drawing of the jury to try the case of the United States against the Hartwell Steamboat Company, of South Amboy, next Friday, the petit jury was discharged for the term. With the Grand Jury sitting four days and the petit jury getting through in four days by running two courts, this has been the shortest term where business was done in the history of the District Court in New Jersey.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

DAINTY HOSIERY.

Women who follow the fashions in hosiery and make the necessary changes to harmonize with their gowns will wear plain black or white in the house, the new pattern of wide or narrow ribbed and dotted lisle or silk in shades to match street costumes, and hand embroidered silk and lace with reception and evening robes this fall.

Those worn in the morning should always be plain, that is without clocking, drop stitch or embroidery. Te color should also be plain, and black and white are preferable, though occasinally to match a breakfast gown cream or very light blue or pink are worn. The latest designs for afternoon and street use come from Paris and are ribbed, with polka dots in the foot and leg, made in a heavy quality of lisle and silk.

Ribbed hosiery is made in both wide and narrow styles that are such a complete change from the stockings with decorated fronts that they are in great demand now in plain colors, blacks, whites, grays, etc., and in two shades. The latter are decidedly effective and when certain shades are combined are really artistic. To keep them sufficiently dark for practical street wear, most of the stockings show black with green, blue, red, purple, etc., the ribs being black and the spaces between of contrasting or harmonizing color in stripe effect.

In the narrow patterns the ribs are only one-sixteenth of an inch wide, while in the other design they are about a quarter of an inch in width. In lisle these sell for from $3 up nd in silk they cost $7.

Those with embroidered polka dots are quite gaudy, especially when the spots are of a different color, for they are about as large as a ten cent piece, and are placed at close intervals. Many are decorated with embridered silk dots tht are the same shade as the hosiery, whether in dark green, brown, black or purple; but when black ones have spots of red, green or yellow they are strikingly vivid. These can be bought for $7.50 a pair, but n economical woman who can embroider round silk dots may have several pairs for the amount she would have to pay for one in the shops. Plain silk hose in any shade to match the gowns can be bought from eighty-five cents up, and the floss with which the dots are made costs but a trifle, so that, aside from the work of embroidering, stockings of the newest patterns can be made at home at small expense.

Elaborately adorned with embroidery and lace, the fine sheer silk stockings worn with reception and evening gowns sell for prices that range from $12 to $40, according to the kind of decorations. They are made in all the delicate shades and staple colors to match material desirable for evening wear. Those that cost $40 have lace swallows or butterflies with black wings inserted in the front, and instep outlined with heavy silk embroidery that is fashioned into a tree, vine or flower. The materials made in white, cream and yellow silk re desirable backgrounds for the prettily colored black wings. The hand made silk birds and butterflies are so accurately executed that they look natural. The birds are perched as if just ready for flight, and the insects with spread wings are in the act of dipping into the blooms on a rose bush. Stockings that bring the next largest prices are appliqued with point lace over the instep and down the front. The designs set in are outlined with silk embroidery to make them firm, and this treatment gives them a raised effect that is most desirable. The lace may be used in the natural color with black, white, etc., or it may be of the same shade as the material. Pieces of old lace could be inserted in this way at home if a woman knew how to fasten them securely in the stocking and could embroider an outline that would hold them in place and prevent stretching.

TO CHANGE BED OF CREEK.

Conference Will Be Held Today on Newark Meadows.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has in mind a plan to change the course of the great ditch in the Newark meadows, just north of Elizabeth, for the purpose of facilitating some changes which are about to be made there, and a meeting has been arranged for today between Chief Engineer Osgood, of the company, and Health Officer Richards and City Surveyor William H. Luster, Jr., for the purpose of discussing the feasibility of this plan. It is believed that the city can gain considerable help from the proposed change in the matter of ridding the marsh land of mosquitoes.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey last week offered to give $1,000 towards the fund for the extermination of the mosquitoes which, it is evident, will also greatly facilitate the work of the railroad company in its contemplated improvements, by changing the course of the creek.

The decision of the conferees today will be presented for approval at tonight 's meeting of the City Council. It is expected that the plan will meet with favor.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"I suppose I did, general," was the rueful answer, "though she in no wise sought to detain me. Quite the contrary."

"Well, Mr. Benton, your division is doubtless following us by this time, and should be across the Run. My compliments to the general and say I will have his letters forwarded. Now, don't get lost in the woods on your way back."

And thus summarily was the brief interview ended, and the corps commander with his staff rode on.

Now here was a plight for an aide-de-camp! His tent and all his belongings were with those of division headquarters and would doubtless be taken care of by the staff quartermaster, but where was he to find his general—and how? Well he knew the division in marching to follow or overtake the others of the corps—and Kearney's Jersey brigade was just striding by him at the moment—would probably take the shortest road from the camps about Manassas, would follow the winding wood roads and cross Bull Run at Blackburn's or Mitchell's Ford, taking the hypothenuse of the triangle instead of the long way around—the two adjacent sides formed by the Sudley Springs and Warrenton roads. Yet he had fully intended to be back at the Henry house before this hour that found him still in saddle and crowded off the highway—he and his orderly both beginning to get hungry and their horses showing signs of hard riding. It ended in his picking a way past the flank of the marching column, every now and then narrowly shaving some straggler along the dilapidated stone wall that skirted the pike, and after half an hour's groping, finding himself once more at Centreville as the rear of Franklin's fine division was clearing it.

On the westward rise of the roadway, just beyond the old stone church in Centreville, Burns, his orderly, set to work to rub down the horses in the fenceless yard of the first big house to the right of the road and Benton banged at the door in quest of supper. Those were still the early—the "velvet" days of the war when almost anything but a square fight could be had for money, and the aide was in no wise surprised to find half a dozen field and staff officers eating heartily in the kitchen, and rather loudly and coarsely, yet not really ill-naturedly, chaffing an elderly, gray-haired man who, seated by himself at a little table, answered their crude sallies with imperturbable dignity and patience. One of the number knew Benton and jovially hailed him by name:—

"What ho, thou limb of the west! Fred Benton, by all that's lucky! Well met, my bold Badger, for we're well nigh dead broke. Our Boniface here wants a dollar apiece for our supper and five dollars for the demijohn of peach brandy he'd been saving for Joe Johnston. We can manage the tax for the victuals, Fred. It's the peach that staggers us." And there was unconscious truth in the statement, for the entire party showed symptoms of undue exhilaration.

"I'll stake you, provided you've left enough supper for me and my orderly," laughed Benton. "Otherwise I'll see you hanged first. How is it, friend? What can you give me?" and he turned to the man of the house, and he in turn to the tall, unkempt creature in faded calico, hair and complexion, just entering from the "lean-to" at the eastward side. A shrug of the scraggy shoulders was the significant reply, supplemented by the brief word "Nuthin'."

Somewhere out on the pike a cavalry trumpet sounded "Mount," and the sextette started. "By Jove! There goes the escort, so we must move," cried a burly major. "Come, Benton, fork over and we'll have a stirrup cup." With that he lugged the demijohn from underneath the table, slung it by a deft turn of the wrist, camp fashion, across his right forearm, and proceeded to pour a liberal shot into the glasses and cups held forth to him. Then the devil of over stimulation sent him lunging across the narrow floor to the table where sat the lonely Virginian. "Come, old chap," he cried, "you're all right. We've been a little free, perhaps. Soldiers will be soldiers, you know. You're a gentleman. Join us in a drink, sir, and a toast. Hey, fellows, let's have a toast."

"Forward!" rang the trumpets on the soft night wind, and the rumble of wheels gave way to the clack and clatter of countless hoofs.

"Come on, major!" shouted Capt. Cranston, he who had accosted Benton, and by this time had readily effected the needed loan—with unneeded increment. "Come on! Don't bother the gentleman. We must be off."

But the major was bent on another drink and having the gray-haired stranger share it despite the latter's plea to be excused.

"One toast—just one!" shouted he of the demijohn. "Here's to Little Mac, by Jupiter, the best general—the best gentleman in the whole army! Ain't he, old chap?"

And to the surprise of all, even in the midst of the boisterous talk and confusion as the party searched for discarded sabres and gauntlets, the elderly stranger arose, held forth his glass and courteously said: "Give me a thimbleful, sir. I'll join you in that with infinite pleasure."

"Bully for you, old boy!" cried the major, who had gulped a stiff three fingers, whereas the Virginian had merely sipped at his glass. "Now, 'scuse me—just two drops more. One more toast. Here's confusion to the confederacy—an' everything c'nected with it—an', an'——"

"Oh, come out of this, Mullen!" growled a comrade, grasping him by the arm. "Come out or I'll——"

"Not till I've had a st'rrup cup with this gen'leman—not till he drinks my toasht—I've drunk his. Ready, sir? Here's confush'n to the confederacy an' everybody— What! You won't drink that? You a damned reb'l, too?" and before his friends could interpose the half crazed fellow had lunged threateningly forward at the pallid stranger, who, having set down his glass untouched, stood facing them, one hand uplifted in silent protest. It was Benton who sprang between them and with apparently laughing ease, whirled the major about, and with his powerful hands on the burly shoulders sent him struggling and swearing to the doorway where the others closed about and bore him away, one of their number, a young staff captain, running back to say a word of apology. Then Fred and the stranger found themselves for the moment alone.

"You have done me a kindness, suh," said the latter. "Did I catch the name a-right? Lieut. Fred Benton, of —of Wisconsin?"

"Benton, yes," was the wary answer, for though the word Badger had been spoken, Wisconsin had not. Somebody had talked to this man of him before and now light flashed suddenly upon the situation.

"Are you—pardon me—Dr. Chilton, of Charlottesville?" asked Benton.

"The same, suh, at your suhvice. I have been to Gen. McClellan for permission to take my son, wounded and paroled, back home, suh. He treated me like the courteous gentleman he is, so I drank his health. Now, pardon me, you have not eaten," and with that Dr. Chilton arose, and followed the whispering Darby and Joan into the lean-to, and when he returned it was with an air of mild triumph.

"You shall be suhved, suh, in a very few moments, also your orderly" (he called it "ohdly"). "You ride on to Fairfax?"

"No," said Benton, "I look to meet my division somewhere about here. They come by way of the lower fords, as I am told."

WEDS WIDOW HE SUED FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

DOCTOR WOULDN'T WITHDRAW SUIT, EVEN WHEN LICENSE WAS ISSUED.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—Dr. W. W. Campbell, a McKeesport osteopath who some time ago entered suit for breach of promise and $25,000 damages against Mrs. Rose A. Breitenreiter, a wealthy young widow, of McKeesport, was married to her last Friday evening. The secret was kept until the couple appeared together at church yesterday and Dr. Campbell introduced his wife.

The couple took out a marriage license last Monday, but at that time it was not known when the ceremony would be performed, and Dr. Campbell said he would not withdraw the suit until after the ceremony, for he was afraid Mrs. Breitenreiter might again change her mind.

It is understood that a cash settlement was made on Dr. Campbell, and that there is a clause in the agreement which gives either party the right to have the marriage declared void at any time. This stipulation was insisted upon by the relatives of Mrs. Breitenreiter.

MAY TEACH PRINTING.

Typographical Union Objects to Plan of Orange Educators.

Orange, Oct. 17.—The Orange Board of Education has under serious consideration a plan to establish a printing plant in connection with the High School, that the students may publish a newspaper. The intention is to have the boys do all the work of collecting and gathering news, setting the type and running off the paper. Many in Orange think this is a first rate plan, and hope the teachers and course of study committee will see it through. It is not likely, though, that the labor unions will permit the introduction of the scheme without a fight, and already Typographical Union No. 103, of Newark, has denounced it as a blow at the inalienable rights of the laboring man, and has appointed a committe to wait on the Orange educators.

Dr. G. Herbert Richards, of the Board of Education, says many of the boys want to learn printing and establish a school paper. About 350 square feet of floor space is available for the plant, which would require an outlay of about $2,000. Printing could be an elective course, the pupils paying 10 cents a week. The man who is put in the plant will instruct the class three times a week.

The Newark Typographical Union denounces the plan as a scheme to educate strike breakers. Edward H. Ashton, president of the union, declares that Issac H. Blanchard, a former member of the Board of Education and a New York printer, is behind the proposition to fill the positions made vacant by strikers among union compositors. It is believed that the printers will use every endeavor to break up the scheme.

KILLED A BIG BLACK-SNAKE.

Richfield Man Has An Unpleasant Encounter Chestnutting.

Walter Clark killed a black-snake which measured over five feet in length in a field near the Paterson turnpike in Richfield yesterday afternoon.

Clark, while in quest of chestnuts, aroused the snake, which rost up in front of him hissing. Clark seized a stout stick and struck at the reptile, but missed it. The snake tried to coil itself around Clark's leg, but he managed to evade it and stunned it with a blow. Then he dispatched it.

The snake was as big around as a man's wrist. Clark will have the skin mounted.

Make Girls Wrecks.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 17.—Professor John Tyler, of the biographical department of Amherst College, in a speech at the luncheon of the Connecticut Valley Headmasters' Club and the Western Massachusetts Grammar Masters' Club startled his hearers by saying: "The rigid requirements of women's colleges are working incalculable injury to girls. If there is one girl to graduate at the end of the year, even though 999 have dropped out physical wrecks, then will the elect get together and thank God for the one graduate." Professor Tyler contended that the young woman of today was not so well equipped physically for the strain of college life as her counterpart of a generation ago. "The change," he said, "is due to the lessened vigor of parents."

Favor Salary to Fee System.

After a conference John W. Hendrickson, Frank L. Kresage and William P. Milette, Democratic candidates for the Assembly in Mercer county, pledged themselves to use their most earnest efforts for the passage of a law giving to the county officials of the State, in all cases, salaries in lieu of the present method of compensating these officers by the fee system.

GIANTS BREAK DATE.

New York Nationals Will Not Play Plainfield.

The New York Nationals have refused to visit Plainfield on Saturday and meet the Union county champions on Crescent Oval. It was verbally understood between Manager Daab and the New York management that the two teams would meet here on Saturday, and of course Mr. Daab expected the Giants to keep the date.

On Saturday Mr. Daab had a feeling that the Giants would fail and communicated with the management. Yesterday he received an answer stating that the Giants would not play here. It is understood that the Giants will break up on Thursday for the winter. The receipts from the post-season series were so satisfactory that the members of the team feel sure that they can manage to live comfortably until practice begins next spring. Consequently they do not need the little extra money they would receive from an exhibition game here.

The Giants stopped in Trenton yesterday and had a close contest with the Y. M. C. A. aggregation. McGinnity and Egner were the opposing pitchers. The home team secured but one hit, while the champions tallied four off Egner. The score was 1 to 0 in favor of the McGrawites, the tally being made on Horton's muff of an easy drive. When Gilbert stepped to the bat in the second inning he was presented with a $250 diamond stud by the fans.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The graduating class of the Whittier School has decided on its pin design. Pins for all the class are expected next week.

Principal Travell, of the city High School, has decided to inaugurate a series of fire drills to continue as long as the pleasant weather lasts. The first is to be held today.

A meeting of the Boys' Athletic Association of the city High School has been called for Thursday morning to decide whether it is to be entered in the scholastic league proposed by the Newark High School. It is planned to have it consist of associations from Newark, Montclair, East and South Orange, Plainfield and one other. A meeting of those concerned will be held at Newark if Plainfield decides at the meeting Thursday to send three delegates.

Teams representing the Plainfield High, North Plainfield High and Leal's Schools have formed an interscholastic basketball league and will play a series of games this winter for the championship of the local schools. The games will be played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Each school has strong material from which to draw and the teams are sure to be very evenly matched. Representatives from the three schools have arranged a six game series, the first of which will be played on December 13, between Plainfield and North Plainfield High School. The other dates are as follows: December 20, Leals against North Plainfield High; January 10, Leals against Plainfield High; January 24, Plainfield High against North Plainfield High; February 14, Leals against North Plainfield High; February 28, Leals against Plainfield High.

MILITIA MEN PREPARING.

Fourth Regiment Making Plans for Its Fair.

Jersey City, Oct. 17.—National guardsmen are in a state of agitation over the Fourth Regiment fair, which will open on Wednesday night and close on Saturday night, October 28. The proceeds will be expended in the construction of bowling alleys and a swimming tank for the enlisted men. Governor Stokes, accompanied by his general and personal staff, will be the stellar attraction on the opening night.

According to the official programme there will be notables on view each night of the fair. They will include Major General P. Farmer Wanser, Brigadier General Campbell, Mayor Fagan, Colonel Samuel D. Dickinson and former City Collector Robert Davis, the two latter being respectively the Republican and Democratic leaders in Hudson county.

COON HUNTERS IN FIGHT.

Took Posse to Capture Men Alleged to Have Injured Companion.

Mount Holly, Oct. 17.—James Phillips and William Bowles, white men, were committed to the jail here today to await the result of injuries alleged to have been inflicted by them on Bert Johnson, a negro. All three have homes in Trenton.

The ywent to Brown's Mills Sunday to hunt coons with dogs, and while there, it is alleged, Phillips and Bowles became intoxicated and attacked Johnson, inflicting serious injuries. After the row they stood in the middle of the road and dared any one to arrest them, threatening to kill the first person that approached them.

They finally were overpowered by a sheriff's posse and taken to the lockup. They were committed by Justice Joyce.

To Present Henry V. at Princeton.

Princeton, Oct. 17.—Ben Greet's company, which has given several performances in Shakespearian repertoire in Princton the last two years, will present Shakespeare's "Henry V." in Alexander Hall on November 2.

TRYING TO INTEREST OUR TEDDY IN ENGLISH GAME OF SOCKER FOOTBALL

The English footballers were yesterday afternoon the guests of President Eliot, of Harvard, explaining to him, at his request, the game of "socker" football, which is to be played in Boston today by the "Pilgrims" and All Boston, with W. S. Whacker, of Harvard, as captain.

Captain Fred Milne, of the English team, who has been in communication with President Roosevelt in regard to the college and "socker" games, accompanied by Vivian Woodward, the English all-round champion, leaves Boston on Tuesday night to visit the President, with the hope the "socker" will be more generally played on this side of the water, and that next year in addition to playing the local "socker" team, an international game may be arranged by All America and All England, as well as All Canada, for the handsome cup given by Sir Ernest Cochrane, Bart, or some other trophy.

BLIND BOYS TAKE UP FOOTBALL; PLAY GAME THAN FAIRLY STARTLES ONLOOKERS

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 17.—Eleven blind boys, football representatives of the Kentucky Institute for the Blind, Saturday contested on the institute gridiron with the Crescent Hill eleven, boys who can see. The game, although ragged, was a rough and as fierce as the usual run of football games. The final score, 25 to 0 in favor of Crescent Hill, does not represent the respective merits of the two teams.

Although handicapped by sightless eyes, the boys of the institute eleven attempted and executed with almost the success of their opponents mass plays, end runs and even fake plays. It was remarkable how the blind boys went into the game. They played so well and so orderly that several chance spectators were fairly startled and could scarcely be induced to believe that the players in the green jerseys could not see.

PAID FIREMEN TO MEET AT TRENTON OCT. 30

FIVE HUNDRED DELEGATFS TO ATTEND BENEFIT'S SESSION.

Five hundred firemen will attend the ninth annual convention of the New Jersey Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association, at Trenton, on Monday, October 30. The members of the organization are connected with the paid fire departments in cities throughout the State, and the fact that they spend their entire time in fire fighting makes them a strong and representative body. Many firemen from this city, including Chief Doane, will attend the convention, which is expected to be larger and more important in various ways than previous gatherings of the same kind. Turner Hall will be the headquarters and meeting place of the convention, which will be called to order at 11 o'clock in the morning. There will be two business sessions, with an intermission for luncheon, and in the evening there will be a banquet.

Several men prominent in the affairs of the State have signified their intention of being present, and the city fire departments which will be represented will be Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Hoboken, Camden, Trenton, Plainfield, Atlantic City, Elizabeth, the Oranges and Montclair.

The officers of the State association are as follows: President, Michael J. Ryan, of Paterson; vice president, Thomas McGinty, of Trenton; secretary, Robert D. Bender, of Newark, and treasurer, James Eberson, of Camden. The chief business of the convention will be the discussion and action for adoption of a per capita tax assessment; otherwise the business will be mostly of a routine nature. Reports of the standing and special committees will be received, new committees will be appointed and old one ordered continued, and the place for the holding of the next session will be decided upon.

MOB IN PHILADELPHIA.

Outraged Citizens Storm Gang's Leader and Organ.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—Roused to a sense of the wrongs that have been inflicted upon the community by the grafting officials of the Republican machine a mob of thousands paraded the streets until early today.

This motley parade followed the impassioned speeches at the Academy of Music, where Gov. Folk, of Missouri, was the orator of the evening, and where other men spoke for the City Party ticket to the thousands unable to obtain admission, but who remained for the overflow meetings outside.

The mob visited the home of Israel W. Durham and Senator McNichol and also the office of the Inquirer, where preparations were made to protect the newspaper by getting ready the firehouse.

"Dare to treat this meeting unfairly," yelled the leaders of the mob, "and we will tear down the building."

It was after the Academy meeting was over that the cry was taken up to "Move on Durham's!"

POLITICAL TIPS.

Democrats of Trenton Saturday nominated Robert A. Messlerr for Mayor and Assessor Harry M. Slack for tax receiver.

William J. Bryan and his family, who arrived at Yokohoma Saturday, will spend two weeks in Japan. They will make a visit of five days to Tokio and Marquis Ito, president of the Privy Council, and Count Okuma, the Foreign Minister, will invite Mr. Bryan to a dinner. The Japan-American Society will invite Mr. Bryan to address its members at the Young Men's Hall October 17. Count Okuma will preside at the function.

THE STATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION

PROGRAMME FOR THE ATLANTIC CITY TWO DAYS' SESSION.

Concerning the State Sunday-school convention, which is to meet in St. Paul's M. E. church, Atlantic City, November 14-16, the chairman of the programme committee, C. B. Parsons, has this to say in a circular sent out to Sunday-school workers:

"We have had great Sunday-school conventions before in New Jersey, but the coming gathering at Atlantic City bids fair to eclipse them all, in everything that makes a convention worthy of remembrance.

"The divided institute plan followed for several years is to be laid aside this year, except for Tuesday afternoon. The whole force of every speaker and of every number is to be given to the convention as a whole. Delegates who come early and stay through can practically take it all home.

"What an array of speakers we have! Marion Lawrance, of Ohio, our beloved international general secretary, will be with us throughout, speaking several times. Mrs. Flora V. Stebbins, of Massachusetts, is the leading home department expert in the country, and she will be there throughout. Professor Martin G. Brumbaugh, Ph. D., the leading expert on Sunday-school teacher-training, will come to us from the University of Pennsylvania. In the raising of our State income for next year we shall have the aid of the genial and inspiring business agent of the Methodist Book Concern, Rev. John Krantz, D. D., and we look forward to this as one of the most spirited and helpful hours we shall have. On Wednesday evening, while the superintendents are banqueting, the rest of us will hear a brilliant illustrated address by Miss Ben-Oliel, who is also to address us on Thursday afternoon. On Thursday evening the convention will close with inspiring messages from Rev. Henry C. Cronin, of Jersey City, and our good governor, Hon. Edward C. Stokes, whose presence with us at such a season is an unusual honor and privilege."

CATARACT OF CATS.

Some One Played a Mean Joke on Trenton Policeman.

Trenton, Oct. 17.—Some one placed as a joke the following advertisement in a local newspaper:

"Wanted—To buy a good cat. Call at No. 28 High street, city."

Policeman Fox lives at the address, and all sorts of cats were brought to the place all day. When it was found that there was no sale the animals were abandoned in the street. The presence of the animals created much indignation in the neighborhood, but as the Fox family is not very well known there none of the neighbors could summon enough courage to go to the patrolman's house and enter a protest.

The policeman is now endeavoring to learn the identity of the perpetrator of the joke.

Counter Charges Against Wife.

Trenton, Oct. 17.—George N. Van Doren, of this city, has filed in the Court of Chancery an answer to his wife's suit for divorce, denying her charges of cruelty and making counter accusations of a grave nature. He declares that he married her at her solicitation and that her whole course toward him "has been one of vindictiveness and enmity, and her language toward him profane and vituperative."

State Home Adjutant Resigns.

Vineland, Oct. 17. — Adjutant Vreeland is to leave the State home for soldiers and their widows here. He says he had intended to resign long ago, but the officials of the institution confirm the rumor that he was requested to get out. The resignation will take effect November 1.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Members of the Daughters of Liberty are speculating as to the outcome of the National Council's action taken at the recent Chicago session, in referring the male eligibility clause to the several State Councils of the order for settlement. For the past five years effort has been made by one element in the order to amend the general laws of the organization so that all American-born men could gain admission. These efforts have been made at sessions of the National Council, it being conceded that one law on the subject must govern the whole order. The laws of the order provide a two-thirds vote in its favor to be adopted. As regularly as the proposition appeared it was defeated.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Frank Neidig, of Manning avenue, has returned from a visit with New York friends.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay, of West Front street, and daughter, Mrs. Mehlenbeck, of Somerville, have returned home after spending six months in Scotland.

He plays every Saturday night for a dance at Gillette.

BECAME "FIEND" at 73.

Barrett's Daughters Hale Him to Court for Smoking Cigarettes.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Samuel T. Barrett, seventy-three years of age, was haled into the county court Saturday by his daughters Winifred and Adela to show cause why he should not be put under restraint for the cigarette habit.

The daughters assert that he has only recently acquired the habit, and that he has already become a "fiend." One result has been a decided tendency toward "sporty" things. He laid in a supply of diamonds and wore them conspicuously. He ordered strange attire for a man of his years; flashy garments that shocked his daughters.

Physicians testified that Mr. Barrett's brain was affected, and the court ordered him into a sanitarium.

Odd Robbery Charge.

Job Harris, a colored boy, was arraigned before Justice Mosher this morning, charged with stealing a brass wash boiler. The charge was made by Mrs. Lena Friedman, of West Third street, who alleged that Harris found the boiler full of hot wash in her yard, dumped the wash on the ground and skipped with the boiler without waiting for it to cool. She couldn't bring proof of the charge, and the case was dismissed. F. J. Blatz appeared for Harris.

Racing Ostrich Here Tomorrow.

The racing ostrich "Jacksonville" will arrive in Plainfield tomorrow afternoon over the P. & R. Railroad and will be taken at once to the Driving Park. The big bird will at once go into training for its match with a local trotting horse Saturday afternoon.

PROPERTY OWNERS SPEAK

Appear Before Commissioners in Regard to Proposed Street Widenings.

NO PROTEST IS MADE

Asked for Fair Treatment in Making Improvements—Further Meeting to Be Held Next Week.

Elliot T. Barrows and Lewis G. Timpson, two of the commissioners appointed by the Common Council to treat with property-owners in the matters of widening Sycamore street and Park avenue and the opening of Stebbins place, held their first meeting at the Common Council rooms, last night. Evarts Tracy, the third commissioner, is out of town and could not be present. He is expected home within a week, and the commissioners will meet on Tuesday night, October 24, at the same place and hour to continue their work.

Six interested property-owners appeared before the commissioners, last night, and a noteworthy fact was that not a single protest was made. Every owner seemed pleased with the proposed improvements and all they asked was fair treatment, which was assured.

Bateman Thatcher, D. W. Littell and Howard Prescott Reynolds appeared in the interest of property owned by them on or near Sycamore street. Mr. Reynolds, by the improvement, would lose the most property, as his land extends well into the street which it is proposed to use in widening Sycamore street between Fourth and Fifth streets. However, he expressed his willingness to assist in making the improvement realizing that it would be a benefit.

H. A. Todd and F. J. Skinner appeared in the interest of property owned by them on or near Stebbins place, which it is proposed to open. Mr. Skinner would lose about five feet of his property which is located at the corner of the place and where it is proposed to open the thoroughfare, and it would appear that his benefits would exceed the damages.

John G. MacLaughlin was the only one appearing in the interest of Park avenue property, his particular property being that adjoining Charles W. McCutchen's tract which he purchased from Boice, Runyon & Co. Others interested in the Park avenue widening are the Plainfield Trust Com, pany, Charles W. McCutchen and Boice, Runyon & Co., it being necessary to take some property from each to make the improvement.

It seems to be the opinion, however, that other property within the area extending from Second street to the railroad, will be asked to share in standing the expense of the improvement, it being considered of benefit to property in the immediate vicinity.

It was somewhat of a surprise that more property-owners did not appear before the commissioners, but an effort will be made to have them attend at the next meeting. After the commissioners treat with the property-owners, they will prepare their report and submit it to the Common Council. It will then be up to that body to either approve or reject the report. If accepted, the action will be final and the property-owners will have to abide by it.

CROMWELL ENTERTAINMENT.

Arrangements Practically Completed for Its Presentation.

Arrangements are practically completed for the Cromwell entertainmen which is to be given at Hope chapel on November 6, 7 and 8. The very best of Plainfield's talent has been secured by the committee and they are confident of a highly successful presentation of the famous English's career.

The following women will act as patronesses:

Mrs. Charles F. Abbott, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. Frederic A. Andrews, Mrs. Frank H. Ball, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, Mrs. Henry E. Bowen, Mrs. Paul T. Brown, Mrs. Frederic W. Butler, Mrs. George G. —Charles E. Steiner, of Jackson avenue, a clerk at S. H. Whitney's dry goods store, has been detained at home during the past month by a severe attack of rheumatism.

NEW HOME FOR A BANK PRESIDENT

L. K. HYDE TO HAVE A FINE HOME ON MOUNTAINSIDE.

Walker & Morris, New York architects, who drew the plans for Francis de Lacey Hyde's residence on the mountains, have completed plans for a handsome dwelling for Louis K. Hyde, president of the City National Bank, to be located near the home of his brother. It will occupy a site nearer the top of the mountain.

The dwelling will be one story brick, 50x60, and will be a modern one in every respect. John Abbott, of West Front street, has received the contract for the work, and J. V. Snyder has received the contract for the mason work. A large gang of men began the work of excavating for the cellar today and it is hoped to have the dwelling completed by April 1 next.

PROF. GRIGGS TALKS ON THOMAS CARLYLE

CHARACTERISTICALLY, FORCEFUL AND TRENCHANT PICTURE.

Thomas Carlyle's life, his genius and the things that affected the development of his nature and philosophy, were lyrically expounded by Prof. Griggs in the fourth of his lectures on moral leaders at Vincent chapel, last night. Prof. Griggs' eloquence, his gift of logical and rhythmic construction of sentence and period, continues to mark his lectures. His forty-five minute expositions of great men's lives are remarkable in their clear, evenly compact pictures of the subjects and their missions, but the great thing about them that stands out is the beauty of the lecturer's style.

It is an injustise to Prof. Griggs, and a poor service to readers, to attempt a rehash of the lectures he delivers. It requires a Griggs to present a true copy of the pictures he draws and a syllabus of the brilliant and thought-crowded, if brief, discursions from his subjects.

As for the Carlyle lecture, the Chelsea philosopher never was pictured more clearly, more trenchantly, on the lecture platform. The audience could see him grow, and live, and move; could understand the strife and turmoil of his spiritual battle, and realize where and why his marriage, of which so much—"too much," the lecturer said—has been written, failed in all that marriage should be.

Those who miss the Griggs lectures miss much that is intellectually entertaining and enriching. Those who missed the ones that have been delivered have two more opportunities of enjoying a "Griggs evening." Next Tuesday Prof. Griggs will lecture on Emerson, and the Tuesday following on Tolstoy.

COLORED VOTERS RALLY.

Addressed Last Night by Mayor Smalley and Others.

The colored Republican voters of the borough assembled in the Republican Good Government Club headquarters last night and enjoyed a programme of music and speeches. Addresses were made by Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Clifford McGee and Walter Bernardo, the latter the leader of the borough colored forces. The Black Diamond quartette delighted the gathering with several selections and fancy step dancing.

The club will conduct another of its weekly smokers tomorrow night. Several prominent boroughites will make addresses and Judge Runyon and others will sing.

Mr. Buckley's New Position.

J. H. Buckley, who has been employed at the freight house for fourteen years, has resigned his position and today he enters upon new duties as a conductor for the Pullman Palace Car Company. His run will be between Jersey City and Washington. The new position is a more lucrative one than he formerly held. Mr. Buckley has had charge of the shipment and receiving of freight at the freight hous and has been the righthand man for Agent J. A. Haynes. His uniform courtesy, honesty and strict attention to business has won for him many friends, especially among the business men of the city, with whom he had much dealing.

Want Slice of Hospital Land.

A special meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital was held at the Casino last night to consider an offer for a strip of land owned by the hospital and located in Scotch Plains. The board has received a number of offers for this tract, but is not anxious to sell. No action was taken last night concerning the offer.

FOR BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Seven of the Eight Teams in Y. M. C. A. Are Ready.

LIST OF THE PLAYERS

Dr. Browning's Business Men In It—First Team Getting Ready For a Busy Season Against Strong Fives.

Arrangements for the formation of an eight-team basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. are rapidly taking final shape. Seven teams, organized and ready to play, have signed for membership, and the formation of the lacking team is an easy matter. One of the seven teams is from the Business Men's gymnasium class, captained by Dr. Browning, and the other six are drawn from members of the evening gymnasium classes. They are called and made up as follows:

Rangers: Phillips, captain; Martain, Hoagland, Whitney, Sampson, Colun.

Plungers: Collier, captain; Pearce, Dawson, Latt, Viebrock, Hardcastle, Aalholm.

Ralstons: Gavett, captain; Douglas, Hanson, Mueck, Ferguson, Utzinger.

Suburbans: Stutsman, captain; Sebring, Loizeaux, Kenyon, Hallock, Neal, Hawk.

101: Shepard, captain; Monday, Kenney, Hunter, Sanderson, Meaney, Templin.

Stoics: Collinsworth, captain; Nash, Marklin, Harkins, Thompson, Barlow, Collier.

The teams are confined to members of the Y. M. C. A. It is planned to play a series of twenty-eight games, on fourteen Saturday nights, beginning November 18. The members of the championship team will receive individual prizes.

In addition to the league the association will have a strong representative five. The first team squad will meet for practice Friday nights. There is an unusually large number of candidates out for a place on the team this year.

The combination will be one of the best the association has ever turned out. Dr. Browning, the manager, is securing games with some of the strongest teams in this section, to be played here, and a lot of sport is promised for those who know and like the game.

MR. KANE'S STATEMENT.

Denies that He Has Had Trouble in Converting Church to Flats.

Alex Kane, who purchased the Fillmore Baptist church and had the building converted into flats, denies the statement published in another paper that he owes $175 to Daniel Van Orden on contract for the work. Van Orden has instituted suit in Justice Nash's court for this amount, and the case will be heard next Monday.

According to Kane, he wanted Van Orden to take the job on contract, but he was unable to furnish sufficient security. He was then hired by the day and after working a short time quit unceremoniously. Kane located him some time afterward and paid him off, a total of $30. There was no other trouble of any kind on the building, Kane says, and the alterations have been fully completed and people are now residing in the flats.

Opening of Chancery Court.

Chancellor Magie, with the seven vice chancellors, formally opened the October term of the Court of Chancery at the State House, Trenton, yesterday morning. The opening was attended by a large array of prominent lawyers from all sections of the State. The first work was the calling of the list of forty-three cases. As they were called the cases were assigned to the various vice chancellors for a hearing. Then the court was divided, the vice chancellors being assigned to various rooms, and the argument of the suits was proceeded with. The local case, that of the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Company, administrator, against Mary Frances Armstrong and others, was assigned to Vice Chancellor Bergen, but a hearing on it was not reached.

No Britt-Nelson Pictures.

Believing that they are not the originals as represented, Manager Counihan has cancelled his contract for the appearance of the Britt-Nelson pictures at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday. He will instead have the Shepperd moving pictures, affording delightful entertainment for everybody.

Settlement May be Affected.

The suit of E. S. Hooley and others against John Herman, of the borough, which seeks to restrain the defendant from reconstructing a dam, has been postponed in the hopes that a settlement may be affected.

NO MERCY FOR LAHEY

Four Counts to be Pressed Against Him And His Pals.

CONVICTED ON TWO

Trio Brought to Court in Shackles and Surrounded by Armed Constables—Heavy Sentences Ahead of Them.

"Hack" Lahey, John Regan and "Red" Dennis Harrington, the most desperate prisoners the Somerset county authorities have ever held, who recently blew a hole in the side of the Somerville jail in a sensational attempt to escape, were convicted yesterday afternoon and this morning, on two of the four charges to be pressed against them. They are being tried before Judge Schenck.

The jury found them guilty of holding up Edward McManus, after a short consideration of the evidence yesterday afternoon. Another jury was immediately sworn, and Prosecutor Reger pressed the charge of jail breaking. The jury found them guilty as charged this morning.

This afternoon the men will be arraigned before another jury on a charge of robbing a Finderne house, and after that trial upon a charge of breaking into a Somerville bottling establishment. Lahey, the leader of the trio, must answer to an additional charge of carrying concealed weapons.

The Somerset authorities are determined to load the gang with the severest punishment possible. The prisoners will probably be found guilty on every charge, and the sentences are likely to total up to an unusual term. On account of the desperate character of the prisoners, the jail officers are taking no chances while the men are on trial. The trio is brought into court shackled hand and foot, and constables, armed and ready to shoot, surround them at all times until their cell doors close on them. They are kept in close confinement.

VETERAN TEACHER TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

MISS RUNYON'S MIND UNBALANCED FROM WORRY.

Miss Carrie Runyon, of Watchung avenue, who, up to the time of her resignation three years ago, was one of the oldest teachers in the Plainfield High School, was taken to the State Hospital at Trenton, yesterday, by Dr. Albert Pittis, acting for Dr. P. J. Zeglio.

For some time Miss Runyon has been ill and the death of her brother, Albert Runyon, of the borough, together with worriment over financial matters, completely upset her mind. Dr. Zeglio was called in and at first he thought the trouble only temporary. She did not improve and it was finally decided to place her in the State Hospital. She was not at all violent, but the condition of her mind was such that it was not safe to leave her alone.

Miss Runyon taught the first grammar grade in the Plainfield High School for a great many years, and her record was an exceptional one. After a long service she was obliged to give up teaching owing to the loss of her voice. She had drawn a pension since retirement. This affliction worried her a great deal and the enforced idleness preyed on her mind, which was only aggravated by the death of her brother. She lived alone at the Runyon homestead on Watchung avenue, being the only one left of the family.

WORKMAN INJURED.

Caught Between Machines Being Moved and Gashed About Head.

John W. Pierce, of Park avenue, received several severe wounds about the face and head in an accident at the United Machine Printing Company's plant on East Fourth street this morning. He was engaged with several other men in moving some heavy machinery when he was caught between two iron frames. Projecting bolts and other parts tore along his face and scalp making a number of incised gashes.

He was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance where it was said at noon that he would soon recover.

Meeting at Reform Hall.

The Reform Club conducted the first of a series of winter entertainments and temperance meetings in its hall last night. It was enjoyed by a large gathering. An address was given by John B. Oakley, of Elizabeth, and moving pictures and stereopticon views were shown.

GODDINGTON DECLINES

Lawyer Will Not Accept Proposed Nomination For State Senator From Democrats

SAYS HE'S TOO BUSY

Urgent Efforts Made to Get Him to Become a Candidate—Only Democrat Ever Elected City Judge.

Former Judge W. A. Coddington has declined to allow the Democratic party to nominate him for State Senator. The convention will be held in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, tonight, and for the last forty-eight hours every effort has been made to get Mr. Coddington to permit his name to go before the convention. This morning he announced finally that under no circumstances would he accept a tender of a nomination.

A committee, appointed by the County Executive Committee, waited upon the judge at his law offices yesterday afternoon. They informed him that throughout the county there was an urgent demand on the part of the leaders for his nomination. His popularity and general qualifications for the office, they said, made him a desirable candidate.

In declining the offer, Judge Coddington gave as his reason that his business would not allow him to enter a political campaign at this time. Attention to his law practise, he said, required all his time and he could not afford to devote three weeks to political affairs.

Again today another effort was made to have him change his decision. It was without avail. The county committeemen have been urged by several men conspicuous in politics to endorse them for the nomination but no action has been taken and none is likely to until the convention tonight.

Inasmuch as the Republicans have nominated Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, the Democratic leaders wanted to get an equally strong man as his opponent and they hit upon Judge Coddington. The latter is popular in the city and is well thought of in the county. His strength is attested by the fact that he is the only Democrat ever elected on a Democratic ticket to the office of City Judge. That was in 1892 and he is considered stronger today than then.

WANT 9-HOUR DAY.

Movement Started by Union Machinists.

Agitation has been started by all the locals of District 47 of the International Association of Machinists, which includes all mechanics of this craft in Northern New Jersey, to secure a universal nine-hour working day for its members. Plans are being formulated now for the demanding of this condition the first day of May next, and the members of all locals have been urged to do all in their power to bring about the most perfect harmony in their organizations, now that conditions are so favorable for them. The demand will not involve all machinists, because many of them are even now enjoying the nine-hour day, but it is intended to help those who are obliged to work in shops where that condition does not prevail. The strike of four years ago for the same thing was very successful, but there were some who did not give in, and since that time many shops have come into existence which do not recognize the nine-hour day.

John Drew Booked for Plainfield.

In his determination to bring the highest class of dramatic attractions to the New Plainfield theatre, Manager Counihan has secured one of the greatest of the season's metropolitan successes. He made arrangements today for the appearance in the city of John Drew in his latest play, "De Lancey," on December 22. He will be accompanied by the entire original cast that has made the production one of the most noteworthy ever seen at Charles Frohman's Empire theatre, where it is now running.

The Bike Thief Again.

The bicycle thief paid a visit to the city yesterday noon and appropriated H. C. Van Emburgh's wheel, left standing in front of his home on Richmond street. A servant in an adjoining residence noticed a stranger observing the machine closely and suddenly jump on it and speed away on East Second street. It is thought the fellow is one of the organized gang from Newark that has been operating in this section recently. Mr. Van Emburgh's wheel was a Reliable.

Citizens' Party Meeting.

The Citizens' party of the borough, will hold a meeting in its club rooms on Somerset street, tomorrow night. There will be a fine programme of music and a good entertainment, together with interesting speeches. The public is invited.

GOVERNMENT LIST MENTIONS D. T. KENNEY

PATENT OFFICE BULLETIN CALLS HIM A PREMIER INVENTOR.

The Government Patent Office at Washington recently issued a census bulletin which, among other things, gives the figures on inventions in hydraulics. One of the sub-divisions in this class is "Baths and Closets," in which 3,897 patents have been issued. Of the thousands of inventors in this class just five are mentioned by name, by reason of some important and radical feature of their work, and among the five is David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield.

The bulletin pays a high and unusual honor to the North Plainfield inventor. It mentions him twice, and credits him with inaugurating "the most energetic movement in flush valve mechanism."

The other inventors mentioned out of the great number on the patent office books in this particular class are Smith, of California, who exhibited the first siphon jet water closet in 1876; Boyle, of New York; Kelly, of Chicago, and Marsh, of Detroit.

POLICE JUDGE RAPS SCOTCH PLAINS SALOONS

CAN'T SEE WHY COUNTY LICENSES "THOSE BROTHELS AND RUM HOLES.

Cornelius Loughlin, who was arrested for swearing and making a scene in a trolley car coming from Scotch Plains Sunday night, upon complaint by ex-Sheriff W. T. Kirk, who, with his wife, was riding on the car, was released after a hearing in the city court this morning upon his promise to apologize to Mr. and Mrs. Kirk and the P. S. C. in the person of the car conductor. Judge Runyon made that disposition of the case because counsel for Mr. Kirk said his client had agreed to accept that ending as satisfactory to him, but the court said it released the prisoner reluctantly and said some sharp things regarding Scotch Plains hotels and trolley car disorder.

Loughlin, in testifying, acknowledged that he had been drunk and said he got the drink in Scotch Plains.

"I cannot understand why the Union county authorities continue to give licenses to the brothels and rum holes at Scotch Plains. Most of the Sunday drunks and disorder brought before this court are the direct result of those places.

"It is with reluctance that I consent to let you go, Loughlin. There has been too much of this disorder on the trolley cars, and it is time something was done to check it, and check it hard. It seems to have become the accepted idea with certain classes that they may unburden their minds and feelings pretty much as they see fit on the trolley cars. This court intends to do all in its power to put a stop to that and it is sorry that circumstances have arisen to save the prisoner from a sentence that would serve as a warning to others who are inclined to be disorderly on the cars."

Loughlin apologized to Mr. Kirk and to the conductor in court and will apologize to Mrs. Kirk today. He was defended by J. P. Owens. Lawyer F. J. Blatz appeared for Mr. Kirk.

FATHER BOGAN SPOKE.

Addressed Bloomfield Y. M. C. Lyceum at Anniversary Dinner.

Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church, took a prominent part in a dinner given by the Young Men's Catholic Lyceum of Bloomfield last night, in honor of the twenty-sixth anniversary of its formation. The local priest made an address of welcome and spoke words of encouragement to the members. Father Bogan is president of the National Union Catholic Young Men's Societies.

Others who spoke at the gathering were Rev. James T. Brown, of Morris Plains; Senator Hillery, of Boonton, and Allen Benny, of Bayonne.

Governor to Preside at Hearing.

Trenton, Oct. 18.—Gov. Stokes has promised to preside at a hearing arranged by the Newark Board of Trade at Newark on November 14 to consider ways and means for the purification of the Passaic river. It is expected that representatives of all the municipalities and manufacturers who are interested in the subject will attend the meeting.

Miss Westcott's Dancing Class.

Miss Westcott's dancing class met at the Casino last night for the first time this fall, but the class will not resume until Tuesday, November 7, when the instructor hopes to have a large class for the winter.

DINED WITH HEAD COPS

Twenty-Five Plainfielders at the Annual State Police Banquet.

JUDGE RUNYON SPOKE

So Did Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler, Among Others—Ex-Gov. Voorhees Was the Toastmaster.

Distinguished guests were entertained by the Superior Officers' Police Protective Association of New Jersey, of which Chief Kiely and Sergeant Frederickson are members, at its annual banquet at Bender's Hotel, Roselle Park, last night. Foster M. Voorhees was toastmaster, Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler were among the speakers, and well known politicians from pretty much all over the State were present. Covers were laid for over 250, and twenty-five Plainfielders were among those who gathered about them. City Judge William N. Runyon was one of the speakers.

Most of the political lights of Plainfield were in the party that went down from here. It included Chief Kiely, Judge Runyon, County Register Frank H. Smith, Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, Mayor Buckle, Councilman Gloak, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., William Newcorn, F. J. Blatz, Herbert Buxton, S. P. T. Wilbur, George Tobin, John Trainor, Detective McCarthy, John Keely, Thomas Timbo, John Kenney, Officer Herbert Overbaugh, F. J. Westcott, Police Commissioners H. W. Marshall, Amos Andrew and Andrew McCardell, Sergeant Frederickson, Roundsman Flynn and Capt. William Townley, of the fire department.

Judge Runyon spoke on "Our Police" with characteristic charm. He had been so long associated with the police, he said, that he felt like a half-brother to officers. He paid a warm tribute to the policeman and police methods of today. The modern police head, he said, must be a man of education and proved intelligence, and he knew from his contact with them that the police heads gathered at the banquet were all men of brains and ability. The judge received much applause.

Governor Stokes was down for a toast, but he was unable to attend. A letter of regret from him was read by the toastmaster. A similar letter from Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, the Republican Senatorial candidate, was also read.

Senator Kean spoke on "The President," Congressman Fowler on "Our Country," Hon. Samuel Berry, Mayor of Elizabeth, on "Our City," Hon. James C. Connelly on "Our County," Hon. Frank Bergen on "Our Press," and Police Commissioner John C. Rose, of Elizabeth, on "Our Guests."

Mayor Berry was the first municipal executive to take advantage of the new police commission law, and his reference to the measure and his action, in which he said he believed the law was a good one and his action one for the advancement of civic good, was received with much interest.

Mr. Bergen made a graceful devoir to the newspapers.

"Next to the President," he said, "the press governs the country. I have had much experience with newspapers, and I tell you it is not well to underestimate their power. It is always much more advisable to throw a bouquet into a printing office than a brick."

LOCAL GOLFERS WIN.

Robert Abbott and Dudley H. Barrows Make Good Showing.

Robert Abbott, of this city, a student at Yale, is making an excellent record in the annual team championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association, the opening matches of which were played yesterday at the Garden City Golf Club. In the match between Yale and Princeton, Abbott defeated his opponent 2 to 0, and in the match between Yale and Pennsylvania he won by a score of 4 1-2 to 0.

Other honors came to this city and the Plainfield County Club in the fine work of Dudley H. Barrows, champion of the local club, who is a member of the Princeton team. He came in 1 up over Enos Wilder, Jr., of Harvard, who had been up at the turn, and Princeton's lead was made a certainty by Laird's defeat of McBurney by 6 up. Princeton defeated Harvard by a total score of 7 to 1½.

Old Woman a Vag.

Mrs. Amy Duvenchuch, sixty-two years old, who claims Perth Amboy as her residence, was arrested yesterday by Officer Kelly. Judge Runyon released her in the city court this morning.

Capt. Townley on Hand.

Captain William Townley, of fire headquarters, witnessed an inspection of the fire department at Somerville yesterday.

Split the Bait.

Two Pratt men decided to go fishing. They spent one whole day fixing up a boat and tent and tackle. That evening they hauled the outfit several miles to a little lake. They pitched the tent, got supper, fed their team, launched the boat and got everything in readiness for an early morning's fish. In the morning about daylight they grabbed their tackle and rods and the only quart of whiskey left and made for the boat. While one of the men was rowing the boat the other was puttering around trying to get his tackle in shape. Accidentally he kicked the bottle of whiskey and broke it. Every drop was spilled. The one who was rowing grew white with rage. He looked daggers at the other fellow. The one who spilled the whiskey felt crushed. There was a long silence. Finally the man at the oars said:

NATURE'S WARNING.

Plainfield People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney ills come quietly—mysteriously,

But nature always warns you through the urine.

Notice the kidney secretions.

See if the color is unhealthy—

If there are settlings and sediment,

Passages too frequent, scanty, painful.

It's time then to use Doan's Kidney Pills,

To ward off Bright's disease or diabetes.

Doan's have done great work in Plainfield.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, of 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder troubles for a long time, and doctored with physicians for same, each time without being cured. In July, 1905, I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to get a box at Randolph's drug store and give them a trial. I did so, and with good results, as the treatment regulated the kidneys and got the bladder into a proper condition. If this cure proves to be a permanent one, as I have every reason to believe it will, I will always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRIEFS.

The lust of money kills the love of men.

No man can do great work who cannot wait.

No man is utterly lost so long as any one loves him.

Success is sure to him who does not fear to face failure.

Patience punctures many a portentous looking obstacle.

No man ever shares his self-satisfaction with anyone else.

Nothing chills the church quicker than a hotheaded sermon.

Too many think that a crooked path must be a broad one.

It's a great loss when a man's keenness cuts out his kindness.

The poorest of all churches is the one where there are no poor.

There is more grace in any secular smile than in the holiest groan.

The fruits of righteousness do not grow from the flowers of rhetoric.

A man is never much nearer heaven than when he makes a child happy.

If you get your sermons out of books you might as well leave them there.

People who stir up strife generally tumble into it when it is fairly boiling over.

It is always easy to leave your purse in your other pants when you go to meeting.

You cannot pray for men unless you work other muscles besides those of the mouth.

It takes more faith to face your foes than it does to pray for the help of heavenly hosts.

There are too many marching round Jericho on Sunday and mending its walls all the week.

The teachers' retirement fund of this State aggregates $87,833.54. It is created by a levy of one per cent. on the salary of each teacher, and some 700 members have not paid their dues.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Wayne Clark, of Crescent avenue, have leased the house on Webster place now occupied by Mrs. Robert Strong, and they will soon leave their present home.

The Campaign Outlook.

In the meeting of the downtown Republicans held in Elizabeth, and which was attended by representatives of the party from all parts of the county, there was given another proof that the party in Union county is thoroughly united and enthusiastic in the purpose of achieving greater success at the polls in November than ever before. With the sole exception of Essex and Hudson counties, there come similar reports of unity and hope for gains from all parts of the State.

In less than four weeks the voters of New Jersey will go to the polls and the outlook is very gratifying to the Republican party, and these proofs of harmony and unity give assurance of not only holding all that it has of the elected offices, but also of making some gains that will place the State more firmly than ever in the ranks of Republicanism. There will be elected in November eight State Senators, sixty members of the House of Assembly, seventeen sheriffs, several county clerks and a host of minor municipal officers.

For an "off year" in politics the November election in New Jersey promises to be important and interesting. On the questions about which there is so much interest, such as equal taxation, the granting of franchises for public utilities and the taxing of railroad properties, the Republican platforms are in accord with the trend of public opinion, and the party's record as a pledge keeper gives confidence to the people, and there is no reason why there should be any drifting away from its support.

Of the eight Senators to be elected four of them will fill places made vacant by the expiration of Republican terms and four by the expiration of Democratic terms. The Republicans are certain to re-elect their four members of the upper House and the chances are very good for the gaining by the party of two and perhaps three of the Democratic places. In Gloucester county the prospects are bright for the election of John Boyd Avis over Senator James M. Ferrell, the Democratic nominee; in Somerset county Colonel Joseph Frelinghuysen has Senator Samuel S. Childs in a very close race, and in Warren county Winthrop Rutherford has an even chance with ex-Senator Johnston Cornish, who, after a season of private life, has again been nominated by the Democratic forces.

Camden county will return Senator William J. Bradley, who is slated for the position of president of the Senate, and Essex county will elect Everett Colby, while Monmouth and Union counties will remain steadfast within the Republican fold. Salem county may remain Democratic, at least so far the the Senatorship is concerned.

So far as the members of Assembly are concerned, it is not believed that there will be much change in the complexion of the House from that of last year, when there were forty-six Republican members and fourteen Democrats. Each party is likely to stand firm in the counties now held, with a possible Democratic gain of one in Hudson county, where Mayor Fagan and Corporation Counsel Record, of Jersey City, have broken away from the Republican organization and are running their own campaigns in their own peculiar way. This, it is feared, will result in their defeat and the defeat of the rest of the Republican ticket, including Assemblyman Scott, who last year broke through the Democratic stronghold and secured election, being Hudson's lone Republican representative. The loss of Mr. Scott to the Republicans, however, is likely to be made up by the gain of one or more Assemblymen in other parts of the State.

Nine Republican sheriffs go out of office in Mercer, Atlantic, Burlington, Camden, Cumberland, Middlesex, Ocean, Morris and Union counties. In all of these Republican successors are likely to be chosen. Democratic sheriffs will go out of office in Essex, Gloucester, Hudson, Hunterdon, Monmouth, Salem, Sussex and Warren. The Republicans are making determined efforts to secure the shrievalty office in Essex, Monmouth and Gloucester counties, the other five being conceded to be Democratic strongholds.—Elizabeth Journal.

During the brief summer season the inhabitants of a certain little New Hampshire village have amusing encounters with the modern world as typified by the "summer boarder."

Recently a lady of artistic tendencies, who was staying in the village, went into the little country store to ask for cigarettes. After much rummaging the storekeeper at last produced a very dusty looking package of an all-tobacco variety.

"No, not that kind," said the stranger, impatiently, "I mean the kind that ladies smoke."

"Waal," responded the storekeeper, stroking his chin, reflectively, "I guess the kind of ladies ez smokes up here smokes pipes."—Harper's Weekly.

for the improvement of Sherman Avenue from the center of Grant Avenue to a point 700 feet southwesterly therefrom.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the roadbed of Sherman Avenue, extending from the center of Grant Avenue to a point 700 feet southwesterly therefrom, be forthwith repaired and spread with broken stone for a width of twelve (12) feet, and a depth of four (4) inches, at the general expense of the city, to be paid for (after first applying the direct contribution of property owners) out of money raised by tax for the improvement of streets as provided by the Act of the Legislature, entitled "An Act to authorize cities to make permanent improvements in the roadbeds of streets at the general expense," approved May 13, 1884.

Section 2. That before any work shall be done under this ordinance, the property owners along the line of the proposed improvements, shall deposit with the City Treasurer the sum of One Hundred and Ninety-eight Dollars and Thirty-eight Cents ($198.38).

PROPOSALS FOR SEWERS.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, at a regular meeting held Monday, October 2d, 1905, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, November 6, 1905, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the construction of the sewers contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street," approved September 8, 1905, as provided for in the plans and specifications adopted October 2d, 1905, by the Common Council, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, No. 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding, or their agents, provided said parties, or agents, choose to be then and there present, and also to make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for $200 payable to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield.

The Engineer's approximate estimate of the quantities of material required and the work to be done is as follows:

568 feet concrete sewer.
2 Manholes.
8 Branches on concrete sewer.
12 Inlets.
260 feet 12 in. basin connections.
60 feet 15 in. basin connections.
72 feet 4 in. cast iron house connections.

Copies of plans, forms of proposals, specifications, contract, bond, etc., may be obtained at the office of the Engineer, 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

All proposals must be endorsed "Proposals for Sewers."

AN ORDINANCE

For the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield

WHEREAS, There has been constructed in said City a system of sewerage and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the several ordinances of said City relating thereto, and particularly the ordinances respectively entitled, "An ordinance to provide for the construction of an addition to the system of sewerage already constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897, and "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances of the City of Plainfield," approved April 4, 1901, to which several ordinances reference is hereby made for greater certainty; and

WHEREAS, In the opinion of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as herein described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said City under the provisions of the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1 That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed, as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said City, under the provisions of the Acts of the Legislature above referred to, with all the appurtenances necessary to complete the same, and of such dimensions and material and according to such plan as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights-of-way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance, to wit:

East Seventh Street, from Leland Avenue 940 feet east;

East Sixth street, from Berckman Street to Central Street;

Columbia Avenue;

Frederick Street;

North Front Street;

Park Terrace;

Park Lane.

was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a regular meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1905, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing, or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting to be held on the fifth day of September, 1905, as above stated, or afterwards, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Pitcher Lindemann, who led the Eastern League pitchers, has been trying out with Pittsburg.

Arthur Devlin, the popular third baseman of the Giants, will soon be married to a young woman from Washington.

Manager McGraw, of the World Champions, says that the fellow who stands up for his rights isn't the one who is forced to take a back seat.

Batch, Brooklyn's third baseman, recently pitched for the Parkville Field Club, of Brooklyn, having thirteen strike-outs and making three assists and one error.

Upon excellent authority it is said that Frank Farrell, of the Highlanders, has leased West New York field, with the idea of playing Sunday league ball there next season.

Secretary Knowles, of the New York Baseball Club, says that "Christy" Mathewson could have pitched every game in the world's championship series if necessary.

Amanda Clement, a college girl who resides at Hudson, South Dakota, is probably the only girl in the country who is an umpire of professional baseball games. She has been very successful this year in umpiring games between two rival towns in South Dakota.

One reason why collegians do not play a better grade of baseball may be due to the howl against summer ball. As one prominent professional recently observed, the college men are afraid to take a ball in their hands in summer, and the only playing they do is in the spring at college.

"Lou" Wiltse, who pitched fine ball for the Brighton A. C. against the Philadelphia Giants, last Sunday, defeating the colored aggregation and allowing them but three hits, will again face the dusky braves on Sunday at the same place. Commencing next week Wiltse will begin gymnasium work at the Y. M. C. A. for the winter.

Roy Smith, the Brown University catcher, who was to have received a try-out from Connie Mack, could not be accommodated owing to the state of the race, although he looked good in practice. Upon advice of Manager Mack he has signed to play next season with Hartford, from which club he will return to the Athletics if he makes good as a professional.

TENNIS.

The tennis tournament for the girls' championship of the Plainfield High School was continued on Pierson's court, Dunellen, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Dunham beat Miss Doane, 6—2, 6—0, and Miss Gardner beat Miss Dunham, 7—5, 6—3. It was a rather severe test for Miss Dunham after playing two matches with Miss Doane to meet Miss Gardner, and although she played a strong game, Miss Gardner had the advantage in not being so tired from a previous match. Miss Gardner will meet Miss Marion Pierson today in the finals and an exciting match is expected. Yesterday Miss Hallett defaulted to Miss Todd.

When President McCurdy, of the New York Mutual, complained to Investigator Hughes that he was trying to make a fool out of him he was slightly mixed. "Fool" was not the exact word.

Had he been prevailed upon to accept a nomination, Judge W. A. Coddington would have made an admirable candidate of the Democratic party for State Senator. As the situation is at present, Ernest R. Ackerman, by reason of his acknowledged fitness for the office, will pile up a big vote for himself and the Republican ticket. But with Judge Coddington as his opponent the campaign would surely be a lively one for the latter has as a strong asset a popularity that knows no party.

Opposition to the nomination of George P. Mellick as a candidate for Councilman-at-large does not arise from any question as to his efficiency but rather from a contention regarding expediency in factional politics. The Republican party is broad enough to cast aside such petty considerations and nominate and elect a man who would be an honor to the city. Mr. Mellick has served before as a city father and the value of his advice and services are too well known to call for any extended explanation. Nominate Mr. Mellick!

TALK TO BAPTISTS.

Dr. Cortlandt Myers Speaks Before S. S. Association.

There was a large representation from the local Baptist churches at the annual convention of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday School Association held in the Baptist church, Westfield, yesterday. The address last night was made by Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, of Brooklyn, and to accommodate the crowd it was necessary to hold the meeting in the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Myers' subject was "The Second Mile." The address was filled with helpful suggestions to Sunday school teachers and workers. Among other things Dr. Myers said there is a class of people who save all their money and never spend any. "They call themselves honest folks," he declared, "but they are not."

Dr. Myers said that there were many persons who were willing to go the first mile, but would falter and drop back when asked to obey the divine injunction and go the second.

Says Druggists Erred.

New Brunswick, Oct. 18.—George W. Price, a well-known veteran of the Civil War, has instituted a suit for $10,000 damages against Rothenberg & Co., druggists, of Long Branch. He alleges that while he was suffering from the injuries he received in a runaway he was treated with a compound which had not been properly prepared, according to the prescription. He claims that he was poisoned by the contents of the second bottle of the compound, and he, therefore, asks redress from the druggists.

SNEAK-THIEF TOOK MISS GRANT'S PURSE

IT CONTAINED $200 AND SHE LAID IT DOWN IN A DRUG STORE.

A young woman, said to be Miss Augusta Grant, of this city, was one of a dozen or more victims of a sneak thief epidemic that threw New York's shopping district into a hubbub yesterday afternoon.

According to this morning's papers, Miss Grant went into a drug store on Sixth avenue for an ice cream soda. She placed her purse containing $200 on a seat beside her. She was engrossed for several minutes in sipping the concoction prepared by a white coated clerk and when she looked for her purse it had disappeared.

Miss Grant hurriedly made some agitated inquiries and a man nearby pointed out a small boy as the thief. In the excitement that followed this particular man disappeared and the police believe his information was given as a subterfuge to shield himself. The bluecoats said "they would do their best" to get the purse and Miss Grant is living in hopes.

In the same district shortly afterward a Newark woman had her purse, containing $80, stolen.

BOROUGH UP BY CLAIMS FILED AGAINST LOCAL PROPERTY OWNERS.

In filing a bill of inter-pleader before the Court of Chancery on behalf of A. J. Stiglitz, Counsellor F. J. Blatz has introduced a new question in the settlement of mechanics' liens for adjudication by the Chancellor. The question to be settled is whether liens filed against the owner of a building, when the contract has passed from the contractor's hands, are to be paid in the order of priority as the claims are field or pro-rata.

The case grew out of the construction of a house by Stiglitz on Allen place, North Plainfield, for which John C. Milne was the general contractor. Milne, it is alleged, threw up the contract and Stiglitz, after legal demand on Milne that he complete the work, took it over himself and finished the construction. Claims by the sub-contractors were immediately presented to Stiglitz, who, under the law, had held back payments from the contractor to cover possible liens.

The claims were filed by J. W. Mundy, mason, through I. P. Runyon; J. J. Heideloff, plumber, through William Newcorn; Albert Rajotte, bricks, through John H. Van Winkle & Son; Adolph Kahrman, heater, and William Granndtt & Son, mill work. Those who had filed their claims first contended that the order of priority ruled the payments and demanded their money on that basis. The others, who would have suffered under that arrangement, insisted that the money must be paid pro-rata among all the claimants.

Mr. Stiglitz went to Lawyer Blatz for advice. It was an entirely new question in law, and counsel, after considering it, decided to put the question up to the Chancellor. The bill of interpleader was accordingly filed, and the money will be paid into chancery. The claimants' counsel will argue their contentions before the Chancellor and the money will be paid as the court decides. The action releases Mr. Stiglitz from all suits and claims.

ROYAL ARCANUM WINS.

Policy Void Because Application Was Not Truthful.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 18.—Vice Chancellor Garrison filed yesterday, an opinion setting aside as void an insurance certificate in the Royal Arcanum for $3,000 taken out by John Edward Walmsey, of Jersey City, on the ground that Walmsey, at the time he was being examined for the insurance, made a misstatement concerning the cause of death of his mother. Walmsey said his mother died of pneumonia and that none of his near relatives had had consumption.

Vice Chancellor Garrison said: "As a matter of fact the mother of the applicant died of consumption in 1888. The defendant proved this, but the complainants insist they must go further and prove that the insured had knowledge of the cause of his mother's death, and had knowledge that she had consumption."

The Court holds that the insured must have known of the cause of his mother's death and that he assumed full responsibility when he made answer to the questions in the insurance application blanks.

Mrs. William Foght, of Philadelphia, is being entertained by Mrs. C. W. Eoff, of Crescent avenue.

IMPORTANT DECISIONS REGARDING INSURANCE

VICE CHANCELLOR GARRISON DWELLS ON A VITAL POINT.

Trenton, Oct. 18.—Vice-Chancellor Garrison has filed in the Court of Chancery an opinion setting aside as null and void an insurance certificate in the Royal Arcanum taken out by John Edward Walmsley, of Jersey City. The certificate is set aside on the ground that Walmsley at the time he was being examined for the isurance made a mis-statement concerning the cause of the death of his mother and the absence of consumption in his parents.

Walmsley originally named his father as the beneficiary of the certificate, but his father, dying before him, he made application for a change, naming a number of persons as beneficiaries. This change had not been made when Walmsley died of consumption.

In taking out his certificate Walmsley stated that his mother died of pneumonia and that none of his near relatives had had consumption. Concerning this Vice-Chancellor Garrison says in his opinion:

"As a matter of fact the mother of the applicant died of consumption of the lungs in 1888. The defendant proved this, but the complainants insist that they must go further and prove that the insured had knowledge of the cause of his mother's death and had knowledge that she had consumption. * * * There are certain matters concerning which the insurer requires an absolute assurance before entering into the contract.

"Without seeking to define or classify these matters, one of them certainly is the vital question of the presence of a fatal hereditary taint in the family of the applicant. Whatever may be held with respect to an answer negativing the presence of such a hereditary taint in the living members of the family, concerning which it might be successfully contended that the applicant could not know, it certainly must be held that where the mother of the applicant died of the disease inquired about, the applicant must be held either to have had knowledge thereof or to take the responsibility of correctly giving the cause of death and the presence or absence of the disease inquired of.

"I am entirely clear that where an applicant who has been warned with respect to matters which the insurer deemed vital and in the court's view had a right to deem vital to the making of the contract, and in the face of this warning assumes knowledge and negatives the existence of such a hereditary disease in his parents, the contract must be voided if, as a fact, such disease existed in his parents. However righteous it may be to construe contracts of this description in the most liberal way, so as to give effect to what the courts find to have been the real intent of the parties, such liberality in favor of the insured must never lead the court to disregard the rights of the insurer with respect to so vital a matter as the one dealt with in this case. I therefore hold that because of the incorrect statements by the applicant concerning the cause of his mother's death and the absence of consumption in his parents, this insurance contract is void and no recovery can be had thereon."

The complainants were represented by Henry Traphagen, of Jersey City, and the Royal Arcanum by W. Holt Apgar, of Trenton.

Snake in School Room.

Millville, Oct. 18.—A small snake in the classroom of Miss Mabel McHenry, at the High School, almost caused a panic among the pupils. The reptile crawled about the floor, and the young ladies, terror-stricken, fled. Where the reptile came from is a mystery, but it is believed that one of the men of the junior class brought it into the room.

ANNUAL MEETING OF A WORTHY CHARITY

CHILDREN'S COUNTRY HOME ASSOCIATION SHOWN TO HAVE HAD GOOD YEAR

Westfield, Oct. 18.—The fourteenth annual meeting of the Children's Country Home Association of Westfield was held Monday evening in the Congregational church. Mrs. V. C. Burtis presided.

After prayer by the Rev. E. H. Gurnsey, of the Congregational church, interesting reports were made by Mrs. J. B. Taylor, the recording secretary, and Miss Emma L. Bridges, the corresponding secretary. The report of Mrs. J. S. Ferris, treasurer, who was absent, was read by Mrs. Martin Welles, and showed that the total receipts for the year were $1,108.62, which, with a balance of $176.24 from the previous year, made a total of $1,284.86. The expenditures amounted to $1,161.62, leaving a balance on hand of $123.34.

The association extended a vote of thanks to Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Fanwood, for the many gifts sent by him to the home, which is beautifully located at Mountainside and where the poor and crippled children of New York and Newark are given a summer's outing.

The following women were re-elected to the board of managers: Mrs. L. Bastable, Mrs. J. S. Ferris, Mrs. William Miler, Mrs, Stratton Halsted, Mrs. W. H. Morse, Mrs. H. C. Sargeant, Mrs. Edwin Shield and Mrs. Samuel White. Mrs. E. F. Lowe was elected to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. J. A. Woodward, deceased. The advisory board of gentlemen was re-elected for one year as follows: J. O. Clark, John Platt, H. E. Knight, Randolph Perkins, W. G. Delemater, H. J. White and Dr. J. J. Savitz. The officers of the association will be elected at a meeting of the board of managers to be held at an early date.

A feature of the meeting was an interesting illustrated lecture by Miss Nobel on "The Problem on the City Child." Miss Nobel told of the life and habits of the children in the crowded city and of the good resulting from the outings and the work of many charities for the benefit of the children. The illustrations showed scenes of the children's homelife and of the improved conditions caused by such charities as the Country Home.

Conference on Mosquito War.

For the purpose of considering the terms of the contract upon which the Central Railroad offers to Elizabeth the sum of $1,000 to the fund for the extermination of mosquitoes, Chief Engineer of the Central, Joseph Osgood, of Plainfield, conferred Monday on the Newark meadows with a delegation from the Elizabeth Board of Health, and went over the matter carefully.

AMUSEMENTS.

Seats for Richard F. Outcault's "Cartoon Lecture" are on sale at the New Plainfield theatre. There is every indication of a very big audience, for Mr. Outcault's famous little character, Buster Brown, has many friends both among the children and their elders, and the announcement that Mr. Outcault is to tell Buster's history from the moment he first thought of him, through all his adventures down to the present time, will attract wide attention. Mr. Outcault is a fine story teller, as well as being the most famous comic artist in the world, and will intersperse his entertainment with stories. He will also make many rapid sketches in colors, showing the growth of a comic character.

The advance sale of seats for the performance of Robert Louis Stevenson's powerful drama, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, has opened. There have been many seats sold already and it looks as if the capacity of the theatre will be tested. The fame of this production is such to confidently bank on something surpassingly fine. The original magnificent scenery and costumes will be seen during the engagement here, and the cast is the strongest seen in this city in some time. The leading role will be in the hands of that great American actor, Mr. Elwyn Strong.

At the new Plainfield theatre Thursday, October 26, will mark the date of an event in the theatrical world, for, at that time Miss Grace George will present a dramatization of "The Marriage of William Ashe." The play follows the book closely, and Grace George as "Lady Kitty" will be given an opportunity to show what a wonderful little heroine Mrs. Ward has drawn—bewitching, maddening, tragic—and Miss Grace George will bring to it all the comedy touches we found in her "Pretty Peggy," all the pathetic ones of her "Louise" in "The Two Orphans." In the supporting company are such excellent players as H. Reeves Smith, who is to create "William Ashe;" Ben Webster, who will be the Geoffrey Cliffe, and Maud Williamson, to whose lot has fallen the lovable "Lady Tranmore." The scenes are laid in London, Switzerland and Venice, and Mr. Brady has given the play a mounting as careful and finished as Mrs. Ward's own English.

POLITICAL COMMENT.

President Roosevelt will be doubly welcome to New Orleans if he is accompanied by the Hon. Jack Frost. —Atlanta Constitution.

While the Secretary of the Treasury is working the stump with his eye on Washington, 1908, the Secretary of War is taking long trips to the Orient and Panama. This looks like sheer bravado on the part of Bill Taft.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

We shall have compulsory arbitration of international matters when the millennium comes, and then it will not be needed.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The deeper the investigation probe is driven into the big life insurance companies the more evident does it appear that the disease known as "graftitis" has permeated the entire system. But it is not found in the life insurance companies alone. The disease has become an epidemic and permeates all business more or less. It is certainly true that the disease is national and not sectional.—Denver Republican.

Some idea of the growth of the United States can be gleaned by closely watching Secretary of War Taft. Ten years ago there did not seem a single reason to suppose that a member of our Cabinet would ever have occasion to travel outside of Washington, unless when stumping the country in a political campaign. The Cabinet members were bureaucrats in the strictest sense of the word. They were tied to their desks. But now our Secretary of War has to keep in touch with the ends of the earth. Secretary Taft's trip to the Philippines was not a junket. It was made in the routine course of his departmental business. Now he is off for Panama, also in the course of routine departmental business. He carries a corps of under secretaries with him, and daily makes the wires hot with orders to his bureau chiefs. —Binghamton Press.

W. J. Calhoun is back from Venezuela in time to give us all a new topic. The public had about forgotten the bumptious Castro, but he will come to mind again with Mr. Calhoun's report to the President about the conditions he was sent to investigate. We may be sure that the special commissioner discharged his duty well, and has brought back all the information the President stands in need of for his future steps. There was always more talk than anything else about the complications with Venezuela, and maybe the time is at hand when even talk can be dispensed with. We have a new man on duty at Caracas, and it is to be assumed that, familiar as he is with past history, he will steer a wise course and keep in the channel. We want only what is right, and our power to secure that by peaceable means is ample.—Washington Star.

—The Plainfield Water Supply Company is continuing its work of improvement about the pumping station. It is the intention to make a park at that point, and the company's property in the vicinity is being cleared and graded for that purpose.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

THE GENTLER SEX.

They tell of an Atchison woman who has been a "slave" all her life. Still, when she is away, members of her family feel relief and get along better without her. — Atchison Globe.

The club season is really on in good earnest. Every club in the Federation held this week its first meeting of the season, or announces that in the week to come it will so begin another in its life. Reading the reports of various clubs one is moved to wonder if by telepathy or through some more material medium presidents in their opening addresses were led to dwell much upon the significance of the club. And Mrs. May Alden Ward began a course of talks before on of the clubs by illuminating "The Club Idea." Of course every clubwoman knows the aim of her club and knows, too, her object in belonging to the organization, but on coming together in the fall it refreshes the energies to have these aims and objects brought out into the light to be discussed.—Boston Transcript.

"Miss May Sutton," said a tennis player, "never gets actually excited in a game, but bad playing in a partner will often arouse a sarcastic humor in her. I don't pretend to play well, and when I found myself, one day in Cincinnati, paired with the young champion in mixed doubles I expected to do little, and I didn't disappoint myself. To tell the truth, I played pretty badly. But Miss Sutton did unusually well, and politeness obliged me to shower a continuous stream of compliments on her. At a critical point she saved a game with a remarkable back-hand stroke, and I shouted 'Bravo! Beautiful! Well played, indeed!' Miss Sutton smiled grimly. 'That's right,' she said, "you applaud and let me attend to the ball, and we'll win yet.'" —Cincinnati Inquirer.

In the present day a self-respecting woman does not depreciate her own sex.—Mildred Ransom in London Treasury.

Ella Skinner, 217 West Sixth street, became angry with a French poodle at 11 o'clock last night, and shot the animal to death in the hallway of her house. Then she kicked the canine into the street and fired one more bullet into its body. Sergent Eubanks and Patrolmen Dyer and Looney heard the reports of the revolver and rushed to the scene. The woman, they say, still held the weapon in her hand. They examined the dog, but its pulse had stopped.—Kansas City Journal.

Don't ask a girl to marry you after dark when she is dressed fit to kill. Call on her, and when you leave inadvertently drop a glove on the piano. Return for it the next morning at 9 o'clock. If she comes to the door with one shoe and one slipper on, her haid done up in curl papers, dressed in an old mother hubbard, our advice is to take to the woods. But if she appears in a neat house dress, her hair done up and a rose in the top of her hair, grab her quick. — Martonville (Mo.) Free Press.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"Then they are retiring from the Junction, too?" asked the veteran, an eager light in his eye.

"I cannot say," answered Benton, coldly now, for the sudden question put him on his guard.

"Pardon me, suh, if I seem overpleased. I have no reason to rejoice. I am too old to serve, even if my people had not opposed the ordinance of secession, and no enemy could be so courteous and considerate as Gen. McClellan and the officers of your own division. My son, suh—and any other Virginia boy would do the same, I reckon—went with his state, went with Jeb Stuart, suh, who is his second cousin, and it is hard to say which is the more distressed over his being shot—my son, because it was a southern not a northern bullet that did the business, or the unhappy fellow who gave the order to fire."

"Who was that?" inquired Benton, thinking more and more of the face he had seen at the window.

"Mr. Ladue, suh—Lieut. Paul Ladue, of the Eleventh Alabama. He was on picket duty that night."

But Benton, with eager eyes, was rising from his chair, unmindful of the smoking supper the host was dishing from the stove. Voices and the trampling of horses' feet were heard without. One voice that he knew well rang out clearly over all other sounds.

TRAMPLING OF HORSES' FEET WERE HEARD.

"You look to it, captain, and find Benton. The rest of us will ride ahead after Gen. McDowell."

In no time at all Fred was hurrying round to the front, but already the general and the few staff officers and orderlies with him had disappeared in the eastward darkness, riding at spanking trot, leaving to represent them only a captain and one trooper—a captain who gave a shout of joy and relief when he heard Benton's glad hail and caught a glimpse of his face.

"The Lord be praised!" he cried. "I feared you had gone back the way you came. If so you might run slap into the rebel lines, for—they must have heard of the fall-back orders—Stuart's cavalry are already up from Warrenton and his advance has been skirmishing against our rear guard toward Bristoe ever since five o'clock. I was sent to warn our guards and sentries at the Henry and Robinson houses, and found them all in a state of excitement—that pretty Miss Chilton disappeared during the hours between seven and eight, just after it grew dark."

CHAPTER VII.

A WOMAN'S DARING.

With infinite sympathy Benton and the orderlies aided Dr. Chilton to harness his horses to the old fashioned, side-seated, half 'bus, half ambulance he had brought with him from Warrenton—borrowed from some field hospital, as the best available vehicle in which to go for and convey his wounded boy. The doctor was tremulous with dread and distress on account of his beloved daughter, and utterly unable to account for her strange disappearance.

He drove away, with all speed toward stone bridge, pass and papers in his outer pocket, so as to be able to promptly show his credentials to any sentries or patrols, and Benton was trying, half an hour later, to satisfactorily account for what he had heard and thought he had seen that day, when Carver came for him to say his horse was dead lame. He had been directed to remain behind and to see the last detachments across the Run, then to rejoin the chief as soon as he had found Benton. This, therefore, was Benton's chance and he begged.

"Let me go back," said he, "and you take your orderly's horse, if you can't get another, and report to the general in the morning."

And so, about ten o'clock Fred had reached the stone bridge, found it held by a small guard, and with that guard was a young officer who had been at the Robinson and Henry houses two hours before and had heard all about the circumstances connected with Miss Chilton's disappearance—had indeed been there for some time and had seen her. She had come to the rear door with Mr. Henry about five o'clock, and very sweetly and smilingly had told the guards her brother was sleeping at last and that she needed a little fresh air. Lieut. Ferguson was in command of the guard, "And you know what an eye for a pretty girl Ferguson has," and he begged her to consider the premises hers, and probably wanted to walk with her, but for 20 minutes she tripped about the old, dismantled garden, going all around it as though interested in what was left of the hollyhocks and sunflowers, and, about six, Lewis came and called her and said supper was ready, and she seemed reluctant to go in, but finally yielded, telling Ferguson that if there were no objections she would finish her walk later. It might be dark and chilly, but she knew the garden now and would throw a shawl over her head. Ferguson said, "By all means," and sure enough, right after dark, out she came again, slim and fragile looking, but well wrapped up, and Henry begged her not to stay out long. We saw her flitting about in the dim light of the campfire and lanterns a moment or two, then she seemed to take to the outer edge of the enclosure, and then, by Jove, she disappeared totally. They hunted everywhere, and while they were hunting Capt. Carver rode up with orders for Ferguson and was told what had happened. He was compelled to leave at once, but the search continued. "It is a perfect mystery," said the lieutenant, removing his cap and wiping his brow.

Then while they were talking, the sentries challenged at the bridge, and, to the amaze of Benton, who should appear but old Dr. Chilton with his country omnibus and the strange explanation that he had lost the road—got way south toward the lower fords and had been turned back by no less a personage than Gen. Auger, whom he had met at Washington several years before when the general was a captain of regulars. Benton's guarantee to the guard was sufficient, and they let the doctor go on his westward way and Benton went with him, that he might give the anxious father these further particulars as they trotted along the dim, shadowy vista of the famous old thoroughfare. Benton had determined now to revisit the Henry house and make a still further investigation.

But he never reached it. Pushing westward along the pike they noted that all was darkness about the old Robinson place on the rise to the south, and then were surprised to see lights flitting about the stone house, close to the road on the right hand side. Then voices in excited tones were heard within. Two or three were harsh and threatening, one was uplifted in mingled plea and protest, and then, from the direction of the Sudley road, only a few yards away, came shadowy forms, just visible under the starlight. "Halt!" was the instant order from Benton's lips, low, yet commanding, and his revolver seemed to leap from the holster. "Who are you?"

"Patrol—Nineteenth Indiana," was the prompt answer. "Is that you, Lieut. Benton? Three of our fellows strayed away, and the captain ordered me down here to look 'em up. They've called in the guard at the Henry house—where you were this afternoon."

"Your men are here—in this house, and you're just in time, I fancy," for now there were sounds of scuffle and violence. Benton was off his horse in a second and, followed by the sergeant and two or three men, hurled himself at the door, which gave way before his impetuous rush, and in another moment he had sprung through one dismantled room into another at the rear of the house, and there came upon a sight that explained the whole situation—a demijohn—the mate to the one he had seen at Centreville—stood on a rude sideboard, with only one civilian to defend it against three sturdy lads in full marching order who had evidently just had enough "peach" to be mad for more. One of them had grappled with the owner, the other two were watching a chance for a leap at the prize when Benton and the sergeant burst in upon them.

Shame-stricken, caught in the act, the three marauders faced the rescuing party and sheepishly, foolishly, furtively glanced about them, from the tall staff officer to the grinning comrades at his back.

"Are these your missing men, sergeant?" demanded Benton.

"They are, sir."

BIG THEATRICAL DEAL.

Shuberts, Belasco and Fiske Get String of Houses.

New York, Oct. 18.—Congressman Rhinecock, of Kentucky, left for home Monday after having completed a big theatrical deal whereby Messrs. Shubert, Belasco and Fiske, who are fighting the theatrical trust, get a string of houses in prominent western cities where heretofore they have been unable to produce their attractions.

The scheme is one in which Rhinock and other capitalists around Cincinnati are almost exclusively interested. According to a statement made by Lee Shubert last night the person most heavily interested in the project is George B. Cox, Republican leader of Southern Ohio.

Shubert says he (Shubert) is building a theatre in Cincinnati, and this, when completed, and the Walnut Street theatre, owned by Cox, will book the Shubert-Belasco-Fiske attractions.

He further says that a company that has been formed will construct theatres in Louisville, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Toronto, Montreal and other cities for all independent attractions.

Belcher in Australia.

William Henry Belcher, former Mayor of Paterson, fugitive from justice and embezzler of more than $200,000 from financial institutions, has, it is believed, been located at Yebri, Queensland, Australia. There is little doubt at Paterson but that he is residing there with his old friend, James Robertson, a former Patersonian, who left home under peculiar circumstances fore than fifteen years ago. Belcher is known to have written to Robertson at least twice a month during the last two years he was in this city. He mailed a letter to Yebri a week before he became a fugitive.

Short Cut to Wealth.

Omaha, Oct. 18.—D. B. Cherry, for many years station agent at the little town of Cretfe, met so many reverses that a year ago he told his wife he was sick of poverty and was going to try life over again in the South. He secured employment in Houston, and one day while in the country near La Porte City he noticed the water from a well was covered with a greasy slime. Cherry secured an option on 110 acres, found financial backing, sunk wells and the oil came so fast he had to build a private pipe line to deep water. Cherry has become independently wealthy.

Football "Tonic" Whiskey.

Pittsburg, Oct. 18.—Hereafter the bottle containing liquid and labelled "tonic" which has been placed to the lips of the football players of the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. team whenever knocked out will be barred. Member of the Y. M. C. A. have been shocked by the discovery that the bottle, which was supposed to contain lemon juice, sugar and root beer, really contained whiskey. It has been noticed at several games that a great many of the men on the Y. M. C. A. team got hurt and had to take frequent pulls at the "tonic."

1,245 Students at Princeton.

The total enrollment of students in all the undergraduate departments of Princeton University, as announced by the registrator Saturday, is 1,245. This shows a decrease from last year of 49. The number of men in the freshmen class this year is 390, an increase of 156 over last year's entering class at this time. As a result of the university golf tournament held last week the following men have been chosen to represent the Tigers in the intercollegiate tournament this week: Laird, Peters, Gee, West, Clark, Sherman and Barrows.

Heavy Legal Fees.

It is estimated that the administrators' expenses in the settlement of the estate of William M. Rice, the alleged victim of Lawyer Albert T. Patrick, will amount to $803,000. Judge John D. Bartine, of Somerville, is one of the administrators, and will receive a commission of five per cent. on the entire estate. Rice left an estate valued in total at $4,366,000, but legal fees have been remarkably numerous and large, the estate being in litigation both in New York and Texas, where Rice owned a princely ranch.

College Course at Normal.

Atlantic City, Oct. 18.—The conversion of the State Normal School at Trenton into an institution the instruction in which would be equal to two years of college training, and the Normal School curriculum, to be taken up by a uniform four-year course in High Schools, was one of the points made Friday at the joint teachers' institute for Salem, Atlantic and Gloucester counties, by Dr. J. M. Green, principal of the Normal School. He said that the schools of New Jersey were as good as any in the country and were improving.

Mrs. Humphrey, wife of Captain Chauncey Humphrey, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue.

George Wiltse, of the New York Giants' pitching staff, is spending the rest of the week with his brother, Louis Wiltse, of the New Madison.

Thomas DeMeza, of West Second street, who was operated upon at the hospital for appendicitis, is doing well and his physician, Dr. M. L. Clawson, is hopeful for an early recovery.

A Special Department, designed for those who desire to keep a portion of their funds in reserve, separate and apart from their checking accounts, is conducted by this Company

3½ per cent interest is paid on accounts in this Department.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Leal's football eleven will play a game with Morristown on Saturday, the contest being one for the Interscholastic championship. The only games to be played here by Leal's eleven this season will be with Pingry and the Plainfield High School.

BASKET BALL.

Thus far the boys from the Plainfield and North Plainfield High and Leal's Schools are the only ones who have showed any interest in basketball for the coming season. Plainfield should be able to support a strong basketball league if properly conducted.

EPILEPTIC FIT FATAL.

The Victim, Fred Willibald, Dies Soon After Being Taken.

Fred Willibald, for many years a figure about the city, died suddenly in the police station at Westfield, at 1 o'clock this morning. He had been in the employ of the Baldwin Brothers, of West Front street, hay carters, and was returning from Newark with a wagon early last evening. He was taken with an epileptic fit, to which he was subject, and was removed to the station by the police. Dr. Fred Kinch was called and treated him but he continued to grow worse until the end.

Willibald was thirty years old and had lived in Plainfield nearly all his life. His mother resides here and he leaves one sister, Mrs. Stephen McIntyre, of Cranford. At one time he was in the navy but generally worked as a driver. The body was brought to Casey's undertaking parlors in this city and the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Candy and Apron Sale.

The teachers in the Bethel chapel Sunday school conducted a candy and apron sale for its benefit in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon. It was well attended and the promoters were well satisfied with the proceeds.

Appointed Receiver.

Judge Hall, of New York, has appointed W. D. W. Miller, of this city, receiver of the assets in the bankruptcy case of Herman W. Schwartz and Daniel Kaufman, manufacturers of cloaks and suits, in Waverly place, New York.

Assyrian Pedler Fined.

Isadore Brat, an Assyrian, was arrested yesterday by Detective McCarthy for pedling rugs and perfumes without a license. He was fined $3 or ten days by Judge Runyon this morning.

CRACK SHOTS WILL TAKE PART IN GUN CLUB SHOOT

NEAF APGAR AND T. H. KELLER, JR., AMONG PROFESSIONALS TO BE THERE.

Crack shots will take part in the great all-day shoot of the Plainfield Gun Club Saturday. With shooters like Neaf, Apgar, of the Peters Cartridge Company; T. H. Keller, Jr., of the same concern; Sim Glover, of the Ballistite Powder Company, and J. A. R. Elliott, of the Winchester Company, in the contest, some great scores may be expected to delight the amateur marksmen and amaze the ordinary spectators. The presence of the experts will not upset the amateur contestants, because the professionals are to shoot only for targets.

Two of the cracks are well known in this city. Neaf Apgar lives here, and T. H. Keller, Jr., is a son of the famous "Tee Kay" Keller, an old Plainfielder, and frequently visits relatives here.

The shoot will make an interesting sight, and arrangements have been made to entertain visitors. The club extends a special invitation to women, which is a new departure in its shoot arrangements.

ON TOUR OF INSPECTION.

Commissioner and Assistant to Visit Institution.

Trenton, Oct. 18.—Rev. Dr. George B. Wight, State Commissioner of Charities and Corrections, and George E. Poole, assistant commissioner, start today on a special tour of inspection of the buildings of all the State charitable, reformatory and penal institutions. The object will be to study the accommodations offered by the buildings and to determine what additions may be needed during the year.

Today they visit the Rahwa, Reformatory, tomorrow the Home for Boys at Jamesburg, Friday the State institutions at Vineland, and Monday the village for epileptics at Skillman. The balance of the itinerary has not been made out.

It is considered quite likely that the Legislature at its coming session will authorize the erection of a new cell wing at the Rahway Reformatory. The accommodations there have been totally inadequate for a long time. Commissioner Wight, in his report to Governor Stokes last week, showed that the institution is so overcrowded that 120 inmates are compelled to sleep on cots in the corridors.

Fire Company Birthday.

The Fanwood fire company will celebrate its fifteenth anniversary at the fire house next Saturday night. A banquet will mark the occasion.

SYNOD IS ASKED TO AID BIBLE SOCIETY

PRESBYTERIANS TO APPEAL FOR $5,000,000 TO CARRY ON ITS WORK.

Cape May, N. J., Oct. 18.—Reports occupied the greater part of yesterday's sessions of the eighty-third annual session of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey. Following the reports, Rev. Dr. Walter A. Broves, of Trenton; the treasurer of Synod, Rev. Eben B. Cobb, of Elizabeth; Rev. Dr. John Fox, of East Orange, one of the secretaries of the American Bible Society, addressed the Synod.

Dr. Fox called attention to the need of the Bible Society for greater pecuniary support and announced that there was in course of preparation an appeal for $5,000,000.

Rev. Clarence W. Rouse, next presented the narrative of the session of 1905, and the resignation of Dr. Alfred P. Dashill, of Lakewood, as a member of the board of trustees, was accepted. Dr. Dashill resigned on account of age. Rev. Dr. Cortlandt P. Butler, of the same place, was appointed in his place.

The report of the treasurer of the Synodical Home Missions Fund was a tabulated schedule. Here are the contributions by Presbyteries:

Elizabeth, $2,973.98; Jersey City, $2,102.78; Monmouth, $1,723.29; Morris and Orange, $4,208.47; Newark, $2,044.32; New Brunswick, $2,857.28; Newton, $1,033.23; West Jersey, $2,222.28; Corelso, $500.

The disbursements to ministers and missionaries were shown to have been as follows:

Elizabeth, $1,773.00; Jersey City, $2,565; Monmouth, $3,525.50; Morris and Orange $1,600; Newark, $1,949.92; New Brunswick, $1,733.78; Newton, $962.50; West Jersey, $3,992.44. For administration expenses, $267.85. Total, $18,370.49.

In the report of the permanent committee on temperance made by the Rev. William V. Laudenbaugh, of Salem, the chairman, resolutions were offered for adoption indorsing the plan of the General Assembly's Temperance Committee to put more paid workers in the field and urge the ministers to give their respective congregations opportunities to make special contributions in support of this work. The resolutions also favored the plan of writing to all the churches and temperance organizations of the State urging a movement to secure better temperance legislation, including a wise general option law.

A resolution was adopted directing that after January 1 next the Board of Trustees of each church shall consist of nine members.

CLAY FOR ACKERMAN.

Former President of Parker Club Out for Republican Nominee.

George S. Clay, president of the now disbanded Parker Independent Club, has sent the following letter to Ernest R. Ackerman, the Republican nominee for State Senator:

Hon. E. R. Ackerman,
Plainfield, N. J.

My dear Mr. Ackerman,

I have been trying to find time ever since your nomination for Senator to write you, not especially to congratulate you but to say that I think the people of the whole State have been honored by your acceptance. Every one knows that your acceptance of the office is a distinct gain for the side of good morals and honesty in politics. If every legislator to be selected this fall were a man of your high character and integrity a new era would begin and "graft" and self-seeking unknown. We cannot hope for such good fortune, yet we can and do believe that your influence surely will be an important factor in our legislative history.

Very sincerely yours,
GEORGE S. CLAY.

Syndicate Stands the Cost.

For the purpose of determining the number of electric lights to thoroughly illuminate the new West End avenue boulevard, the syndicate making the improvements has a large number burning every night. The expense is being borne by the land owners and not the borough, as some people have supposed.

Hammer-Thomas.

Miss Hattie Thomas and Walker Hammer, both living at the same address on West Third street, were married last night by Rev. Mr. Ashley, of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church. An informal reception was held after the ceremony. The groom is employed in this city as a waiter.

NEW BRIDGE PROJECT IS STILL HELD UP

ANOTHER UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTED TO GET COMMITTEES TOGETHER.

Further complications have arisen in the effort of the freeholders of Union and Somerset counties to build a new bridge on West End avenue, over Green brook. A meeting of the joint committee was called for last Saturday morning. The Union county members of the Board of Freeholders were there, but Freeholders Emmons and Demler were the only two present from Somerset county.

It being impossible to do anything at that time an adjournment was taken to yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the meantime the Union county committee adjourned sine die. Freeholders Emmons and Demler were the only two members from Somerset county at the meeting yesterday, and Freeholder Robison, of Fanwood, was the lone representative from Union county.

The Somerset county members had the authority to agree to the advertising for bids for the bridge, to be built of concrete, and the board sent word that it would attend a meeting at which the bids would be received. Freeholder Robison was willing to concur with the Somerset county members, but lacked the authority to do so. He said that he would see Director King and try and have either the old bridge committee continued or a new one appointed as soon as possible so that no unnecessary delay would be caused.

It is understood by the Somerset county members that the bridge is to be built within the amount appropriated originally, $7,500, and this it is thought can be done. W. A. Westphal, who was a member of the committee from Union county, could not be present yesterday, being called before the Grand Jury at New Brunswick.

Miantonomo Tribe, Improved Order Red Men, met last night and conferred the warriors' degree on several candidates.

Past Grand Master V. W. Nash and Grand Trustee Edward Mosher, of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., paid a fraternal visit to Ernest Lodge, No. 61, of Elizabethport, Monday night.

PERSONAL.

Alfred P. Gardiner and family, who occupied their house, corner of Park place and Grove street, during the spring and fall months last year, will not return to Plainfield and the furniture is being removed from the house.

FRANCHISE COMMISSION WORK.

No Public Meetings Will Be Held Until After the Election.

Trenton, Oct. 18.—Governor Stokes has been in communication with former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, chairman of the commission appointed under the authority of the last Legislature to inquire into the matter of the taxation of franchises for public utilities, as to the progress the commission is making in its work.

It appears that the commission has not been idle, as its silence would lead some persons to believe. It has decided, however, not to hold any public meetings until after the election next month, so that neither party can make any political capital out of the evidence or arguments laid before it. Almost since it had its first meeting, some time ago, the commission has been at work gathering data and obtaining information as to the manner in which the granting of franchises and the taxing of them is carried out in all the States of the Union which have taken up the matter; also as to the results obtained by such methods.

Already, it was said by a member of the commission who was at the State House today, considerable information of value along these lines has been obtained. He also said that as soon as the election is over the commission will be in a position to hold public meetings and consider the subject.

GILHOOLY AS CHAIRMAN.

Union County Democrats Nominate Tonight.

Judge Gilhooly, of Elizabeth, will be the chairman of the Democratic county convention to be held in Turn Hall, at the county seat, tonight. The meeting will be called to order by J. H. Crowell, of Rahway.

It was reported this afternoon that Judge J. W. Crane may be the nominee for State Senator and that either Noah Woodruff, of Roselle, or Jacob J. Sheppard, of Elizabeth, would be named for sheriff. W. DeWitt Stanford, of Elizabeth, seems to be the only candidate for Assembly. For coroner, D. Thomas M. Higgins, of Elizabeth, will be named.

There will be ninety-eight delegates. Of this number 43 will be from Plainfield.

Loved Another Better.

New Brunswick, Oct. 18.—Admitting that she loved another man better than her husband, Mrs. Mary E. Suydam, supplied all the evidence that was needed for her husband to get a divorce. The husband, William H. Suydam, lived at Monmouth Junction. He was married to his wife in 1881. She met George June and became estranged from her husband. When he taxed her about June, she declared she loved him better, and Theodore B. Booraem, the master in Chancery, has recommended to the chancellor that Suydam be granted a divorce.

STOKES FOR U. S. SENATOR

Talk of Selecting Governor For Upper House of Congress Crops up Again.

TALK AT THE CAPITOL

Just Keep Your Eye on "Ned" Stokes and You Won't See Any Mirage," Says South Jerseymen.

Members of the Legislature and politicians who were at the State House in Trenton Tuesday on business, or, as most of them put it, "merely to pay my respects to the Governor," found food for reflection in a clipping from a Providence (R. I.) newspaper, which one of their number exhibited. This spoke of Governor Stokes and Everett Colby as graduates from Brown; told of the honor they had brought to their alma mater by the distinction they had won in their own State, and predicted that the Governor would be the next United States Senator from, and Mr. Colby the next Governor of, New Jersey.

This, together with the recollection of the haste with which the Governor denied last week that he had entered into a compact with United States Senator Dryden for the purpose of securing the Senator's reelection, revived the talk that a serious movement is on foot to send the Governor himself to the Senate, and that the Chief Executive's attitude toward the proposition was exceedingly Barkis-like.

The constitutional prohibition, which most people think bars the Governor from holding any office during the term for which he was elected, it was said, has no terrors for the promoters of this scheme, and that they are certain that when they have elected the Governor a Senator they will have no trouble in seating him in the upper house of Congress. Almost all South Jersey, it was further declared, was enthusiastically in favor of sending the Governor to the Senate, not only because he is the favorite son of that part of the State, but because they believe that one of the United States Senators of a right belongs to their section.

Those who advocte the promotion of the Governor to the United States Senate point out the excellent showing he made in the caucus three years ago and say he could easily have been elected then if he had not declared that he did not want to go to Washington at that time, but did want to be Governor. Now that that want has been satisfied, his supporters say, there is no reason why he should not be elected Senator this time.

"Just keep your eye on 'Ned" Stokes when you are looking over the Senatorial field," said an enthusiastic South Jersey legislator, "and you won't see any mirage."

The prediction of the Providence newspaper as to Mr. Colby did not cause so much speculation, as it was generally conceded that it was not the proper time just yet to discuss him in connection with the Governorship.

NEWARK CLASSES MEETING.

Recommends a Change in Portion of Liturgy.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck and Elder A. L. Force represented Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. C. H. Schneegas and Elder John Schorb the German Reformed church, at the fall session of the Classis of Newark, held yesterday in Dr. Bishop's church, East Orange.

Much routine business was transacted and during the recess at noon an excellent dinner was served by a caterer in the lecture room of the church. A very pleasant hour was spent in listening to Dr. Martin tell of his recent visit to Sheffield, Eng., where the great revival was in progress during the summer.

The Classis voted almost unanimously to recommend to the synod to amend the liturgy of the church, by which the baptismal and sacramental portions will be shortened.

TRINITY CHURCH OFFICERS.

Annual Election for Elders and Deacons.

The annual meeting of Trinity Reformed church for the election of elders and deacons was held in the lecture room of the church last night after the prayer meeting. Horace J. Martin, Sr., was chairman, and T. R. Van Zandt secretary of the meeting. F. E. Smith, Horace J. Martin, Sr., and A. L. Force were re-elected elders.

Edgar F. Sheppard was again chosen a deacon. Charles M. Dolliver and M. F. Gano were also elected deacons. The terms of all are for two years each.

C. C. Tomkinson, of Grove street, has gone to Erie, Pa., on a business trip.

GOODWIN MAKES CHARGE

Files Formal Accusation of Partisanship Against Postman Demarest.

OVER MR. BIRD'S HEAD

W. J. Conroy Issues a Statement in Reference to His Part in the Action Against Letter Carrier.

In a statement issued this morning, W. J. Conroy, the fusion candidate for mayor of North Plainfield, denies the truth of the reports that have been given out regarding his complaint of "offensive partisanship" against William Demarest, a Republican letter-carrier. It has been stated that Mr. Conroy based his complaint on Demarest's alleged prominence at a political meeting.

"The fact is that there was no reference to a political meeting in my complaint to Postmaster Bird. I asked Mr. Bird if it was not against the rules of the department for a carrier to take an active part in politics, and when he replied in the affirmative, I told him that Demarest was advising voters to support Smalley for mayor, on the streets.

"I made no direct charges. Mr. Bird asked me if I wished to make charges in writing, and I said no; that I had no desire to injure the man, and thought a quiet word from him would be sufficient.

"I was pained beyond measure when I learned that a matter I had been led to believe would never reach the public had been made common property, but now that the incident has been given to the public, and in a manner that places me in a bad light, I have no recourse left but to make the facts in the case known.

"The real trouble is that Mr. William Demarest approached voters on the street and tried to persuade them to vote for Mr. Smalley, giving as his reasons that 'Conroy was very unpopular, and was a temperance man,' and for that reason every member of the Saengerbund society was going to vote for Mr. Smalley. I am prepared to establish the truth of this accusation, otherwise I would not make it."

Despite Mr. Conroy's unwillingness to carry the matter before the postal authorities, the charge will reach the attention of the department. John Goodwin announced this morning the he sent a statement of the case to Washington. He took occasion to inform Postmaster Bird of his action on Park avenue this morning with some emphasis.

YALE WINS GOLF TITLE.

Robert Abbott Helps to Defeat Princeton for Championship.

Yale defeated Princeton for the team championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association at Garden City yesterday. On points the final totals read, Yale, 22½; Princeton, 7½, while on straight hole play the New Haven boys won by a score of 37 to 11.

Robert Abbott, of this city, a member of the Yale team, always had his opponent, D. Clark, down. The former made an 82 in the morning and the same in the afternoon—good work when the high wind is taken into consideration. Abbott laid his opponent a stymie on the eleventh green of the second round.

E. Knowles, a former St. Paul's boy, who has improved wonderfully of late, did the heaviest scoring for "Old Eli." At hole play he had Dudley H. Barrows, the champion of the Plainfield Country Club, 16 down or 9 points, according to the college system of scoring.

New Marketer Weds.

Samuel E. Merkel, of New Market, was married to Miss Mabel Stocker, of Bangor, Pa., at the home of the bride on Tuesday afternoon. The marriage reception was combined with the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the bride's parents. Mr. Merkel is an employe of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Rev. W. H. Taylor, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church, of Elizabeth, will lecture here tonight. Rev. Taylor is touring the county in the interest of his race. The subject he presents tonight is "The Negro's Past, Present and Future."

Servant Disorderly.

George B. Hall, colored, twenty years old, a servant in a private school, was arrested this morning by Patrolman Higgins for disorderly conduct. He was remanded until tomorrow in the city court.

WINDFALL FOR PRISONER

Mrs. Varden in Jail Unable to Pay $10 Fine Receives Bequest of $2,000.

ADDICTED TO LIQUOR

Mother Opposed Her Match and Withheld Gift Until on Deathbed — Can't Spent Money Until Sentence is Served.

Without funds to pay a $10 fine imposed upon her by Judge Runyon last month, in addition to a sixty-day sentence, Mrs. Elizabeth Vardon, a frequenter of the local police court, will have an abundance of money awaiting her upon her release from the county jail. A letter containing a $2,000 check came from her father in England a few days ago and is now being held by relatives pending her return.

The money is in the nature of a belated wedding dowry that was withheld from Mrs. Vardon when she was married. Her parents, who were wealthy and of prominence in England, opposed the match and refused to bestow upon her anything in the way of a gift. The mother afterward relented, and when taken fatally ill not long since instructed her husband to forward to the daughter the money that should have been hers when she became a bride. She died soon after and her wishes were complied with.

Mrs. Vardon became addicted to drink a few years ago and because of her conduct her husband and children were forced to leave her. She has been arrested for intoxication on numerous occasions and was released by Judge Runyon time and again with kindly advice, but only to return. She was found helplessly drunk in the company of dissolute companions last month, and the heavy sentence was imposed in order to give her a chance to recover from a long debauch. Her father is aware of her downfall, but stated that it was the wish of the mother that the money should be paid her.

MISS ETTA RANDOLPH BRIDE OF MR. TALLAMY

WEDDING CEREMONY AT HOME OF HER PARENTS.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends, Miss Etta Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac S. Randolph, of West Front street, and Louis V. Tallamy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tallamy, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 by Rev. George Mooney, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church.

Miss Randolph was attended by Miss Wenone Louise Dodds, of Faulkson, S. D., and Miss Emma Edna Baldwin, of this city, as bridesmaids. Frederick B. Tallamy, brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers were Charles C. Randolph, brother of the bride, and William J. Tallamy, brother of the groom. Mrs. Robert Humpston rendered the wedding march.

Miss Randolph, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white satin crepe de chine with chiffon trimmings. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in pink flowered silk and carried pink chrysanthemums. Green and white predominated in the decorations and the parlor and hallway were made especially pretty by the generous use of palms and chrysanthemums.

The ceremony was followed by a collation and late last night Mr. and Mrs. Tallamy left for a wedding trip. Both were the recipients of many presents and there was an exchange of gifts among the bridal party.

Mr. Tallamy is a native of Plainfield and is one of its most progressive young business men. He is engaged with his brother, Bertram F. Tallamy, in the building trade and the firm is one of the most responsible in the city. His bride has also always lived in Plainfield and has been an energetic worker at the Monroe Avenue church.

Young Doane Wins Honors.

In the Rutgers College class field meet held at New Brunswick yesterday, Hervey K. Doane, son of Chief T. O. Doane, captured two first medals and one second. He won the running high jump and the 220-yard hurdle and was second in the 120-yard high hurdle. His class, '06, won the cup for the meet by getting forty-five points.

Park Club Reception.

Invitations have been sent out by the Park Club for its opening reception to be given Friday, October 27, at 8:30 o'clock. There will be dancing at 11 o'clock.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE MUST BE WITHDRAWN

BUT MAYOR WYCKOFF WILL BE "PEOPLE'S PARTY" NOMINEE IN DUNELLEN

Mayor Wyckoff, of Dunellen, has been advised by an authority on election laws that his candidacy for mayor on the Democratic ticket is irregular, because no petition was filed for it, although there was no opposition to his nomination, which was made during the absence of Mr. Wyckoff on his vacation. He did not want a renomination, but accepted it as a call of duty to his party. Last week a voting machine was sent to Dunellen, and it is alleged the Mayor's name will not be placed on the Democratic ticket in the voting device.

As a result, the Mayor's friends have formed a third party, known as the "People's party," and he will run for Mayor on that ticket, and already a number of Republicans and Democrats who did not vote at the primaries of either party have signed a petition for the third ticket, which will be filed tonight.

READY FOR BIDS ON STORM SEWER WORK

RICHMOND STREET IMPROVEMENT SOON TO COMMENCE.

The Common Council, at the regular November meeting, will receive bids for the construction of the Richmond street storm sewer, a portion of which it hopes to complete as soon as possible. This is one of the most needful improvements in that part of the city and will go a long way toward relieving that section in heavy rains. In times past Richmond street, as well as adjoining streets, have been completely inundated by water and almost impassable.

The street committee has been at work on this improvement for several months and hope that nothing will interfere with it. Owing to the great cost of construction, it is proposed to build a portion of the storm sewer each year until the whole thing is completed.

Street Commissioner Gavett has furnished an estimate of the quantities of materials required and the work to be done. There will be 568 feet of concrete sewer, two manholes, eight branches on concrete sewer, twelve inlets, 260 feet 12 inch basin connections, 60 feet 15 inch basin connections, 72 feet 4 inch cast iron house connections.

Copies of the plans and specifications, forms of proposals, contract, bond, etc., can be found at the office of Street Commissioner Gavett.

Republican Convention Tonight.

The Republican city convention will be held at Reform Hall tonight beginning at 8 o'clock. It will be called to order by Chairman Olin L. Jenkins, of the city committee, and it is possible that Ernest R. Ackerman will make an address. The city committee will meet at 7 o'clock and perfect the temporary organization. A collector, a freeholder, three councilmen-at-large and one member of the Board of Education are to b voted for.

Thirteen Indictments.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning the Union county Grand Jury went into court and presented to the court a batch of thirteen indictments. The jurors not having completed their labors, after receiving the thanks of the court, returned to the Grand Jury room and resumed their work. The nature of the indictments will not be made public until those indicted are arraigned.

Home After Four Month's Trip.

Mrs. Gustav Hoffman and young son, of West Fourth street, arrived home yesterday on the steamer Hellig Olaf after a four months' trip through Denmark and Germany, where she arranged legal matters in connection with a small fortune recently left Mr. Hoffman. Mrs. Michael Wunderlich, of Leland avenue, also received a share of the estate.

Contract for Pipe Not Awarded.

Owing to a misunderstanding, the borough Council did not award the contract for the supply pipe to be used in the West End avenue sewer construction last night. A second meeting has been called for tomorrow night, when bids will be received. The borough is to do the work, believing it will be cheaper than by letting it out.

Funeral of Percy C. Ohl.

The funeral of Percy C. Ohl was held from his late home on Central avenue, yesterday afternoon, with only relatives in attendance. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, officiated. Interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

NUGENT IS NOMINATED

Elizabeth Man Choice of Union County Democrats For State Senator.

WOODRUFF, SHERIFF

Municipal Ownership, Eight-Hour Day, Limited Franchises and Insurance Investigation, Planks in Platform.

The Democratic county convention, held in Turner Hall, Elizabethport, last night, nominated a full ticket and adopted a platform, which declares among other things for equal taxation, the investigation of insurance companies doing business in New Jersey, an eight-hour working day, municipal ownership of public utilities and limited franchises.

The convention was called to order by John L. Crowell, the county chairman, and John L. Moody, of Cranford, was afterward chosen to preside over the convention. Fred Zyor, of Elizabeth, was elected secretary. Mr. Moody made an enthusiastic address upon taking the chair, and predicted success for the party in the coming campaign.

On the first and second ballots there were no nominations for Senator, and the convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for sheriff. While this was being done the friends of Edward Nugent persuaded him to accept the nomination for State Senator. He was chosen without opposition. Noah Woodruff, of Roselle, was nominated for sheriff, and the three Assembly nominees were W. DeWitt Stanford and Paul Marz, of Elizabeth, and Frank Dobbins, of Rahway. Dr. Thomas F. Higgins, of Elizabeth, was nominated for coroner.

After the nominations were made Mr. Nugent, as well as the other nominees, made speeches, thanking the convention for the honors conferred and pledging to do all in their power for the success of the ticket. The only contest at the convention was that for the shrievalty nomination, J. W. Sheppard, of Elizabeth, opposing Mr. Woodruff. The ballot stood 68 to 26 in favor of Mr. Woodruff.

In the appointment of committees, J. V. Dilts, of this city, was made a member of the committee on rules. All of Plainfield's nine delegates attended the convention.

BOWLING LEAGUE'S ANNUAL MEETING

SEVEN TEAMS WILL BE REPRESENTED AT WESTFIELD CLUB HOUSE.

Representatives from seven teams comprising the Central Journal Bowling League will hold their second annual meeting tonight at the Westfield Club, when officers will be elected, a schedule committee appointed and arrangements made to commence the league tournament early in November.

The trophy now being contested for was offered by the Elizabeth Journal. Last year the Roselle Casino won it for the first time after a lively contest with Westfield. To become the permanent property of a club it has to be won three times.

Team prizes are also to be given in this tournament and individual prizes for the best scores. The first team prize will be $25; second team prize, valued at $15; individual prize for high score, valued at $5, and three prizes for highest average, first valued at $15, second valued at $10, and third valued at $5. At the meeting tonight these prizes will be decided upon and they will undoubtedly be the same at last year.

It is expected that the same seven teams will contest for the trophy and the prizes this year. The teams entered last year were from these clubs: Park Club, North Plainfield; Jersey City Club, Newark Bay, of Bayonne; Elizabeth Club, Roselle Casino, Cranford Casino and Westfield Club. Last year's schedule began on November 29 and ended on March 10. Forty-two series of three games were rolled, bringing each team together six times, three at home and three abroad, and it is likely that this same schedule will be continued this season.

F. O. Ball is captain of the team that will represent the Park Club, and judging from the material from which a team will be selected this team will make a strong bid for the trophy this year. Candidates are practicing on the alleys every week and Mr. Ball hopes to have the strongest aggregation in the history of the club. Among those who will bowl on the first team are F. O. Ball, Morgan Townsend, William Barlow, Dr. Thiers and Ralph Willis.

MFG. CO. BUYS FACTORY

Spicer Universal Joint Co. Purchases Site For Its Big Business.

TO REMOVE NOV. 1

Old Spicer & Hubbard Property at Madison Avenue and West Third Street is Purchased.

Outgrowing its present quarters at the Potter Press Works, and being unable to fill the large increase in orders through lack of accommodations, the Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Company has purchased the Spicer & Hubbard property at Madison avenue and West Third street, where, after improvements are made, the company will transfer its business. There are three buildings on the property, one being occupied by W. H. Rogers, silverware manufacturer. He will remain for the present.

The other two building will be occupied by the new purchasers. One of these buildings is 24x62 and the other 20x30. Both are two stories high and will give the company the much needed room. It is expected that a force of fifty will be employed after the change is made, which will be about November 1.

The company manufactures what is known as a dust and oil proof universal joint, which is used chiefly on automobiles. On every machine it is necessary to have a joint connecting the front and rear axles, and the one made by the local company is on the style of a ball and socket, so constructed that it is absolutely impossible for dust to get inside, and it will carry a quantity of oil, when once filled, for a long time. The joint is the invention of Clarence W. Spicer, who came to this city from New York State about a year ago. He organized a company and since then the joints have been made at the Potter Press Company, in that part formerly occupied by the Campbell Press Company.

There has been a great demand for the joint, especially on the part of automobile manufacturers, until the company is forced to secure larger quarters and additional machinery, as well as increase its force of workmen. Several sites were considered, but the one chosen was believed to be the best, as there is sufficient ground upon which to build at any time other facilities are needed. The work of putting the two buildings in condition has been started and additional machinery has been ordered.

Among those comprising the stockholders of the company are Clarence W. Spicer, F. A. Pope, Joseph A. Hubbard, Asa F. Randolph, Prof. Henry M. Maxson, Harrison Coddington and David E. Titsworth.

The site purchased has been owned by J. D. Spicer and Joseph A. Hubbard for over thirty-five years, the greater part of that time these men operating a sash and blind mill there under the firm name of Spicer & Hubbard. A few years ago, when Mr. Spicer was injured at the lumber yards of Boice, Runyon & Co., he was obliged to give up business, and the firm eventually retired from the manufacture of sash and blinds.

WARREN CHAPEL MATERIAL.

May Be Built of Brick, Stone or Wood.

In response to a call, the congregation of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church met after the prayer meeting last night and rescinded the action taken last May which made it compulsory to build the new church edifice for Warren chapel of stone. Those in charge of the matter are now at liberty to go ahead and construct the new building of any material they may think best.

Progress is being made in the work of preparation for the new church building and the committee having charge of the plans and details hope to be able to start it within a short time.

Two Dramas Tonight.

Under the direction of Mrs. H. C. Ashley, local talent will present two dramas in Reform Hall this evening, one entitled "The Fairy of the Fountain" and the other entitled "Doctor Cure All." Both are very laughable and sure to please. Between the dramas solos will be rendered by the Misses Lulu and Adelaide Lewis and Clendina Hooper. Miss Bessie Mitchell will be the accompanist. The proceeds will be for the benefit of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, of which Rev. H. C. Ashley is pastor. Alex Stills will be stage manager and E. B. Maynard and Spencer Keely doorkeepers.

Good Government Smoker Tonight.

The borough Republican Good Government Club will give another of its smokers tonight. Speeches and vocal and instrumental music will be features.

HARKINS FILES CHARGES

Declaration of Grounds For $25,000 Suit Against H. Francis Allen.

TRIAL NEXT TERM

Harkins Says Allen Maliciously Intended to Alienate His Wife's Affections—Accusation of Actual Misconduct.

The declaration in the suit of Joseph B. Harkins against H. Francis Allen, of the Hotel Iroquois, for $25,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections, was filed in the Supreme Court at Trenton yesterday. The defendant is charged with maliciously and deliberately scheming to win Mrs. Harkins from her husband and her home, and with criminal misconduct.

In the complaint Allen is charged substantially as follows:

"Contriving and maliciously intending to aggrieve and injure the said Joseph B. Harkins, and to deprive him of the comfort, company and fellowship of Jessie Harkins, the then and now wife of Harkins. Allen did on July 23, 1905, and up till the present time, cause Mrs. Harkins to remain absent from her husband and leave his two infant children, by reason of which he has lost the assistance of his wife in his domestic affairs and business, and that he has been held up to 'ridicule and contumely of his relatives, his friends, and the public generally, and has been greatly disgraced, rendered homeless and otherwise greatly injured.' "

Harkins charges Allen with wilfully and knowingly harboring and receiving his wife, and has refused to restore her to him, although he has often asked him so to do; that he did "wrongfully, wickedly and maliciously purpose, plan and undertake to alienate the affection" of the wife and did "for the accomplishment of this purpose" represent that Harkins had no affection whatever for his wife and that he was unable "to properly care for her, to feed and clothe his said wife and that he was unable to give her care and attention." That he furnished "money for clothes, carriages and theatre entertainments and by other insidious wiles so prejudiced and poisoned the mind of the wife of said Harkins as to alienate her love and affection from him."

Harkins also charges that his wife, "acting under the advice of Allen, has left his home and children and that she refuses to recognize him or his children, and she refuses to live with him and refuses to be a mother to the children." A specific charge of misconduct follows:

The complaint ends with: "Wherefore, the said plaintiff says he has been injured and suffered damages to the sum of $25,000, and therefore he brings his suit, etc."

This case will be tried before Supreme Court Justice Fort and a jury at Elizabeth at the next term of the Union County Court. Craig A. Marsh is the defendant's counsel. I. P. Runyon is Harkins' lawyer.

WILL MEET STRONG TEAMS.

Star Schedule Arranged by O. F. C. Includes Stevens and Rutgers.

The O. F. C. eleven has signed dates with some of the strongest elevens in the metropolitan district. The team is stronger than it was last year, the manager says, but it will need all its weight and trickiness to get through the schedule it has taken on with a winning margin.

The Saturday after next the eleven will meet the Stevens Institute team at Hoboken. On Election Day the team will meet the Rutgers scrubs here, and on Thanksgiving Day the crack Navajo team, of the Brooklyn Indian League, will be its opponents.

Games have also been arranged with the Crescent A. C., of East Orange; Roseville A. C., Acorn A. C., of Brooklyn, and the Clark Club, of Elizabeth.

On Saturday the team will play the Dunellen eleven, at Dunellen. The Dunellenites have a strong combination, reinforced by college players, and a hard, hot fight is expected. The O. F. C. men have been going through a lot of heavy practice, and they are in top-notch form physically.

John Hiscox Goes to Michigan.

John Hiscox, manager for The Sabbath Recorder, who was obliged to temporarily give up his duties owing to ill health, left this morning over the Lehigh Valley Railroad, from South Plainfield, for St. Louis, Michigan, where he will take special treatment at a sanitarium. He expects to be away three months.

—Neuman Brothers have received their first consignments of this season's pack of White Label canned goods. It includes asparagus, peas, small lima beans, corn and green bean of a quality never better.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes.

Collector's Office, City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on

16th of November, 1905,

at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said City, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and four remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature entitled: "An act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following list contains the lot and block numbers of the lots, tracts and parcels of land to be sold in pursuance of this advertisement, as they appear on the official assessment maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, together with a statement of the Wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the amount due from each of said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage thereon, except that only one-half of such fees shall be chargeable when the city is a purchaser, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

ROBERT L. LEE, Collector.

A Complete Kitchen.

You cannot have your kitchen completely furnished unless you have a first-class Range, therefore insuring the most convenient cook. You should have one of our Ranges by all means, because of their construction which insures a perfect fire, even heat in the stove rather than in the kitchen. These are made for cooking, and are good enough for heating.

We also have a fine line of Oak and Cylinder Stoves, Pot Stoves, Stove Boards, Coal Hods, Ash Cans, Pipe, etc.

Our OIL HEATER, "The Waterman" is ideal.

We can get you any STOVE REPAIRS in the market.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

E. F. Dorman, of Park and North avenues, sells only the best life and accident insurance.

A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber, guarantees all his work and he does not overcharge.

John Winzenreid, of Lee place, general trucker, attends to all orders promptly and with great care.

Charles F. Stahl, of Somerset street, does the right kind of carpentering work. Ask him for estimates.

For the best anthracite coal and wood go to Rugg & Cline's yards on West Third street. The prices are right.

William H. Pope always does first-class electrical work—no half-way business in his methods. When you want a job done call him on the telephone.

L. W. Randolph, the druggist, has just received a supply of Hoff's famous German liniment. It is a household remedy and its curative powers are unlimited.

This is the best time of the year to put in your winter supply of coal, and Boice, Runyon & Co. can do it for you at the lowest market prices. The quality is the best.

There is music in the mention of Eggerding's cigars to a smoker. He knows they are the kind that he likes and that he can give his friends without being "jollied."

E. A. Craig, the East Front street electrician, always keeps a full stock of supplies on hand. He has everything in the way of bells, batteries, globes, wire and push-buttons.

Pure milk, cream, butter, eggs, as well as unsalted butter, buttermilk, can always be found at Brokaw's creamery on East Front street. Inspection of the creamery is invited.

When a new style of hat is introduced, rest assured it can be obtained at U. B. Crane's West Front street haberdashery. He is right up-to-date at all times. He guarantees satisfaction.

In getting your wardrobe completed for the fall and winter months don't forget shoes—they are an essential to good dressing. Those new styles that A. E. & A. L. Giddes, of West Front street, are showing, are just what you want.

Hill & Shupp, the dry goods merchants, are offering exceptional bargains in their retiring sale, including fine carpets, rugs, household utensils, dry goods, dress goods, laces and embroideries, all at very low prices. It will be to your advantage to make your purchases early and thereby get the pick of the stock.

Competition is the life of trade and that is the reason why Boehm's big dry goods store on West Front street is always a scene of activity. The proprietor makes it a point to compete with the largest houses in the State and the metropolis as well and as a result his patrons are always being given something new in the various departments. Every woman in the city is invited to see the new fall display, the most complete ever shown in the city.

Bishop's Visit Planned.

Rev. A. S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, has received a letter from Bishop Scarborough, acquainting him with the date of the Bishop's visitation to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation. It will be St. Stephen's Day, December 26. The rector will be glad to hear from all who are desirous of receiving confirmation, so that the hours for the necessary instructions may be arranged. In general it will be the same as last year; an hour will be appointed for a morning, an afternoon and evening. The older people do not come at these hours, but meet the rector from time to time by appointment.

Among the early fall society events will be a tea to be given in November by Mrs. F. H. Wills, of East Seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen have returned to their home in the borough from their summer camp in the Adirondacks.

AMUSEMENTS.

There is a treat in store for everyone tonight at the New Plainfield theatre. Mr. Richard F. Outcault, the creator of Buster Brown and the Yellow Kid, will give what he calls a "Cartoon Lecture." This entertainment consists of an afternoon of amusing story telling, interspersed with rapidly made drawings by Mr. Outcault, who will show how he develops his amusing little characters and will narrate his adventures with Buster Browns he has met in various parts of the world. After the entertainment, Mr. Outcault will be pleased to meet the children of the audience and talk to them personally.

Mr. Archie L. Shepard, who stands pre-eminent in this particular field of amusement, presents his moving picture exhibition with a varied assortment of subjects, depicting every phase of life and playing upon the entire gamut of human emotion. The programme for the forthcoming engagement is replete with thrilling dramatic incidents and comic situations, which, together with scenes of travel and incursions into the realms of fancy, provide a unique entertainment lasting over two hours, combining instruction and amusement with never a dull moment. In Shepard's pictures the theatregoing public is always assured an evening of unalloyed enjoyment that appeals to every taste, equally pleasing to old and young, in which no sense of fastidious propriety is offended. This attraction is announced to appear at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday night, with a matinee for the children at 2:30 o'clock.

Agreeing that the public's familiarity with "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," because of its many repetitions, has suffered it to be referred to as "old as the hills," it is no small wonder that this same public hesitate to even think of witnessing a presentation of the play. In these days theatregoers generally stop to consult the possibility of their visiting something meritorious. They analyze their chances very carefully. The fact that "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has been frequently presented, and that the public is more or less familiar with its theme, is a splendid argument in favor of the extreme popularity, but in view of the fact that the play has seldom received a creditable presentation, is it not remarkable to know that Mr. Elwyn Strong, in offering an entirely new scenic production of the great drama, should be meeting with such tremendous success. The players have been engaged with but one idea in view, that being the correct portrayal of the parts. A complete scenic equipment is made another feature of the production. Perfection has been the aim, and though "as old as the hills," even hills may be remodelled and reformed to be as comparatively desirable as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" now appears. This company is to be at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

WOMAN MAIL CARRIER.

Takes Free Delivery Route During the illness of Her Uncle.

Residents along the free-delivery route which takes in Mountain View, Preakness and the surrounding country near Paterson, were surprised yesterday morning when the mail was delivered by a pretty young woman, who did the work in a business-like manner. She explained that her uncle, Peter Lydecker, regular carrier, was ill and that she would take his place until he recovered.

The first to be treated to a surprise by Miss Lydecker was Postmaster Pollitt at Paterson. She told the Postmaster of her uncle's illness, and said she was ready to do the work.

"I have covered the route several times with my uncle," she explained, "and I know it thoroughly. When I am in doubt, I can ask questions along the way."

Mr. Pollitt pointed out the bundle of letters for Lydecker's route and the young woman proceeded to distribute them with as much skill and rapidity as a veteran carrier. The clerks at the postoffice watched her with interest and admiration. She started from the office with an air of confidence.

"I'll be back this afternoon in time," she said to the Postmaster. And she kept her word, delivering all the mail placed in her charge.

SCORN JOHN D.'S MONEY.

Candidates for Regents Will "If Elected" Return It.

Omaha, Oct. 18.—Candidates on the Democratic ticket for Regents of the State University here in an open letter pledged themselves, if elected, to return to John D. Rockefeller the donation which he made last year to the university.

At the solicitation of Chancellor Andrews, Mr. Rockefeller donated $66,000, after the State had raised $34,000, to be used to erect a temple for religious societies at the university. Since then Andrews has championed Rockefeller in many ways.

In their letter today the candidates condemn the relations existing between Rockefeller and Andrews, and pledge themselves to have Andrews withdraw from the board, which is distributing ten millions of Rockefeller's money to educational institutions.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The Hoboken team will wind up the season at St. George's Cricket Grounds on Sunday, October 29.

It is expected that "Rube" Oldring, who formerly played here and who made a hit with the New York Americans the latter part of the season, will be given a chance next season by the Highlanders.

It was a deserving compliment that Mayors Buckle and Smalley paid to the Plainfield team, when they said that it was comprised of a gentlemanly lot of players. This is true in every sense, as their actions on and off the field have shown.

Sporting writers all over the country agree that the past season has been one of the best in the history of baseball for the National game. The attendance at games has been far in excess of previous seasons and the interest doubly increased.

With the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's new grounds, clubhouse and track so near to Crescent Oval, it might be a good plan for Manager Daab to retain the Oval for baseball next season. The improvements in that part of the city will certainly bring better trolley facilities.

McCabe, of Wilkes-Barre, who was originally slated to pitch for the Plainfield team this season, prior to Manager Daab's entrance here, had a successful season with Holyoke, champions of the Connecticut State League. Manager Frysinger says that he was the only pitcher in that league that had complete mastery of the spit-ball.

The Philadelphia Athletics are making an exhibition tour of Pennsylvania towns. On Tuesday they defeated the Reading team by a score of 5 to 0. It might have been a wise move to have brought the American League champions here for Saturday. They would draw a bigger crowd than the Giants just now, as many fans have never seen the Quaker City boys.

When Manager "Jess" Frysinger appeared here with his Holyoke team, a few weeks ago, he paid "Warry" MacLaughlin a nice compliment by saying that he was the best left-handed twirler in the Connecticut State League. "Jess" also said that when he managed the Harrisburg, Pa., team he made "Warry" an offer to go with him. Since then he has tried several times to secure the Plainfield pitcher. He has great confidence in his ability.

A well-known professional baseball player remarked a few days ago that if more of the players would keep up their training in gymnasiums during the winter, it would be possible to cut out the southern trips in the spring. As evidence of this "Lou" Wiltse, of this city, who pitched for the York, Tri-State League Club, this season, did gymnasium work all last winter and in the spring he was in fine condition for playing, which his season's record shows.

GOLF.

Only two more weeks remain for the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club, and the closing play will be watched with unusual interest by the members of the club. This cup has been played for every week throughout the season and has been the leading event. At present E. B. Shoemaker holds the lead with thirteen points, and despite the fact that other contestants have from time to time increased their lead, Mr. Schoonmaker has not done so. In consequence, C. B. Morgan stands an excellent chance to win out. He now has 10 5-6 points and with two more Saturdays play should be able to improve his standing a few points. Morris J. Dumont holds their position with 9½ points, and he is likely to make it interesting for the two players ahead of him, as he is putting up a fine game at present. C. A. Stover is in fourth position with nine points and H. D. Hibbard follows with 8½. These players would have to secure the majority of points in the remaining play to finish first. As all of the leaders are playing good golf, it would not surprise one to see the unexpected happen and one of the dark-horses win the cup. After the conclusion of the play for this cup, a competition has been arranged for those having three points. This competition will be for the T. R. VanBoskerck consolation cup, and will be an exciting contest. It will take some time to play this off and for that reason, the Golf Committee cup competition will terminate this season earlier than usual.

Mrs. Madge Clark-Mack, of Somerville, is visiting in Plainfield for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," have taken apartments in New York.

Percy Sandford, formerly of this city, but now of Englewood, has been visiting friends in town.

Miss Edna MacDonald, of Watchung avenue, has returned home from Whitehouse, where she has been visiting relatives.

William E. Alpaugh, of East Third street, is confined to the house by a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

STARTS SEWELL STATUE.

Governor Asks for 15,000 Pounds of Old Bronze Cannon.

Governor Stokes yesterday made requisition on the War Department at Washington for 15,000 pounds of old bronze cannon to be used for the erection of an equestrian statue of the late Major General William J. Sewell. Where the statue is to be erected no one knows at present, but it is believed that the Governor will mention the matter in his opening message to the Legislature in January next and urge an appropriation of moneys for the building of this statue.

Under the act of Congress, approved June 23, 1902, the War Department is directed to deliver to the Governor of the State of New Jersey, up on his request, 15,000 pounds of old bronze cannon, provided this can be done without detriment to the public service.

The matter laid dormant until last summer, when in looking over some papers in the adjutant general's office Dr. Godfrey found a copy of this act and mentioned it to Governor Stokes.

The Governor delivered the memorial address on General Sewell and had been a warm and close friend of the man, and he has now applied for the bronze and will try to get an appropriation for the erection of the Sewell equestrian statue.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Maynard and Mrs. William Higgins, of New London, Conn., returned home today after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wheeler, of Home street.

Mrs. Payne Surprised.

Mrs. Jonathan Payne, of Westfield, was given a birthday surprise at her home on Saturday night by a host of her friends. While Mrs. Payne was making a social call, they took possession of her home and when she returned she was completely taken by surprise. The features of the evening were the piano selections rendered by Miss Anna Wittke, of Westfield, and Henry J. Prudhomme, of Brooklyn. Mrs. Payne was the recipient of many handsome gifts.

Miss Hellstrom Dead.

Miss Florence I. Hellstrom, aged fourteen years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Hellstrom, of 626 East Seventh street, died at her home this morning. The family has lived here but a short time, having moved to Plainfield from Bayonne. The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of the parents. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Reynolds—Serrell.

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Serrell for the marriage of their daughter, Florence Ethel, to John Peake Reynolds, Jr., Thursday evening, November 9, at 7 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents, 36 Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield. A reception will follow from 8 until 10 o'clock.

Fred Willibald Buried.

The funeral of Fred Willibald, who died suddenly at Westfield yesterday, was held from St. Mary's church this morning. Rev. Father Bogan had charge. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being John Lyons, John Newman, Charles McCann and John Gorman.

"The Shadow Behind the Throne."

"The Shadow Behind the Throne," one of the season's best melodramas and theatrical offerings, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night. It will be produced with special scenery and a cast that is far above those generally seen in melodrama.

—Fruits and vegetables in all varieties are received fresh each day by Neuman Brothers. See their display before making purchases elsewhere.

A Question for the Orators.

The Republican nominee for sheriff in Union county has refused to pledge himself to place negroes on juries in case he is elected. The President of th United States kept the fact of the resignation of William F. Powell as Minister to Haiti from the colored folks of New Jersey until he could appoint a negro to the vacant place from Indiana. Now what right has the Republican party of this State to expect the support of the colored brothers this fall? That's a question for Democratic orators to spring where it will do the most good and the least harm.—Newark News.

Another Reformed Church.

The Reformed Church Board of Domestic Missions is considering the matter of building a church at East Somerville, believing that a place of worship will soon be needed in that growing section of Somerset county.

"ARNOLD" Knit Bath Apron.

Makes Baby's Bath a Pleasure.

When preparing baby's bath tie this apron about you, and after washing the infant enfold it in the apron. Every atom of moisture is absorbed leaving baby's skin soft, sweet and dry. This garment is made in both merino and cotton with closely knitted back and long down fleece Exceptional care has been taken to render the fabric highly absorbent and it is obsolutely unshrinkable. The edges are neatly bound and daintily finished. It can also be used as a carriage or cradle quilt. Standard sixe is 34 inches square.

PRICES $1.00 AND $1.75.

"ARNOLD" KNIT KNICKERBOCKER DRAWERS.

This garment does not bind or draw in any part. It is made from a strong, soft and finely knit fabric of selected cotton, so elastic that it gives with every motion Just the kind for an active child, as he is given freedom of motion. These drawers are made of double cloth with embroidery ruffles and fleece lined with lawn ruffles. The "Arnold" Drawers with ruffle, only starchable, being made from an elastic knit fabric, "wear like iron," and therefore the most economical.

Stock Broker Arrested.

William C. Folkner, fifty-four years old, head of the firm of Folkner & Co., dealers in stocks on the "bucket shop" plan, at No. 156 Market street, Newark, was arrested yesterday on complaint of John O. Paine, of Linden. He accuses Folkner and the latter's partner, Charles C. Powell, with obtaining money from him under false pretenses. He alleges they took from him more than $1,600, to be used as margins in stock transactions, and that they failed to make any accounting for the money. When the firm suddenly collapsed a few days ago, Paine instituted criminal proceedings. A warrant has also been issued for Powell, but he has not been caught.

State Home Girls Escape.

Trenton, Oct. 19.—Sadie Hall, Goldie Nichols and Rosie Simpson, three girls ranging in age from fourteen to eighteen years of age, made their escape Tuesday night from the State Home for Girls by climbing out of a cellar window. Sadie Hall had a red striped dress known as a "punishment" dress, and the other girls were attired in the regular institution dress. The police have been notified and are searching the city for the girls. It is believed they have gone on a lark and will return to the home today. An hour after their escape the girls were seen with a number of students.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS WED.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Field Celebrate Nuptial Anniversary.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Field, of Bound Brook, was celebrated on Tuesday afternoon and evening at their home on Hamilton street, that borough. Guests were present from Plainfield, New York City, Philadelphia, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and other places among the guests were two venerable men of eighty-five years, A. S. Coriell, of New Market, and George W. Suydam, of Middlebrook. There were numerous and beautiful gifts in great variety. Mr. and Mrs. Field received their friends in their usual hearty, kindly manner.

John B. Field and Mary E. Van Doren were married at Middlebrook, N. J., on October 17, 1855, by the Rev. Mr. Van Doren, and began housekeeping at the Field homestead farm in Piscataway township near Bound Brook, where they resided until five years ago, when they removed to Bound Brook. Mr. Field still retains the farm where he had lived for seventy-two years and was known as a progressive successful farmer.

Their union was blessed with two sons, Joseph V. D. and Runyon, who are unmarried and make their home with their parents. Joseph runs and personally manages a large farm in Piscataway township, near Bound Brook, and has been a well known figure in Middlesex politics in the Democratic ranks. Runyon is a large owner of real estate in Bound Brook, being well known as a successful builder and developer of unimproved property. He is a member of the Bound Brook Common Council.

Auction Sale of Horses.

Peter C. Kellogg Co. will sell at auction at Plainfield Driving Park, Tuesday, October 31, trotting stock, carriage and road horses, property of various owners, including stallions, broodmares, horses with records and young stock owned by J. W. Johnson. W. N. Burgess, Flemington, N. J., consigns nearly 20 head, some with records, most of which are by Lynne Bel, 2:10½. Entries for sale should be made at once to Peter C. Kellogg Co., 107 John street, New York.

Mr. Edwards Honored.

George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, a member of the staff on Collier's Weekly, and whose work of art has won for him high honors, has been chosen as one of four jurors to select the pictures for the Chicago Art Exhibition to be held in that city in 1906. These pictures will be chiefly from Europe, and that he was asked to be one of the committee of four jurors is considered by his friends as a fine compliment to Mr. Edwards' judgment.

Park Club's Opening Reception.

Invitations have been issued by the entertainment committee of the Park Club for the reception and dance which will mark the resumption of fall and winter activities at the popular clubhouse. JUST FIVE COCKTAILS KILLED HIS MEMORY

DEFENDANT IN DIVORCE SUIT TELLS OF A TIME HE HAD IN NEWARK.

Testimony was taken yesterday before Vice Chancellor Stevens, at Newark, in an action for divorce brought by Mrs. Carrie L. Mapes, of Westfield, against her husband, Stephen S. Mapes. The statutory offense is alleged.

In his defense Mapes alleges his wife deserted him and alo that he was the victim of a conspiracy.

According to the testimony, the couple were married June 12, 1895. They separated December 28, 1900. The wife averred that her husband left her of his own volition, but Mapes in his answer asserts that one December day in 1900 he left home to go to his place of employment, giving his wife $16 for household expenses. When he returned home that evening, Mapes avers, he found his home deserted and stripped of half the furniture and fittings. He says he learned that the household effects had been taken away in a van and that his wife had said she had left him, never to return, because he had not made sufficient provision for her.

According to the bill and the evidence, the alleged offense that forms the basis of Mrs. Mapes' suit occurred March 12, 1905. On that day Mapes went to Newark with John L. Miller, of Westfield, and they were joined by Edward L. Oxenford, an employe of a private detective agency. The three men visited several saloons. Mapes admitted that he drank five Manhattan cocktails, but of what happened afterward he was unconscious as the liquor so affected him that he knew no more until he awoke in bed at his home in Westfield.

Miller sumbitted an affidavit in which he declares he was asked by Oxenford, the detective, to induce Mapes to go to Newark that day. He alleged that Oxenford told him he was working for the lawyer engaged by Mrs. Mapes to procure a divorce for her.

Frederick Hagerman, a stepson of Mapes, told of following the defendant to Newark and to having seen him enter the Mulberry street house in company with the detective.

The case was not concluded. Mapes is the third husband of Mrs. Mapes. She was divorced from her second husband.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 22: "Sacred Songs That Have Helped"—Eph. v, 15-20; Col. iii, 15-17—A Praise Service.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

"Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly, in all wisdom teaching and admonishing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts unto God."

That would be a praise service worth attending, a sacred concert of which one need not to be ashamed. Nothing is said as to kind and number of instruments used nor of the ability and fame of the soloists employed. Those then are not the essential things. "Let the word of Christ dwell in you." Jesus is the great composer of spiritual praise. He teaches the heart to sing praises as no other one ever has or can do. The first requisite then for a genuine praise service is grace of heart and the indwelling word of Christ.

Music has been one of the most valuable aids used by the church to teach spiritual truth and to admonish and persuade men to the best living. Richly and in wisdom has the church of Christ used this gift of song in the work of reclaiming and developing men in godliness. Outside the religion of the Bible there is no such thing as sacred music, in the true sense of the term. Melody and harmony are the outgrowth of true religion.

In all ages the church has cultivated sacred song. It was used in the temple service at Jerusalem, but in the apostolic church took on greater depth and richness. We still have preserved to us in the original form some of the hymns of the early Greek church. They have been translated into many languages and are sung at the present time all over the world. One of the best of our Easter hymns is that of John of Damascus, which begins:

The day of resurrection,
Earth tell it out abroad,
The passover of gladness,
The passover of God!

Clement of Alexandria wrote "Shepherd of Tender Youth," which is still one of the best children's hymns we have.

The church of the middle ages had a few great hymn writers, and there are seven great Latin hymns which live as among the finest lyrics the world has produced. The "Dies Irae" and "Stabat Mater" and "Veni Creator Spiritus" and Bernard's "Celestial Country" have become classics even in their English form, which lacks much of the charm of the original Latin. The latter had 3,000 lines of very peculiar versification, so difficult of composition that it has never been successfully imitated, and Bernard declared he never could have composed his incomparable hymn if the Lord had not really inspired him. Certainly the selection "Jerusalem the Golden, With Milk and Honey Blessed," which is an extract from it, seems often to us almost inspired.

The great hymn writers of modern times are worthily led by Watts and Wesley, who wrote more than any other composers of any previous age. Their hymns mark a new age in church life and have had marked influence in the evangelization of the masses of the people in the past century.

There is great power in sacred song, and it should be wisely used. It would be well to occasionally spend an evening with the hymn writers of the past, giving a short sketch of the life and some selections from the leading hymns of the most noted of different countries and centuries.

It would be well to have some of the striking incidents recalled where particular hymns have been instrumental in affecting the reform of men and women. Then sing with appreciation the really great hymns of the ages, and never let pass from memory the gems of sacred song which have come down to us from the past.

How to Bless Others.

There must be fullness before there can be overflowing. Only the disciple whose life is crowded with God can overflow in godliness and blessing to other lives. A person cannot impart what he does not first possess. In vain does he hope to show Christ to the world unless Christ dwells deeply in his own heart.—William T. Ellis in Philadelphia Press.

Growing In Holiness.

No large growth in holiness was ever gained without taking time to be often and long alone with God.—Austin Phelps.

Yet Once More.

This hour that wakes thee with its morning chime
To common tasks that change not year by year—
How knowest thou but for the latest time
Its measured strokes have rung upon thine ear?

This hand outstretched for thee for help today
From the fierce current where the world sweeps past—
Stop, ere thou shut thine heart and turn away;
This one appeal to thee may be the last.

This onset sweeping down with hosts of hell,
This blinding shock and strain, without, within—
Strike for thy Lord once more! What lips can tell
But this shall be thy final strife with sin?

This cry of flesh and soul in agony,
This silence of forsaking, chill and dim—
Wait on His will and suffer. This may be
The last of suffering thou shalt bear for Him.

This love thou mightest pour upon His feet,
This strength to help, to bear, to strive, to be—
Oh, let them not be lost in vain defeat!
What if this day were all of earth for thee?

—Mabel Earle in Christian Endeavor World.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 22.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Sacred songs that have helped me.—Eph. v, 15-20; Col. iii, 15-17. (A praise service.)

When Moses and the Israelites were delivered from the Egyptians and had successfully crossed the Red sea, they expressed their gratitude to God in song. The "Song of Moses" was sung, and Miriam, the sister of Moses, at the head of the women, responded to it. From that day to this sacred song has had an important part in the service of God, and praise has been given an important place in the worship of God. If there is any criticism upon this part of the public worship today, it would be rather that too much time is devoted to music, especially to that of trained quartets and choirs, and that some of the jingling tunes frequently heard in religious services are not sacred, but have been aptly described as "ecclesiastical ragtime." For the true worship of God congregational singing should be given the supreme place, and only songs that find their suggestion in the inspired word of God or in religious experiences, similar to those of the Scriptural composers, should find a place in our religious hymn books.

1. Sacred songs should be sacred, and if they are the number of books and hymn writers will be more limited than they are today. God's people for centuries used practically 150 psalms, composed by a very limited number of men. The man who can set them to such tunes as "John Brown's Body," etc., was never called of God to such a work. They are sacrilegious songs and not sacred songs. They inspire irreverence and not worship and should be cast aside without the least consideration. We are counseled to sing "psalms," the sacred songs of the Bible; "hymns," songs praising the divine Being, and "spiritual songs," songs expressing religious experiences which have been inspired by the Holy Spirit and which He wants us to sing. Such music will be sacred and helpful, and God will accept it as praise to Him.

2. Sacred songs are to be used in private and public worship. The use of the hymn in connection with family worship is fast passing away. In Eph. v, 19, Paul refers to social worship in the home. "Speaking to yourselves," or, rather, to one another, "in psalms, hymns and spiritual songs." The idea is that one would start a song and then another a second hymn, and no method of praising God is more helpful than this. In Colossians it is "teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." This applies to public worship. Sacred music here is most helpful. It leads to the conversion of souls, it comforts the hearts of the burdened and it cheers the downhearted and the discouraged. Therefore let us always add our voices to the singing of the congregation.

Sacred songs to help us spiritually must have their origin in the heart. Heart singing is effective singing. In both Ephesians and Colossians Paul emphasizes this fact. His expression to the former is, "Singing and making melody on your heart to the Lord;" to the latter, "Singing with grace in your heart to the Lord." Professional singers make no greater mistake than when they sacrifice the soul in their singing to the artistic. This is especially true in rendering sacred music. The singer who attempts to praise God or to lead a congregation in public praise with artistic finish rather than with melody from the heart shows himself or herself to have absolutely no conception of the first principle of rendering sacred music. Instead of being artists they are ignoramuses. When we praise God, whether it be with the trained, cultivated voice (and these should be used in His praise) or with the unsteady, trembling voice of the aged servant of God, let us praise Him from the heart, "singing with grace in our hearts unto the Lord."

A Methodist Tribute.

The Methodist New Connexion at its one hundred and ninth annual conference passed resolutions declaring that "the conference has the clearest possible proof that the Endeavor movement is an important factor in sustaining and enlarging our church membership."

In the Foreign Field.

Australia's last convention was recently held in Hobart, the capital city of Tasmania.

There is now a Christian Endeavor union at Samoa, with a membership from the two groups of islands of 839.

In Tokyo, Japan, one of the Endeavorers printed the Christian Endeavor pledge on a piece of white cloth which hangs in the chapel and is read at every consecration meeting.

The Makiki Christian Endeavor society in Hawaii has a "customs reform committee" composed of five men. Its name suggests its work.

"Three years ago," says President Harada, "there were 140 Christian Endeavor societies in China. Today there are 350."

A Christian Endeavor union has recently been formed in Colombo, Ceylon.

"Christian Endeavor in Bulgaria," says Mrs. George D. Marsh, the missionary, "is not only alive, but growing."

The Norwegian name for the Christian Endeavor society is "Ungdomsforeningerne for Personlig Kristendom."

There are now three Christian Endeavor societies in the Balearic islands, the latest formed being in a Methodist church.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"What do they owe you, sir?" demanded the aide, turning to the elderly man at the sideboard who was nursing a bruised throat, yet looking infinitely thankful.

"They don't owe me—'cept for a few drinks of peach—I'd a given them that gladly if they'd said they were dry and hadn't any money, but when it came to takin' the demijohn I 'lowed it was robbery."

"How dare you men break in here?" demanded Benton, sternly. "You know the orders against plundering. Take their names, sergeant, and turn them over to the guard when you overtake the regiment."

"May I say a word, sir?" asked one of the trio, stepping forward, with a shifty salute, for all three seemed sobered by their plight.

"Say on."

"We didn't break in, sir. The door was open, the light in the window. We were down here before eight o'clock with the sergeant, trying to find news of the young lady, and this fellow can tell about her and won't tell. It was that we came to see about. He set up the peach to keep us from 'peaching,'" and the scamp had the impudence to grin over his own conceit.

"Take those men outside," ordered Benton, implacably, "and ask Dr. Chilton to step in here a moment. I'm afraid you're hurt," he continued, for the man had turned pale and was leaning against the sideboard for support. At the sound of the name "Chilton" he started and glared. Obediently the sergeant marched his prisoners to the outer air, and, presently, in came the doctor. One quick glance passed between him and the pallid Virginian.

"You here now, Jennings!" cried the newcomer; "and hurt? How did it happen? When did you get here? Have you seen—do you know anything of Rosalie?" and by this time his practiced finger was at the other's pulse—the other who for all reply glanced significantly, warningly toward Benton, and seemed striving to bid his friend be silent. But the doctor was all impatience.

"Speak man! This gentelman is a friend—a friend in need. You have seen her. Is she safe? Is she harmed?"

"Safe," was the sententious answer, with still another significant look, disregarded as before by Chilton.

"But what does it mean? Why should she leave Henry's? She was to take care of her brother till I returned. Had anybody dared—affront her—there? Where is she, Jennings? Answer me, man!"

But despite the almost agonized appeal, despite the assurance that Benton, though in the garb of the enemy was yet a friend, the Virginian could not reply. "Wait, doctor—wait till you see Judge Armistead. He'll tell you the hull story. He's coming over from Hopewell this evening——"

"Judge Armistead—here? And she went with him, do you mean—and left my boy? Why, Jennings, I can't believe it."

And then the Hoosier sergeant again came to the door.

"Sharp firing, lientenant, south of us! Shall I follow Maj. May or turn after the guard toward the Lewis place?"

Leaving the two Virginians Benton stepped outside. The moon was just peeping above the trees toward the distant heights of Centreville and near by objects were become more readily visible in the faint and mystic light. Somewhere to the south—toward the Junction—Stuart's venturesome troopers had come in view of slowly retiring parties of the Western brigade and a fairly brisk fusliade was the result. For a moment the officer listened to the spiteful crackle of carbine and rifle, then answered the question. "Better follow the major—and lively, too. I'll catch you before you've gone a quarter of a mile."

He felt that it was now unsafe to return to the Henry house. The guard was gone. The chances were that within a few minutes Stuart's troopers would be coming up the Sudley road from the south. He would say a word of farewell to Dr. Chilton, then follow his men. Leaving the horses with the orderly in front, he once more turned, and as he entered the rear room, stopping a most excited conversation, he was amazed to see the back door which had been shut and barred three minutes before, swiftly closing behind a slender figure in the trim frock of gray—the uniform of the confederate service. He saw the same form flash by the northward window, and instead of pursuing, whirled about, sprang through the front door and round to the westward side of the house just missing collision with a panting corporal who cried, "Reb officer ran down this way from the Henry house. Me and Hinks followed." All in an instant then his suspicions were confirmed. All in a second's time, it seemed, he had hurled himself on a dim, fragile form and, clasping it in his arms, strained it, despite furious struggles, to his breast. "Paul—Paul!" he cried. "Don't you know me?—Fred? Surrender, you blessed boy reb, surrender. Heavens, man, don't scratch!" for two furious little hands were tearing at his cheeks. "Speak, you sinner. Haven't I known since five o'clock 'twas you I saw at the window?"

But so far from speaking, only panting incoherencies escaped the lips of his captive. Straining, squirming, the slender form writhed and palpitated in his clasp, a heart was throbbing like mad against his, and while he still clung with one arm to his prize, he seized and captured with the other hand a long, slim-fingered, sharp-nailed little member that was bent, apparently, on tearing out his eyes, and then, swaying and staggering, Benton bore his prize into the moonlit space beyond just as the doctor and the Virginian, lantern-bearing, came stumbling out into the night. The yellow gleam fell full on a beautiful, dark, flushing face, framed in masses of dusky hair tumbling about the sloping shoulders and down the slender back—for the natty slouch hat had been lost somewhere in the scuffle—fell upon glowing, indignant, magnificent eyes, upon flashing white teeth, upon lovely, ruddy, parted lips, and in amaze, yet still clinging to his lovely captive, Benton stammered:

"Not Paul, but, whoever you are—my prisoner!"

"Not Paul—nor your prisoner!" was the sudden, exultant answer, in a voice that ever since early evening had been ringing in his ears. "Not your prisoner. You're ours! Do you hear?" And out of the silence of the night there burst the thunder of galloping hoofs, close upon them, sweeping like a tornado over the open fields to the northwest, and then there came, whirling into view and surging all about them a swarm of shouting, jubilant cavaliers—Stuart's Virginians in all their early glory.

CHAPTER VIII.

A BADGER IN THE TOILS.

The rest of that night was long a blank in Benton's mind. He had vague recollections of a furious struggle, of trampling horses, of shining, whirling saber blades, of a leap to saddle and frantic effort to cut his way through circling foes, of riders' shouts, a woman's scream, a crushing blow that nearly split his skull, and then—oblivion until morning; and the face bending fondly, anxiously over him, as he opened his eyes, was that of Paul Ladue, and the first words that faltered from his lips were: "Paul, poor old boy! How sick you must have been!" for, white and haggard and distressed, the winsome features of the year gone by—the dream face of his chosen friend, seemed aged and worn almost beyond recognition.

Then there were hours of trundling over rough, half frozen roads, with a racking pain in his fevered head and incessant thirst. Bearded faces came and peered at him from time to time, not in enmity or hate, but almost in soldier sympathy, and one young fellow in a gray jacket and cap three sizes too big for him, perched on the back of the ambulance in which he rode and gave him frequently cool water from his canteen. From time to time Dr. Chilton came and ministered to and comforted him. "It's the fortune of wah, my deah suh," said he. "Yes'dy my boy, my daughter and young Ladue yahnduh were all in your hands. Now it's just the other way. Be patient, suh. Once across the Rappahannock we'll take to the cyahs. This side the river the railway is all ripped up."

Four patients had Chilton to care for now, it seems, and by Gen. Johnston's orders, fast as they could possibly be transported, he was conveying them under cavalry escort beyond the river. In very serious plight was his own gallant boy, the lieutenant of the First Virginia cavalry, to rescue whom his comrades had made that wide detour and sudden and surprising swoop from the northward side of the pike. Reclining in the second ambulance throughout the morning hours was Miss Chilton, suffering both from shock and partial collapse, for she had been knocked down by a rushing, riderless horse in the midst of the melee in front of the stone house and severely bruised and shaken. Third on the list of invalids, but insisting on remaining in saddle, was Lieut. Paul Ladue—the unhappiest man in the party, worn down with grief and anxiety. Fourth and last was Fred Benton, with a bandaged skull and a broken arm—captured in the moment of supposed victory.

PENNSY TO PLACE MORE HEAVY ORDERS

WILL SPEND $26,000,000 FOR FREIGHT CARS AND LOCOMOTIVES.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is about to place the largest single equipment order in its history. It consists of 500 locomotives and 15,000 freight cars. Plans have been made with the Baldwin Locomotive Works for the building of 250 locomotives and 250 more are to be built at the company's shops at Juniata.

Bids for the construction of the freight cars have been invited and the order will be placed within a few weeks. It came as a great surprise, although it has been known that despite all recent additions to equipment the road is still short of motive power and cars.

Within the past nine months the company has placed orders for 16,300 freight cars and has received the major part of an order for 525 locomotives placed last year with the Baldwins.

The value of the combined order is placed at $21,250,000. Of this amount $15,000,000 will be expended on cars. The contract to be given the Baldwins is estimated at $3,125,000. It is probable that the motive power order will be increased before the first part of the order has been received. When the new order is placed the Pennsylvania system will have under way 31,300 new cars and a total outlay of $26,000,000 will be involved.

Traffic officers of the road say that every day an increase in freight is noticeable. Calls for more cars are heard constantly. Orders have been issued to the transportation department to hasten the loading and unloading of cars on the road, but even unusual effort has failed to supply the demand. Orders have been sent to all connecting lines to return immediately all cars belonging to the Pennsylvania, and still the demand exceeds the supply. It is estimated by the transportation officers that if the company had enough cars to meet the demand now more than the cost of the cars would be earned within a short time.

The car order will probably be placed with the Pressed Steel Car Company, the Standard Steel Car Company, the American Car and Foundry Company, the Cambria Steel Company and the Middletown Car Works.

Financial arrangements for the order have not been made, but it is predicted that the directors will order a part of the expense taken from the system's earnings, while the remainder will be taken out of the proceeds of the recent bond issue of $100,000,000.

FIGHT PUBLIC SERVICE.

New Brunswick Citizens Start City Ownership Movement.

A movement to establish a municipal lighting plant at New Brunswick in opposition to the Public Service Corporation was launched last night at a public meeting of one hundred citizens in the Young Men's Christian Association hall. F. B. Kilmer, of the Board of Health, presided, and H. B. Zimmerman was secretary.

Figures were produced showing that the Public Service Corporation was charging at the rate of 15 cents a kilowatt hour here, while in thirteen other cities where a comparison was made the price was from 55-hundredths of a cent up to 2½ cents a kilowatt hour. In these thirteen places there was a municipal lighting plant.

Asher Atkinson, ex-city engineer, made a report in which he said a lighting plant would cost New Brunswick $53,750 and its operation would save the city $1,500 yearly.

Transt-State Trolley Route.

Trenton, Oct. 18.—The New Jersey Short Line Railroad Company, which is to construct the connecting link between the Trenton and New Brunswick Railroad and the lines of the Public Service Corporation, thus shortening the through trolley route to New York, filed a certificate of relocation of route with the Secretary of State at the State House yesterday. The new route begins near pier No. 1 on Arthur Kill, Elizabeth, and runs to Milltown, intersecting the tracks of the Trenton and New Brunswick Railroad 996 feet southwest of the original junction point.

Women for Vote-Getters.

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—A new feature in political campaigning in Philadelphia was the appointment yesterday by William T. Tilden, chairman of the City Party Campaign Committee, of twenty-nine women, wives of prominent men of the city, to take an active part in the present political battle. They will make a special effort to get out the stay-at-home voters.

CENTRAL MAY CONTROL THE LEHIGH VALLEY

WALL STREET HEARS RUMOR THAT THE DEAL IS UNDER WAY.

New York, Oct. 19—It was rumored in Wall street yesterday that negotiations were on foot for the transfer of the Lehigh Valley to the Jersey Central, which is controlled by the Reading. Inasmuch as Reading is controlled by Lake Shore and Baltimore and Ohio, which practically means New York Central and Pennsylvania, this is repetition in form of the rumor circulated some months ago that the New York Central and Pennsylvania interests were about to take over the Lehigh Valley. It will be recalled that the latter lately acquired the Coxe Brothers' coal and railroad properties. The tendency toward concentration of the anthracite interests is plainly to be seen.

It was also rumored that the large anthracite corporations are seeking to acquire control of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. In this connection a dispatch from Philadelphia yesterday said: "There are at present no negotiations looking toward the purchase of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company according to an interest in the property in position to speak with authority. Negotiations may be opened at any time, as certain interests had the purchase under consideration for some time, but whether they are ready to make an offer is undetermined."

President Thomas, of the Lehigh Valley, and party are on a tour of inspection of the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuykill Railroad and the Coxe Brothers' mines. The trip is primarily taken to arrange for changes contemplated by November 1. It is thought that the mining department of Coxe Brothers will remain undisturbed and that the shops at Drifton will be enlarged to accommodate the increase in mine repair work.

On the New York Stock Exchange yesterday new high records were established by Jersey Central and Delaware and Hudson. The former which was quoted ex-dividend, rose 6 points, to 224, on dealings approximating 5,500 shares. Delaware and Hudson advanced about 3 points, to 226, but reacted later and closed at 224. Upward of 11,000 shares changed hands, something out of the ordinary.

"NOT WORRIED"—M'CARTER.

Silent on Plans of Rival to Public Service Corporation.

Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, stated yesterday that he was neither interested in nor worried by the incorporation in Jersey City yesterday of the Hudson Street Railway Company, a corporation with $3,000,000 capital, formed for the supposed purpose of competing with Public Service lines. Mr. McCarter declared he knew absolutely nothing about the aims and objects of the new concern, and did not care what they were.

"I know no more about the matter than does the general public," said Mr. McCarter. "It does not worry us, and we are not interested in what other people do."

Governor Stokes Opens Fair.

Governor Edward C. Stokes formally opened the annual fair of the Fourth Regiment, N. G. N. J., at its armory at Bergen avenue and Mercer street, Jersey City, last night. He spoke briefly, complimenting the regiment upon its record and expressing the hope that the fair would prove a substantial financial success. The Governor was accompanied by his entire staff, who expressed a warm interest in the success of the fair.

Eleven Years a Bishop.

In honor of the eleventh anniversary of the consecration of the Right Rev. James A. McFaul as bishop of the Diocese of Trenton, St. Mary's cathedral, Trenton, was crowded yesterday morning. The altar was arranged with cut flowers and brightly illuminated with candelabra and sanctuary lights.

ASKS $15,000 FOR ARREST.

Declares She Was Wrongfully Charged With Being Shoplifter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wadsworth, of No. 347 Cortlandt street, Belleville, instituted yesterday a suit for $15,000 against L. Bamburger & Co., of Newark. She alleges she was falsely arrested last April 19 and held on suspision of being a shoplifter at the instigation of the firm's representatives.

According to her statement to the court, Mrs. Wadsworth, with her two step-daughter, Florence, fifteen years old, and Madge, eleven, visited the defendants' store on the day in question on a shopping tour. While in the place, she declares, her elder daughter complained of feeling faint, and the plaintiff left her alone on the first floor while she and her younger daughter went to complete their purchases.

When she returned in reach of her daughter, Mrs. Wadsworth declares she was compelled to go to the office of the firm, and there she found her daughter surrounded by articles that, it was said, had been found in the girl's possession. The knowledge that her daughter was a kleptomania was shocking to her, Mrs. Wadsworth alleges, but she was still more shocked when she was compelled to submit to the ignominy of a search. Afterward, the allegation avers, Mrs. Wadsworth was placed under arrest and forced to go to police headquarters, and afterward to the First Precinct, where, she says, she was kept a prisoner for two hours.

Joseph Fields Non-Suited.

A suit instituted by Joseph Fields, of Piscataway, against Mrs. James Morrison, of East Front street, for money due for the keep of a horse, was tried in Justice Hand's court yesterday afternoon. It was shown that the horse was the property of Mr. Morrison, and not his wife, that he was the one who put the animal to board, and the court rendered a verdict of no cause of action. The horse died on the Fields place, and the question of its death will enter into the suit if Mr. Fields brings an action against Mr. Morrison. William Newcorn was the defendant's lawyer.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD ENDS.

Asbury Park is Chosen for Next Meeting.

Cape May, Oct. 19.—The closing sessions of the eighty-third annual synod of the Presbyterian church of New Jersey was held yesterday. The morning session was taken up largely with the hearing of statistical and revenue reports concerning the work of the church in New Jersey. A resolution was passed authorizing the churches to celebrate each year on November 5 or the Sunday nearest it the anniversary of the Protestant Reformation.

A committee was appointed to look after matters of interest to the Presbyterian church before the Legislature. The Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, the Rev. Joseph Howell, the Rev. Hugh M. Fulton, Henry T. Smock and Carroll Robbins compose the committee.

Asbury Park was chosen as the place for the next meeting of the synod in October, 1906.

Rev. Dr. J. R. Bryan conducted the prayer meeting at Monroe Avenue M. E. church last night.

GIRL CONVICT TO REFORM.

Helen Wilson Thinks That Honesty Pays Best.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 18.—Having served four years in prison for theft and again a prisoner upon a similar charge, Helen Wilson, a very pretty girl, is convinced that honesty is the best policy, and intends to reform when she is free again. She was released at Auburn Monday afternoon and immediately arrested and brought here to answer a charge of taking jewelry and clothing valued at $1,000 from the residence of R. H. GEO. P. MELLICK ON REGULAR REPUBLICAN TICKET

Organization Nominates Him Despite Protest of His Own Ward Delegates

MURRAY, COLLECTOR

Wilbur for Freeholder — Second Ward Gets Two Councilmen-at-Large, Montgomery Being the Other.

Despite the strong and persistent opposition of the Second ward delegates to the nomination of George P. Mellick as a candidate at large for the Common Council from that ward, the other three wards combined forces at the Republican city convention, held in Reform Hall last night, and he and Francis L. Montgomery were both nominated as candidates at large. This with the nomination of Daniel F. Ginna as a ward Councilman, will give the Second four representatives.

Anticipating that there would be trouble in the convention, the city executive committee met at 7 o'clock and discussed the nomination of Mr. Mellick. All agreed to support him provided a delegate from that ward would nominate him, but when the committee reached Reform Hall it was learned that the delegates from the Second would not name Mr. Mellick, and for a time no other ward wanted to bring his name before the convention.

The Third ward delegates conferred with the representatives from the other wards in the hope that Mr. Mellick would be selected without opposition. Andrew McCardell did not want to go into the convention until harmony was restored. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray was standing firm for Mr. Mellick, while the Second ward delegates refused to take him up.

It was then planned to have the Third ward nominate Mr. Mellick. This move had a tendency to incense the Second ward delegates, and efforts were made to secure the support of the Fourth ward delegates to defeat the Second ward man's nomination. The members from the West End had promised to stand by the Second ward, but when it was learned that all the wards but the Second favored Mr. Mellick, the Fourth joined with the First and Third and made Mr. Mellick's selection sure.

When the nominations for three councilmen at large were called for, the First ward had no name to present. Dr. T. S. Davis, chairman of the Second ward delegation, nominated Francis L. Montgomery. David E. Titsworth, chairman of the Third ward delegation, said that his ward had no candidate, but that it could see an available one in another ward, and took great pleasure in naming George P. Mellick. Harry C. Runyon, chairman of the Fourth ward delegation, named the third nominee, Herbert Buxton.

Mr. MacMurray moved that the secretary cast the ballot for the three nominees, but Charles B. Morse, from the Second ward, suggested that the vote be taken by wards. Mr. MacMurray said that he could not see what difference it would make. There were three vacancies to fill, and three nominations had been made. His motion prevailed, and the secretary cast the ballot for Francis L. Montgomery, George P. Mellick and Herbert Buxton.

There was no opposition in filling the remainder of the ticket. David E. Titsworth nominated John W. Murray, Jr., for the office of tax collector, to succeed Robert L. Lee, and Charles F. Abbott to succeed himself as a member of the Board of Education, and the other wards seconded the nomination.

City Clerk J. T. MacMurray nominated Samuel P. T. Wilbur as a member of the Board of Freeholders, to succeed J. Fred MacDonald, who is filling the unexpired term of the late Captain James Franklin Hubbard, and the other three wards seconded the nomination. This completed the ticket.

Dr. O. L. Jenkins, chairman of the city executive committee, called the convention to order, and Alexander Gilbert was made chairman. After he thanked the convention for the honor, Sandford G. Robinson was chosen secretary. The chair appointed Charles B. Morse as judge of election and J. E. Kimball and Councilman Frank DeWitt Randolph as inspectors. Owing to the difficulty in settling the Second ward matter it was after 9 o'clock when the convention was called.

Upon motion offered by Harry C. Runyon that a committee of one member from each ward be appoint-

BUYS PICTURE LANDS

David T. Kenney Takes One Big Tract on Watchung Mountains.

CLUSTER OF ESTATES

Beautiful Country at the Back of the Borough to Rival Famous Rural Colonies of Wealthy Men.

The sale of a tract of unimproved Watchung Mountain land of more than three hundred acres to David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield, was made public this morning. The tract includes the De Forest lands and others adjoining them. The tract has a frontage of over 5,000 feet on Mountain avenue, extending back to Johnston's Drive, with a frontage of 3,000 feet, and goes back to the Washington Valley road, where it has a frontage of 2,000 feet on either side.

The consideration is unnamed. The sale was made through the agency of Charles H. Lyman.

This is the biggest deal in unimproved property that has been consummated in this section in a good many years. Mr. Kenney is reticent as to his plans with regard to the tract, but there is no doubt that it is to be vastly improved. He is understood to have planned a big residence for himself, surrounded by a great tract, and may sell portions of his holdings for the same purpose. Included in the purchase is a tract owned by Muhlenberg Hospital, which sold it for $1,000.

At Johnston's Drive, on what is now the Kenney tract, the mountain top is broad and flat, forming a beautiful plateau, from which the surrounding country can be seen for miles. It is one of the prettiest stretches of land in the State, and there is every indication that it is to become the location of the country seats of a large group of wealthy men, such as have colonized Bernardsville. In many respects the Watchung country is prettier than that about Bernardsville, and Frank Bergen and other Bernardsville nabobs have said so. Mr. Bergen once declared in a public speech that he never would have built in Bernardsville had he known of the beauties of the Watchungs.

Men in a position to see ahead in such things declare that the Kenney purchase and the recently announced plans of Louis Hyde to build an estate near that of his brother, mark the beginning of the active development of the Watchungs along those lines.

BOROUGH EXEMPTS PLAN BIG HALLOWE'EN PARADE

EVERYBODY IN CITY AND BOROUGH INVITED TO PARTICIPATE.

The North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association has planned to make merry on Hallowe'en night in old fashioned style. They have arranged for a parade to take place soon after dark for which the Crescent band, of Raritan, comprising twenty-four pieces, and a local drum corps, have been engaged. It will be a masquerade affair and everybody in the city and borough are invited to participate. The association wants all the funny costumes possible to be in line—the more outlandish the better—and those who dress up will be invited to a supper and entertainment which is to take place in the club rooms when the procession disbands.

The arrangements are in charge of John Shroop and he is making every effort to have the affair the best Hallowe'en celebration the borough has had in many years.

Conferred the Degree.

The initiatory team of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., visited Twilight Council, No. 17, of Scotch Plains, last night, and conferred the degree upon several candidates. After the work, the Plainfielders were the guests at a social session during which refreshments were served.

Funeral of William Mackintosh.

The funeral of William Mackintosh was held from his late home on Woodland avenue, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck had charge. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

CHALLENGES HONEYMAN

Mayor Smalley Wants to Meet Cits Leader in Public Debate on His Administration

SOME HARD HITS

Borough Republicans' Standard-Bearer Electrifies Audience by His Sledge-Hammer Like Remarks.

Supporters of the borough Republican ticket packed the Good Government Club headquarters, Somerset street, last night, and turned a campaign smoker into the most spirited meeting, outside of the big rally in Saengerbund Hall, the club has held in the present contest. In some respects the enthusiasm was livelier and more militant than that displayed at the bigger meeting. It was a markedly big gathering for a wet night, and the candidates, who were all present, made no attempt to conceal their pleasure over it.

Mayor Smalley, Charles A. Reed, the councilmanic candidates, City Judge William N. Runyon and Captain W. B. Smith spoke. Music and cigars were plentifully supplied, but the crowd gave no indication of needing any such stimulants to its enthusiasm. It stayed through three solid hours of campaign exhortation and gave no evidence of waning interest when Mayor Smalley, who presided, finally closed the meeting on the plea that it was getting too late to keep it up.

The hearts of the assembled faithful were gladdened by confident prediction of victory from the leaders. Mr. Smalley declared that a thorough canvass of both districts made him certain the ticket was going to win. Despite what the other side might say, he said, the indications on every hand were most encouraging. He spoke in a tone of personal conviction, and the crowd cheered the report. Mr. Reed made statements of the same character. He said the way the Citizens were carrying on indicated that they felt the rumblings of an impending Smalley landslide, and the crowd cheered again. It was a cheering crowd, anyway. It made enthusiastic noises on the slightest provocation, even applauding with signs of great joy Judge Runyon's announcement of George P. Mellick's nomination for councilman at large by the city Republican convention.

Mayor Smalley spoke three times. He said frankly that he didn't like to let a crowd like that get away without saying all that was on his mind, and the crowd gave him every encouragement to go on.

He aroused a tumult of applause by repeating his challenge to any one of the Citizens' party, A. V. D. Honeyman preferred, to a public debate of the questions raised by his opponents.

"I have asked them time and again to meet me in the open, and talk over the issues, but they won't do it. Conroy said early in this campaign that he would be found on the firing line, but he still continues his refusal to meet me in public discussion of the questions involved. It seems to me that they ought to be glad of an opportunity like that. If there is any truth in what they say, if they themselves believe what they say, a meeting of that kind ought to be just what they'd want. I just wish word would come down to me now that they want me to meet them at their rally up the street. It wouldn't take me three minutes to get down here. I'd face them single handed and alone, and talk over things they have brought up. I wouldn't ask help of any man living—I'd face and argue with one or 600 of them, and be glad of the chance. I am ready at any hour, in any day, to meet any of the Citizens in that way—any one or any group of them—and show them that their statements and charges are as false as they are themselves."

For about an hour, in the aggregate, the Mayor trained all the guns in his arsenal on the Citizens leaders. He ranged the gamut of oratorical attack, from denunciation and argument to explanation and ridicule, with interludes on campaign instructions, touching on the value of early voting and the necessity for personal canvassing for converts.

"I am sorry I have to do so much of the talking," he said, "but the other side have made me the target for all their attacks and they have made so many charges that I cannot do otherwise. I might talk for hours every day and not half answer the string of charges that have been directed at me and the administration. It is awfully hard to catch up with a lie."

In the course of his speech the Mayor disinterred the history of the change from volunteer to paid firemen, in order to show that the move was really forced on the Council by the attitude of the men.

"And it was the five members of the Council whose votes carried the

REV. MR. WALKER ORDAINED A PRIEST

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH CONDUCTED THE SERVICE THIS MORNING.

Rev. Mr. Walker, who has been minister in charge of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, was ordained to the priesthood this morning. The services were held at the church and were attended by a large number of clergymen as was as member of the congregation. The Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of New Jersey, conducted the principal parts of the services, officiating at the ordination and preaching the sermon.

Among the clergymen present were Rev. E. J. Knight, of Christ church, Trenton, and Rev. Mr. Bailey, of Christ church, Shrewsbury, also the Episcopal clergymen from this city. The church was attractively decorated by the altar committee.

After the services, a luncheon was served in the parish house by the Women's Guild.

PROBATION MAN CAN'T FIND PASCO

HE ESCAPED FROM PRISON BY SUBMITTING TO DEPORTATION.

Probation Officer Cornelius Buckelew, of Middlesex county, is still looking in vain for John Pasco.

Pasco is a fugitive from justice. He shot William Stiliger while the two were at work at a brickyard in Dunellen, because he thought that Stiliger was persecuting him. Judge Strong sentenced him to State Prison for two years for being so free with a gun. It was not Pasco's fault that he did not kill Stiliger.

Pasco's parents had expected that he would escape prison. They pleaded with Judge Strong afterward to release Pasco, promising to send him home to Italy by September 29. Nicholas Pasco gave a $400 bond to carry out this agreement.

The court instructed Probation Officer Buckelew to keep in touch with the boy and to see that he sailed from the country. When Sept. 29 approached Buckelew tried to find the boy. Pasco had disappeared. He did not sail for Italy, neither did he return to New Brunswick to serve his two years in prison. He is still at large. His counsel, H. B. Cook, who pleaded with the court to make the arrangement for deporting the boy, says that he does not know what has become of him.

It is said that no move will be made to have the bail forfeited as it is no good.

TEACHERS MEET TOMORROW.

H. C. Krebs to Address Somerset Pedagogues.

The Somerset County Teachers' Association will meet in the public school at Raritan Saturday at 10:15 o'clock for the purpose of discussing subjects paramount in school circles. President C. G. Horner of Neshanic, will preside. Warren S. Roe, of the Mount Horeb School, will make an address on "History," which will be followed by a discussion on the subject. Miss Clara R. Emmens, of New York, will give an address on "Vertical Writing."

County Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, will talk on "Inspiring the Pupils," which will precede a discussion on "Geography," by Gains Hoffman, superintendent of the Bound Brook Public School. Luncheon will be served in the schoolhouse.

A Lecture Tonight.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, Charles V. Vickery will give a stereopticon lecture in the chapel of Crescent Avenue church. His subject will be partly the history of the Young People's Missionary Movement (an interdenominational organization of which he is the general secretary), but mainly a presentation of the need of evangelizing the whole world. As this is an exceedingly interesting lecture, and one difficult to secure because of the great demands for it, it is earnestly hoped that there will be a large attendance of young people from all the churches in the city. No admission will be charged.

To Survey Show Ground.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club has engaged H. C. VanEmburgh, civil engineer, to make the surveys for the proposed new track, grandstand and buildings to be located on Randolph road and Woodland avenue. Mr. VanEmburgh will commence the work on Monday and after the survey is completed, the work of clearing the land, building the track and buildings will be started at once.

The Daily Press of today consists of twelve pages.

ASSAILS MAYOR SMALLEY

W. M. Warrin Uses Strong Language in Speech at Citizens Meeting.

CONROY ALSO SPEAKS

Fusion Mayoralty Nominee Told Where He Stands—Explained Letter-carrier Incident.

While members of the Republican Good Government Club were cheering for Mayor Newton B. Smalley further up the street, the borough Citizens' party held forth in Spencer's hall, last night, and poured more "hot shot" into the enemy's camp. The place was filled to overflowing with voters and they cheered lustily whenever the present administration was exposed to fire. One of the anti-Smalleyites who occupied a position well up front was so vociferous in his declarations of loyalty to Conroy that one of the speakers had to ask that he be "sat on."

T. S. Armstrong presided as chairman and addresses were given by W. J. Conroy, W. M. Warrin, T. E. Currin and the presiding officer. While none of the speeches brought out any new point in the campaign discussion, some more terms were applied to Mayor Smalley and his near associates. W. M. Warrin declared that "Czar Newt" was "dying politically" and that "on the cold, gray dawn of the morning after he would be a corpse." He referred to the executive as a Republican with two adjectives. One was "dirty" and the other was one that people might mention if an odor directly opposite to cologne assailed their nostrils. He also said they were trying to kick him (Smalley) out.

Continuing his address, Mr. Warrin openly attacked President James R. Joy, of the Board of Education, for sending his children to a private school.

"I attended the recent mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall," said the speaker, "and the morning after I called Mr. Joy on the telephone. I asked him if he didn't think it was out of the way for Mr. Reed to talk in such flowery language about the borough schools when he doesn't send his children to them. 'Why,' said Mr. Joy, 'neither do I!' Now, I say that any man who has the power to pick out the teachers for your children or mine should be interested enough to have them teach his own. Any man who doesn't send his children to the public schools shouldn't be a member of the Board of Education."

Mayoralty Candidate Conroy was introduced in the early part of the evening and gave an address lasting about twenty minutes. He began by telling how he came to be a resident of North Plainfield and told something of his business career and other facts about himself. The borough, he said, was one of the prettiest places that he had ever seen and "the pure, fresh water that comes down from the Watchung mountains reaches us before it becomes contaminated." He touched upon the trouble with Letter Carrier Demarest and while giving some explanation as to how the complaint to Postmaster Bird was made, declared it was a mystery as to how the matter had been made public. He said he had not told anyone, Mr. Bird said he had kept the thing to himself and Mr. Demarest said he had. He did not make clear as to why it should be kept quiet.

Further in his address Mr. Conroy said: "I believe in fair and impartial treatment and I'll say so the day after election if I am made mayor. It makes no difference to me whether a man keeps a grocery store, a fruit store or anything else, he should be given fair play. I also believe in the preservation of a school system without interference from a boss. One man power is destructive. I deplore the political argument in the borough and it is all due to the present administration. So much politics is going on in North Plainfield that the people are drawn into it and they have little time for anything else. It would be far more preferable to hear the sound of the hammer and saw and the ring of the mason's trowel than these constant discussions and I'm in favor of an administration that is more in sympathy with the former."

T. S. Armstrong, chairman of the executive committee, read a statement which had been prepared by a member of the Citizens' Club, and which, he said, had been carefully gone over by another member of the club, who was an expert at figures, the substance of which was as follows:

The report said that during the first five years of Mayor Smalley's administration there was regularly appropriated for the uses of the fire department the sum of $9,200, but there was only spent upon the de-

TWO WOMEN BADLY HURT IN NAPTHA EXPLOSION

Miss Mary A. Brown and Mrs. L. C. Hurtt the Victims.

CONCUSSION TERRIFIC

Cleaning Establishment Wrecked and Windows Broken Block Away—Fire Department Extinguishes Flames.

Naptha fumes igniting from the fire in a stove caused an explosion at the cleaning establishment of Miss Mary A. Brown, on West Second street, at 10 o'clock this morning, injuring two women and badly wrecking the building. The concussion was terrific, shaking up a good part of the business section and smashing windows in structures as far away as Front street. The debris caught fire immediately afterward and only the prompt arrival of Captain Daley and No. 1 Company, whose house is but two doors away, prevented a serious fire.

Miss Brown, the proprietress, and her sister, Mrs. L. C. Hurtt, were the victims of the explosion, and their escape from instant death is beyond explanation. The former is frightfully burned about the head, neck and arms. One half the hair was stripped from her head and her eyebrows and eyelashes were burned away, but the eyes themselves escaped. She will be confined to her home for a long time and in all probability skin grafting will have to be resorted to. Mrs. Hurtt had three ribs broken and sustained possible internal injuries besides burns.

Dr. N. W. Currie reached the scene a few minutes after the accident occurred and had Miss Brown and Mrs. Hurtt removed to the home of Frank Linke adjoining. Perceiving that Miss Brown was hurt the worst, he devoted his attention to her and was dressing her burns when Dr. Endicott arrived. He gave Mrs. Hurtt temporary attention and then had her taken to her home on West Fifth street, near Liberty. She was unconscious part of the time, and being a woman of high nervous temperament, the outcome of her injuries cannot be determined at present.

The explosion occurred in the rear of the establishment in what is known as the cleaning room. Miss Brown and Mrs. Hurtt had been busy in this compartment all morning using naptha in the cleaning of clothes. Owing to the dampness, the fumes clung about the place, and when Mrs. Hurtt opened a door leading to the drying room, where a fire had been lighted in a small stove, they spread to it and ignited. A sheet of flame swept from one end of the building to the other and one part of it catching the exposed naptha in the cleaning room caused it to explode.

Mrs. Hurtt was hurled with great force against a doorway and fell amid wreckage that piled all about her. Miss Brown was directly near the naptha and was enveloped in flames. The back and side wall and the plate glass in front of the building were blown out and fire spread among the timbers. F. G. Johnson, a presser employed by Miss Brown, was the only other occupant of the place at the time, and was in the rear part of the store. He was thrown over a counter, but quickly rallied and ran to the assistance of the two women. He found Mrs. Hurtt in a helpless condition, but Miss Brown had retained her presence of mind.

The firemen of No. 1 house ran to the scene as soon as they heard the report and Captain Daley and his men aided in the rescue. They attached a hose to a nearby hydrant and were playing a stream on the flames when an alarm was turned in from box 41 by Frank Schropfer, bringing Chief Doane and the remainder of the department. The fire was put out in short order.

The building is owned by Frank Linke and is fully insured, a clause in his policy covering the use of naptha in it. He was unable to place the loss, but it will amount to about $1,000. Miss Brown's loss will be fully as much, with no insurance. She was formerly local manager for Hillier & Co., of Newark, and purchased the business when they retired from the local field.

The explosion demolished the sashes and glass of several windows in the house on the east side of the cleaning establishment, also owned by Frank Linke and occupied by Michael Cullen, one of his drivers. Mrs. Cullen was in the kitchen at the time and was thrown to the floor. She suffered from shock and sustained several bad bruises. Frank Schropfer, who turned in the alarm, was directly across the street, and the concussion threw him against a fence.

CATCH BOLD BIKE THIEF

Police Fastening Long Series of Thefts on Ferdinand Meyers.

OPERATED FOR A YEAR

Twenty Wheels Said to Have Been Stolen By Him—Unsuspected Until Two Weeks Ago.

In the arrest of Ferdinand Meyer, twenty-six years old, of North Plainfield, the police believe they have put the author of the long string of bicycle thefts that has perplexed them for a year under lock and key. Meyer was arrested last night under a charge of stealing H. C. VanEmburgh's bicycle from in front of the latter's house on Richmond street Monday night.

The bike thefts began last fall. Wheel after wheel was taken, in all parts of the city, and the police were blocked in every attempt to trace the criminal. Early in the series they decided that one man was doing the jobs, on account of the similarity in the way they were taken, but no suspicion attached to Meyer until two weeks ago. On Tuesday Chief Kiely heard he had sold two wheels in Westfield, to Italian laborers, and had the purchasers bring the bikes to headquarters. One of the wheels was identified as that of H. C. VanEmburgh's.

Meyer was arrested yesterday afternoon as he left the train after a trip to New York, by Detective McCarthy. He was identified last night by the Italian who bought the VanEmburgh wheel. A servant in a house near the VanEmburgh place identified his picture as that of the man she saw jump on the stolen wheel and ride off with it.

Chief Kiely says Meyer must have stolen twenty wheels in the course of his operations. He says he has discovered a number of people who can identify the prisoner as the man who sold them wheels.

Meyer, so far, has refused to make a statement. He has been arrested four times in the past eight months for petty robberies. He was arrested only last Monday, upon suspicion of having stolen a watch from the vest pocket of J. A. Matthews, of Somerset street, while the latter was engaged in a football game. The charge could not be brought home to him and he was released. He must have taken the VanEmburgh wheel almost immediately after his discharge.

He will be arraigned before Justice Mosher tonight.

GRAND JURY HEARD OF AUTO TRAGEDY

17 WITNESSES CALLED ON COLLISION WHICH KILLED MRS. WESTPHAL.

The Middlesex County Grand Jury Wednesday took up the Dunellen auto tragedy. Oscar Harrison, of Dunellen, who is the complaining witness against William Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, charged with manslaughter; Freeholder Westphal, of this city, whose wife was killed in the collision of Harrison's wagon and Stanbery's auto, and fifteen other witnesses were present.

Other Dunellen and Plainfield people were present as witnesses against "Conjunction" Jones, a colored man who was arrested here, while he was carrying a bag of chickens. Lawrence Kerwin identified the chickens as having been stolen from his roost. As Kerwin lives in Middlesex county the case has had to be tried at New Brunswick.

Collision Delays Traffic.

Owing to a freight collision on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad at Bethayres, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, all through traffic on the main line was suspended until 6 o'clock last night. The through trains were run between Philadelphia and New York by the way of Bethlehem, one hundred miles out of the way, and general traffic was at a standstill.

Father Chadwick Coming.

Father Chadwick, the famous chaplain of the Maine, will lecture here next month, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. The date of his appearance and the subject of the lecture have not been announced. Father Chadwick has a number of entertainig lectures on his list.

SENT "BLACK HAND" LETTERS.

Man Arrested in Jersey City Said It Was an Easy Scheme.

Jersey City, Oct. 20.—George L. Berry, twenty-four years old, who said he lived in Chester, Pa., was arrested here yesterday, charged with sending threatening letters to J. and W. Cahill, tea merchants, at 208 Ocean avenue. The first letter was thrown into the store on Tuesday night. It demanded $300 and was signed "Black Hand." The writer said that if the demand was not complied with the store would be blown up as 13 Stanton street, New York, was blown up.

The writer said he would appear in front of the store window on Wednesday dressed in a dark suit, blue tie and derby hat. Berry appeared about 5 p. m. and threw in a letter, which proved to be a duplicate of the first, except that the demand was raised to $1,000.

A policeman who was in waiting took Berry to police headquarters. Berry told Chief Murphy that he had been associated with several Italians in New York, who had told him how they had frightened several persons into paying them money merely by sending threatening letters naming the amount they wanted. The scheme looked so easy, he said, he thought he would try it.

The chief believes Berry is demented. He is held for further examination.

GRANTS WIFE ALIMONY.

But Vice Chancellor Fixes No Sum Until Further Hearing.

Vice Chancellor Emery yesterday afternoon, after hearing testimony and argument by counsel in the suit brought by Mrs. Francis Schwarz, now living at St. George, Staten Island, against Eugene Schwarz, of Newark, for alimony, rendered a decree in favor of Mrs. Schwarz, but left the fixing of the amount to be paid until after a further hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwarz have been living apart since December, 1903, and Mr. Schwarz since the separation brought suit for divorce, but failed to establish his case. During the pendency of that suit, Schwarz was compelled by an order made by Vice Chancellor Stevens, to pay his wife $18 a week. Upon the conclusion of that suit the alimony order became vitiated and it was in evidence that from April 7, 1904, Mrs. Schwarz has been without support from her husband. The vice chancellor, in reviewing the case, said that the separation after the decree holding that no cause for divorce had been established was without justifiable cause.

Schwarz testified that his pay was $115 a week, but that he was otherwise without means.

SLAYER OF FATHER HELD.

Investigation to be Made of Son's Shooting.

Trenton, Oct. 20—William Bevins, who killed his father, George Bevins, Monday night, was taken to the county jail yesterday. Prosecutor Crossley is making a thorough investigation of the shooting. The finding of the knife in the dead man's pocket at the post mortem is thought to preclude any possibility of his having drawn it previous to the shooting. There was considerable ill-feeling between the father and son.

Friends of the young man, however, say that he and his mother were in deadly fear of the elder Bevins and felt that he came to the bathhouse with the intent to kill them. Mrs. Bevins is suffering much from the shock of the affair and is almost prostrated with grief at the fact that her husband is dead and her son in jail.

Wants No Window Washers' Trust.

Jersey City, Oct. 20.—Mayor Mark M. Fagan, of this city, came to the aid of persons who clean windows for a living, by vetoing an ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen, providing that all professional window washers shall pay an annual fee of $100 to the city. He said that the ordinance would prevent persons without capital from earning wages washing windows for other people, and would centralize the business in the hands of one or two people, virtually giving them a monopoly.

Operation on Assembly Candidate.

Paterson, Oct. 20.—The condition of Jacob Geroe, Republican candidate for Assembly in Passaic county, assumed such a serious aspect yesterday that Dr. McBride, the attending physician, ordered his immediate removal to St. Joseph's Hospital. An operation for appendicitis was performed there. Mr. Geroe came out of the effects of the ether in the afternoon, and though he is in a critical condition, it is thought he has a good chance to recover.

Robbers Shot and Escaped.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Llanerchs citizens had a long distance fight with three robbers who blew open the safe in the postoffice here Wednesday morning and secured about $500. Joshua Thompson and William Major got a horse and buggy and followed the robbers. They saw them in a cornfield and opened fire on them to which the robbers replied and escaped.

Dreyfuss to be Heard.

Paris, Oct. 20.—The Libre Parole says that the Dreyfuss case will come up in the Court of Cassation for revision about the middle of November.

proposition through who decided on the step," said the Mayor. "I didn't order it. But I get the credit for the whole thing. I am held responsible for everything that is done in all the departments.

"Still, there is no need to apologize for the new department. It is doing its work with thorough efficiency, on an economical basis, and everybody knows it. The change may have been done hastily, but you know that municipal officials are apt to do things of that kind rapidly."

The Mayor denied the truth of the statements made by ex-Mayor Place a few days ago, in which he referred to Mr. Smalley, in effect, as a legpuller.

"I never received a penny from any candidate I supported," he declared, and poked some fun at the former Mayor for recalling the lesson in backbone he undertook to give Mr. Smalley. In this connection the Mayor acknowledged that he had been very independent in swearing allegiance to mayoralty candidates, but called attention to the fact that this was well known, because he had acted openly.

"All men do those things," he said, "but some do them quietly."

The Mayor urged his supporters to work and vote for the councilmanic candidates even harder than for himself. He said their election was much more important than their own.

"Vote the straight ticket," he said. "Remember that there are two councilmen to be elected, and if the winners are our men we will have a clear majority in the Council. If there is to be any cutting, let the cuts fall on me. It is much better for the borough and our party that we control the Council than have a mayor in the chair. For myself I assure you that defeat will be met with very good grace. I would be a gainer in pocket and in peace of mind. The office has never been anything but trouble and work for me and you may be sure I would not repine if defeat should be my portion. I hope you will vote the ticket, and urge everybody else to vote it, from top to bottom, but I repeat, if there is to be any cutting on your part cut me and vote for the councilmen."

Mr. Reed spoke but once, and not very long. He opened up on Mr. Honeyman.

The Cit leader, he said, had sidestepped the Mayor's reply to the accusation that he, Smalley, was responsible for the increase in the tax rate by stating in his open letter to James R. Joy that the precise facts in the matter were not important.

"It seems to me that the precise facts are just the things that are important where we are seeking for the truth," said Mr. Reed, "and the men who fight shy of the precise facts are very apt to be liars."

Mr. Reed whacked the Citizens for their refusal to meet the Republican orators in public debate, and touched on the Conroy complaint of offensive partisanship against Letter-carrier Demarest. Demarest was in the middle of the crowd.

"Conroy is quick to make charges against Mr. Demarest, who is a supporter of Mayor Smalley, because, he says, a man drawing a Government salary ought not take an active part in politics. Well, right across the street from us is the store of Jule Stahl, who draws a salary of $100 a year as sub-postmaster, and if his store isn't a Conroy headquarters, I don't know what it is. You don't hear anything in reference to Stahl from Conroy. It makes all the difference in the world whose ox is gored."

Mr. Reed said Mr. Honeyman was responsible for the split in the Democratic party and the making up of the Fusion ticket.

"If Honeyman had stayed in Europe two weeks longer than he did," said Mr. Reed, "the parties would be lined up against each other along the old lines. The Democrats had voted and all but arranged to run a straight ticket, when this man Honeyman came into the game and forced the change."

City Judge Runyon came into the meeting late from the city convention. He was accorded a great reception. He acknowledged it with some thundering solos and a warm speech for Smalley.

There was no room for doubt as to the choice between the two tickets, he said. Measures of great progress were under way in the borough, and the man who had inaugurated and made them possible should be kept at the helm. Handicapped as it had been by position, the borough had made wonderful strides—being better in some things, he acknowledged, than the city—and the great improvement had not been noticeable until Mayor Smalley took office. He had known the Mayor since boyhood and could say that no man was more open-handed, sincere or aboveboard.

"The borough will make the mistake of its life if it does not vote to keep Mayor Smalley where he is on the seventh of November."

The Judge received three rousing cheers at the close of his speech.

Clifford W. McGee and E. P. T. Smith, the councilmanic candidates, and Capt. W. B. Smith spoke briefly. The latter paid a warm tribute to the ability and worth of the Mayor as a municipal head.

"It has been charged by the other side that Mayor Smalley is living off the taxpayers. Well, if that is so," said Capt. Smith, "we want to keep on supporting him. He gives the greatest returns for his keep of anybody I know." Cheers and laughter greeted the sentiment.

The music of the meeting was exceptionally good. The entertainers included Minion brothers, professional vocalists, from Newark, who gave a programme that ranged from an Italian serenade, in the original, to "Every Little Bit Helps," with syncopated shouts. Elmer D. Cutting, tenor of the First Presbyterian church choir, sang two numbers. The crowd enjoyed the singing. It insisted on an encore of the serenade to demonstrate that it was really discriminating and could appreciate music even it it wasn't of the kind that could be whistled after one hearing.

The meeting broke up at 11 o'clock with a whole-souled chorus on "Newt's a Jolly Good Fellow" and three cheers for the head of the ticket. Senator Reed led the cheering from the top of the speaker's table, with a plaid golf cap waving above his head.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Lou" Wiltse will pitch for Brighton A. C. against the Philadelphia Giants, in Brooklyn, on Sunday.

The New York Giants will play the Manhattans in New York on Sunday. "Joe" McGinnity will pitch for the Nationals.

Manager Daab has excellent judgment concerning players. In every case during the present season his players have come up to his expectations, and when he says that he could not better a position on his team, it shows that he is satisfied with the showing made.

Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati team, is making a strong effort to secure the services of Roger Bresnahan, of the Giants, for next season, going so far as to offer "Cy" Seymour in trade. McGraw has always been anxious to have Seymour, and the trade may go through.

"Barney" Dreyfuss says that he will win the National League pennant in 1906, and that the Giants will not repeat their performance of this year in holding the lead throughout the season. "Barney" has another guess, so long as "Christy" Mathewson remains with the Giants.

FOOTBALL.

Leal's School football team will play Morristown Academy at Morristown, tomorrow.

The football eleven from the Plainfield High School will play Cranford High School, at Cranford, tomorrow.

The Orange Field Club eleven is showing great strength in their practice and games and give promise of winning most of their contests.

Mehaffey, who is playing on the Plainfield High School eleven, was formerly a star on the Brooklyn "Poly" and his work here this season has strenghtened the local team greatly.

The Dunellen football eleven will invade Plainfield this season. The team thinks it is the strongest in the history of the town, but is likely to get a few bumps here before the season is over.

Many Plainfield football enthusiasts are watching the play of Ray Biglow, formerly of this city, who is now a member of the Yale 'Varsity eleven. His work this year so far has called forth high praise.

TENNIS.

In the finals for the girls' tennis championship of the Plainfield High School, played Wednesday afternoon, Miss Gardner beat Miss Pierson, 6—1, 6—2.

HER FALL MAY BE FATAL.

School Girl Tumbled Through Open Door of Cellar.

Mabel Barnes, a high school pupil, is dying at St. Joseph's hospital in Paterson, from injuries received by falling fifteen feet into an open cellar when on her way home from school. The accident was witnessed by a number of her crassmates. As she disappeared into the cellar the door closed.

Louis Kushner, a high school boy, was the first to go to the girl's assistance. He dropped into the cellar and found Mabel unconscious. With the aid of other the boys carried the girl to Lankering's cigar store. At the hospital the doctors found she had a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Mabel is fifteen years old. She was at the head of her class in the classical department at the school.

Plainfield, N. J., October 20, 1905.

It's up to the Democrats now.

There is no doubt now but that the Republicans throughout the State have read the hand-writing on the wall. Municipal ownership, limited franchises and equal taxation are becoming quite popular as planks in party platforms.

Optimistic as ever, the Elizabeth Evening Times says that its party's candidate for State Senator, Edward Nugent, will carry that city by not less than 1,500. Conceding this rash estimate to be true, Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, will be the successor of Joseph Cross for it will be generally admitted that his majority here will pass the 1,500 mark.

In selecting George P. Mellick as a candidate for councilman-at-large; the Republicans have acted wisely and well. The only objection to him was factional spirit caused by his having identified himself at the primaries in an independent movement against the organization. As stated by The Daily Press some days ago, the Republican party is broad enough to be able to cast aside such petty considerations and nominate and elect a man who would be an honor to the city. His efficiency as a councilman has been proven by his record as a member of that body and it would have been a disgrace to turn him down for no other reason than revenge. The convention took a sensible view of the controversy and as a result we may hope to see Mr. Mellick once again a city father.

Ostriches.

The male bird builds the nest in the sand, about 3 ft. in diameter, the female lays one egg every day till 15 are laid and each egg weighs from 3 to 4 lbs, and is equivalent to 2 doz. ordinary hens eggs. The female bird sits on the nest during the day and the male at night, the hatching process takes 6 weeks and the little birds grow a foot a month till 6 months old, then very slowly till 5 years old, at which time they mature and mate. When once mated they never change and live an average life of 70 years. A full grown bird measures from 7 to 9 feet high and weighs from 200 to 400 pounds. Alfalfa hay and sugar beets are the best food for an ostrich, although they sometimes eat pieces of scrap iron, leather or nails with no apparent serious effects. They are afraid of small animals as they cannot strike less than 3 feet from the ground, but above that height they can strike a blow of sufficient force to kill a man. A bird has about 1,000 feathers but only 300 of these taken from the wings and tail are valuable. The best feathers come from the wings of the male, each of which yields 25 white plumes from 20 to 30 inches long. The feather crop is gathered once every nine months. Ostriches are raised successfully in Florida, Arizona and California, but their native land is Africa, where the largest birds grow. The trotting ostrich, Jacksonville, covers 15 feet in one step when going his fastest. This bird will race with a horse tomorrow afternoon at the Plainfield Driving Park.

Adjusting Fire Loss on Plant.

Miller & Maltbie, insurance adjustors for the assured, Fred C. Lounsbury, of the Crescent Embossing Company, have called a meeting for Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when a conference with the representatives of the twenty insurance companies interested in this loss, will be held. It is expected that there will be no trouble in effecting an adjustment of the loss, and as soon as this is completed, work will be started to get the plant in shape to operate again.

GIRLS LURED FROM HOME ARE FOUND

WILL BE WITNESSES AGAINST ALLEGED "CADETS" IN CUSTODY.

Three of the Newark girls, who, it is alleged, were lured away from their homes to Manhattan have been returned to Newark and are in custody of the police, who propose to use them as witnesses against three alleged "cadets," now under arrest, charged with abduction. The prisoners are Samuel Villanova, Louis Aukin and Angelo Percicrillo.

Late Wednesday night Detective-Sergeant Farrell and Bernard Miller, of No. 50 Carlton street, father of Fannie Miller, one of the abducted girls, found Fannie and two other girls in a Chinese restaurant at Third avenue and East One Hundred and Seventeenth street, Manhattan. Farrell and Miller did not wait to call in the New York police to assist them, but seized the girls and compelled them to go back to Newark.

The other girls are Amelia Komiskey, of No. 178 West Kinney street, and Clara Ricci, eighteen years old, of No. 192 Bruce street. The last named girl had been missing from home several weeks, but no report of her case had been made to the police.

The three girls were found, it is said, through information given the police by Villanova, one of the accused men. The officials claim that he made a confession, in which, they declare, he convinced them that their suspicions of the carrying on of the "cadet" business in Newark were well founded. The girls had been living in furnished rooms in East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, it is said, and according to their statements, Percierillo, whom they knew as "Big Andy," was a leader of the band that lured them from home.

Anna Meisterman, the sixteen-year-old girl, who claims to have escaped and who voluntarily testified against the alleged "cadet," is in St. Barnabas' Hospital. She is suffering from serious injuries, which, she claims, are the result of a beating given by one of the accused.

G. P. MELLICK NOMINATED

ed to fill vacancies, should any occur, the chair appointed James T. MacMurray, Dr. T. S. Davis, David E. Titsworth and Harry C. Runyon as such committee. The convention then adjourned.

In explaining his actions, Mr. McCardell said after the convention that while he would like to have concurred with the Second ward delegates, he was obliged to vote with the majority, and the fact that all of the wards except the Second wanted Mr. Mellick called for his support.

PROF. MAXSON IN COURT.

Appears Before City Judge to Press Truancy Complaint.

Superintendent of Schools H. M. Maxson appeared in the city court this morning to press a complaint against Mrs. Leonora Waldron, colored, for a violation of the truancy law. Prof. Maxson told the court that Mrs. Waldron's seven-year-old daughter had been to school but two days since the term opened. Judge Runyon ordered the woman to send her child to school without a break in the attendance "except for shattering illness or sudden death." The case was continued so the court could bring her before it if another violation of the law occurred.

In beginning his statement Prof. Maxson charged the woman with keeping four children from school, but Mrs. Waldron timidly explained that he had gotten her family mixed with that of her mother-in-law, who lived in the same house.

Resolution of Condolence.

Whereas, It has pleased an allseeing Providence to remove from this life, after a long and painful illness our friend and co-worker, Mrs. Rowland B. Stover, who for ten years acted faithfully and conscientiously as treasurer of this board and whose place it will be impossible to fill; therefore be it

Resolved, That this, the Executive Board of the Woman's Exchange of Plainfield, N. J., express thus publicly their deep sorrow at the lost of our friend and the appreciation of her untiring zeal and energy in working for the advancement of this organization and also we extend to the family our sincere sympathy with them in their great sorrow.

MARY W. MAXWELL,
Recording Secretary.

Miss Atkins, of Yonkers, N. Y., is visiting Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, of West Seventh street.

BRIDE GETS $17,000 GIFT FROM FATHER

RICH PRESENTS FOR MRS. AKI PETER TULP.

Rev. Aki Peter Tulp, a former pastor at Marconnier chapel and who has many warm friends in Plainfield, was married at Hasbrouck Heights, Wednesday night, his bride being Miss Anna Elizabeth Behrens, of that place. The ceremony was performed before a gathering of friends that filled the Reformed church, of which he is now in charge. Rev. Mr. Vanderwert, of Hackensack, officiated.

Mrs. Henry Behrens, a sister-in-law of the bride, acted as matron-of-honor, and M. Seymour Purdy, of Bogota, also a former pastor at Marconnier, was best man. Five young men from Rutgers Seminary, from which Mr. Tulp was graudated, acted as ushers. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, Mr. and Mrs. Tulp leaving later for a trip South.

The young people received many presents, among which was 100 shares of rubber stock from the bride's father, the par value of which is $10,000, but which is marketable at present for $17,000. There were also three checks from friends, one for $300, another for $200 and a third for $50. Beside these they received a valuable table cloth from Mr. Tulp's relatives in Holland, in which was woven a scene depicting the Lord's Supper and napkins to match bearing Biblical scenes. They also received a great deal of silverware and cut glass.

Mr. Tulp was very popular while at Marconnier and he made many friends in Plainfield. He preached in Trinity Reformed churc h several times and spoke at local meetings. Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Marshall, of Grant avenue, were included in the gathering that witnessed the ceremony and were guests at the reception.

YE FAITHFUL DOG!

It Stuck to the Servant Who Assailed Its Mistress.

George Hall, the colored youth who was arrested yesterday at the house of his employer for swearing at another servant and threatening to assault the housekeeper, was fined $10 or twenty days in jail by Judge Runyon this mornin. The trouble arose over the negro's refusal to put a plate of fruit on the table in the way the housekeeper ordered. He paid the fine.

A curious side feature of the case was the devotion of the housekeeper's French bulldog to the prisoner. It insisted on following the youth to the station house, and had to be carried from in front of his cell.

Alfred K. Willett, of Craig place, accompanied by Lawyer J. B. Coward, went to Somerville, yesterday, and offered the last will of the late Alex. Willett for probate to Surrogate DeMond. Alfred K. Willett is named in the will as executor of his father's estate.

COMPANY K'S DANCE.

First of Fall and Winter Series Largely Attended.

The first of Company K's series of fall and winter dances last night was a big success, despite the inclement weather. It was held in the armory and was attended by over a hundred young people. Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished a fine musical programme, introducing a number of the newest selections. Refreshments were served at midnight.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of Sergeant Charles A. Peterson, chairman; Nathaniel Hort, John Judson, T. A. Weaver and Ferris Pearsall.

POLITICAL TIPS.

There will be a meeting of the Colored Republican County Committee in the Keystone Hotel, Elizabeth, this evening. The committee at this meeting, will further consider the answer of Dr. W. H. Lawrence, the Republican candidate for sheriff, in regard to placing negroes on the jury lists.

Higgins Off Ticket.

Thomas F. Higgins, who was nominated for coroner by the Union county Democrats, announced yesterday that he would not accept the nomination for the office. The committee to fill vacancies has named Dr. D. R. McElhinney, city physician in Elizabeth, in his place.

Unity Lodge Has a Smoker.

Unity Lodge had an informal smoker in its rooms last night. The affair was to have been somewhat more elaborate, but the rain kept away many of the expected gathering.

WHITE MAN SHOT WIFE'S NEGRO LOVER IN COURT

FIRES BULLETS INTO WAITER ON TRIAL FOR STATUTORY OFFENSE.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Robert D. Stetson, white, shot and mortally wounded Lee Lamkin, a negro in Justice Gran's court, at the hearing of a statutory offense with which Mrs. Stetson and Lamkin were charged. The court-room was crowded. The case had been called and Lamkin had just entered when Stetson, pistol in hand, began shooting at the negro. The latter ran through the crowd, Stetson at his heels, blazing away. Women swooned and men finding exit by the door somewhat slow, jumped out of the windows.

Justice Grant and his constables yelled to Stetson to stop shooting, but the enraged husband paid no attention to them. Lamkin attempted to take refuge behind chairs and desks, but after receiving two bullets ran into another court-room, where he dropped with a third bullet in his body. Stetson stood over him and fired again into the negro's prostrate form. All six shots had been fired and Stetson walked back to Justice Grant and gave himself up.

Stetson is a chef in the Vendome and Lamkin is head waiter in the New Southern. Mrs. Stetson is a checker in the New Southern.

"KID" M'COY TRIES TO WED.

Pugilist Fails Becane of New Jersey's "Cold-Storage" Law.

Norman Selby, otherwise "Kid" McCoy, would have married again Wednesday but for the laws of the State of New Jersey, which require that a marriage license be kept in "cold storage," as the "Kid" says, for five days, before a minister can tie the knot.

Last summer the engagement was announced of the rich Mrs. "Bud" Ellis to the pugilist. A tall, good-looking man entered the county clerk's office in Jersey City yesterday and asked for a marriage license. He was recognized as the "Kid." The county clerk told him of the law, and Norman Selby left, a disappointed man. He was seen at the Algonquin, New York, last night, where he and Mrs. Ellis are stopping.

"No, I ain't married yet, and I don't know when I will be," was all he would say.

PROOF OF IMMORTALITY.

Dr. Burgess Is Convinced by Spirit Demonstrations.

"Demonstrative Proof of Immortality" was the title of a paper read Wednesday night at the opening fall meeting of the Medico-Legal Society at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

The paper was by Dr. O .O. Burgess, of San Francisco. He presented the facts relating to the Heubner spiritualistic demonstration, about which so much has been printed, and asserted that fraud of any kind was out of the question in the demonstration. After watching those who took part he concluded that it showed that the only natural theory to explain the facts was the spiritistic.

A paper on "The Electrical Action of the Organs of the Human Body" was read by Dr. E. J. Fraser, of San Francisco.

TRIED SUICIDE AFTER MEAL.

Tailor Had No Money to Pay and Wanted to Die.

After eating a meal at Eichelhorn's restaurant, at No. 270 Broome street, New York, when he had no money to pay for it, Michael Lulisowski, a tailor, of No. 48 Allen street, was locked up in the Eldridge street police station.

Doorman David Fitzgerald heard groans coming from his cell and found the man hanging from the cell door, his suspenders round his neck. He was unconscious, but Dr. Smith, of Gouverneur Hospital, said the men was not in a dangerous condition, and he was taken to the hospital. He was arraigned yesterday morning on the additional charge of attempted suicide.

JURY AWARDED HIM $2.

Wanted Damages From Doctors for Declaring Him Insane.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 20.—Olvin F. Lufkin, a well known resident of Hyde Park, Mass., was awarded $2 Wednesday night by a jury at Dedham. He sued Dr. H. R. Hitchcock, Dr. E. L. Sawyer and Miss Milligan, a nurse, for libel, conspiracy and false imprisonment, alleging they had tried to get him committed to an insane asylum and asserted that Dr. Sawyer was too friendly with Mrs. Lufkin. He also sued both doctors for negligence.

After being out several hours the jury found for the defendants on all charges excepting that of negligence. On this the jury awarded him $1 against each physician. He sued for a total of $60,000.

ALIENS THAT GET BY.

Nearly 200 Public Charges Deported in Three Months.

Washington, Oct. 20.—A statement has been made public at the Immigration Bureau which is designed to show that despite the vigilance of the inspecting and medical officers aliens debarred by the immigration laws frequently get into the United States. Figures are given showing the number of aliens that have become public charges in the three months beginning with July 1 and ending with Sept. 30. One hundred and ninety-six public charge cases were brought to the attention of the bureau in the three months. Of this number 107 have become public charges since their admission and certified by the examining physicians as being insane, twenty-one as having tuberculosis and the remaining sixty-eight being otnerwise physically disabled.

Of the total, 170 have been deported by order of the Secretary of Commerce, five died before action could be taken under the law, and five departed voluntarily. One case is still pending and fourteen were found not to be within the provisions of the law. During the three months there were three deportations for immoral conduct, seventeen for illegal entry and two on charges of having been convicted prior to coming to this country.

TAKES ASSAILANT AS GUEST.

Capt. Martin Not Likely to Press Charge Against Eben Plympton.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Capt. George Martin, of New York, whom Actor Eben Plmpton was accused a few weeks ago of attempting to kill at his country home in Plympton, Mass., was discharged yesterday from the general hospital here as cured, and was Plympton's guest at luncheon. Both then took a train for Plmpton, where Martin will again be the actor's guest. Plympton is out on bail, but it is doubtful if the case comes to trial.

The actor claims that Martin's brothers, who live in New York, have refused to do anything for the old man, and that is why he wished to aid him again. Plympton had the consent of the district attorney to take Martin with him this time.

UNCLE RUSSELL SAGE WINS.

He Lent Money on Collateral, Which Realized Only $9,000.

Russell Sage had a gala day Wednesday. A jury in the Supreme Court before Justice Leventritt, in New York, gave him a verdict for $108,862.33 against William A. Boland, Patrick H. Flynn, John McCarty, Frederick C. Cocheu, Daniel F. Lewis and H. W. Hedenberg on a note for $100,000 which on November 1, 1902, was given by Boland and guaranteed by the others.

Mr. Sage received as collateral 108 first mortgage $1,000 bonds of the Jackson and Ann Arbor Railroad Company. When the note matured and was not paid, the collateral was sold last March at auction for only $9,000, and deducting the commissions, brought Mr. Sage only $8,921.

STERNBERG TO RETURN.

Report That He Will Give Up His Post Is Denied.

Frankfort, Oct. 20.—The Frankfurter Zeitung says it has authority to deny the report that Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German Ambassador to the United States, intends to resign owing to an ear trouble. The paper says that he will soon return to his post at Washington and take up the task of adjusting the commercial relations of the United tSates and Germany, and that there is no reason to believe that he will relinquish this important task, his ear complaint being no worse, or abandon the duties which he is discharging with conspicuous success owing to the particularly confidential nature of his relations with President Roosevelt.

"Graft, Gold and Glory."

Leading men in the casualty and surety underwriting business held a banquet Wednesday night at the Hotel Manhattan, New York. Col. J. Frank Supplee, vice president of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, in his remarks referred to the three "G's"—Graft, Gold and Glory—and said: "Graft is rampant in this country. In circles of high finances the slimy weeds of corruption are dragging mighty men and great names in dishonor. Let us keep aloof from such surroundings."

Has Narrow Escape from Fire.

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Ida Dube, of No. 165 West Sixty-fifth street, New York, had a narrow escape in a fire here Wednesday. She was visiting here sister, Mrs. Maxim Charbonneau, at No. 107 Cathcart street. She got out of the burning house barely in time, but lost all her clothing, some jewels and $65. The blaze was caused by her two-year-old nephew, Albert Charbonneau, playing with fire.

Aged Suitor Wins.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 20.—"For companionship's sake only," Worthington Scranton, eighty-three years old, both of New Haven, were married yesterday. The ceremony was the third marriage of each. Scranton is wealthy and courted his third wife for nearly ten years. With each refusal he returned to the quest with renewed determination.

LIBRARIAN'S OFFICERS.

John Cotton Dana Re-elected President of the Library Association.

Asbury Park, Oct. 20.—The annual election of officers of the New Jersey Library Association, which took place at the final meeting Wednesday night, presented no complications. John Cotton Dana, of the Newark Free Library, was again honored with the presidency. William Warren Bishop, chief of the catalogue department of Princeton University, was elected first vice president, and A. M. Heston, trustee of the Atlantic City Library, second vice president. The others officers of the association were re-elected.

A letter of greeting was received from the American Library Association. William Warren Bishop, of Princeton, introduced a motion that the executive committee of the association be authorized to write to the Pennsylvania Library Club, the New York Library Association, the American Library Institute, the American Library Association Council, executive and publishing committees and all library associations of other States along the Atlantic coast to attend the spring session of the association to be held at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City. The motion was adopted.

CHURCH WINDOWS AS TARGET.

Parents of Young Italian Pay for His Sport.

Dover, Oct. 20.—Sam, a young Italian bootblack, who lives on Hudson street, recently became the owner of a small rifle and began diligent practise to improve his marksmanship, using as targets various objects about his home. As his skill increased he tried long-distance shooting, and the stained-glass windows of the Swedish Methodist church across the way appealed to him strongly. For a week or more the trustees of the church were mystified to know how so many windows were broken and asked the Dover police to solve the problem. A neighbor told about Sam's gun and Assistant Marshal John Dehler paid him a visit. Sam was put through a species of the third degree and confessed. The church trustees said they did not want to have the boy arrested, but did wish to have the windows repaired. Sam's folks paid $8 to save him from jail and Sam is not practising just now.

Wife Gets Divorce.

After hearing testimony and argument by counsel, Vice Chancellor Pitney yesterday afternoon granted a decree divorcing Lillian M. Hawkey, of Newark, from John J. Hawkey, of Trenton, formerly an inspector of freight cars at the South Street station of the Pennsylvania road in Newark. While desertion was the charge made by Mrs. Hawkey, her story on the stand disclosed other offenses, the narration of which caused the vice-chancellor to ask every one whose immediate presence was not absolutely necessary to leave the room.

Gamblers Escape Law's Net.

Mays Landing, Oct. 20.—The Grand Jury of Atlantic county, after being in session six days, the longest period in the history of the county, returned into court late Tuesday evening, having found 109 true bills. There were no bills found in the Atlantic City gambling cases. The Grand Jury presentment also recommended that the court request the Board of Freeholders to erect detention quarters for witnesses, a hospital and a padded cell in the jail.

Presentments Against Railroads.

Hackensack, Oct. 20.—The Bergen County Grand Jury, which was discharged at Hackensack by Judge Zabriskee on Tuesday, handed up presentments against the Susquehanna & Western Railroad for maintaining a dangerous crossing at Little Ferry and against the Hudson River Traction Company for maintaining a dangerous switch at the Grantwood crossing. A fatal collision recently occurred at the latter junction.

Anti-High Tax Club Formed.

Red Bank, Oct. 20.—The Independent Voters' Club is a new political organization just started here. E. M. Haley is president and Surritt Monet secretary. Another meeting will be held on Tuesday night to nominate candidates for municipal officers. The club will make a strenuous effort to elect city and township officers, as the members oppose high taxation. No attempt will be made to take any stand in regard to county politics.

Dairy Maids Indicted.

Hackensack, Oct. 20.—Annie and Rachel Michaelson, the dairy maids, of Coytesville, who clubbed two Fort Lee policemen in their efforts to prevent the arrest of their cowboy, Elmer Vendt, were placed under arrest Tuesday on indictments charging them with assault and battery and resisting policemen.

Purse for Archbishop Seton.

Jersey City, Oct. 20.—Archbishop Robert Seton, D. D., who had been on a visit to this country, and who returned to Rome Tuesday, sailing on the steamship Cecilia, of the Italian line, before his departure, was the recipient of a well filled purse, the gift of his former parisioners.

Jersey Rural Carrier.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Ralph P. Fisher has been appointed regular and Aaron B. Leigh substitute rural carrier on route No. 1 at Great Meadows.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

At Gainesville they had been joined by Judge Armistead, an honored and beloved neighbor, who since the outbreak of the unhappy war had retired to his old country home near Hopewell Gap, and with the judge was Lieut. Paul Ladue, who had been self-incarcerated until he could exchange the garb in which he had made his escape from the Henry house the previous evening, for the stunning regimentals still in possession of Rosalie Chilton.

"YOU'RE OURS!"

Already the story of the romantic and stirring episode was going from bearded lip to lip among the riders of Stuart's Horse, and before the second sunset following Fred Benton's capture he had heard almost every word of it.

The dark night of the fourth of March had been a sorry one for Paul Ladue. Ever since the previous week he and his comrades had been looking for the second coming of the Yankee columns from the forts in front of Washington. Day after day, armed with field-glasses, in belfry, tree or steeple, Johnston's lookouts watched for the first sight of screening cavalry. They were all "green" at such work, north and south both. Already had the northern volunteers, marching by night, on converging roads, twice opened fire and killed or wounded several in each party before discovering their blunder. It was all nervous business for new and inexperienced officers and, as luck would have it, Paul Ladue, only just up from a debilitating fever, found himself commanding an infantry outpost north of Bull Run. No cavalry had been in their front at sunset. None had passed out that way, and when at brisk trot, all ignorant of their proximity to the pickets, the confederate troopers came surging down the lane, never hearing, probably, and certainly never heeding the order to halt, Ladue shouted fire and, sorely wounded, young Chilton fell from his horse.

Five seconds more and the error was discovered. Chilton and his platoon had taken the wrong road somewhere south of Chantilly and, instead of rejoining their squadron, had stumbled on the pickets. There was more or less soldier recrimination, but, quickly as possible, the wounded officer was borne in a blanket to a neighboring farmhouse, and a trooper galloped to Gainesville for a surgeon. Ladue spent a sleepless and miserable night, was exonerated by his division commander and Stuart when the matter was investigated next day, but was so utterly broken up over the affair that permission was given him to go back again and remain with Chilton until he could be moved.

Ladue, nearly mad with misery, was hopefully awaiting the coming of an ambulance on the third day when his patient suddenly took a turn for the worse. The division surgeon said it would be a serious matter to take him that long ride back to Warrenton and suggested Ladue's going over to the home of Judge Armistead at Hopewell and arranging to have the lad moved thither. This was on the eighth of March, and up to noon they had no sign of soldiers coming from the east or north.

So Paul had gone, never counting on Chilton's taking the bit in his teeth. And when late at night he returned to Thornton, weak and weary, he was aghast to learn that with only his body servant and a trooper nurse, Chilton had started southward in the wagon that evening by the Sudley road, bent on escaping from the heralded advance of the union blue. Despite fatigue and failing strength, Ladue followed, caught them at the Henry house, and was within that historic wreck, consulting the owner as to the best roads to follow while the farm wagon, with its solitary escort was toiling up the slope from the crossing of the pike, when all on a sudden there came a cloud of blue-jacketed, yellow-trimmed troopers sweeping across the field from the southeast, and Mr. Henry had barely time to hide his visitor under the flooring in the garret when they were dismounting by the dozen and jovially swarming all over the premises.

Another moment, too, and they had surrounded the wagon with its helpless load. Then Averell himself had ridden up to investigate, and one of his first orders was that the Henry house and grounds were to be protected against all possibility of pillage and vandalism.

So it had happened that for two days Paul Ladue lay concealed within the Henry house—once when the guard was changed hearing voices he recognized as those of men he well knew in his western home.

And again the word was passed from the sentries at the front: "Here comes the general!" and while the guard sprang to their stacked arms, Paul Ladue, crouching sadly in the little garret, crept to the westward side and peered through a crevice at the coming cavalcade.

All in the uniform of their rank, in frock coats, belts and sashes, gauntlets and forage caps, with regulation horse equipments—the general and his little staff made gallant show as they breasted the slope. There were only five in all, with three orderlies and no escort, but in three of the five Ladue saw the faces of men whom he had looked up to, honored and esteemed, while the face of the fourth was that of the faithful and devoted friend whom he had loved as David loved Jonathan. Ladue threw himself upon the floor, so sick at heart that it was a relief to sob like a homesick child.

And so Henry found him, when in his stocking feet, a little later, he climbed the ladder to the loft with wonderous news. Dr. Chilton and his daughter were coming—were even then on their way from Warrenton.

Much of the early morning of the following day he spent with Rosalie by the side of the wounded boy. Now that Dr. Chilton had gone on in search of the commanding general, hopeful of permission to take his crippled soldier home, the vital question arose, What was to become of Paul? He had no excuse for parole. He had not been grievously wounded. He was there of his own volition, undiscovered, within the hostile lines, and, though wearing his new and natty uniform and in no sense a spy, still, the lot of southern prisoner in northern hands was a problem yet unsolved. Then Rosalie Chilton, the daring, quick-witted girl, planned the escape so successfully effected.

Little luggage had she brought with her on that hurried journey, but, soon as it was dusk, she doffed the gown and skirt she wore—even the crinoline, at period of our national life regarded as indispensable to the wardrobe of the gentlewoman—then donned a soft wrapper, and ten minutes later, Paul Ladue, shorn of his new uniform, was attiring himself aloft in the traveling dress of a Virginia belle. He well-nigh ruined the whole plan—and crinoline—by putting his foot through the flimsy cage as he searched the stairway, but from the floor below came ominous "Hush-sh-sh!" in Rosalie's tragic tones, and she shook him almost savagely while giving some finishing touches to his toilet. "How dare you be so careless with my best hoop-skirt, sir? Don't you know that's almost the very last one in Virginia?" Then, duly informed as to the paths in the garden and the exits through the fence, with her shawl over his head and a prayer on her trembling lips she sent him forth, and Jim Ferguson, officer of the guard, bowed to her representative with killing grace—and let him go.

Half an hour later Paul had shed his skirts at the stone house, had had a whispered word with Jennings—he of the subsequent demijohn—and, in some old clothes of that worthy and with a note to a farmer friend back of Groveton, was away en route to Hopewell. By nine he was in saddle, with a horse borrowed of the farmer friend; by ten he had learned that Judge Armistead was at Gainesville, having reached the Thornton farm too late, and there were they both—judge and lieutenant—when the little ambulance train came along in the morning.

LIFE INSURANCE.
Rev. DeWitt Talmadge said: "How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the premium on a life insurance policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face, and say his prayers at night on going to bed expecting them to be answered, is a mystery I have never yet been able to fathom."

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

When it comes to good carpentering work, Ralph Bullman, of Grandview avenue, will meet the "test." He makes a specialty of house building.

If you have a baby carriage that needs new tires, S. Frucht, the West Front street bicycle dealer, will do the work for you. Hisc harges are moderate.

W. W. Dunn, the Park grocer, has a delivery system that is unequalled. When you ask that orders reach your home at a specified time you may be sure they will.

The first few cold nights of fall are a warning that stoves must be put up. If it means a new one, see the line at Worth & Marsh's Somerset street hardware store.

Those new soft hats that are popular this fall are to be had at James R. Blair's "town toggery." He is also agent for the celebrated Hawes hats that have a reputation for durability and appearance.

Shirley & Johnson, whose store is in the Babcock building, are showing exclusive designs in new carpets. Drop in at any time and courteous clerks will show them to you. They also have curtains, rugs and shades.

Ask anybody in the city or borough and they will tell you that Smalley Brothers can be relied upon to give the best in the way of meats and poultry. They have years of experience in the meat business and give full value for the money.

AMERICAN IN JAIL.

State Department Investigating Conviction in Nicaragua.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Fred W. Murphy, a Philadelphian, is in prison in Managua, where he was convicted of killing his guide last March, and was sentenced to ten years. His aged mother and his brother, who live in this city, are said to be in ignorance of his fate.

Murphy went to Nicaragua last October to look after the mining interests of his aunt, Miss Margaret Walk. He started from the mines for Corinto with a guide, who, he reported, was murdered on the way.

In letters Murphy hints at a plot to get him in just such a predicament, and this charge the State Department has been investigating.

COST TO HOLD HER HAND.

Woman Obtains Verdict for $2,500 on Sign of Intended Marriage.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—In all probability it was the affecting address on hand holding, made by Joseph Hunsicker, attorney for the plaintiff, that won for Miss Mary Alker Wednesday a verdict of $2,500 against Charles Mueller, a saloon-keeper, whom she sued for $10,000 damages on the charge of breach of promise.

"She permitted him to hold her hand because she thought he was to be her future husband."

Brady Won't Run for Mayor.

Bayonne, Oct. 20.—An apparently authentic report here has it that Mayor Thomas Brady, Democrat, has decided finally not to accept the invitation of more than 1,000 petitioners to be a candidate for re-election on an independent ticket. Mayor Brady has informed the Common Council that the tax rate for the ensuing year will be $27.50 per $1,000, instead of $27.90 for the same amount of assessable property, as it was last year. Brady, when he became a candidate two years ago, was called the "business Mayor" by the Democratic machine, of which he is now a bitter enemy, because he carried out too literally for the pleasure of the machine his strict business principles. One contributory cause toward the decrease in the tax rate is due to Mayor Brady's getting after big corporations in the city, which had been evading paying their proportionate share.

Warren Ministers Form Union.

Washington, Oct. 20.—A Warren County Ministerial Union has been formed. Seventeen ministers answered the call for a meeting at the Methodist church. An address was given by Rev. J. A. Richardson, of Dover. His subject was "The Minister and His Message." Dr. Horace Butler, of Blairstown, was elected president, and Rev. F. G. Eland, of Washington, was elected secretary and treasurer of the union. The committee appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws is composed of Rev. C. X. Hutchinson, Rev. F. G. Eland and Dr. F. W. Johnson, all of Washington. The next meeting of the union will be held at the Presbyterian church on November 6.

Body of J. J. Pallas Sent to Scranton.

New York, Oct. 20.—Funeral services over the body of John J. Pallas, late president of the park board, who rose from breaker boy in a coal mine, were held here today, after which the body was sent to Scranton, Pa., where the funeral will be held tomorrow. Delegations from several labor organizations attended the services here.

Calls It a Campaign Lie.

Camden, Oct. 20.—"I denounce as a lie out of the whole cloth the report circulated that I referred slurringly to a grand juror as merely a laborer." Former Mayor Joseph E. Nowrey, of Camden, made this statement last night at a mass-meeting of the Legal Voters' League.

A Special Department, designed for those who desire to keep a portion of their funds in reserve, separate and apart from their checking accounts, is conducted by this Company.

partment $5,822.24, showing that $3,377.77 was diverted from the department for those years for street or other purposes. For the year 1904 there was appropriated $2,000 for the department, and the sum expended upon it was $4,028.48, or more than three times as much as for any previous one year. In the matter of street appropriations, it was shown that during the six years of Mayor Smalley's administration there was appropriated $30,000, whereas the expenditures upon the streets were $37,346.93, or $7,346.93 more than was appropriated. The report further showed that the advertised reports of the borough classified all the expenses for labor upon the street, culverts, sewers and crosswalks under the head of "Monthly Payrolls" without stating to what persons they were paid; that the total of these payrolls during the Smalley administration was $10,688.36; in other words, that more than one-fourth of the total expenditures for streets were in items which were not given to the public; and it stated that a considerable part of this amount was paid to A. I. Smalley & Co. It also stated that notwithstanding this large expenditure of money upon the streets, the main thoroughfares alone could not be put in as good condition now as they were at the beginning of the Smalley administration by an expenditure of $5,000.

The report went on to state that N. B. Smalley, or A. I. Smalley, or their firm, had received between 1896 and 1904, inclusive, $40,520.60 from the county for work on the streets, roads and culverts; also that Charles A. Reed had received for legal services about $6,000 from the borough, and $1,227.50 from the Board of Health, making a total of not less than $7,227.50, and that this amount, added to the amount which had been received by the Smalleys, footed up to at least $22,227.50. The report then gave the assessed valuations of North Plainfield borough in 1899 at the beginning and in 1905 at the close of the six years of the Smalley administration, and showed that the additional tax which came into the borough treasury today at the present borough tax rate for borough purposes alone, when added to the additional poll taxes and the additional license fees, approximated $4,000, and the report concluded: "If, therefore, the expenditures for borough purposes were kept within the limits of that of the Wilson administration, it would reduce the borough tax bills on borough account from 76 points, which it was in 1899 and is today, to 60 points.

The concluding address was made by T. E. Currin, councilmanic candidate, who review several tax matters and predicted victory for the whole ticket.

"It is necessary that the whole ticket be elected," said Mr. Currin, "because where would Mr. Ball and myself be without Conroy and where would Mr. Conroy be without us."

Music during the evening was provided by Dr. Buchanan and John Goodwin, the latter singing "Down on the Farm.' Another meeting is to be held next Thursday night.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SETTLEMENT—Notice is hereby given, That the account of the subscriber, Administrator of Clara P. Bass, deceased, will be audited and stated by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphan's Court of the County of Union, on Wednesday, the fifteenth day of November next.

Dated, October 11, 1905.

TWO DRAMAS GIVEN.

Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church Entertainment Last Night.

Although not a success financially, owing to the weather and counter attractions, the entertainment given in Reform Hall, last night, under the auspices of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, was much enjoyed.

Mrs. H. C. Ashley, wife of the pastor of the church, with the aid of local talent, presented two dramas, the first being entitled "The Fairy of the Fountain," in which the following took part:

Edward Blair, Preston Clay, Bertha Hill, Mabel Clay, Etta Lewis, Laura Peterson, Henrietta Lewis, Harold Washington, George Jackson, Robert Dover, A. Jackson, E. Jackson, Harold Grobes, William Grobes, Nathaniel Clay, Nathaniel Olden, Edward Clay and Edward Shults.

The second drama entitled "Doctor Cure All," was presented by the following cast: Amar Thompson, Jennie Hill, Helen Harmon, Ethel Scudder, Annie Moore, Uanita Moore, Nettie Clay, Oliver Ford, Edna Dover, Minnie Crudup,

Between the dramas vocal solos were rendered by the Misses Lulu and Adelaide Lewis and Clendina Hooper. Miss Bessie Mitchell was the accompanist of the evening. Alex. Stills was the stage manager and E. B. Maynard and Spencer Kelly were doorkeepers.

WYCKOFF RUNS AGAIN.

Dunellen Mayor Changes His Mind and Is Named by Petition.

Mayor Wyckoff, of Dunellen, at the solicitation of his friends, has consented to oppose Wilson Frederick, the Republican candidate for the mayoralty, and stand for re-election. The Mayor refused to consider a renomination when the primaries were being disucessed, but several of his friends voted for him at the primary election despite his announced determination to retire. Those votes were cast into the Republican ballot box by mistake and were rejected, but their presence strengthened the arguments of those who were urging the Mayor to run again, and he consented to make another canvass for office last week.

To get the Mayor's name before the voters his friends were compelled to nominate a People's ticket by petition. The petition was filed with the borough clerk Wednesday night, and a warm campaign on party lines has been inaugurated. The borough is doubtful politically and both sides are claiming victory. William Kuhns and Theodore Apgar are named for councilmen on the Wyckoff ticket.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, is preparing for its annual vesper service to be held soon at St. Mary's church. Other councils in this part of the State will be invited to attend with the local organization.

Celebrated Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stratton, former local residents, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home in Elizabeth, last night. A party of Plainfield people attended.

TWENTY YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Boice Celebrate Crystal Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Boice, of East Second street, celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding, last night, when they entertained about forty relatives and friends. The evening was spent in various amusements, vocal and instrumental music and later refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Boice received a large callection of crystal presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Boice were married twenty years ago in the Howlett house on Elmwood place, by Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, who was then pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Boice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair, also of East Second street. By the union a boy and girl were born to them. Mr. Boice holds an excellent position with the New Jersey Central, having been in its employ for several years.

COLLEGE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

Robert Abbott Finishes Second in First Round Match Play.

Yale had seven, Harvard five and Princeton four to gain eligibility in the qualifying round of the Intercollegiate Golf Association individual championship yesterday at the Garden City Golf Club. H. J. Gee, of Princeton, returned a high class card, his round leading the field by four strokes. His score was 77.

Robert Abbott, of this city, representing Yale, was next to Gee. Poor work on the second green added an extra stroke, and his missed a three foot put for a 2 on the home green. The seventh was a 6, due to a weak brassy shot. His score was 79. He was one of the survivors after the first round match play. He finished second with an 81 in the championship set. He defeated McBurney in the first round match play by 2 up and 1 to play.

13 YEARS, HOODOO TERM.

Prisoner Wanted Fourteen to Avoid "Double Cross."

Morristown, Oct. 20.—Although Thomas Buckley objected to a sentence of thirteen years, and pleaded with the court not to send him down for the hoodoo term, Judge Mills was obdurate and would not change the sentence.

"May I have the indulgence of the court in making a simple request?" asked the prisoner. "May it please the court, I would call your attention to the fact that thirteen years is the hoodoo term and gives me a feeling of vague uneasiness, closely akin to terror. If you could make the sentence for fourteen years, I would not be under the 'double cross.'"

"Remove the prisoner," sternly interrupted the judge; "the sentence stands."

Emperor of Japan's Visit to Temple.

Tokio, Oct. 20.—The official gazette, in an extra issue yesterday, announces that the Emperor will proceed to the Temple of Ise to report the conclusion of peace with Russia. The date of his journey has not yet been fixed. A personal visit of the Emperor to the temple is a rare event.

—When it comes to a vegetable display, Neuman Brothers are second to none. They have a big variety, strictly fresh, all the year around.

SETTLERS FOR CANADA.

Large Migration from California Planned.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 20.—Fifty settlers for Alberta passed through Mission yesterday from California with a herd of cattle and their household effects. Most of the cattle were thoroughbreds. The settlers say they are the advance guard of a large migration from California to Alberta which is to take place early in the spring.

"Black Hand" Suspect Arrested.

New York, Oct. 20.—Believed by the police to be a member of the Black Hand, Munzio Gerbase, twenty-two years old, an Italian, who says he lives at 13 Stanton street, the scene of the dynamite explosion early Tuesday morning, was arrested Tuesday night, charged with sending threatening letters through the mail. The prisoner was identified by Carmello De Giacono, a barber, of West Third street, as a man who claimed to be a representative of the Black Hand and demanded $500 to insure his safety from the other members of the band, who had threatened to take his life.

ENGINEER SAID TO BE HEIR.

Severn Blaine, of No. 498 New York avenue, Jersey City Heights, engineer of the Hamburg-American Line tug, Pollux, has received word from a postmaster in California that he is entitled to a share of an estate of $8,000,000. The word came in a letter to Blaine's father. They understand the estate is in France.

Severn Blaine's brother has gone to California to consult the postmaster, who appears to have been entruster with the looking up of the American heirs. Blaine has no information of the amount of his share.

RAHWAY VALLEY ROAD YIELDS TO SUMMIT

GIVES IN TO COUNCIL ON ALL POINTS IN BRIDGE DISPUTE.

Summit Oct. 20.—The troubles between the city of Summit and the Rahway Valley Railroad Company were amicably adjusted Tuesday night, but it was only by a complete backdown on the part of the company from the position it assumed, and an agreement to conform to the restrictions imposed by the city. This change of base was made by N. C. J. English, of Elizabeth, who represented the railroad company at a conference held with members of the Common Council Tuesday night.

The company had erected bridges over Ashwood avenue and Russell place, with the abutments encroaching on the public streets, without obtaining the consent of the city officials. The city's application for an injunction was denied by Vice Chancellor Stevens, but about two weeks ago the city officers visited Ashwood avenue at midnight and attaching the steam road roller to the bridge pulled it down and destroyed the abutments. For the past week it has been understood that the city contemplated following a similar course with the Russell place bridge. A conference was arranged for Tuesday night with Attorney English and it occupied more than an hour in the Mayor's room.

The agreement reached was that the company should place a fifty-foot span across Ashwood avenue, which would avoid encroaching on public property; that it should replace the present Russell place bridge within a year with a structure that would not encroach on the street; that it would conform to the orders of the street committee with reference to the grade at Morris avenue and that it would consent to the entering of judgment in the Chancery Court in the injunction proceedings under which the city could enforce the terms of this agreement. The action of the conference was ratified at the meeting of the Council later and the law and ordinance committee authorized to draft a contract embodying these provisions.

Ordinances were also adopted at the regular session to provide for sidewalks on Franklin place and at Waldron avenue, and to widen and straighen South Elm street.

The trolley committee reported that the Union County Traction Company had ntoified that no final answer could be given on the question of the draft of franchise submitted, and another conference is to be held next week. Councilman Votey, who sails for Europe today, resigned from the trolley committee, and Councilman Ovens was chosen as his successor.

MORE "AUTO" ACCIDENTS.

Two Mishaps Add Interest to Work of the "Antis."

Whitehouse, Oct. 20.—Two accidents that were caused by automobiles in the vicinity of North Branch within the last few days have caused increased interest in the work of the anti-automobile organization of North Branch, one of the leading associations of its kind in New Jersey.

As William B. Wood, a wheelwright at North Branch, was driving toward Somerville, his horse took fright at a green automobile, said to have been occupied by Van Skillman, of Burnt Mills, and bolted to one side of the road, overturning the buggy, which was almost completely wrecker. Wood was thrown out, but escaped with a few scratches.

William Van Fleet, Jr., who is employed by Philip Latourette, of North Branch, was thrown from his buggy Monday, by his horse becoming frightened at an automobile said to belong to the White family, which live on the Remsen estate, between Whitehouse and North Branch. The machine is new and was out for a trial spin. The horse ran away and broke up the wagon. Van Fleet was cut and bruised.

A WARNING LETTER.

Written in Blood It Alarms a Dover Man.

Dover, Oct. 20.—Alphonse Gallos, who lives on Pennsylvania avenue, Dover, yesterday reported to Marshal Ethelbert Byram that he had found a threatening letter and a revolver on his porch on Monday. Gallos turned the letter and pistol over to Byram. The pistol was an old one and was broken so that it could not be used. The letter was written in blood upon a scrap of note paper. The handwriting was neat, the letters being carefully formed, and showed that the writer had some education.

Marshal Byram tried to get the note translated, but none of the Italians he approached could do so. Beyond saying that the letter was meant as a threat, none of them could, or, if they could, would, translate it. Gallos told Marshal Byram that he thought a neighbor with whom he has had some words sent the note with the significant, though broken, pistol.

James M. French, who underwent an operation September 18 in Muhlenberg Hospital, is doing nicely and expects to return to his home in Westfield this afternoon.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Selection from the Books Added to the Public Library During the Summer.

Part 3.

Sanford, F. G.—Arts crafts for beginners.

"The author is the Director of the Arts and Crafts Department of Chautauqua. The work tells simply and helpfully how to begin and advance in (the arts crafts). . . The treatment is terse, careful and suggestive. As a useful little manual for the teacher and as a practical guide for the amateur, this book should prove of great value. . . Arrayed in progressive lessons of increasing difficulty, so that it may be easily adapted to school conditions." International studio.

Sedgwick, A. D.—Paths of judgment.

"Not simply a good story, nor yet alone a clever piece of character analysis, but also a remarkably fine novel. . . The four principals—are real, living characters, drawn minutely and well, placed before the reader with a vividness and sureness of touch which are very rare outside the works of the masters of fiction." Athenaeum.

Sedgwick, H. D.—Life of Francis Parkman.

"Founded largely on the diaries, notes and letters of Francis Parkman, and on information supplied by his sister."

"Our concluding word must be that this little volume is not only well written, but contains much thoughtful and alluminating criticism." Amer. Hist. Rev.

Sinclair Upton.—Manassas.

"The real drama of the book is the historical clash of the two civilizations, and individuals seem to be made use of only by way of incidental illustration. . . The reader, if he stops to think at all, must soon realize that what he is reading is not fiction at all, but a consecutive and almost documentary history of the period. It is history written with warmth and an eye for dramatic effect, but it is nevertheless essentially history. . . tI is a work deserving of very high praise." Dial.

Stevenson, B. E.—The Marathon mystery.

"The best detective story that we have read for a long time, and has the advantage of being well written. . . The methods of detection are those of Sherlock Holmes but the story has an originality of its own." Athenaeum.

Stuart, Ruth McEmery. —Second wooing of Salina Sue, and other sketches of negro life.

"She knows well how to best bring to the surface the exquisite humor and pathos of plantation life." N. Y. Times.

Tarkington, Booth.—In the Arena.

"A series of stories in which he has drawn upon his own experiences and observations in the 'political arena.'"

Tarkington, Booth. — Beautiful lady.

"The sentiment in it is very pretty, and Mr. Booth Tarkington never writes other than gracefully." N. Y. Times.

Thomson, J. J.—Electricity and matter.

"Though of small bulk, it is of considerable importance. In it the author expands concisely his views of the nature of electricity and matter as 'suggested by the results of recent investigation.'" Electrician.

Trollope, Anthony.—The Bertrams.

Trollope, Anthony.—Three clerks.

"Attractive new editions of stories by a standard author."

Wack, H. W.—Congo Free State.

"Social, political and economic aspects of the Belgian system of government in Central Africa. After personal research among documents in the administration office to which he was given free access by the king of the Belgians, the author presents this volume as a true and complete history of the affairs on the Congo Free State. The work is profusely illustrated with characterictis sketches." Bookman.

Wells, H. G.—Modern Utopia.

"The author seeks to bring out the greater possibilities inherent in human nature and therefore in society; to show us his conception of a healthy social organism as it might be under the happiest possible conditions." Contemporary Rev.

"There has been no work of this importance published for the last thirty years, and it is possible and permissible to hope that some ideas in it will fruetify in the future." Athenaeum.

Wharton, Edith.—Italian backgrounds.

"This is literature. Through this traveller's story runs a fine thread of scholarship, of savoir faire, of cosmopolitanism. . . The book has what we call distinction of style, as impossible to resist as to define." Dial.

Whelpley, J. D.—Problem of the immigrant.

"His summaries seem excellent and correct. The observations and brief discussions with which he accompanies them are illuminating and to the point." Nation.

White, Andrew D.—Autobiography. 2v.

"He has rendered distinguished services to his country for which he will be held in grateful remembrance. For more than fifty years he has enjoyed the acquaintance and friendship of many of the most prominent scholars and statesmen of his time. Not the least therefore of his services for which we are indebted to him is the record that he has now given us of the observations and experiences of half a century." Dial.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. NEW JERSEY IS ACTIVE IN GIVING PURE WATER TO ALL ITS BIG CITIES

Jersey's State Board of Health is doing a very important work in protecting the water supplies of cities from pollution. It has just finished a thorough investigation of the Pequannock river, from which the city of Newark derives its supply. There were only a few sources of pollution—not more than a half dozen all told—and these have been done away with.

"This is one of the best water sheds in the country," says Dr. Mitchell, secretary of the Board of Health. "The water comes from clean, rocky hills and woods, and is almost absolutely pure."

Within the last three years a careful inspection of the Hackensack river has been made. This stream supplies Hackensack, Hoboken and thirty-odd other municipalities. Two hundred and eighty sources of contamination, direct and remote, have been discovered and cut off within this time, and the supply is now among the best.

Whenever there is any ground for suspicion that a source of pollution exists, the water companies are expected to notify the Board of Health. The water of Millville was threatened by the Vineland sewage, and the Board took action to head off the danger.

There are now on the list for similar action the following places: Jersey City, New Brunswick, Rahway, Princeton, Lakewood, Bridgeton, Boonton, Bordentown, Morristown, Elizabeth, Atlantic City, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Trenton, Perth Amboy, Plainfield, Passaic and Orange.

The Board sends for a sample of water from the source of supply once a month. This is analyzed in the laboratory, and if found to be suspicious, an investigation is at once ordered. Those who are found polluting the water are notified to cease doing so; and if they do not comply, they are prosecuted in the Court of Chancery.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Brotherhood and Churches.

Thousands of union men have made sacrifices for the Spirit of Brotherhood, which is the inspiration of earnest churches. The expression of brotherhood has sometimes been sadly limited and imperfect in both organizations, but the aspiration toward brotherhood is the finest fruit of religious teaching. That is the ideal which the founders of the labor movement had in mind. Anything which tends to promote that ideal or which helps to square conduct with it is religious and is the concern of the churches.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Divorce Question.

When we Americans reflect that in Chicago alone there were three times as many downright divorces in 1903 as in all England, and that Los Angeles, in the same year, had 405 divorces to 1,818 marriages, we wonder what the English find in their statistics to worry about. It is the tendency in the wrong direction that alarms thoughtful Englishmen, and from that point of view they are justified in their alarm. But how justify our indicerence to our divorce statistics beside which theirs sink into utter insignificance?—Boston Traveler.

The Word "Graft."

"Graft" is a modern word, in the sense in which it is now used, but there have always been roundabout ways of describing some forms of theft so as to avoid using the word itself. "Graft" is simply the latest and most convenient substitute, all the more because it has other meanings which are legitimate. Years ago it was an English term for trade or occupation, perhaps a perversion of craft, but certainly used to indicate the way in which a man got his living. It is found in this sense in some English books, in one of Dicken's, for instance, but as far as we have seen it does not appear thus in American dictionaries. It was probably treated as mere slang, and that is all it has been considered here until very recently. An absolutely new dictionary now could hardly fail to give it a place. And it would have to define it, for one thing, as a synonym for theft.—Hartford Times.

Republicans in New Jersey.

Although the Republicans in New York are so demoralized this fall, those in that part of Greater New York which lies across the Hudson River are full of fight for good government rather than for sopils. Indeed, the situation in Jersey City and in Newark more resembles that in Philadelphia than in this city. First Everett Colby defied the Republican machine in Newark and secured a nomination for the State Senate at the Republican primaries against the opposition of Major Carl Lentz, the leader of the Republican organization in Essex county. Colby has demonstrated the possibility of independents acting inside the party, upsetting the machine through the primaries, and he has aroused the more independent Republicans to an enthusiasm which machine leadership never secures. Now Mayor Fagan, of Jersey City, has followed Colby's example. Being refused a nomination by Dickinson, the leader of his party in the county, Fagan has accepted a city party nomination, like that of the ticket put up by the friends of Mayor Weaver in Philadelphia. Fagan spoke for Colby during his fight in Newark, and on Thursday night Colby spoke at the opening meeting of Fagan's independent campaign in Jersey City. The chief issue in New Jersey is equal taxation of corporations. The machine leaders in Essex and Hudson counties are standing for the corporations, while Fagan and Colby are calling for the support of individual taxpayers. Their campaign calls for the absolute prohibition of perpetual franchises, the ascertainment and taxation of the value of public utility franchises, the taxation of railroad property at the rate paid by the private citizen, and the right of every voter to express his choice for United States Senator. That is a more radical programme than Republican conventions often adopt, but the following which Colby has secured and which Fagan's opening meeting indicated for him shows that those issues are alive in New Jersey. The character of the two candidates counts for much in favor of their platform, and in both cases it is of the highest.—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

FOREIGN NOTES OF INTEREST.

"The Peanut Ballet" with Richard Carle in "The Mayor of Tokio" at the New Plainfield Theatre, Friday Night, October 27.

AMUSEMENTS

Manager Counihan has booked "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" for the New Plainfield theatre tonight. This should be a welcome announcement to the patrons of that popular playhouse as well as to the general public that loves good acting. It is a well-known fact that this company which is under the direction of Dave B. Levis, is one of the best that has ever presented this great play, and this season will but add to its popularity with the young and old, for it is even better than what it has been, if such a thing could be possible to so good a company. New features have been added and old ones given a better interpretation. The star role is in the hands of that clever young actor, Elwyn Strong, who is surrounded by an excellent support. It is said to have the heaviest scenic equipment of any company on the road travelling.

Thursday, October 26, at the New Plainfield theatre, Miss Grace George will appear in a dramatization of "The Marriage of William Ashe." This novel by Mrs. Humphrey Ward is one of the literary sensations of the year and is in itself the highwater mark of that gifted woman's work. In all parts of the English speaking world has it created the most widespread discussion involving, as it does, a semi-historical treatment of the lives of Lord Melbourne, Lady Caroline Lamb and Lord Byron. The character of Lady Kitty is probably the most fascinating creation of any modern mind. Gay, impulsive little lady, one moment care-free and happy—the next haunted by impending dangers, she runs the gamut of human emotions. Miss George has a role fitted to her personality and one in which our interest can never for a moment lag. William A. Brady has given the drama a stage setting which is a marvel of beauty and good taste. Three of the scenes are laid in England, the one in Venice and the last in Switzerland. The company surrounding Miss George is of the highest excellence. Her leading men, H. Reeves-Smith and Ben Webster, being particularly well-known. From every point of view the production is a notable one and one destined to attract public interest in no small degree.

Negotiations are pending between our local management and the Pauline Hall Opera Company for an appearance here of that famous organization in the musical triumph, "Dorcas." It is by the well-known writers, Harry and Edward Paulton, the authors of "Erminie." The New York papers speak of it as a work of easy and concerted movement with delightfully catchy music. We are in hopes the management will succeed in arranging for a performance here.

"The Prince Chap" and Cyril Scott, for they are one and the same in the play, and Claudia, his ward—three in one, namely, Helen Pullman, Edith Speare and Maud White—are just as attractive near the heart of Broadway at Joe Weber's theatre, New York, as they were at the Madison Square theatre several blocks further downtown. The change in theatres has been widely announced and in consequence the attendance is quite as large as when this pretty play was shown at the Madison Square theatre. "The Prince Chap" is a delightful comedy, with just enough of the pathetic in the story to make it reach the heart. It is beautifully played. The two children—Helen Pullman and Edith Speare—are graceful and clever little actresses and are as natural as any two children could be. Thomas A. Wise keeps the spirit of his comedy part well to the front and brings many a laugh to his reckoning. "The Prince Chap" in all likelihood will remain at Joe Weber's theatre for many weeks, and it is not likely to be withdrawn until Mr. Weber's company returns to the theatre, which will be well in the winter.

The return of Henry E. Dixey to the legitimate stage and as a star at the head of one of the best acting companies that any New York manager has ever presented, is gratifying to all who have admired this clever actor. "The Man on the Box" is an interesting play and the Madison Square theatre, New York, where star and play may be seen, should not lack for generous patronage. The play is entertaining for two acts and in the third and last act the situations are so humorous and dramatic toward its close as to hold the interest well. "The Man on the Box" presents a variety of color ranging from farce and comedy to straight drama, that all tastes should be satisfied. The success of the play comes at a time when the New York stage is not overrun with dramatic surprises. Mr. Walter N. Lawrence has selected a role for his star which in every way gives Mr. Dixey abundant opportunities, and that he makes the most of them is evident by the success he has made of Lieutenant Robert Warburton, who would masquerade as a groom for a lark and then win the woman he loves by design while wearing a livery. Carlotta Nillson comes a strong second to the star and in acting a comedy part she has shown that she is an actress of rare versatility.

Richard Carle, after an uninterruped Chicago run of 110 performances in "The Mayor of Tokio," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, October 27. Of all the musical stars and plays that appeared in Chicago during the past season Richard Carle in his farcical opera, "The Mayor of Tokio," achieved the record for the longest consecutive run. His nearest competitors were Lew Fields, in "It Happened in Nordland," and George Cohen, in "Little Johnny Jones." Mr. Carle's consecutive run exceeded Mr. Fields' by a week and Mr. Cohen's by a fortnight.

George V. Hobart, the author of "It's Up to You, John Henry," which comes to the Grand Opera House, New York, next week, has long been considered one of the best dialect and "trick" writers of the day. He has extended himself to the utmost in "It's Up to You, John Henry," and it fairly teems with bright lines, rich pithy and coloquial. The title role is played by Charles E. Grapewin, who is well known to New York's fun lovers. For years Mr. Grapewin toured the country as a vaudeville star of the first magnitude, and at one of the highest salaries ever paid to an artist in that field. Since leaving vaudeville, he has climbed the rungs of the legitimate ladder with rapid bounds and today is considered one of the best light comedians on the American stage. Nor does he resort to the questionable methods that are employed by some to obtain laughs. His work has been characterized as clean, pleasing and legitimate. There is a certain magnetism about him that is perceptible and is felt by the audience the moment he steps on the stage. His smile, walk, stage presence, mannerisms, gestures, his way of reading lines, all command attention and create admiration.

Klaw & Erlanger's magnificent spectacular production of "The Pearl and the Pumpkin" at the Broadway theatre will close its long run at this house Saturday evening, the 28th inst. This piece has attracted much attention in New York and its engagement at the Broadway theatre has proved one of the most successful ever played at that house. The remainder of the week, and next, will be the last opportunities to see this wonderfully beautiful musical extravaganza. Seats are now on sale for all remaining performances and can be secured by mail order or telegraph.

McIntyre & Heath, in the comical musical play, "The Ham Tree," at the New York theatre, continue among the strongest drawing attractions in New York. In fact, the success scored by these funny entertainers is phenomenal. The biggest show in New York at popular prices, it has naturally drawn large audiences, but only its phenomenal merit can account for people being turned away at every performance. In one of the leading hotels, one evening last week, a gentleman purchasing tickets at the newsstand was heard to say to a gentleman with him: "You ought to see 'The Ham Tree' at the New York. It's great." "See 'The Ham Tree,'" was the reply. "I have seen it four times, and I'm going again tomorrow night. I never laughed so much in my life." McIntyre and Heath will remain at the New York but a short time longer, and all who want to see the funniest show on earth should not miss it.

The gorgeous spectacle, "The Romance of a Hindoo Princess," which took the place of "The Raiders" at the New York Hippodrome, is the most magnificent ever arranged in the history of the stage. Stirring and thrilling in the extreme is the story told and wonderfully beautiful are the scenic effects. The climax comes in a great battle scene between herds of elephants and horses and struggling men, the pachydorms in flight plunging into the great water tank. In "A Yankee Circus on Mars," which constitutes the other half of the programme, two striking attractions have been added to the already extensive list, making the greatest show ever witnessed in the world. One of these is Miss Claire Heliot, Europe's most famous animal trainer, with her seventeen lions, and the other is Miss Marquis with her six trained East Indian horses, who comes direct from the London Hippodrome.

VARIOUS ITEMS.

"While in Mexico recently," said J. T. Farnham, of Milwaukee, at the Palace Hotel, "I saw a curiosity in the shape of a passenger car. It is the private car built for Emperor Maximilian, and is now the property of the Mexican Central. It had just been refitted and was not a bad-looking car, considering the fact that it was first placed in service half a century ago. It is an interesting curiosity in view of the fact that it is the only car ever destined for an Emperor of Mexico, and it is in big demand. It is kept and operated as a special car."—San Francisco Call.

Does any one know what name was given to Pike's Peak by the Utes or the Indian tribes of the plains? At the request of Gen. Palmer, Henry Russell Wray, of the Chamber of Commerce, has been investigating this question for the past two weeks, and yesterday received a letter from H. L. Hall, post trader at Ignacio, Col. "I find," said Mr. Hall, "that the name given to Pike's Peak by the Ute Indian is 'A-cow-o-ca-dee,' which, when translated means 'Mountain with the Red Rocks,' or 'Red Top Mountain.' In pronouncing the Indian name the accent is placed on the syllable 'cow' and all the 'a's' in the word are long." Among other letters written by Mr. Wray was one to Buckskin Charlie, who holds that there is some dispute as to the interpretation of the Ute name. He says the mountain was compared to a red whirlwind, such as occur in Arizona and New Mexico, and that the name probably signified "Mountain of the Red Whirlwind." When it is taken into consideration that whirlwinds and blizzards are of common occurrence on the peak, the latter interpretation seems to be more reasonable.—Colorado Springs Telegraph.

Whatever else may be said of the Oregon hop crop of 1905, it is already certain that the quality will be perfect. "Choice," is not an appropriate word. The entire season has been favorable for the production of perfect hops, and growers have not been so overanxious as to begin picking too soon. The light rains did good rather than harm, and Oregon hops will be known the world over as perfect in quality.—Portland Oregonian.

A unique method of loading cattle into the steamships which ply up and down the South American western coast is employed by the Indians at Guayaquil. Canoes hollowed out of the trunks of trees are used for the purpose of a foundation. Across one of these long boats stout spars are laid transversely and bound tightly to the canoes with leather thongs. The cattle are attached to these poles by straps over the horns and by the tail. When a sufficient number of the terrified beasts have thus been secured the boat and its strange equipment are rowed out to the steamship. The canoe once alongside, the cattle, frightened into nonresistance and half drowned, are hoisted into the steamship by means of a windlass.—Salt Lake City Deseret News.

While fishing near Chadd's Ford a couple of days ago a visitor made a remarkable catch. He hooked a 10-pound carp and had it on the bank, when the hook pulled from its mouth and it flopped into the water. As it did so another hook was fastened in its hard back fin, and so hooked it was played with for nearly an hour before being landed.—West Chester (Pa.) Local News.

Three Wonderful Things.

The biggest battle-ship in the world.

The most beautiful woman in the world.

The littlest man in the world.

Here is a trio of remarkable things, and for them to be gathered together in the pages of one newspaper's Sunday Magazine assures its readers that the magazine must be mighty interesting and enterprising. The littlest man is as astonishing in his way as the biggest battle-ship. The most beautiful woman is—but why tell you now? Her picture and all about her are things worth your waiting. These are but a few of the remarkable features of next Sunday's New York World, which, by the way, is the best newspaper in the world.

MATRIMONIAL VACATIONS

"It isn't so much for a change of air," said Polly, as she carefully folded my smoking jacket and tucked it in a corner of the trunk, "that husbands and wives need a summer vacation, as for a change of companionship."

"I, for instance," I suggested, mildly, "have palled—as a companion."

"Oh, it's not that," replied Polly, cheerfully. "It's to keep from palling on each other that married people should separate for at least one month out of every twelve."

"A sort of ounce of prevention," I remarked, cautiously.

Polly nodded perfect acquiescence across the trunk.

"That's it," she assented, "a matrimonial vacation is the 'ounce of prevention,' worth a pound of cure in the divorce court."

"That's all bo—theory," I corrected.

"It's common sense," declared Polly, "and you know before we were married, we agreed to—"

"We agreed on everything before we were married," I growled with insinuating emphasis.

"One would tire of heaven," pursued Polly, imperturbably, "if one felt that one could never get away. Matrimony should not be a prison, but a privilege; and husbands and wives should not be jailers—"

"But jolliers," I interrupted.

"That's what I meant, even if it is vulgar slang," agreed Polly, "and one's stock of agreeable conversation gets frazzled at the edges during eleven months of constant use. Married people need to go away from each other now and then if only to collect a lot of new things to talk about. I don't suppose you would have observed that we sit calmly side by side, without speaking to each other for hours at a time now—and we've only been married four months! You have told me everything you want me to know about your business, and I have explained every ribbon on my frocks and hats to you. We have discussed every book we have ever read, and we are as familiar with one's tastes and distastes as with the alphabet. I have sung you all my songs a dozen times, and you have told me all your stories more than twice. There is never a ripple in the calm sea of Content, never a surprise, nor a bit of excitement—unless the cook leaves, or the gardener comes in intoxicated. Two peacefully married people get to be like old books, more dear and precious, but less interesting every day," and Polly laid my neckties in a tray, with a mournful shake of the head. "After awhile," she continued, ruefully, "their ideas become dusty and their love becomes dog-eared and frayed at the edges and——"

"Good Lord, Polly!" I interposed, desperately, "I never knew you were a pessimist."

"I'm not," cried Polly. "I'm just an experimenter. If married people would begin right away with sense as well as sentiment, they would not lose their perspective on one another by getting too close. Whether it's a picture or a person, distance—a little of it—lends enchantment. You can't see either in the best light until you stand a little way off. And nothing makes you appreciate anything or anybody like trying to do without it or him or her. Now, if I go to Aurora and you go to Pleasant Lake, we shall both long hungrily all the while to be back home with one another. Every time I look at a man——"

"Polly!"

"I shall think of you, and of how much nicer and handsomer and cleverer and better you are than he."

"I hear," I said irrelevantly, "that Abbingdon Dare is to be at Aurora."

"That's one reason I'm going there," asserted Polly, unblushingly.

"What!"

"There is no one," she pursued, "with whom you compare so favorably as you do with Abbingdon Dare. If every girl who fondly and sometimes regretfully remembers the man she 'didn't marry' would just invite him to call, she would probably find out why she didn't marry him, and congratulate herself on her escape."

"And doubtless," I remarked, insinuatingly, "Abbingdon Dare will be able to furnish you with a new stock of agreeable conversation."

"Yes," agreed Polly, "and every time I look into his eyes——"

"Polly Cutting!"

"I shall think how much finer yours are. And when he says anything nice—or—or—agreeable——"

"Mrs. Cutting!"

"I shall remember how much more gracefully you could have said it. And when we go sailing or canoeing or golfing——"

"When you—what?"

"I shall wish myself at home sitting on the piazza with you opposite smoking your dear, horrid, old pipe," finished Polly, with conviction.

I put down my "dear, horrid, old pipe" and gazed at Polly with withering amazement. But she only continued poking things into my trunk with an energy that sent the curls tumbling down into her eyes, so that she could not have felt the scorn of my glance.

"I suppose," I remarked at length, "that will give you an excellent perspective on me."

"Yes," said Polly, "I shall feel just as I imagine you feel when you have given up smoking or cocktails or coffee for a week. And think, Jack, what a honeymoon we'll have when we come back. Why, if all husbands and wives would take an annual matrimonial vacation they might have a new honeymoon every year. A change of companionship——"

"Is like a change of diet," I interrupted.

"Yes," agreed Polly. "It doesn't make us lose our fondness for the pudding or the old bill of fare; it just prepares our mental digestion to relish the things with which we have grown too familiar or have had too much of. Two people who know they will never get away from each other for a single day in their whole lives are like cats at the end of a string. They may not mind being tied at first, but after awhile they begin to tug in different directions; and that is what causes matrimonial upheavals. They get in each other's way horribly, and only a sense of duty keeps them from snapping the strings altogether."

"Matrimony," I said, impressively, "should not be a duty, but a pleasure."

"Anything is a duty," replied Polly, "which must be kept up from day to day, even eating or loving. Getting away from a husband or wife is like getting away from home cooking. It merely gives you a longing to get back again. There is nothing that makes you want your own old shoes so badly as trying to wear new ones or somebody else's," and Polly began tucking my bathing suit into a bureau drawer.

"You may as well put that in the trunk, Polly," I ventured. "I shall need it when I—take the Downing girl in bathing. I forgot to say that she is spending the summer at Pleasant Lake."

Polly dropped the bathing suit in a heap and turned suddenly toward me.

"But, Jack—you wouldn't——"

"The sight of her figure in a bathing suit will make me doubly appreciate yours, Polly."

Polly shut her lips tightly, and slowly picked up the fallen bathing suit.

"And," I pursued, "don't forget my white flannels. I shall need them when we go coaching—by moonlight."

Polly bit her lip and leaned so far over the trunk that I could not see her face.

"Watching the moonlight playing upon Miss Downing's hair will make me——"

"Think of fire," said Polly, spitefully, referring to Miss Downing's auburn locks.

"Think," I corrected, "how much more beautiful——"

"Well, at any rate," interrupted Polly, "you won't need your dress suit."

"I most certainly shall," I declared. "At the hotel dances I shall gather most of my new stock of agreeable conversation. One can practice so much better on a moonlit piazza or in a dark corner of the stair, and, on, Polly, don't forget my golf togs."

"Why, you detest golf, Jack Cutting!"

"I know," I replied, good naturedly. "But long, dreamy afternoons on the links with Miss Downing will be just the thing to make me sigh to be at home, with you sitting opposite me on the piazza, eating chocolates or talking nonsense. Why, I'm actually getting a good perspective on you already, Polly. I am beginning to feel just as I do when I am contemplating giving up my pipe or my coffee or my morning cocktail."

"It's very evident," snapped Polly, "that you are enjoying the contemplation."

"One always enjoys the last puff or the last swallow—or the last kiss," I sighed.

Polly looked distinctly troubled.

"I suppose you will write to me—anyhow," she said, after a pause.

"No," I said firmly, "I shall be—very busy. Besides, we must save everything we have to say for those agreeable conversations. Why, Polly, what are you doing?" For Polly had crossed the room with a flurry and was pulling the things out of her trunk with dramatic vehemence.

For answer she flung a pink silk petticoat at my feet and continued unpacking.

"Polly Cutting," I repeated, "what are you taking all of those fluffdubs out of your trunk for?"

"To make room for your hideous old clothes, Jack Cutting," replied Polly, fiercely.

"But, Polly," I remonstrated, "you haven't changed your mind, surely! Your theory——"

"I don't care anything about my theory!" cried Polly. "It wasn't practical."

"But, if we should pall on each other, dear," I suggested, nervously.

"We won't!" said Polly, confidently.

"Most married couples do," I asserted, calmly.

"We're different," declared Polly.

"Most married couples think that. That's why they remain tied like cats to a string, and——"

"At least," interrupted Polly, stingingly, "most married couples are willing to wait until the string begins to chafe."

"And then take a pound of cure in the divorce court," I rejoined. "Besides," I added, "I've bought both the tickets."

Polly turned and looked at me through two big tears.

"Oh, well," she said, chokingly, "if you want to go away and leave me——"

"But I don't, Polly!"

"If you really feel that we will pall on each other——"

"But, Polly——"

"If you are really disappointed at not flirting with that Downing girl——"

"But I'm not disappointed, Polly, and I never intended to go away and leave you, and we won't tire of each other!"

"Then why," asked Polly, unreasonably, "did you go and buy those tickets for different places?"

"I didn't," I replied, "I bought them for the same place."

Polly sat down in a heap in the middle of the floor and began wiping her eyes on the sleeve of my dress coat.

"Well, anyhow," she said, "it's been as good as a matrimonial vacation, hasn't it?"

"It has been a mental one," I declared, "and it's given us both a new relish for the old bill of fare."

"The mere idea of talking to Abbingdon Dare for thirty whole evenings was boring me to death!" sighed Polly.

"And the very thought of dangling around after Miss Downing for a month was appalling to me!" I declared.

"After all," said Polly, laying her cheek meditatively upon the lapel of my rumpled dress coat, "I believe that if two married people who fancy they are unhappy with each other would only stop to think how much more unhappy they'd be without each other, there wouldn't be any need of—matrimonial vacations."—Helen Rowland, in the Detroit Free Press.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

OFFICIAL.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Oct. 5, 1905, at 2:30 p. m.

All members were present except Freeholder MacDonald—1.

The minutes of the previous meeting, reading of bills being omitted, were on motion approved as read.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the committee of the whole:

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 5, 1905.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen: The members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, as a committee of the whole, met on Wednesday, the 13th day of Sept. last, at the bridge on North avenue, over the Rahway river, at Cranford, as authorized at the meeting held Sept. 6th.

After duly examining the said bridge it was unanimously ordered that the same be repaired at an expense not exceeding $400.

Signed, Benjamin King, Chairman of the committee of the whole.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report of the committee be received, and its action confirmed, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the committee on Union avenue bridge, Scotch Plains:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen: Your committee appointed to examine the line bridge on Union avenue, Scotch Plains, with power to repair or rebuild the same, respectfully report that they met the Somerset county board, and decided to build a new bridge at said place; received bids on same on Sept. 26th, and awarded contracts to lowest bidders.

Mason work to William Farrier at $1,138.50. Iron work to Leveridge & Garrigues Co. at $1,556. Total $2,694.50. Less one-half to Somerset county, $1,347.25. Union county $1,347.25.

Signed, Respectfully submitted, John Robison, W. W. Connoly, J. J. Marsh, M. M. Scudder, Elston Darby, Committee.

Freeholder Darby moved that the report of the committee be received, and its action confirmed, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the county road committee:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen: Your committee appointed on the matter respecting the relinquishing of certain portions of the county road heretofore adopted by this board, within the township of Westfield, would respectfully report that they have considered the matter, and would recommend that this board relinquish control over that part of Clark street extending from Broad street, in the town of Westfield, to North avenue; and also North avenue from where it is intersected with Clark street, in the town of Westfield, extending westerly to the Fanwood township line.

Signed, Respectfully submitted, E. K. Adams, Jno. Robison, Henry Krouse, W. H. Swain, Committee.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

NEW BUSINESS.

Whereas, It appearing that this board, at a meeting held February 3, 1898, adopted as county roads for the purpose of improving and macadamizing the same under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to enable Boards of Chosen Freeholders to acquire, improve and maintain public roads," (approved March 19, 1889; and

Whereas, A portion of said roads so adopted is described as follows:

Beginning at a point where Broad street is intersected by Clark street; thence extending westerly along Clark street to the intersection of Clark street with North avenue; thence westerly along North avenue to the boundary line between the townships of Westfield and Fanwood; and

Whereas, It appears that the resolution of this board adopting said road was received and filed February 4, 1898, and recorded in book entitled, "Records of Union County Roads," on page 17, etc.; and

Whereas, It appears that said road was marked and designated as a county road on a map entitled, "A Map of Union County, Showing the Roads Designated as County Roads," and adopted by this board as a map required under the provisions of the aforesaid act; and

Whereas, Application has been made to this board requesting this board to release its control over the same; therefore be it

Resolved, That this board relinquish control over that road or portion of road within the township of Westfield, and described as follows, to wit:

Beginning at a point where Broad street is intersected by Clark street; thence extending westerly along Clark street to the intersection of Clark street with North avenue; thence westerly along North avenue to the boundary line between the townships of Westfield and Fanwood; and be it

Resolved, That said map be changed accordingly, and that a certified copy of this resolution be filed by the clerk of this board in the office of the county clerk of the county of Union, as required by law.

On motion of Freeholder Robison the foregoing preamble and resolutions were adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Marsh:

Resolved, That the bill of Dean, Schwiers, Sutton Co., amounting to $324, being one-half the cost of the new line bridge near Hazelwood cemetery, Rahway, be paid when audited by the committee.

Freeholder Cady moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was adopted unanimously.

At this time Freeholder Kline was excused from further attendance at the meeting.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PLAINFIELDERS

—WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS—

NO. 13—Osteopathy and What it is—By Frank Fields Wilcox, D. D.

The question is asked quite often, "What is Osteopathy?"

In 1874, Dr. Andrew Taylor Still, a Federal army surgeon of the Civil War, becoming dissatisfied with the results obtained by the use of drugs, began a search for a better way, and for years he made a special study of anatomy, conceived the idea that human bodies are governed by the same laws which rule elsewhere in nature, and that the great Creator, the maker of man, had established a chemical laboratory in the human body which it has been impossible for man to duplicate, and that if there was no interference of the fluids and nerve forces of the body, nature would do its work and there would be health, until old age by natural wear and tear, would carry us away by a general giving out of all organs and tissues.

He commenced work on this theory among his patients and in all cases of disease made a thorough examination of the body for any anatomical disarrangement and, when found, corrected the same by the use of his hands. He found that he was able to cure a great many patients on whom his drugs had had no effect. He finally evolved a system of treatment and in 1892 he founded the first School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., his present home. The first class consisted of nineteen pupils. Today the school has a three years' course of nine months each year, with a faculty of fifteen teachers and an attendance of between six and seven hundred students. All subjects are taught as in medical schools except that of materia medica and medical therapeutics.

Osteopathy is the science of treating disease by manual manipulation, depending upon the truth that disease is due to an interference in the flow of fluids and forces through the body. That is, where it is not due to a specific poison. The interference may be bony, ligamentous or musuclar. These obstructions the Osteopath seeks to correct by manipulation, freeing the fluids and nerve supply, thus allowing nature to put the body in a normal condition. The principal fluids and forces are the blood and nerve forces, the former using the arteries and veins as channels transporting nutrition to all parts of the body and collecting the waste matter, carrying it to the lungs, kidneys and other excretory organs, where it is eliminated from the body; the latter conveyed by the nerves furnishing the motive force for the entire activity of the body and returning to the brain a knowledge of all happenings through its sensory functions.

Hence, if we have a partial or complete obstruction to an artery we will have a partial or complete shut off of nutrition and the parts supplied by that artery will be starved. This is best seen in such troubles as spinal curvatures, withered limbs and atrophies of all kinds. If a vein be obstructed, which is more common than arterial obstructions because their walls are thinner and their position more exposed, the return circulation will be impeded and the blood, failing to leave the part properly, will produce inflammation. In severe inflammation the stagnation becomes nearly complete and so decay will follow and pus form. Decay is the result and while it may be delayed to a certain extent by some cleansing agent to counteract the impurities, yet unless nature can restore the circulation, death is certain.

Of course it may sometimes happen that both arteries and veins are obstructed, then the condition is not one of active inflammation, but of either passive congestion or an increase of size of the parts affected, from which condition arises passive congestion of the lungs, enlarged tonsils, milk leg, varicose veins, goitres and tumors. Osteopathic manipulation removes the obstruction and, freeing the circulation to the affected parts, provides pure blood, which is the best germicide known.

Nerves in a great many cases are affected directly. Irritability or obstructions to a nerve will either increase the activity of or partly or completely paralyze the nerve, thus affecting the organ or part supplied by the same. The spinal column is a chain of bones called vertebrae bound together by muscles and ligaments uniting the head and limbs, from which the spinal nerves originate. The sympathetic nerves are directly in front of the spinal vertebrae lying on the heads of the ribs on each side.

The spinal column being made up of many bones joined together is, like other joints, liable to misplacements or strains which may shut off blood circulation or impinge nerves. Hence, a large number of diseases can be traced to the spine, even when the patient detects no trouble. If such strains and misplacements exist nature tries to repair them, which it is often unable to do, and the muscles contract, causing the parts to be held firmly out of their normal position.

The proper treatment by the Osteopath is first, relax the muscles and ligaments and then a correction of each misplacement by the proper manipulation. In chronic troubles especially this takes time.

One word as to what Osteopathy is not. It is not massage, Swedish movement or physical culture. Rubbing and the different movement systems are good, but they are superficial and not scientific when compared with Osteopathy. An Osteopath, having located the difficulty, adjusts it by the application of the mechanical laws involved. He does not cure the disease, but corrects the anatomical disarrangement and allows nature a free chance to work a cure. The treatment is not the same in each case, but must depend entirely upon the character and location of the trouble, and the general physical condition of the pateint. If they are weak and emaciated, the treatment must be very light and careful. There is no baby too young to stand Osteopathic treatment.

The Encyclopaedia Americana definition tells further of the purely mechanical means by which Osteopathy proceeds to remove such obstructions. It discusses the possibilities of manipulation, particularly as applied by the Osteopath, and tells of Osteopathic colleges, textbooks, literature, organizations and history.

WILLING TO BE A BRIDE.

Pretty Western Girl in Search of a Husband Gets Novel Offers.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 20.—Miss Jessie Gilliam, of Kansas City, visiting her aunt here, received yesterday a preliminary letter from a suitor who answers this letter, which Miss Gilliam admits she wrote:

"Chairman Board of Public Safety, Louisville, Ky. Dear Sir—Having noticed an article in our daily paper, was attracted by the statement you make of Mr. Summerville being elected superintendent of your cemetery, and sending in his resignation for the reason he had no companion and could not get one. Please do not accept the resignation, and ask him to write to an ever-willing young woman, who would share her life with a worthy chap and make life worth living, cook his meals, etc.

"NELLIE LOGAN."

The letter should have gone to Bowling Green, but the reply indicates that it has fallen into the hands of a sympathetic official, who has promised to play Cupid. Miss Gilliam is nineteen years old and pretty.

DIDN'T LIKE TO "HAND UP."

Disappearing Husband So Wrote to His Bride of Three Weeks.

Frank S. Joergens, twenty years old, who was married three weeks ago to Josephine W. Garnier, has disappeared from his home in Jersey City, and Mrs. Joergens has asked the police to help her find him, as she wants to compel him to provide for her support. Joergens has been missing since Monday, which was his pay day.

Instead of going home with his salary, as he had done for the previous two weeks, he sent his wife a note saying that she would not see him again.

"I am sorry for you," he wrote. "I love you, but I don't like the idea of handing up to a woman all the money I earn."

TOO FREE WITH MONKEY.

Animal Resented Familiarity by Sinking Teeth in Man's Hand.

James Hannan, a well-known baseball player, one of the Hannan brothers, of Belleville, visited Wednesday Hillside Park, between that town and Nutley. He patted "Aguinaldo," one of the monkeys, on the head. Hannan was told to desist by a keeper, but paid no attention.

Suddenly the monkey turned upon him and sank its teeth in his right hand. Hannan could not shake off the animal and the keeper could not induce "Aguinaldo" to let go his hold. It was necessary to choke the beast and beat it with a club before Hannan was released.

His wound, an ugly one, was cauterized by a physician.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

V. W. Nash, Sr., of Park avenue, is selling the best grade of coal at the lowest prices.

George F. Brown, of Somerset street, is agent for the best properties. He has many properties for sale or lease.

For the right kind of a hair cut, shave, shampoo or face massage stop at E. B. Maynard's tonsorial parlors on North avenue.

Want music for any occasion? A. F. Naylor, East Fifth street, is the one to take charge of it for you. Small as well as very big affairs.

John A. Koch, the Watchung avenue butcher, buys only the best quality of fresh and salt meats and his customers are always sure of getting the same.

Expert workmen and thorough-going business methods mark the Valentine Gas Engine Company plant, Sycamore street. Machine jobs properly handled.

It is a keen pleasure for a traveler to stop at the Kensington Hotel, North avenue. Plainfielders have learned to look to the Kensington for good dinners.

H. W. Marshall, of East Front street, has the reputation of doing the best laundry work. When your linen is returned to you it is spotless white and satisfactory in every way.

Try the Ultra Pura cigar if you want a fine, rich-flavored smoke. The Pinar del Rio for more fastidious tastes. Both at M. C. Dobbins, Park avenue. "Our Nation," a new plug tobacco.

Lovers of fish find the basis for culinary delights at Fred Ivamy's fish market, West Second street. The Ivamy counters and ice box contain all that is seasonable and good in sea food.

If the City National Bank is your bank your money is well taken care of. If it is not, make it so and get the benefit of the wisest and most progressive, yet at the same time, the safest banking methods known in the business of handling money.

Housewives may be fooled occasionally, but they do not go back to the store that fools them a second time. It follows, therefore, that the large number of old customers who continue to flock to the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company's store on West Front street have never been bamboozled by the penny-grabbing methods of some modern grocery stores. Every customer at the A. & P. store gets a little more than full value for their money.

FAIR SMUGGLER'S CASE.

The Custom House Authorities Withhold Her Name.

The Custom House authorities yesterday refused to give out the name of the young woman who, to escape the heavy duty on a valuable pearl necklace, smuggled it into this country. She led the Secret Service agents, who had been put on her trail by Collector Stranahan, a merry chase to Philadelphia, Chicago, then back East to Boston, and finally to New York. She was cornered at Madison Square Garden by two secret service agents as she sat in a box. She wore a necklace which she protested did not contain the original pearls.

She at first refused to give up the smuggled jewelry, but Collector Stranahan insisted, and finally the young woman surrendered the necklace, with many tears. She was also required to hand over a check for $13,000, the amount of the customs duties the payment of which she had tried to evade.

The Treasury Department at Washington will decide whether to confiscate the necklace, and what to do in the young woman's case. Collector Stranahan has sent a full report of the facts to Washington, and is awaiting a reply.

Meanwhile he keeps the necklace, and it may be the young woman will eventually have to face publicity.

Sixty Weeks for $1.75.

The new subscriber to The Youth's Companion for 1906 who at once sends the subscription price, $1.75, will receive free all the remaining issues of the paper for 1905. These issues will contain nearly 50 complete stories, besides the opening chapters of Grace S. Richmond's serial, "The Churchills' Latch-String," a sequel to her story of "The Second Violin," which appeared in the early weeks of this year. Madame Sembrich will contribute an article on "Sovereigns I Have Sung To," and there will be three stories by May Roberts Clark under the title, "Tales of a Pawnee Hero." These will give a foretaste of the good things in store for 1906, full illustrated announcement of which will be sent to any address free with sample copies of the paper. New subscribers will also receive a gift of The Companion,'s "Minutemen" calendar for 1906, lithographed in twelve colors and gold. The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkeley street, Boston, Mass. c

Followed Girl 8,000 Miles.

Omaha, Oct. 20.—Christian Madsen, seventy-six years old, fell in love with Miss Erdmuth Larsen, twenty-six, in Copenhagen, where they both lived. When Miss Larsen went to visit her brother in San Francisco the old man became lonesome and followed to America, won her, and they started back to Denmark together. They stopped off in Omaha yesterday and were married.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SEEN IN THE SHOPS.

Something very cunning, as the children would say, in the way of sweets, is wee orange crates some six inches long and three broad. The candy oranges (which are about the size of camphor balls) are most realistic in coloring.

Many kitchen needs now come in tubes, on the order of those used for artists' colors, but a trifle larger. There is a screw arrangement at the bottom of each tube, by turning which the contents are forced out. Among the tube supplies available in all large grocery stores are such things as mustard, anchovy paste and different jellies and relishes.

Quite the newest postcard is a musical affair intended for insertion in the phonograph of the recipient. The novelty is made to fit any machine, and both English and American records are used. The cost of a card is about a dime. Postage stamps are affixed and the card deposited in the mail box like its compeers in other more flexible materials.

Biscuit nuts, put up by cracker manufacturing companies, make a novel substitute for bonbons as a dinner table hors d'oeuvre. These are wee biscuits very closely resembling the various kinds of nuts—almonds, English walnuts and so forth.

Imported chatelaine bags of the wrist-chain type, for children, are decorated with scenes of classic pantomimes and nursery tales. Humpty Dumpty and his associates are generously represented. The pictures are in colored embossed leather.

Novel furniture called "Indian," from its characteristic features, has istead of wooden or cane seats, a basketwork of interwoven leather straps. The dressed skin is used. It makes a striking chair, bench or stool.

A pretty writing paper box very cleverly represents a steamer trunk. All the necessary straps and locks are reproduced with great fidelity, and there are little placards telling of journeys past. Very attractive for a birthday gift.

A new clock case is of pyrographed wood, the hours on the dial being all burned in with a pyro pencil. Human faces, flowers, fruit and other subjects put in with pyrography, and the mineral stains decorate other portions of the case.

Sewing room novelties are plentiful and some of them are exceedingly dainty. One of the number worth quoting is appalently a tiny leather bound book, with tooled corners and gilt edge. When opened a sewing box, with various sewing supplies, is revealed.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

A very pretty bedroom was furnished with wall-paper which was all a tangle of green grass up to the low frieze, where the grasses separated to show blue sky and a field of pale iris. A few birds flew across the stretch of sky, giving the wall an appearance of summer out of doors. The woodwork and furniture of the room were white enamel. No pictures were present, for which one was thankful, and the entire room was as simple as possible, with only the necessary pieces of furniture and very few hangings.

A housekeeper who lights her diningroom and bedrooms with candles smiled at a request to explain the exquisite neatness of her brass candlesticks. "You do not scratch your brasses when you scrape the wax off," said the inquirer, "and I should like to know how you avoid doing so." The answer was that the wax was not scratched off at all. The brasses were merely plunged into hot water long enough for the bits of wax to melt and run off of their own accord. The polishing of the brass was the work of the man who took care of the furnace, since polishing brass is a matter of more muscle than the average maid possesses.

Red cabbage is a vegetable which if used rightly is very good. For example, a delicious pickle may be made with red cabbage. Select a small one to experiment with. Shave in thin slices and place in layers of salt in a stone jar. In two days take out and drain. Cut up a large red beet, and mix with it and the cabbage half a cupful of pickling spices, which are to be had at the large groceries ready mixed. Put in jars, and cover with scalding hot vinegar. Allow the pickle to become cool, after which seal and put away for some weeks before using.

Got All That Was Coming.

At the cafe where I ate my first Frisco meal the bill of fare advertised stringbeans. I ordered them. The waiter brought me some beans of the string variety, but the strings had been removed.

"Waiter," I said, "are these stringbeans?"

"They are," he replied.

"But where are the strings?" I demanded, sternly.

"The strings! Good Lord, man, do you want the strings?" asked the waiter.

"I do," replied I; "and you can trot right back and get them. I have been told that San Francisco people would try to string me, but I don't propose that they shall string my beans. I want all that is coming to me."

The waiter was equal to the emergency. In about five minutes he served the strings on the side.—Portland Oregonian.

DILTS AND SCHLEIF ARE NOMINATED BY DEMOCRATS

Much Enthusiasm at Convention Which Names Them For Collector and Freeholder.

A COMPLETE TICKET

Alcorn, Luckey and Hawkins for Councilmen-at-large—J. P. Homan for Board of Education.

What the Democrats lacked in numbers of their city convention held last night in Central Hall at Park and North avenues, they made up in enthusiasm and without any trouble a complete ticket was nominated for the coming election. All of the delegates, but one, John P. Owens, from the First ward, were present and the business of the evening was transacted quickly.

This ticket was placed in nomination:

For Councilmen-at-large—George H. Alcorn and Dr. C. M. Luckey, of

J. V. F. Dilts,
Democratic candidate for Tax Collector.

the First ward, and Joseph M. Hawkins, of the Second ward. For tax collector—J. V. F. Dilts, of the Second ward. For freeholder—Stephen H. Schleif, of the Fourth ward. For member of the Board of Education—J. P. Homan, of the Second ward. The nominations were made without opposition and in each case the secretary cast the ballot.

Patrick J. Reville, chairman of the city executive committee, called the convention to order, and on motion of Vincent L. Frazee, George H. Alcorn was made chairman. Stephen H. Schleif was chosen secretary. The chair then appointed V. L. Frazee and P. J. Reville a committee on credentials and Joseph Harrigan, J. V. F. Dilts and John F. Casey a committee on resolutions. Both committees reported at once, Mr. Frazee stating that all the delegates, but one, were present, and Mr. Dilts moving that the platform adopted at the Union County Democratic Convention, held in Elizabeth on Wednesday night, be accepted by the local convention. This was done.

Mr. Frazee then moved that the convention proceed to nominate candidates for the various offices to be filled. He placed in nomination George H. Alcorn for member at large of the Common Council from the First ward. P. J. Reville nominated Joseph M. Hawkins, of the Second ward, and Mr. Schleif named Dr. C. M. Luckey, of the First ward.

Mr. Frazee in nominating J. V. F. Dilts for tax collector, stated that he ran for this office at the last election, and although defeated, he succeeded in running ahead of his ticket, a hopeful sign. The other three wards seconded this nomination. Mr. Frazee also nominated Mr. Schleif for freeholder, adding that he ran 500 votes ahead of his ticket for the same office at the last election, and had it not been a Presidential year, believed that he would have been elected.

Mr. Dilts commented upon Mr. Schleif's nomination, by saying that misery likes company. He said that both Mr. Schleif and himself realized what they were up against and were able to take their medicine, if necessary. The First, Second and Third wards seconded Mr. Schleif's nomination. Joseph Harrigan, of the Second ward, nominated J. P. Homan for member of the Board of Education, and all the other wards seconded the nomination.

On Mr. Reville's motion, S. H. Schleif, P. J. Reville and V. L. Frazee were appointed a committee on vacancies.

The business being concluded, speeches were made by the nominees. Mr. Schleif assured the convention that he would do the best he could to

BIG TRACT PURCHASED BY SISTERS OF MERCY?

RUMOR HAS THAT D. T. KENNEY ACTED FOR THEM.

According to a well founded rumor, the purchasers of the big tract of land on the Watchung Mountain back of North Plainfield was the Sisters of Mercy, Bordentown, a religious organization that is known throughout the State. It was said yesterday that David T. Kenney, of the borough, had bought the property and that he would take steps at once to improve it, but later developments tend to show that he was not acting for himself.

The same rumor that credits the Sisters of Mercy with acquiring the property asserts that it was secured for the purpose of building a home for themselves and to more ably carry on their work. They already have a large place at Bordentown, but they have been desirous of moving, and for that reason the local site was slected. It is an ideal spot for just such an institution and would tend to improve surrounding property just as much as though a private residence were erected.

KROM COMPANY RENTS OLD ALUMINUM PLANT

MACHINERY NOW ENROUTE TO EQUIP IT FOR OPERATIONS.

The William Jeffery agency has rented with an option of purchase for Charles Leonard, of New York, to the Krom Machine Works the entire plant and grounds located on the corner of North avenue and Berckman street—having a frontage of over 700 feet on North avenue—the deal involves about fifty thousand dollars, and the title will probably be closed at an early date. The Krom Machine Works is engaged in the manufacture of mining machinery and is very successful in that business, it is the only one of its kind in this part of the State.

Twenty carloads of its machinery is now en route from the company's old plant to the new one. S. Arthur Krom, of this city, is the president of the company. This is one of the largest and most important deals consummated in this city in many years and will help materially in further developing Plainfield.

This factory was formerly occupined by the Aluminum Press Works now of Dunellen.

DRAKE AN EXILE.

At His Own Suggestion "Wacky" Is Banished for Six Months.

Frank, alias "Wacky," Drake, a young man with a long police court record, was arrested last night by Patrolman Overbaugh for drunkenness and reckless driving.

"Drake, you have been up before me eight times within a year," said Judge Runyon this morning, "and you have had suspended sentences thre times and three fines of $5 each. You are not making a proper return for the chances you have received. What do you think ought to be done with you?"

"If you give me another chance, Judge," said Drake, "I'll go out of town and stay away, without drinking a drop, for six months. I can get work in New York."

"All right, you do that. I have no power to banish a man, but I expect you to keep to this voluntary agreement. Mind, I mean it. You are to be out of town by Monday, and stay away until April 20, next year."

Drake will stand a good show of being arrested and sent to jail under one of his suspended sentences if he doesn't leave town as agreed.

Basketball Squad.

Candidates for the first Y. M. C. A. basketball team were out for practice last night. Manager Browning was greatly pleased with the showing. One of the interesting things ahead of the team is a trip to the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., where F. A. Henckel, formerly director here, is the assistant director.

Little Day Nursery Fair.

Under the auspices of the Little Missionary Day Nursery a fair will be held at 93 St. Marks place, New York, on November 15 and 16, to raise funds toward payment of the mortgage of the nursery building. The fair will be under the direction of Miss Sara Curry, manager of the nursery.

James K. Arnold, Jr., of the borough, has been spending the past week in the South.

JR. O. U. A. M. TO MEET

Plainfield Councils to be Represented at 37th Annual Session.

TO BE AT TRENTON

Will Convene Wednesday Morning—Financial Condition of the Order—Report on Membership.

Much important business is to be transacted at the thirty-seventh annual session of the Junior Order United American Mechanics of New Jersey, which will convene in Masonic Temple, Trenton, Wednesday morning, and continue until Thursday evening. But few changes will be made in the board of officers.

Delegates will be present from Franklin, Somerset and Benevolent councils of this city.

William H. Miers, of Trenton, State council secretary, will retain that office. The Rev. Edward Mount, of Eureka Council, No. 54, West Asbury Park, will succeed William R. Conard, of Evening Star Council, No. 38, Burlington, as State councilor. Dr. James J. Reed, of Ashland Council, No. 28, of Seabright, will again be made State treasurer. Elections will take place for State vice councilor, State council conductor, State council warden and a member of the finance committee.

Many interesting reports will be received at the session. The membership report will show great increases throughout the State, and the financial report will prove a healthy condition of the treasury.

During the last twenty-five years the order has gained in membership and wealth every year, excepting 1881. During that year the order lost in membership thirty-four. In the State June 30 last 289 councils existed, with a total membership of 40,902, and the total worth of the order was $670,612.23.

During the past twenty-five years 340 councils have been instituted in this State. Of this number seventy-one have disbanded, six have consolidated with other councils and two have had their charters revoked for insubordination, namely, Enterprise Council, No. 6, of Trenton, and Hollywood Council, No. 29, of Long Branch.

By initiation, reinstatement and card 77,182 persons have been admitted to membership during the past twenty-five years. The loss by suspension, expulsion, death and withdrawal was 37,693. The total receipts from all sources during this same period were $4,779,757.54.

At the end of June, 1880, the membership was 1,413 and the members initiated from that date to last June were 67,832; members reinstated during that period, 6,422; members admitted by card, 2,908. The total loss during those years was 37,693, leaving a membership last June of 40,902.

The total receipts during the twenty-five years were $4,789,757.54 and the total disbursements $4,579,016.55. The total worth of the councils last June showed a net gain of $657.110.89 since 1880.

The councils instituted during the year ending June 30 last were: November 23, 1904, Newland Council, No. 289, located at Newfoundland, Passaic county, 30 charter members; March 27, 1905, Martinsville Council, No. 290, Martinsville, Somerset county, 26 charter members; May 20, 1905, Westville Council, No. 291, Westville, Gloucester county, 30 charter members; July 25, 1905, Watts Cooke Council, No. 292, Paterson, 45 charter members.

For the first time in its history the State Council, at the coming session, will admit subordinate members as visitors. In the past only past councilors were permitted to enter the State Council during its sessions.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR RALLY.

Echo Meeting of Recent Conventions to Be Held October 26.

Arrangements are about complete for the Christian Endeavor rally to be held in the First Presbyterian church on Thursday night, October 26, under the auspices of the Endeavor Congress of Plainfield. At that time J. T. Sproull, of East Orange, will give a talk on the National Endeavor Convention held at Baltimore, and Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, will report on the State Endeavor convention held at Morristown.

All Endeavorers and others interested are cordially invited to attend the rally. There will be a special programme of music, and after the rally there will be a social time and a collation.

O. F. C. Practice.

The Orange Field Club team held heavy practice last night in preparation for the game against the Dunellen eleven this afternoon. Several new plays on silent signals were practiced.

LAHEY GANG SENTENCED

Ten Years Each For Three Desperadoes Who Dynamited Somerset Co. Jail.

TAKEN OFF TO PRISON

Men Shackled to Prevent Rescue—How They Planned to Escape from Jail.

Convicted on charges of highway robbery, burglary and jail breaking, Hack Lahey, Dennis Harring and John Regan, three desperadoes who dynamited the Somerset county jail in an unsuccessful attempt to escape, were sentenced yesterday at Somerville by Judge Schenck to ten years each in the State prison.

The men, who are the most desperate prisoners ever confined in the Somerset county jail, were brought into court guarded by a big force of constables and special policemen. After their sentence they were taken back to jail, shackled and locked in their cells.

Sheriff Cooper took them to State prison this morning. The men were under a strong guard, as it was known that they belong to a desperate gang of crooks which has made repeated attempts to liberate them from the county jail and was likely to make an attempt to rescue them on their way to Trenton.

The trial of the men has taken the time of the Somerset Court for almost a week. Regan, the genius of the three, laid several clever plans of escape, and finally blew out the side of the jail with nitro-glycerine, which it is believed he manufactured while in prison. He is said to be a college bred man of a good New York family named Welsh.

On the witness stand he showed he was a person of morethan ordinary education, and continually prompted his counsel. Regan has a good tenor voice, and during his long imprisonment he frequently won the applause of the prisoners by singing the "Holy City" and other religious selections.

LITTLE JOHNNY JONES AND THE RUBBER HEELS

HIS AMBITION FOR A LIGHT THREAD MADE MUCH TROUBLE.

Johnny Jones, little and black, was brought before Judge Runyon this morning, charged with stealing three pairs of rubber heels from Louis Hirsh, of Somerset street. Johnny wanted his mother to buy him a pair for his shoes but she refused and Johnny refused to be balked in his ambition to walk springly. He stole two extra pairs to prepare for future shoes.

Hirsh caught Johnny sneaking out of the shop and nabbed him. Johnny fought and kicked and scratched, and Hirsh yelled "police." Cop Overbaugh responded to the cries in time to save the place from being totally wrecker, but the shop was pretty much upset and Mr. Hirsh had a piece dug out of his cheek.

In court, Hirsh said he didn't want Johnny punished, and it developed that Mrs. Jones had paid him seventy-five cents. He said the heels were worth thirty-five cents a pair, and the judge commented on his generosity.

"Oh well," said Hirsh with a generous wave of his hands, "his mother cried, and the boy might lose his place else."

"Well, if you are satisfied I'll let the boy go," said the judge.

"Will you give me the heels?" asked Hirsh.

"I thought you said Mrs. Jones paid for them?"

"She only give me seventy-five cent. They cost thirty-five cent a pair."

"Then you didn't take the money in payment for the shoes? What was it for—payment for the scratch?"

Hirsh looked scandalized.

"A payment for the scratch would cost more as that. My goodness!"

Hirsh couldn't be led to confess that he expected to compound a felony, so the court decided the seventy-five cents was payment for the heels. They were turned over to Mrs. Jones, who was told not to give them up.

Hirsh cast a disgusted look at the heels in Mrs. Jones' hand. His expression of generosity had faded perceptibly.

Permit for New House.

Building Inspector Doane has granted a permit to Andrew Muir, of Essex street, for the erection of a dwelling on West Fourth street, opposite John. It will be two and-a-half stories in height and fitted with improvements. M. D. O'Keefe has the contract.

FOR GREATER MISSIONS

Young People of Local Churches Hold Union Missionary Meeting.

HEAR TRUMPET CALL

Frank Vickery, Secretary of Young People's Mission Movement, Speaks for the Evangelization of the World.

A union meeting of the Young People's Societies of the local churches was held under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue church last night in the interest of the new missionary movement among young people in support of the student volunteer work for foreign missions. The feature of the gathering was an illustrated lecture on the need of mission workers in foreign fields by Frank Vickery, secretary of the Young People's Mission Band.

The meeting was held in the Crescent Avenue church lecture room. Pastors of practically all the Protestant churches were present and the union gathering filled the room to the last gallery seat, almost to the limit of its capacity.

Rev. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, led a short prayer meeting with which the assemblage opened, and introduced Mr. Vickery with a plea for a wider interest in the support of missions by the rank and file of church members.

Mr. Vickery's lecture was a strong argument for increased work in behalf of the foreign missions. Plain diagrams and figures thrown on the screen demonstrated that the evangelistic church alone had "men enough, money enough, and power enough," to bring about the evangelization of the world.

The hope of the mission movement lay in the young people, he said. Those who were in the Sunday schools and Young People's societies today would be in charge of the coffers of the church in fifteen years. To quicken their interest in mission work meant the consecration of the church's treasury than to the mission cause.

Mr. Vickery's lecture included an interesting review of missionary effort in the United States, from the foundation of that work in 1806 at Williams College, to the present day. He dwelt, naturally, on the origin and growth of the Student Volunteer League and the supplementary people's movement among non-college young people.

After the lecture pledge cards were passed among the congregation. The result of the meeting is expected to create great impetus in mission interest and support among the young people of the local churches.

VICTIMS OF EXPLOSIONS ARE RESTING EASILY

PASSED A GOOD NIGHT AND RECOVERY IS ASSURED.

Miss Mary Brown and Mrs. L. C. Hurtt, the victims of the naptha explosion in the former's cleaning establishment on West Second street yesterday morning, were reported today as resting easily, though both are very weak. Their recovery will be slow, but is practically certain. It has been learned that but one of Mrs. Hurtt's ribs was broken, though at first it was thought there were three. In addition her body is a mass of bruises and she has several very bad cuts. The force of the explosion hurled her to the ceiling of the room demolished.

Miss Brown, who was terribly burned, passed a good night, but today suffers greatly from her injuries. It is certain that he reyesight will be saved and she will regain the use of her arms, but it will be necessary to graft skin on portions of her body that were practically roasted. Both she and Mrs. Hurtt will be detained at their homes for many days.

Employes of Miss Brown have been busy since the accident occurred and have practiacly restored order from chaos. The establishment is again open for business and it is said today that goods in the place would be delivered.

Awarded Contract for Vitrified Pipe.

The street committee of the borough Council met last night and awarded the contract for furnishing vitirified pipe for the West End avenue storm sewer to Mobus Brothers. According to the bid they give freight to destination and the breakage is to be at the borough's risk, less two per cent. cash after freight is deducted. The borough is to do the work, believing it will be much cheaper this way than by letting it out on contract.

ON COLBY'S PLATFORM

Nugent Declares For Anti-Corporation Campaign for Senatorial Election.

PLAINFIELD INVASIONS

Heavy Assault on the Gibraltar of Union County Republicanism—Noonday Meetings to be Held in Factory Districts.

His full acceptance of the tenets of the Colby and Fagan platforms was announced by Edward Nugent, the Democratic State Senatorial candidate, last night. The announcement was made at a joint meeting of the county and city Democratic committees in Elizabeth.

Mr. Nugent declared his earnest belief in the wisdom of the Colby and Fagan movement against corporations, and told the assembled politicians that he would conduct his campaign on those lines.

Mr. Nugent, having subscribed to the doctrines of Colby and Fagan, will out-Colby and out-Fagan them in every phase of the anti-corporation assault. His campaign plans are of the most vigorous character. He intends to "swing around the circle" from one end of the county to the other, and cut through the middle besides.

A heavy attack is to be made on Plainfield. Mr. Nugent and his hosts will march up to the very breastworks of the Republican Gibraltar. Noonday meetings will be held in the vicinity of the factories and the rock-ribbed Fourth will enjoy the new sensation of a strong Democratic assault. Meetings of similar character will be held in Elizabeth, Rahway and Summit.

Mr. Nugent believes he is going to be elected. He thinks the people are stirred so deeply over the movement to curb the power of the corporations that the candidate who makes his battle for office under the anti-corporation banner will win.

"PETE" LAMAR WEDS BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST

FORMER CATCHER OF PLAINFIELD'S TEAM MARRIES NEW YORK GIRL.

Pierre Lamar, the well known baseball player and former catcher for the Plainfield team during the early part of the season, was married on Tuesday to Miss Elinor H. Galbraith, of New York. Mr. Lamar was very quiet as to his plans and only the day before did he make known his intentions to his associates in the Equitable Life Assurance Company, where he is employed. The affair was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride.

Being a baseball enthusiast, the bride was a regular attendant at the games in the Bronx, where Mr. Lamar played five years ago, after his return from Providence. His earnestness and the spirit of bravo he injected into every game won her heart. An introduction was arranged, which ended in the consummation of the romance at the altar on Tuesday.

A large array of presents was bestowed upon the couple, including a purse of gold from Mr. Lamar's associates of the Equitable. The couple have taken up their residence at Dumont, this State, where the groom recently erected a cosy home. The groom is one of the most popular players of the national game, and he has a host of friends in and out of the game. His work in this city was of the best and many were sorry to see him leave the Daabsters.

Rev. Dr. Bragg Coming.

Rev. Dr. George F. Bragg, of Baltimore, will preach at both the morning and evening services at Grace Church Colored Mission, corner Sixth and Sycamore streets, tomorrow.

ENTHUSIASM HYPNOTISM

Prof. Vincent, Former Plainfielder, Makes Some Radical Claims.

"THE MOB'S MIND."

Studies in Psychology Has Convinced Professor of Some Peculiar Condition of the Human Mind.

Did you ever stop to think what makes you get enthusiastic in a heated political campaign, or what makes you get excited in a close baseball game when your team gets a little ahead?

Professor George E. Vincent, of Chicago, discussed that proposition in a lecture at the Auditorium, says the Topeka (Kan.) State Journal. He says it is because people become partially hypnotized. It is a psychological question, and the psychologists who have studied it have come to the conclusion that the partial hypnosis theory is correct. Political spellbinders, patent medicine fakers, and other public speakers manipulate their audiences in the same way.

Professor Vincent is a son of Bishop Vincent, who made his home in Plainfield for a number of years, and who is well known here. Bishop Vincent is recognized as one of the best lecturers on the American platform, and the son is a chip off the old block, fully up to the original. His lecture was a psychological one.

He is a graduate of the Plainfield High School. His father was at one time pastor of the First M. E. church.

He calls his lecture "The Mind of the Mob." In introducing the subject he told of the study of the "mob psychologists" in seeking an explanation for the actions of people who act in crowds. He told of the dignified Mr. Brown, who is a staid and sober citizen, but who goes to a baseball game one day. Mr. Brown becomes interested in the home team. As the team makes runs his enthusiasm warms, and when the other side gets ahead he becomes depressed. In the last half of the ninth inning the score stands 5 to 4 for the visitors. There are two outs and two men on bases. Things are looking pretty bad for the home team, and there is a deep undercurrent of excitement.

Then Casey comes to the bat, and at the critical moment lines out a home run, and turns defeat into victory. Instantly the sober, dignified Mr. Brown leaps to his feet, yelling like a madman. He is another Brown—an emotional Mr. Brown. He hugs all of his neighbors that he can get his arms around. He puts his silk hat on the end of his umbrella and waves it frantically. Two hours later he is sitting in his home giving noncommittal answers to the questions of his children. Why did Brown act so at the ball game?

Professor Vincent then told of the political rally. There is a brass band, and a big audience has gathered in expectation of hearing the great spellbinder. The committee on applause has been stationed in various parts of the great hall to provide for the spontaneous uprising of the people.

"If you want to have a spontaneous uprising of the people arrive on schedule time," said the lecturer, "you must provide for it in advance."

At the proper moment the band commences to play a lively air and three figures appear at one of the doors, while the crowd is expectantly watching. One of them is the great spellbinder. The committee on applause takes its cue and starts a "great ovation." The people applaud wildly.

At a missionary convention at Old Orchard, Me., once a crowd of people who had an average tight hand on their pocketbooks, after hearing an address by a returned missionary, gave $70,000 for missions. Men took watches from their pockets and women stripped their fingers of rings and threw them on the collection plates.

Up at Chicago an audience of 3,000 women gathered to hear Paderewski. They were held spellbound by the music and refused to let the great pianist go until some men came in and took the piano out bodily.

Professor Vincent told these incidents in detail as illustrating what a crowd will sometimes do when acting in unison. He referred to historical events—the Crusades, and like events. He told of the Jumbo craze in London, when the late Mr. Barnum worked the London press for some free advertising about Jumbo, and for ten days London went wild over Jumbo. One minister preached a sermon on Jumbo. Children were named after him, and 1,200 boxes of buns were sent to the big elephant with personal letters.

Every crowd is not a psychological crowd, Professor Vincent said. A psychological crowd has four characteristics: In it there is concentra-

The Pope, in the course of a conversation with Archbishop Bourne, of Westminster, commenting on Dean Stanley's book on ritualism, said that the Anglican ritualists were nearer to Catholicism than to Protestantism. He expressed the hope that there would be a religious fusion into one fold, under one shepherd.

CHURCH BEFORE MEAL.

Recorder Holds Wife's Religious Duties More Important.

"A woman has a right to attend to her religious duties, even though her husband's breakfast is sacrificed," was the ruling yesterday in the Bayonne Police Court of Recorder Lazarus in the case of Lair vs. Lair. John Lair and his wife reside at No. 9 Silver street, and she haled him to court on a charge of being disorderly. Mrs. Lair testified:

"My husband has been drinking of late and dared me to have him arrested. I decided to do this last Sunday when he locked me out of the house when I returned from church."

"The trouble is, Judge," Lair said, "that my wife does not get my meals. She goes off to church and leaves me without anything to eat."

The Court's decision staggered Lair.

When asked if he would take the pledge Lair said he would if his wife promised to stay home from church, but he finally took it without any conditions.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Hughes, of New York, was enabled to make a very impressive flourish over a mighty small sacrifice.—Milwaukee Sentinel (Rep.).

The Mutual Life Insurance Company admits that it gave $40,000 to the Republican campaign committee in 1904. What a fine slush fund Mr. Cortelyou must have had!—Syracuse Herald (Ind.).

The vote in the last Presidential election is ample proof that the Democrats never received any of those big life insurance contributions.—Atlanta Journal (Dem.).

In the recent balloting for the admission of candidates to the New York Hall of Fame two of the three men admitted were poets. They were, of course, dead when the votes were cast.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Americans of common sense know that municipal governments are bad and inefficient; but they are firmly enough rooted to the ground to perceive that if under universal suffrage, the Americans have not been able to give a respectable administration, the folly of imposing greater and more complicated burdens upon the electorate is foolish.—Philadelphia Ledger (Ind.).

We wish the President well in his effort to purify the game of football, and to protect every player against injury wantonly or purposely inflicted. The campaign is a good one. If Harvard, Yale and Princeton will combine to make the game what it should be, we do not doubt that there will be great improvement. Certainly there is room for it.—Indianapolis News.

NIP IT IN THE BUD.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowed-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Residents of Plainfield Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Plainfield, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Plainfield kidney sufferers.

S. C. Conklin, of 134 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was suffering from aches and pains in my side, back and hips. My kidneys did not work as they should, and as far as I could learn from physicians I was in very bad shape with by kidneys and bladder. I was casting about for a cure but nothing I did helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy. I took three boxes and they cured me. I gave a statement at that time telling what this remedy did for me and I am glad to repeat the praise I gave Doan's Kidney Pills at that time."

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

SOME FASHIONS IN GOWNS.

A handsome visiting gown is shown in Burgundy red velvet, with vest of white cloth overlaid with gold applique. The white cloth collar and cuffs are threaded in gold. The skirt is cut in round lengths, side pleated and decorated with large velvet buttons.

A dainty evening gown is shown in white liberty satin, with gathered ruffles of chiffon and wine red ribbon velvet for decoration. The waist is made over a fitted lining closing at the back, and is with cut sleeves, the ruffled bertha forming very pretty sleeve caps. Smart straps of ribbon velvet form the shoulder and the waist is completed with a high shaped girdle of the silk, outlined with the ribbon trimming.

A very comfortable lounging jacket is fashioned out of wine colored eiderdown. It has a large shawl collar and deep rolling cuffs faced with satin ribbon of the same shade. Red silk frogs and loops form the fastening.

A handsome evening coat is shown in black chiffon velvet, with ivory white satin lining, faced at the front with Persian bands in delicate tones. The large, full sleeves are shirred at the wrist, and deep lace falls from the cuffs. A triple collar of the velvet stitched at the edges covers the yoke at the back.

YOUNG EXPECT TOO MUCH.

If young people were content to begin housekeeping in a humble way, there would be more marriages.

But the trouble is they want too much.

The man wants all the comforts of married life and all the luxuries of single, while the girl seems to expect her young husband to have arrived at the same stage of prosperity as her middle-aged father.

When a young man earning a moderate salary marries, he must expect to give up some of his bachelor luxuries.

And if the girl he loves is not worth more to him than his cigars, theatres, etc., he had better remain a bachelor.

As for the girl, she must learn to be content with fewer frocks and furbelows than in her girlhood days.

To make up for any deprivations they may suffer they have the joy of being together.

The wife can do just as much toward building their fortune as the husband.

Any successful self-made man will tell you he owes half his success to his wife's prudent management and economy.

And even if he is not generous enough to acknowledge it, the fact remains just the same.

The young wife will be far happier if she does not try to keep up as much style as her rich neighbor.

Many a happy home has come to ruin because the wife tried to dress and live above her husband's means.

And at the same time many a wife has lost health and youth trying to make both ends meet on a small allowance when her husband could easily afford to make her a larger one.

A good many men seem to think they have done their duty when they give their wives each week enough to supply the table needs.

Any business man knows there are dozens of unexpected expenses in business.

It is just the same in housekeeping.

If you manage to save a little one week, some totally unexpected expense occurs the next week and your savings are gone.

A wife should have enough money to keep house, dress the children and herself, and have a little over to use at her own discretion.

She is just as much interested in the future as her husband is and is not going to throw money away foolishly.

For young people just starting out in the sea of matrimony an occasional treat is a good thing. It brightens them up and keeps them from getting into a rut.

If they live simply they will always be able to save a little.

The proverbial rainy day comes once in a while to everyone, and then the savings will be a blessing.

Most women are only too glad to save and help their husbands, in every way if the latter will only explain things a little and give their wives an insight into their business affairs.

It is a shame that all women have not a solid business education. It would simplify so many things for them.

The girl who has been taught the value of money can get along on a smaller amount than the one who has never been trained to see the advantages of economy and system.

Many men who imagine they cannot afford to marry can do so very well if they are wise enough to choose prudent, sensible girls for wives.

The young man with his way to make in the world needs a wife who will be content to do her share of the work by keeping his home as comfortable as their means will afford, a cheerful helpmate and a loving companion.

Fred Dunavan, of North avenue, who has been spending his ten days' vacation in Bermuda, returned home yesterday.

PULPIT TALKS FOR SHUT-IN PLAINFIELDERS

St. Matthew 13:44.

The words of this text interest us chiefly in the curious light which they cast upon the religious life of our time. They are pertinent to the spirit of the age by way of criticism and contrast alone. The parable of the Kingdom of Heaven is splendidly applicable to the temperament of the church for the reason that the conditions of the ideal and the real are yet far apart, because there is so little of that spirit of abandonment which characterizes the tone of the parable to be found in the average religious life of the day.

Can you fancy some minister of Christ standing in the streets of Delhi or Bombay addressing himself to an Eastern audience and instituting such a comparison as the terms of this parable might warrant? Supposing he were to say of our Western civilization, "over there in America the Kingdom of Heaven is very much like a treasure which has been hidden away in a field, so that when a man comes across that treasure he conceals the fact and immediately cashes all his bonds and securities in order that he may possess himself of the property." Is it possible that he could, with any seriousness, make such a statement with regard to Western Christendom? Where and in what proportion is he to find the Christian whose appreciation of the great blessings of his faith has reached that point where he will sacrifice everything if only to lay hold upon what it has for him? Where is the joy so deep which hideth this treasure within its bosom and makes the daily sacrifice of love and devotion to the cause it has espoused?

I think perhaps we Christians might very well class ourselves as religious adventurers. We occupy the field, we bring up our lives within its borders in a somewhat complacent ignorance and quiet indifference to any possession which lies deeper in the soul's experience than we have an inclination to explore. And thus it is that our religious system of the day has largely become that of the respectable equilibrium from which a manifestation of deeper devotion has been to a great extent excluded.

Some of us have carefully studied this attitude. Evidence of the emotion or of the emotional tendencies is not to be entertained by us. Against the idea of conversion in any vital or real sense we have steadily set our faces. To speak of regeneration, or a complete change of purpose, outside of the beaten paths of the Baptismal formula will be viewed as rank heresy. To waken up suddenly or gradually to what a personal Christ means to an individual soul were out of our serious reckoning. No, we must live and move and express our spiritual being through the authorized channels of ecclesiastical propriety and perfectly good taste, and as a consequence we have reaped the fruits of this sowing. We have the machinery, the skeleton, the ordinances, and with them we have also the bland, unemotional, inoffensive and, I had almost said, soulless spirit of the average Christian life. It will perhaps be well that we should realize that you cannot dispense with the emotional even in the most matter of fact experiences of life without a serious loss to personal character. The heart of man must have free expression. Failing in a worthy object upon which to pour forth the fullness of its being the heart and all its capacities must wither and die.

Apart from us matters have been but little bettered, and the exception becomes the rule. The occasional is forced into the inevitable. Suddenness and consciousness in a conversion must be emulated if not experienced; and the individual who can relate an experience most extraordinary in all its details is to be regarded as best equipped for the favor of God. Thus it has become that that which was once, and occasionally is, a great and splendid reality, is linked with stereotyped forms and forced expressions of religionism which very closely approaches the unreal.

But behind and below all that farcial parade of religious types; behind and below the pettiness of human systems, each making effort to squeeze into one peculiar form or one peculiar channel the course of the workings of the Spirit of God, there lies this great and primary truth of which I myself become more conscious through the daily experience of an imperfect service. I speak of the great and fundamental principle, which both reason and religion alike appear to demand, the need of a complete change in the dominating forces of our lives. In other words, there is the need of a definite and permanent conversion of the governing motive of every soul before any life may express itself in the more perfect service of Jesus Christ. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit of God." That conversion of which I speak will come no doubt in different ways and express itself in varied forms, ways and forms differing as widely as the vagaries of human temperament would indicate. "The wind bloweth where it listeth and thou heareth the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth." Such is the course of the Spirit of God. But however it comes and whithersoever it goeth, behind it all is a supreme purpose controlled by the spirit of the living God. A heart full of deep devotion forces consciousness to express itself in the fullness of love's complete surrender.

I say that such a change in the dominating forces of our lives may come with a gradual development or with a suddenness of an unexpected shock. Who can tell? You may stumble upon the great treasure hidden in the field with a suddenness of the ignorant of its presence, or, after patient and continued search, you may find that which you know to exist. But the value of the treasure lies not in the mode of its discovery, but in the fact that you have it and that you realize that it is a discovery of unmistakable worth. However it comes to you, this fact remains, that until men and women have wakened up to the knowledge and appreciation of the fact that the Kingdom of Heaven is of real substantial value there can be no joy, no sacrifice, no pleasure, but rather a weariness and burdensome monotony in the whole thing. Until there comes the realization of the great enriching which it offers and which alone the Kingdom of God can provide. From any other estimate than that of personal value the price which you are paying for any share in the Kingdom of God is exorbitant, and you had better drop it. It is simply an equasion of relative values. The sum of appreciation must therefore determine the nature of our attitude to the whole realm of religious activity. If our eyes are not opened to the value of what it offers us, then any least sacrifice and any least surrender to the church is too much.

I can readily appreciate the oft-heard complaint that the church is eternally begging and that it is always a question of give, give, give. I can understand it upon the assumption that people who so complain have not yet reached the conception that the Kingdom of Heaven is a pearl of great price, for which a man might reasonably part with all that he might purchase it. But if you will seriously consider that spiritual life itself has in any way a commensurate importance with the physical existence, and if you will further believe that the needs for such a spiritual life are supplied as only they can be supplied by the Kingdom of God, then you would not complain at the price you are paying for the opportunity you enjoy.

It would appear a reasonable deduction from the terms of the parable to say that men pay the price for the thing of the most value; whether the treasure should be one of mercantile interest, of intellectual advantage, or spiritual gain. In this light the question of Sunday observance might reasonably be discussed. The question has largely been debated from the view point of the exclusive claims urged in behalf of the day itself. Apart from the debatable ground of Sabbatical enactment there stands pre-eminent the claims of the Kingdom of God upon human recognition. As a perpetual memorial of the resurrection of Jesus the church has consecrated this day as one of special Christian privileges; a day of public demonstration of loyalty, a day of intimate communion with God and fellowship with the great body of Christian people throughout the world. In view of these facts, one might be tempted to ask whether or not it be a mark of a deep and profound appreciation of what the church offers, that the whole Christian country is every now and again disturbed with an upheaval of discussion, and moved with the constant query, "What shall we do with Sunday?" Is it indeed an evidence of a very deep or of a very transient devotion that this question appears so constantly to affect the judgment of the Christian individual—"What is the limit of secular indulgence?" "May I consistently golf, or automobile, or drive, or walk, instead of conforming to the traditions of a Christian institution?" My idea is that this very attitude is a proof that our spiritual eyes need opening, and our hearts need converting. If we had but the smallest appreciation of spiritual values, that question would never arise. Or were it asked, it would answer itself.

I am not surprised that men and women stay away from the services of the church of God. I would do the same myself if I thought of the church as some people think of it. If the church is to be regarded as an institution which supplies a more or less acceptable entertainment of a spiritual sort; then I can find equally attractive and equally edifying entertainment in the sermon of stones and in the books of babbling brooks; I can find equally exhilarating music in the great psalmody of the book of nature; and certainly should be inclined to divide my time between the conflicting attractions. If your estimate of the church is that of the school of higher ethics, the platform of literary achievements, or the rostrum of Christian panegyrics, I could not advise you to depend upon the church for the supply of either. For the large percentage of our pulpit efforts will compare but meanly with the literary products of other places and other institutions. "The foolishness of preaching cannot compete—as an entertainment—with the wisdom of this world."

But if men regard the church of God as a divine institution, the ordinary channel of divine gifts, the blessed company of all faithful people, the spiritual home of which you are made a member before the dawn of consciousness, the guardian and the giver of immortal gifts to dying souls, the altar of an eternal sacrifice, in short, if you have any kind of love for Him who gave you this home and these privileges, then heaven and earth would not keep you out of the church when its doors are open.

The Sunday problem can best be solved by the recognition of one important fact, which is, that Jesus Christ supplies something that you need. Till you realize that fact all religious ordinances will continue to be an irksome duty occasionally diversified and enlivened by music and rhetoric, and not a personal recognition of a permanent gain, always eagerly and zealously sought. The difference of the estimate in which we hold the matter must always be one which results from the difference of spiritual apprehension. When you see, when you awaken, when you find, your desire will have something of that enthusiasm which "doubtless counts all things but lost for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and count them but filth, that I may win Christ and be found in Him."

There is just one other sphere in which this appreciation of Christian privileges will find its due expression—in the rights of others to have and to enjoy the same privileges with ourselves in the Kingdom of God. So long as a Christian world will continue to regard human life as a great disjointed, unrelated mass of creatures, so long as the group of Christian masters will continue to regard the group of Christian laborers as mere soulless mechanisms between whom there exists no mutual responsibility, just so long will the strained realtions of today mar and deface the character of human society. When, however, the Christian man and the Christian woman shall enter into the full appreciation of God's blessing to be found in the Kingdom of Heaven, they will be as zealously concerned in the sharing of those privileges with every creature on earth, servant or slave, as they are for their own enjoyment of those blessings. It is a marvel to many that so many Christians who are so deeply interested and concerned in keeping the Sabbath holy—for themselves—regard so lightly the keeping of the same Sabbath holy for their servants. I am not infrequently told, by no means infrequently told, by the employes, that it is impossible for them to have a share in the Christian privileges, which they would otherwise enjoy, because of their required attention to duties which purely and simply contribute to the unnecessary indulgence and idle pleasure of their employers on that day. It is a choice for them between bread and butter and the Kingdom of God, and you will not be surprised nor will you be dismayed, if in view of the narrow needs of their own household and little family, they will choose the bread and butter and risk the Kingdom of God. It is not my purpose nor intention to place myself in a position in which I venture to dictate to others who know their own business a great deal better than I, but it is entirely conformable to the duty of the Christian ministry, it is entirely incumbent upon the responsiblity a servant of Him who voiced the truth, to remind you that your business and mine, too, that our grave responsibility before God, is to see that we put no least hindrance between our servants and the due and just performance of their duty to God, and the apprehension of the privileges of their own spiritual life. Every human soul is of equal value in the eyes of Almighty God; the blessings of the church of God are such as all may claim, and you dare not and I dare not withhold the Bread of Life from those who hunger for it, through the idle interposition of our own pleasures and of our own indulgence.

What this Christian world of ours needs so sorely today is a more noble and a more lofty vision of the richness of God's grace outpoured upon the great family of human life. What we need is a deeper and more profound impression of our indebtedness to a loving Father and in that vision and in that appreciation, we shall find the necessary zeal for the service of ourselves and service of others in the great Kingdom of God set upon earth. Our prayers and our efforts must unite to enter more fully into the knowledge and love of God; to have a deeper appreciation of our Christian calling and Christian fellowship. Then shall our service to Him reach that climax of joy and rejoicing in which every sacrifice, every gift, shall be but a meager offering in return for the eternal richness so lavishly bestowed. Then shall our life in Him be one great Psalm of devotion and thanksgiving.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905. Plainfield, N. J., October 21, 1905.

Candidates of the Hall of Shame —McCall, McCurdy and Hyde.

The man who suggested that Councilman Wilson be nominated when there was a hitch over Mr. Mellick, certainly was not in touch with the political situation.

The Democrats have named a municipal ticket and are enthusiastically at work. While they are not sanguine of success they do expect to poll a big vote. The closer the contest the better it will be for the city for no government can be good which has little or no opposition. It is when both parties are represented that there is reason to expect an honest and wise administration.

In this issue will be found the usual Saturday sermon, which is intended especially for those who are unable to attend church services by reason of illness or advanced years. These pulpit talks are written at the request of The Daily Press by Plainfield clergymen. The one today was kindly contributed by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace Episcopal church. It will well repay you to read it.

A trip through the business section today would have convinced the members of Common Council that they made a mistake in having street sprinkling discontinued on October 15. Clouds of dust are just as disagreeable in October as in July, and there is no good reason why the city sprinklers should not be kept in service so long as they are needed. It would not be amiss for the street department to have one cart put at work in the business district on windy days such as these.

THE FORUM.

Trolley Extension.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Would it not be a good suggestion to make to the Public Service Corporation that it extend the trolley line from the present terminus at Netherwood to Fanwood and from there to Scotch Plains to the mountains and along Johnston's Drive to connect with the Somerset street line? In view of the purchase of land on the mountains by David Kenney and his contemplated improvement it would be a grand idea to open up the land on the Watchung mountains that are unsurpassed by any section in the State as a section for fine residence and the line would be the means of developing a section of the country that is unsurpassed for home-seekers. Fanwood on the New Jersey Central is the only town on the line between Elizabeth and Plainfield that has no trolley and connecting Scotch Plains with Fanwood would be a great convenience to commuters.

PROGRESSIVE.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The pupils of the Somerset Street school had an impromptu fire drill Thursday that even the faculty did not know was coming. Electricians doing some repair work crossed the wires and the alarm gong rang. The pupils responded quickly and left the building in record time.

A feud which started Tuesday has left Classes '08 and '09 of the Somerset Street school in a deadlock as far as meetings are concerned. On that day '09 attempted to discuss some class matters in the chapel, but they were forced to retreat by a volley of erasers and other missles hurled by '08. The next day '08 gathered for a meeting, but they were routed by '09. Neither one has gotten through a meeting and each asserts it won't allow the other to do so.

Old Glory Council, No. 62, D. of L., will initiate candidates at its meeting tonight.

WOODHULL & MARTIN'S

DEMOCRATS CITY TICKET

secure his election, adding that he realized what the Democrats were up against. However, he thought that if the Democrats would get together and work hard there might be a chance to elect the ticket, even though the party has a big majority to overcome.

Mr. Alcorn expressed the opinion that the Democrats might win out. He said that it was the first time he had ever run for office, and he was willing to do all in his power for the success of the ticket. He assured the convention that if elected to the Common Council he would do his duty.

Mr. Dilts appreciated the honor conferred upon him and said that even though the outlook for the Democrats was hopeless, that there was more than the success of the ticket at stake. He didn't care how hopeless the outlook or how badly the candidates were defeated, he was glad that a straight Democratic ticket had been put in the field, disproving the statements of a newspaper that there would not be such a ticket.

The nominee for collector congratulated the delegates for nominating such a ticket and securing such men to run for office. He considered it an honor to be on the ticket, which would result in keeping the other party on its good behavior. He said that the Republicans do bad enough things now, but if it wasn't for the Democrats no one knows what they would do. He thought the Democrats should win. The platform was one that appealed to every voter in the city and county, favoring equal taxation, municipal ownership, and eight-hour working day and other high principles.

Mr. Dilts said further that every nominee on the ticket is a gentleman, and capable of filling the position for which he was nominated. He thought the city would be far better if the Democrats were recognized in the administration by having three or four Democrats in office. He referred to the squabble among the Republicans, which he considered a disgrace to the city. He said that no reform could be expected from the Republicans, that the Democrats alone could be depended upon to bring this change about.

Mr. Schleif in speaking for the ticket said that Fred Endress had signed his acceptance as ward candidate for the Common Council from the Fourth ward and he urged every man to vote for him. He also said that ward candidates were in nomination from every ward but the First.

Mr. Reville was inclined to censure the First ward for not nominating a candidate for the Common Council. He thought this year offered an excellent opportunity to elect a Democrat from that ward. Continuing Mr. Reville said that he considered it a credit to be a Democrat in Plainfield, that the party was gaining strength every year without the aid of money or a barrel of whiskey. He declared that the intelligent voters are found among the Democrats, and that instead of the voting machine being a hindrance, it is a good thing for the reason that Democrats walk up to it and vote intelligently, while the Republicans are continually instructing the purchasable vote. He said that the illiterate and unintelligent voters are to be found in the Republican party.

After the speech-making and adjournment, those candidates present signed their acceptance, and it is expected that the others will do so today.

The delegates to the convention were as follows:

First ward—V. L. Frazee, George H. Alcorn, J. P. Owens. Second ward—Joseph Harrigan, J. F. Connolly, J. V. F. Dilts. Third ward—Fred Willhaussen, F. J. Shattle. Fourth ward—J. F. Casey, J. G. Hurlburt, J. F. McCarthy, P. J. Reville and Stephen H. Schleif.

Feast of Tabernacles.

Succoth, or the feast of the tabernacles, the last of the cycle of holy days and festivals of the Jewish church, ends today. The feast began October 14. In the orthodox synagogue the day after the conclusion of Succoth is called Simchath Torah, or rejoicing of the law. It is a day of merry making in the synagogue. A special feature of the service is the completion and beginning of the reading of the Pentateuch, or the five books of the law. The reading consumes a year. On Simchath Torah the last two verses of Deuteronomy and the first verses of Genesis are read. In the reformed synagogues this day is no longer observer, except in the religious schools.

Don't Like New Schedule.

The residents of Somerville and Bound Brook are making strenuous objections to the new trolley schedule for the operation of cars between Somerville, Bound Brook and New Brunswick, claiming that it works a great inconvenience to the working class of people who have to reach their work at a certain hour in the morning.

Instruction to Voters.

A voting machine has been located in borough fire headquarters, where instructions in the use of it will be given daily until election day.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Services at the Baptist church tomorrow at 10:30 and 7:45, preaching by the pastor; Sunday-school at 11:45; Christian Endeavor meeting at 7 p. m., leader, H. J. Manning.

Melvin Teeple and family moved into Mrs. L. Ayers' house yesterday. Mr. Teeple's business is in the Plainfield Pond Machine Tool Works.

Miss Maude Smith is nursing Miss Brown, of Plainfield, who was seriously injured yesterday in the explosion.

Mrs. Mary Thickstun, after spending several weeks visiting friends, has returned home.

Additional suburban news on page two.

COURT IS LENIENT WITH ILLINGSWORTH

BOY CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGETER ALLOWED TO PLEAD TO ASSAULT.

In the Somerset Court, at Somerville, Harry Illingworth, fifteen years old, who was indicted on a charge of manslaughter, retracted yesterday his former plea of not guilty and, with the consent of Prosecutor Reger and Judge Schenck pleaded guilty to assault. The Court the suspended sentence and placed the boy in charge of the probation officer for two years.

Illingworth quarrelled some months ago with a school chum, Jacob Jakel, at Raritan, and threw a stone at him. The stone hit Jakel's sister, Katie, five years old, inflicting a wound from the effects of which she died. It was the general belief that the killing was accidental.

ROBERT ABBOTT IN THE FINALS

Will Meet Ellis Knowles for Intercollegiate Golf Championship.

Yale has made a clean sweep in this year's intercollegiate golf championship tournament. Following the success of the blue in the team match, Ellis Knowles and Robert Abbott, both of Yale, won their way to the final round of the individual championship over the links of the Garden City Golf Club.

When Abbott finished 3 up on Percival Gilbert, Harvard's remaining hope vanished. The winner played consistent golf, but was also a trifle lucky; notably while playing the eleventh hole. A sliced drive left him in the rough and two more shots found him some forty yeards from the pin, just off the edge of the green. From there he holes out with his mashie for a 4. He scored better in the morning against Ralph Peters, of Princeton, whom he defeated by 3 up and 1 to play. The winner made a 78, 39 each way, as against 83 for Peters.

Even more surprising was the defeat of Dwight Partridge, the Yale freshman, by Knowles, by 4 up and 2 to play. Up to this tournament the former was never regarded as being in the same class with Partridge, in fact he was not considered as having even an outside chance when the students gathered early in the week. Now every one admits he stands an equal chance of defeating Abbott for the title today.

Daring Station Robbery.

A daring robbery was committed yesterday at the New Jersey Central Railroad station at Bound Brook. Fred Crouse, the ticket agent, on his return from luncheon found his office door open, and an investigation showed that the money drawer had been robbed of over $100 in bills. The thief left behind about $50 in silver. Crouse says he noticed several men in the waiting-room when he left for his noonday meal, but thought nothing of it, as there are always passengers at the station waiting for trains, which are frequent.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Decker, of West End avenue, will leave today for Staten Island, where they will visit for a few days.

CENTRAL BOWLING LEAGUE ORGANIZED

PARK CLUB ONE OF THE SIX TO COMPLETE FOR PRIZES.

There will be only six clubs in the Central Journal Bowling League this season, the seventh club, the Jersey City organization, withdrawing. A communication to that effect was received at the meeting of the league representatives held at the Westfield Club on Thursday night. The clubs forming the league this year include the Park Club, of North Plainfield; Newark Bay, of Bayonne; Elizabeth Club, Roselle Casino, Cranford Casino and Westfield Club.

A schedule committee, comprising F. O. Ball, of the Park Club; Charles G. Black, of Newark Bay Club, and H. R. Foster, of the Westfield Club, was appointed to immediately arrange a schedule of thirty games, each team to play three games at home and three away.

The league adopted the Brunswick-Balke A. B. C. pin, to be used at all games, and not to be used by the several clubs on other than league nights. S. C. Greves, of Roselle Casino, was re-elected president, and Aubrey B. Smith, of the Westfield Club, secretary-treasurer.

Besides the Journal trophy, a first team prize of $20 value is to be given, and a second team prize valued at $10. A first individual prize of the value of $15, second valued at $10, and third valued at $5. An individual high score prize valued at 15 is also to be awarded.

Twenty-four games must be rolled to qualify for individual prizes, and of this number three games must be the last three of the schedule. The schedule committee will meet soon and prepare the schedule. It is proposed to start the games about the middle of November.

AMUSEMENTS.

Archie L. Snepard's Great Eastern Company, the grandest and costliest exhibition of moving pictures in the world, will, owing to the acclamations of praise received on its former New England tours, visit us once again, presenting an entirely new and original programme, which for subjects of great variety and priceless value stand alone on the pinnacle its own worth has built, and towers over everything of its kind which offers in lame competition anything in the way of moving pictures. This is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

Richard Carle is surely up-to-date with his new farcical opera, "The Mayor of Tokio," which will be given at the New Plainfield theatre rFiday night. In his piece Mr. Carle has mixed up a number of Japanese with a Russian spy, who is ever on the point of throwing a deadly bomb, much to the discomfiture of his immediate neighbors. In Chicago, where "The Mayor of Tokio" was given its first production, playgoers liked it so well that it enjoyed a run of 110 performances and might still be playing there, were it not for the intervention of bookings which previously had been made for other cities. Among the clever company of players who will appear in support of Mr. Carle are Fred Frear, Sylvain Langlois, William Rock, J. A. Wellerstedt, Jo Smith Marba, Jess Caine, William H. Platt, Hortense Mazurette, Caecilia Rhode, Emma Janvier, Minerva Courtney, Madge Vincent, Ethel Lloyd, Ada Mitchell, Birdyne Zuber and the "Peanut Ballet," eight clever dancers who have made one of the sensational hits of the play. In addition there is a large chorus which contains girls who are not only pretty but can sing.

Miss Grace George, who on Thursday, October 26, will appear at the New Plainfield theatre in a dramatization of 'The Marriage of William Ashe," has as ready a wit as Mrs. Ward's own "heroine, "Lady Kitty," whose role she plays. Miss George is a devout Catholic and often takes to church members of her company who are not of her faith. One of these tried to argue that the use of the holy water might become injurious in carrying disease—an idea discounted at once by Miss George "at least" said she "it would be a holy disease like St. Vitus Dance."

James K. Hackett and Mary Mannering are now in the fourth week of their great success, "The Walls of Jericho," at the Savoy Theatre. This great drama, a latter day society play, is by an Englishman, Alfred Sutro, and was one of the greatest of English successes, as it ran for a two years' season, at the Garrick theatre, London, with Arthur Bourchier and Irene VanBrough in the leading roles. This London success was easily duplicated by James K. Hackett and Mary Mannering upon its American production at the Savoy theatre a few weeks ago, and from its present success it bids fair to run as long in this country as it did in England. Mr. Hackett, always noted for managerial sagacity, has not only made the production of this play the most notable one of his artistic career but for his supporting company he has gathered the best of ability and in its strength, it easily compares with the best of companies in New York. During the present Hackett-Mannering co-star engagement at the Savoy theatre, matinees will be given on Thursdays and Saturdays of each week and also upon all special holidays.

REUNION OF OLD VETS.

Survivors of the Eleventh N. J. Vols. to Meet at Trenton Next Week.

The annual reunion of the Eleventh Regiment, New Jersey Veteran Volunteer Association, will be held in the rooms of Aaron Wilkes Post, No. 23, G. A. R., Broad street, Trenton, on Friday, October 27, which is the day of the anniversary of the battle of Boydton Plank Road, sometimes called by the boys the "Bull Pen," October 27, 1864.

The Eleventh Regiment played a conspicuous part in this battle, General McAllister, the old regimental commander, who commanded the brigade during this engagement, received honorable mention by General Grant, for his brilliant work, thereby saving the day for the Union army.

Petition has been made to Governor Stokes to allow the five stands of colors which this regiment carried through the war, to be taken out of the glass cases in the State Capitol and photographed with those who attend the reunion, in front of the State House. Bishop W. Mains, of the Soldiers' Home, Kearney, is secretary of the association.

Divorce for Mrs. Hawkey.

Vice Chancellor Pitney at Newark yesterday granted a divorce to Lillian M. Hawkey, of that city, from her husband, John J. Hawkey, on the grounds of desertion. Hawkey is now a resident of Trenton. The couple were married in Newark. Mrs. Hawkey told a pathetic story and her testimony revealed other causes than mere desertion. The couple separated less than three months after their marriage. During the taking of testimony the Vice Chancellor requested all the court room, except counsel and the immediate parties to the suit, to leave.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

J. Hervey Doane's stock of jewelry is one of the best and he guarantees every article to give satisfaction.

Persons in search of first class property, either to purchase or lease, should consult W. S. Terhune & Son, of North avenue.

The Hotel Waldorf, on East Front street, has superior accommodations for either permanent or transient guests. The rates are moderate.

The firm of Charles Conover & Company, of Elmwood place, has the reputation for doing the best work. Its stock of wall papers is the best.

Charles Stranzenbach's market, on Watchung avenue, is the place to go for the best Jersey beef, pork and poultry. Orders may be sent by telephone and they will be delieverd to any part of the city.

After you have once started a bank account it is surprising how easy it is to add to it. The City National Bank has a savings department that invites your account. Better start right away and have something for a rainy day.

If you have the plans ready for the new house you intend to have built, let W. H. Brokaw, of West Fourth street, give you estimates. He has haw many years' experience and can furnish references from dozens of Plainfield people.

Need anything in the way of watches, clocks, jewelry or ornamental ware? If so, stop at L. Moraller & Sons' store on Park avenue. They have a large stock selected especially for the local trade. They also do expert repairing.

Every style of shoe, of the best make, and lowest price, can be had at Morris Abrams' store, on West Front street. His stock is one of the largest in the State and he prides himself on the fact that he can fit any pair of feet that walks into his store.

The average person wants the best, and that is why so many people patronize Roth & Co., the East Front street butchers. This firm buys only the best meats and the prices are very low when the quality is considered. Fresh fish and game in season can be had at this up-to-date market.

The stock of hardware and builders' materials at the H. E. Galye Hardware Company store is not only large and complete, but it represents the best in the market. Kitchen utensils of every description can be had at any time. The firm also handles a superior line of ranges and heating stoves at right prices.

Among the many distinctive features about the men's clothing at M. Weinberger's store in West Front street are fit, workmanship, quality of the goods and the price. They all combine to make the clothing very desirable. Mr. Weinberger has the reputation for fair dealing and you will make no mistake in trading there. The custom tailoring department is up to date in every respect.

CANNON LIED?

Philadelphia Mormons Denounce Former Senator.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—Former United States Senator Frank J. Cannon, of Utah, was surrounded and denounced by a party of Philadelphia Mormons at the close of his address upon Mormonism in the North Broad Street Presbyterian church Wednesday night.

At the close of the address and after most of the audience had left the Mormons made their attack upon Mr. Cannon. A pretty and fashionably gowned young woman was the leader in the attack.

"You know, Senator Cannon, you lied when you made that speech," she cried, shaking her finger in his face.

The action of the Mormons became so threatening that the sexton of the church was about to use force in quelling the disturbance when an elder of the Mormon faith induced the crowd to disperse.

Wouldn't Ride in Smoky Car.

Creston, Ia., Oct. 21.—Because it smelled of tobacco smoke one of the Pullmans on the White Ribbon special, on which the delegates are traveling to the national meeting of Women's Christian Temperance Unions at Los Angeles, was cut out of the train at this place and left on the side track. Another Pullman was substituted. Shortly after the train left Chicago Wednesday some of the passengers in that particular car began to sniff and make wry faces. They finally decided that either some delegate was smoking cigarettes or that some mere man had been making clouds of smoke in the car during the day. The conductor finally quieted the ladies by promising a new car.

Fancy Braids in Parisian Headwear.

Chenille and other fancy braid will certainly be used this winter, but more for making toques than hats. Chenille tissue is also utilized to cover small hats and toques and to make soft beret crowns. A very pretty small hat has one of these crowns built of crimson chenille tissue and velvet brim to match and for trimming some large velvet anemones. In other models the chenille tissue is used for the tnre shape interwoven with ribbons.—The October Millinery Trade Review.

Mrs. Ruliff Swackhamer, of the borough, who has been visiting relatives at Whitehouse, has returned home.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

Such was the story of Ladue's escape from within the union lines. But the story that agitated at least three men was that of Rosalie Chilton. Why should she have essayed her perilous masquerade? Why should she have left her brother and, in the dress of a confederate officer, before the last of the yankees were clear of the plateau, before Stuart's fellows were sure of the Sudley road—why should she have dared that night dash down to the pike? Even in his battered condition Fred Benton found himself pondering over the problem, for he had heard her father urging her to explain—had heard her implore that father not to press the question now.

CHAPTER IX.

ESCAPE POSSIBLE.

It is by no means a far cry from Manassas to Charlottesville as one rides the swift flight in the cosey parlor car of to-day, but it was a different thing in '61, bumping, bouncing, behind some wheezy old wood-burner, in ram-shackle open platform car; yet it was almost heavenly, after two days' tossing and tumbling over the ruts of the Virginia roadways.

It was a soft spring morning that saw the genial doctor's little party entrained at the Rappahannock. Scores of sympathetic fellows in confederate gray surrounded the car to which Lieut. Chilton was borne and into which Fred Benton, his arm in a sling and his head still in bandages, was carefully guided. For reasons not then made known to his Yankee patient, the doctor persisted in treating his case as far more serious than conditions seemed to warrant. Constantly he strove to impress upon Benton the necessity of lying still and speaking as little as possible. Rosalie, too, was forever holding up a tapering finger in warning and pursing her soft, rosy lips in very significant "hush" when he ventured to ask questions or show a disposition to stir. Otherwise she had but little to say to him, and our wounded Badger boy had enjoyed the doubtful bliss of watching her hour after hour during the long wait at the Junction, hanging about her suffering brother, or with softly flushing cheek, talking in low, eager tone to Paul Ladue, whose melancholy eyes fairly brightened. It had been settled that he should leave them at Gordonville and return to the front, but at the Rappahannock his own colonel boarded the train and, noticing at once how ill and worn he looked, talked with him kindly, sympathetically, awhile, and then went off to see their division general, soon to be so famous as a corps commander. In ten minutes they were both there, the one tall, martial, and with his long, flowing beard looking more like a hero of Norseland or warrior of Aiminius than a soldier of the cavalier south. Even then, before the wrinkles and crows' feet had dug deep about the outer corners of Longstreet's eyes, queer little lines would play about them and his bearded lips when humorous fancy struck him, and kindly humor seemed never to be far from that genial face until the bitter day that cost him Pickett's grand and devoted division in Hancock's front at Gettysburg.

"I looked to see you in uniform, Miss Chilton," said he, "and I have yet to learn by what authority you have discarded the gray. And this, I believe, is the young gentleman you were personating?" whereat he shook hands very kindly with the shrinking subaltern and thought how very near alike they were in stature. "Colonel Moore tells me you are far too ill to resume duty just yet, Mr. Ladue, so I am going to take the responsibility of bidding you go back to Charlottesville for a week of Miss Chilton's care. Ah, doctor, I'm glad to see you." And then two very distinguished Virginians were shaking hands; but all Fred Benton could see of it was the backs of subordinate officers clustered about him. They went presently and spoke with young Chilton lying on his mattress along the tops of the seats, then came straight to the lonely officer—the only one in blue, reclining toward the rear end of the long vehicle, the object of much silent curiosity but no intrusion whatsoever, and to the prisoner Longstreet spoke as courteously as to the princess holding her little court in mid car, bidding him be of good cheer.

"Dr. Chilton has told us, sir, of your protecting him from indignity at Centreville, and of all the kindness you did him that night, resulting in your capture. We cannot afford," and here the blue-gray eyes twinkled and the half-hidden lips twitched whimsically, "to let so good a soldier get right back to business. Neither can we send so chivalric a foe to Libby—at least so long as he is wounded as you are. Therefore, Dr. Chilton, you will see to his having hospital accommodations, and now, we must have a suitable guard." And here the tall general straightened up, studied earnestly the circle of soldier faces about him until the twinkling eyes rested on the very sweet and rosy features of the one damsel present. Then briefly and in official tone, he finished, "Miss Chilton, I appoint you, until further orders, custodian of Lieut. and Aide-de-Camp Benton, of the federal army."

Verily, as Benton wrote at the time, these were the halcyon days of the war, before ever it had become the grim and deadly earnest they were to know so bitterly and so very soon. The car was cleared of all save passengers, the train was started before he could find words with which to thank the courtly southern general, and the doctor, bending over him, was saying, "You must not discredit my repoht, suh, by looking so much alive as you do at this moment. I represented your case, suh, as one requiring constant attention, otherwise you might have had to go to Richmond?"

And so for a day or two these pleasantries—these courtesies of war prevailed. Then all of Johnston's men remaining north of the Rappahannock came drifting in before a new forward move of the union force along the railway. Howard's strong division of Sumner's corps swept out in reconnaissance, even as the bulk of McClellan's army was being directed on Alexandria for the now inevitable swing to the Peninsula between the York and the James—full details of the gathering of every kind of bay and river craft reaching Johnston quite as speedily as they did New York. So that skilled soldier withdrew still further to the line of the Rapidan where he could be nearer Richmond in case of need.

Then when Banks should have come down from the Shenandoah and "covered" Washington, up sprang that restless, watchful, prayerful Virginia leader, Jackson, and so stirred the situation in the valleys that Banks and his men had to hurry back through the mountain passes, and further delays and complications arose before April set in and McClellan could sail for Fortress Monroe, and in all the bustle and excitement, the rumors flying hither and yon, the marching to and fro of cavalry and foot-footed infantry, it happened that for full a fortnight Dr. Chilton and his patients, nurse, guard and all, had settled down to something like peace and physical comfort at cozy, homelike old Charlottesville, and no man sought seriously to hamper or disturb them. From Gainesville Dr. Chilton had penned a letter to be sent through the lines, notifying the commanding general of the union force along Bull Run of Benton's capture after gallant effort to cut his way through, in the course of which he was quite painfully though not dangerously wounded—that he was in good hands and would be well cared for, and this news—a great relief—was promptly transmitted to Fred's general and by him telegraphed to the far western home.

On a well-made stretcher lay the central figure of household and local interest, Lieut. Jack Chilton, slowly but surely gaining strength and spirits with every day. And who wouldn't under similar influences?—for two fair young daughters of the old commonwealth vied with each other in assiduous effort to "entertain" the trooper invalid. Lovely were they both, these cousins of the blood, and most carefully had they been chosen for this special duty by their acknowledged leader, chief of the little clan of kinswomen. Brilliant, beautiful and daring, who of their brave order could lay claim to leadership so long as Rosalie cared to hold it? They followed and obeyed her eagerly, loyally, though in years she was but 18, and five, at least, of the sacred band were her seniors. Ever since the days of short dresses, braids and pinafores, she had been dominant among them. Tomboy had they called Rosalie at ten, for she could ride any horse within miles of Charlottesville, and preferred walking stilts, flying kites or running races to the customary allurements of girlhood. She had one envy, one champion, one idol—her brother, barely two years her senior—and apparently but one sorrow—that she could not do everything that Jack could, and not for lack of trying.

Then as they grew older, and other girls' brothers began showing hitherto unsuspected fondness for Jack's society, and coming to see him at all hours of the day, and other girls themselves began making eyes at Jack, her indifference to the first and her fury at the second were comical to see. And then, when the war came on and Virginia sprang to arms and Jack to saddle and his first commission in Jeb Stuart's famous First cavalry, she was all afire with fervor and patriotism on the one hand and of mad jealousy of Maud Pelham on the other, for on Maud had Jack cast favoring eyes.

And so, when she brought her brother home to nurse and pet and coddle to her heart's content, while she was all soothing sweetness on the side that showed to him, she fairly bristled on the other—that which all well-favored feminine callers, inquirers and friends must needs encounter when they asked to see him. She established a regular roster book and told off the list of the sacred band—her henchwomen, into four "reliefs" of two girls each—one relief only to be on duty each day and no outsiders to be admitted. Needless to say Maud Pelham was not of the elect, and Jack speedily showed he wished it were otherwise.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE.

Woman's Club, of Orange, Will Hold Simple Ceremony.

The ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new clubhouse of the Women's Club, of Orange, will take place next Wednesday, at 11 o'clock. The programme will be brief, with prayer by Dr. J. M. Ludlow. Mrs. Clara Ropes Prescott, one of the charter members, will read a history of the club from its start in 1873, after which the stone will be laid by Mrs. Stewart Hartshorn, president of the club, and Mrs. Albert O. Field, president of the Realty Company, the organization which, by its devoted perseverance and energy, has succeeded in making the building an accomplished fact.

The dates, 1872-1905, will be carved on one side of the stone, the club monogram on the other, and the usual records will be placed in the box to be laid with the stone. The Mayors of East Orange and Orange, and the presidents of South Orange and West Orange, will be among those invited to the platform.

ANOTHER STOCK EXCHANGE.

Concern with $125,000 Capital Stock Files Papers.

Another New Jersey stock exchange, organized, it is understood, for the purpose of encouraging New Yorkers to do business in this State, so as to escape the transfer tax law of the Empire State, had its articles of incorporation placed on record today in the County Clerk's office. It is set forth that its objects are to purchase and sell all kinds of stocks and bonds, to act as a clearing house for securities dealt in by members of the exchange and to carry out contracts of all kinds.

There is an authorized capital stock of $125,000, divided into 1,250 shares of usual par value of $100 each, and $1,000 has been paid up. Miguel E. de Aguers, Alan R. Hawley and Joaquin W. de Aguers are the incorporators, and the New Jersey Registration and Trust Company of East Orange is named as the local agent.

The first concern of the same name filed its papers last May.

ROOSEVELT IN A NEW LIGHT.

"Best Advertiser in the World," Says Charles Emory Smith.

"Theodore Roosevelt is the best advertiser in the world," said former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith Wednesday night at the banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria that concluded the session of the convention of the International Advertising Association.

"Not because he tries to advertise," said Mr. Smith, "but because he has the best thing. Whether it is in killing bears, or playing tennis, or in politics, or diplomacy, he always choses the right time and the right place, and comprehends public and international questions with broadness of vision."

Among other speakers at the banquet were Job E. Hedges, J. Hamilton Lewis, Samuel L. Powers, of Boston, and John McNaugh, of San Francisco. The advertising men from all parts of the country have been in session three days.

MUSICIAN MISSING.

Disappeared After Leading Orchestra at a Reception.

William H. Bush, a well-known musician, of Montclair, has been missing from his home, No. 110 South Fullerton avenue, since last Friday. He led an orchestra at a reception Thursday night, and was seen at 5 a. m. the following day getting on a trolley car bound for Newark.

Mrs. Bush reported his absence to the Montclair police, and Detective Edward Reilly has searched Newark and surrounding towns for the missing man without result. There is no reason why Bush should have left home, as his family relations were harmonious. He is five feet five inches tall, of dark complexion and 42 years old.

She Smuggled in $22,000 Necklace.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Treasury agents have just recovered $13,000 duty on a $22,000 diamond necklace smuggled into the country by a woman well known in New York society, but whose name is kept secret. They learned that she had purchased the jewels in Europe, but too late to catch her, as she came in with them. They went at once to her residence, but she had gone to Philadelphia. They followed her, only to chase her through Chicago and Boston and back to New York before they caught her in a theatre in that city. She begged that she be not arrested, saying that the following morning she would give up the necklace. Instead of doing so her attorney appeared and handed over the $13,000.

Dover Lineman Falls from Tree.

Dover, Oct. 21.—John K. S. Bell, a lineman employed by the Dover Electric Light Company, was seriously injured Tuesday afternoon by a fall from a tree on Randolph avenue, where he was working with a gang stringing wires. Bell fell about thirty feet, causing a hemorrhage from the lungs and cutting his elbow so that it was necessary to sew up the gashes. He was badly bruised about the body. Dr. M. F. O'Shea attended him and then took him to his home on Bergen street.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The Hobokens will play the Royal Giants at St. George's Cricket Grounds tomorrow.

Manager McGraw says that with the possible exception of one or two players, he expects to present this year's lineup next season.

This has been one of the most successful seasons for Frank Burke, of the Elizabethport Stars. The patronage has been unusually large and the majority of games very satisfactory.

The fans of Philadelphia are planning to give the Athletics a big reception. There will be a parade with a band of music, to be followed by a banquet. The team in addition to other money will receive $1,000 from the sale of souvenir cards containing photos of the players and a sketch of each one.

Considering the fine showing made this year by "Phil." Smith, the Plainfield High School pitcher, it is quite likely that he will be found in fast company within a few years. While he remains in school he will be an important factor in its games. He is by far the best pitcher the High School has had in several years.

FOOTBALL.

The Plainfield High School eleven is exceptionally strong this year and the prospects of a fine showing are good.

North Plainfield High School has during the past few years lacked a football team of proper weight to make a good showing, but this year the prospects are better.

The local games in football scheduled for today are as follows: Plainfield High School against Cranford High School at Cranford; Leals against Morristown Academy at Morristown, and Alis against Dunellen.

Aside from the interest in the local football games, there is probably not a city in the State where so much interest is shown in the big college games as in Plainfield. There are a host of people here who have friends playing on college elevens.

Meyer Remanded.

Ferdinand Meyer, charged with a long string of bicycle thefts, was remanded until night by Justice Mosher last evening. Meyer still refuses to make a statement. George Johnston, of Scotch Plains, has taken an interest in the young man's case, and will see that he has legal advice.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL TAKES SWEET REVENGE

DEFEATS CRANFORD HIGH HIGH SCHOOL BY A SCORE OF 45 TO 0.

The Plainfield High School eleven turned the tables on Cranford High School team today in a decisive manner, by defeating its opponents by a score of 45 to 0. During the past two years Cranford has defeated Plainfield by big scores, but this year the local team took revenge. The feature of the game was the playing of all three backs for Plainfield who hit the line and ran the ends to perfection. Loizeaux and Martin registered runs of 30 and 40 years each respectively. Cranford never made first down against the home team during the whole game.

The best playing for Cranford was done by Daggett and Wagstaf, but on the whole Cranford line never held the heavy onslaught of the Plainfield backs. Stuart Freeman, the star fullback for Plainfield, was not in the lineup. Plainfield outweighed Cranford by as much this year, as the latter has outweighed the locals in past seasons. Today's game serves as good preparation for the Plainfield team for the hard games of next week, when Westfield and Perth Amboy will visit the local gridiron, and for Leal's game on Election Day. The score:

Plainfield.		Cranford.
Leggett		Condert
	Centre.
Gideon Fountain		Priff
	Right Guard.
Todd		See
	Right Tackle.
Mahaffey		Cooper
	Right End.

Touchdowns—Douglass, 3; Mahaffey, 1; Martin, 2; Loizeaux, 2. Goals from touchdowns — Flanders, 3; Douglass, 2.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Noah Dove encampment held a lively meeting Thursday night in spite of the rain. Three candidates were put through two degrees.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will act as host for several visiting delegations from Bayonne, Bound Brook, Scotch Plains and other places. An entertainment and smoker will mark the gathering.

Governor Stokes Coming.

Governor Stokes is to address a meeting in Saengerbund Hall in the interest of Joseph Frelinghuysen on Wednesday night, November 1. On the same evening he will speak in this city in behalf of Ernest R. Ackerman. Messrs. Frelinghuysen and Ackerman are Republican candidates for State Senator.

Miss L. Walduck has returned from Asbury Park, where she spent the summer, and is now again living at the Truell Inn.

—If you want anything, advertise in The Daily Press.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Campaign Will Open with Big Mass Meeting at the Theatre.

Secretary William Newcorn, of the Republican city committee, announced plans for the first rally of the campaign this morning. The list of speakers is an imposing one.

The meeting will be held at the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night, November 1. It is expected to be the biggest thing of its kind since the days of the old Music Hall meetings.

Speeches by Governor Stokes, Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler are on the programme. All the candidates will be present. E. R. Ackerman, the Senatorial candidate, will speak, and it is hoped to have former Governor Foster M. Voorhees make an address also.

Before the meeting a big brass band will head a parade about town.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The foreign mission offering will be taken up at the Congregational church tomorrow.

The Holy Cross Sunday school will reopen tomorrow at 9:30 after the summer vacation.

EPWORTHIAN RALLY.

Successful Affair of First M. E. Society.

The autumnal rally of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church was held in Vincent chapel last night and was a great success, bringing together a majority of the members and their friends. The chapel was elaborately decorated with corn stalks, pumpkins and other autumnal foliage. The social committee purposely omitted a set programme, intending that the affair should be purely social.

The time was spent in playing games of all kinds, and by way of diversion the Epworthians enjoyed popping corn and eating big red apples. Miss Edna French and Miss Huber were in charge of the affair, arranging the details.

Children of Mary Entertain.

The Children of Mary of St. Mary's church gave the first of a series of social affairs in the school hall last night. Recitations were given by W. J. Romaine and Walter Sherwin and vocal solos by the Misses Anna Daley, Julia Day and Julia Keeley. Dancing was afterward enjoyed until midnight. The arrangements were in charge of a committee of which Miss Mary Mercier was chairman.

ENTHUSIASM HYPNOTISM

tion of attention, each person is off guard as to his individuality, the central attitude toward life disappears, and the psychological crowd is "suggestible"—capable of receiving suggestions.

The lecturer told of an experiment made by a psychologist in which a young man was hypnotized and told that when a person entered the room he would rise, strike a match and light the gas. Then he was awakened from his hypnosis and the subject and hypnotist conversed together. The subject had no recollection of anything that had been told him. But that minute that a person entered the room he arose and lighted the gas, although the room was already lighted. When asked why he did it he sheepishly said he did not know, but that the idea just came into his mind to do it. A second and a third time the impression came to him when persons entered the room.

This, Professor Vincent explained, is supposed to be the lower self asserting itself over the highest self of the dead personality. He then elaborated on the arts of the spellbinder, telling how the patent medicine vender on the street corner describes certain symptoms until thirty out of fifty men in his audience will put their hands to their backs to feel the pain. "I've done it myself," said Professor Vincent.

The political meeting was again described, and how the spellbinder works on his audience, mingling anecdote with argument, and driving home the argument he is making without seeming to do so. The next day the same ideas occur to the man who was in the audience, and he thinks he thought it out himself.

In closing, Professor Vincent said that the influence of the average crowd was downward and not upward, and that the people who accomplish things in the world, and who work for the world's advancement, are those who resist the mind of the mob and refuse to act with it.

GOV. UTTER RENOMINATED.

Former Plainfielder Again Chosen for Office by Republicans.

George H. Utter, formerly of this city, now serving Rhode Island as Governor, has been renominated by the Republicans for a second term. Governor Utter is well-known here, where he has visited a number of times. He is related by marriage to Prof. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools.

Prior to becoming the executive of Rhode Island, Governor Utter was associated with "The Westerly Sun," and he still has an interest in that paper. His first time has given entire satisfaction and it is predicted that he will be re-elected.

Colonel Pavey Leaves.

Colonel Darwin C. Pavey, of the Dunellen Call editorial staff, has given up newspaper work for a time on account of ill-health. During his residence in Dunellen Colonel Pavey has done special work for New York and New England papers, and he has been very busy in consequence. After a short rest Colonel Pavey will take the editorship of the Republican, in his native city, Rome, N. Y., a position he held many years ago. Colonel Pavey is a newspaper man of the old school, and has made many friends in Dunellen through his many admirable qualities as a man and as a writer.

BAPTISTS IN CONVENTION

Three Days' Session of Denomination in New Jersey Begins Today.

PROGRAMME IN FULL

Begins This Afternoon in Central Baptist Church—Plainfielders Among the 250 Delegates.

The Baptist State convention commenced today in the Central Baptist church, East Jersey street, Elizabeth. There are 250 delegates, including representatives of the First and Park Avenue Baptist churches in Plainfield.

The association will be in session three days, beginning this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. This will be the eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Pastors' Conference. The Rev. Dr. John W. Lyell, of Camden, will preside, an dthe programme will be:

2:30—Devotional services, Rev. J. V. Ellson; 2:40—Reading of minutes and appointment of committees; 2:45—"Ministerial Ruts—How to Avoid Them," Rev. J. M. Stifler; 3:10—Discussion; 3:30—"Some Recent Studies in the Psychology of Religion," Prof. E. E. Ayres; 4:00—Discussion; 4:15—Business; 4:25—Offering to meet current expenses; 4:30—"Have You Accepted the Holy Spirit?" Rev. Kittredge Wheeler; 5:00—Adjournment.

This evening the fifteenth anniversary of the Baptist Young People's Union will be held. The Rev. William W. Barker, of Phillipsburg, president of the State B. Y. P. U., will be in charge. A song service at 7:30 will be followed by the reports of officers. President Barker will deliver a fifteen-minute address on "Retrospect and Prospect." The Rev. Dr. B. L. Whitman, of Philadelphia, a widely known speaker, will make an address on "Lost Christian Arts and Their Recovery." An offering will be taken and the session will close with a devotional service. The associational vice-president of the State B. Y. P. U. for the East district is the Rev. J. V. Ellson, of Elizabeth.

Tomorrow will be given up to the seventy-sixth anniversary of the Missionary convention. Edward J. Brockett, of East Orange, president of the Baptist State convention, will preside. An address of welcome will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, of the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, to which a response will be delivered by Mr. Brockett. A number of reports will be presented. An address on "Denominational Interests" will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. T. M. Eastwood, of Burlington. The obituary report will be read by the Rev. Albert Foster, pastor of the Roseville Baptist church, who is chairman of the obituary committee. Rev. D. G. Garrabrant will present his report as treasurer.

An address on "Christian Stewardship" will be given by the Rev. A. B. Sears, of New Brunswick.

Most of the afternoon session will be taken up with the reading of the annual report of Rev. Delavan De Wolf, of Newark, for fifteen years corresponding secretary and superintendent of missions. Rev. Frank A. Smith, of Haddonfield, will speak on "Mission Fields at Our Own Doors." This will be followed by a discussion of the report by appointed and voluntary speakers. Among the appointed speakers are Rev. Judson Conklin, of Trenton; Rev. Johnson L. Miner, of New Brunswick; A. W. Wishart and R. H. Johnson.

The election officers for the Missionary convention will be an important feature of this session.

Tomorrow evening the subject of missions will be continued. A praise service led by Gorrell Puick will be held at 7:30 o'clock, and at 7:45 there will be stereopticon views illustrating a lecture on "Foreign Missions at Home." The Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, of the North Orange Baptist church, will make the address, taking as his theme "Eagle Rock."

The morning and afternoon of Wednesday, the closing day of the convention, will be the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Education Society. Rev. Dr. O. P. Eaches, of Hightstown, will preside.

The programme for the morning session will be: 9:30—Singing and devotional service; 9:45—President's address; 10:00—Appointment of committees; report of the board; report of the treasurer, L. B. Hartman; 10:15—Address, "Does the Ministry Offer Educated Young Men Greater Opportunities than Other Callings?" T. M. Eastwood; 10:40—Singing; 10:45—Address, "How Far Have Modren Conditions Modified the Conventional Type of Minister?" E. A. Woods; discussion; 11:00—Joint session, with annual sermon by the Rev. A. S. Allyn. The afternoon

S. P. T. Wilbur,

Mr. Wilbur is the Republican candidate for freeholder. He is a former member of the Common Council and has been an active leader in local politics for a number of years. Mr. Wilbur is prominent in the Elks and other fraternal orders. The vacancy was caused by the death of Capt. J. F. Hubbard, director of the board.

FANWOOD VOLUNTEERS HOLD A CELEBRATION

FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED WITH ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE.

The Fanwood fire company celebrated its fifteenth anniversary Saturday night with an entertainment and dance at the fire house. Several hunderd guests attended the affair.

The pretty little fire house was decked with autumn leaves and flowers, and a great log fire blazed in the hall. The whole effect was unusually charming.

The entertainment was furnished by C. T. Wiegand, monologuist and impersonator, and Adrian Plat, conjuror. Both are professionals, and they scored a decided success. The dance followed the entertainment. Refreshments were served.

Fanwood fire company has had a mot successful existence. It was organized in October, 1890, and has been growing steadily ever since. It is one of the few fire companies of the State that was not weakened in membership by the recent tax exemption decision.

Early in its existence the company raised the slogan "Every Fanwoodite a fireman," and today there are very few men in the borough who do not belong. Men of leisure, professional men and tradesmen serve together. Even Charles Batteil Loomis, the humorous author, is a member.

In the beginning of things the company met at the Fanwood Club, but eight years ago it decided to have a home of its own, and put up the present fire house. Last year the building was freed from debt. The officers of the company are:

President, Harry P. Robinson; secretary, S. G. Van Housen; treasurer, W. M. Maxim; foreman, W. M. Maxim; first assistant, Augustus Sheelen; second, S. G. Van Housen.

The committee that arranged Saturday's affair were George E. Hall, William M. Maxim, J. M. Uhler, B. P. Hall, Charles B. Loomis and H. C. Christianson.

ELECTION BOARD VACANCIES.

Board of Elections Made a Number of Changes in the List.

The Union County Board of Elections met at Elizabeth Saturday and filled vacancies in several district election boards. Fred Myerholz was appointed in the First district, Fifth ward, Elizabeth, in place of the late Thomas Canty. John Sullivan was appointed in the Second district, Third ward, Elizabeth, in place of Thomas Burns. Michael A. Joyce was appointed in the First district, Third ward, Elizabeth, in place of James McCann, who is ill. H. D. Crowell was appointed to fill the place of his brother, D. Frank Crowell, deceased, at the Fourth ward, Rahway; H. B. Coggeshall was appointed at the Second district, Second ward, Summit, in place of Edward Hotchkiss.

The partial list of the challenges was submitted and approved by the board. The complete list has not yet been made out.

Glee Club in New Market.

The Rutgers College Glee Club will appear in New Market on Thursday evening, November 9. The entertainment will be held in Friendship Hall, under the auspices of the Sunshine Society of Holy Innocents' church, Dunellen. The proceeds will be turned into a fund for the repainting of the church.

Prof. Griggs on Emerson.

Edward Howard Griggs will deliver a lecture on Emerson tomorrow night in Vincent chapel. His talk is one of a series given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the First M. E. church.

ROBT. ABBOTT'S VICTORY

Plainfielder Wins Intercollegiate Golf Association Championship.

HE DEFEATS KNOWLES

Abbott Is a Sophomore at Yale and Will Be Entitled to the "Y"—Learned the Game Here.

Robert Abbott, of this city, a member of the Plainfield Country Club, won the championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association on Saturday, when he defeated Ellis Knowles by 3 up and 2 to play in the thirty-six hole final round at the Garden City Golf Club. Both Abbott and Knowles are sophomores at Yale, and by his achievement the former is entitled to his "Y."

Abbott has been noted for playing a most consistent game of golf and his friends have predicted a promising future for him in the royal and ancient game. He recently celebrated his eighteenth birthday, and Knowles is a year his senior and comes from Pensacola, Fla.

When Abbott and Knowles started out on their all-day journey in the morning it was blowing a gale, and the keen air made heavy sweaters comfortable. The match was a good one and closely contested throughout. The new champion contents himself with a three-quarter swing, but the club head is traveling with rare speed when it meets the ball. Abbott went out in 42 to 44 for the Southerner, and on the completion of the first eighteen holes the champion showed a total score of 84, to 88 for Knowles.

Starting out in the afternoon, Knowles proceeded to make a good uphill fight, but the steady consistent playing of his opponet was too much for him, and the champion won the match by 3 up and 2 to play, his total score being 162, to 166 for Knowles. In all the accounts of the match the newspapers give Abbott great praise for his fine work.

Yale now holds both the team and the individual championship, the first time since 1902 that either title has gone to a son of "Old Eli." The record of the individual championship is:

1897, L. P. Bayard, Jr., Princeton; 1898, J. F. Curtis, Harvard, and John Reid, Jr., Yale; 1899 Percy Pyne, 2d, Princeton; 1901, J. G. Lindsley, Harvard; 1902, C. Hitchcock, Jr., Yale; 1903, F. Chandler Egan, Harvard, and F. O. Reinhart, Princeton; 1904, A. L. White, Harvard; 1905, Robert Abbott, Yale.

Abbott began playing golf on the course of the Plainfield Country Club and by earnest effort steadily improved his game, doing better each year. Those who have watched his work claim that he will yet make a top-notch record and attain high distinction in the game of golf.

TALK ON INDIA.

Given by Missionary in Congregational Church.

Rev. W. M. Zumbro, for many years a missionary in India, occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church, yesterday morning, giving an earnest talk on the life, customs and habits of the natives of India. He referred particularly to the various forms of worship and to caste, showing the great distinction made in each.

Mr. Zumbro gave encouraging reports of the progress of Christianity in India and of the increasing number of converts. He told of the part being taken in the mission fields by the Congregational missionaries and urged greater support for this work.

Last night Mr. Zumbro spoke at the Christian Endeavor Society meeting, when he told of the work among the young people of India.

An Illustrated Lecture.

David E. Titsworth will give an illustrated lecture at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow on "The Heroes of the Faith or Our Silent Witnesses." Mr. Titsworth has prepared this lecture which has to do entirely with the members and work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. He gave it at the recent convention held at Shiloh, and at the request of many he has consented to repeat it tomorrow night. No admission will be charged, but a silver offering will be received.

Miss Smith Hurt.

While Miss Helen Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Smith, of West Fourth street, was crossing the street on Thursday, a girl riding a bicycle ran into her, the wheel striking her knee, inflicting a painful injury. Miss Smith has been confined to her bed ever since. The knee is badly swollen and bruised and it will probably be some time before she will be able to go out.

BIKE THIEF CONFESSES; HELD FOR GRAND JURY

FERDINAND MEYER ACKNOWLEDGES TAKING EIGHT WHEELS.

Ferdinand Meyer, arrested for stealing H. C. Van Emburgh's bicycle and believed to be the author of all the bike thefts that have been puzzling the police for a year, was held for the Grand Jury this morning under $500 bail. He was arraigned before Justice Mosher and waived examination.

Meyer has confessed to eight bicycle thefts, including the Van Emburgh wheel. Six of the bicycles, he says, were stolen in this city and Cranford, and two in North Plainfield. Chief Kiely believes the young man is withholding at least eight other robberies from his confession. The Chief had a lot of trouble worming information from him, and thinks Meyer, hoping to make his sentence lighter, is trying to conceal the full extent of his operations. Fully twenty bicycles have been stolen here and in the borough within a year and the police are convinced that Meyer took practically all of them.

SENATORIAL NOMINEE TELLS WHERE HE STANDS

EDWARD NUGENT FAVORS EQUAL TAXATION AND LIMITED FRANCEISES.

In his letter of acceptance of the nomination for State Senator, Edward Nugent, of Elizabeth, sets forth his views on the leading issues in the present campaign. The letter is addressed to Frederick Zior, secretary of the Democratic county committee. It is as follows:

"In accordance with the statement made at the Democratic convention of Union county, October 18th inst., at which I was honored with the nomination of State Senator, I desire to make a formal announcement of my acceptance of the honor conferred upon me.

"I desire to state my position to the citizens of this county, irrespective of party, on the most important public questions at issue in this State, as follows:

"I believe in equal taxation. To carry it into effect, I believe in taxing the main stem, or right of way, terminals, depots, sidings and all other steam railroad property in the State at the same local rate as prevails in the respective taxing districts in which such property is situated. I am convinced that the revenue collected from the taxation of such property should be applied directly to such municipalities as have the burden imposed upon them of protecting railroad property in various ways. Such a policy would tend to lighten the taxes now paid by individuals, manufacturers and the public generally.

"I believe in limited franchises to public utility corporations. Having recently voted in the Elizabeth city Council against the granting of a perpetual franchise to the Public Service Corporation, and having insisted with my colleagues in that body, irrespective of party, for restrictions and conditions that would protect the public, I feel justified in assuming that such a record on my part furnishes the most substantial and conclusive proof of the honesty and consistency of my belief in the doctrine of limited franchises.

"I deeply appreciate the nomination for this high office, one that has been held by so many distinguished men of our county, and pledge myself, if elected, to the advocacy and support of remedial legislation which will carry into effect the vital principles which I have briefly mentioned.

"EDWARD NUGENT.

"Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 19, 1905."

Garrett Dunham Recovering.

Garrett Dunham, of West Front street, who was recently injured by a fall from a trolley car, returned nome from Cooley's sanitarium yesterday. His mind has cleared remarkably and his complete recovery is assured. Dr. Adams took him for a ride in his automobile yesterday afternoon.

Drunk Fined $5.

"Cooney" Dunham, whose face is familiar to police court habitues, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of drunkenness. It cost him $5 to get away.

Ballot Box Keys Wanted.

The election officers who have not turned in the keys of the ballot boxes are asked to send them at once to the office of the city clerk.

PLANT TO CLOSE DOWN

Harper, Hollingsworth & Darby to Retire From Business After 40 Years.

NOV. 15 THE DATE

One of Scotch Plains' Two Factories to Suspend Operations—Has Figured in Prominent Law Case.

After remaining in business continuously for the past forty years, the firm of Harper, Hollingsworth & Darby, which conducts the fur mill at Scotch Plains, has announced that it is soon to retire from the field. Notice to this effect has been given the employes with the added information that the factory will be closed on November 15, not to be opened again by the present management. The suspension of operations deprives the Plains of one of its two manufacturing plants and throws thirty men and women out of work.

The announcement came as a surprise to almost everybody in the village as the firm had always been looked upon as a fixture and it was understood that orders enough were on hand to keep the mill going night and day for a long time to come, if the company so desired. It is one of the best known in this section of the State and only recently won a legal fight which attracted the attention of all New Jersey and which seemed to indicate that Harper, Hollingsworth & Darby were looking to the future. They brought suit several years ago against the Summit Water Company, which they claimed was unlawfully diverting the waters of Green brook, depriving manufacturers along the stream of power to which they were entitled. The case dragged along through court after court until the highest was reached and the plaintiffs secured a judgment in their favor, but at a cost of many thousands of dollars. The Summit concern was forced to remove a dam it had built and release the water, restoring Green brook to its former volume and greatly benefited Plainfield as well as the Scotch Plains mills.

The members of the firm are Lofus Hollingsworth, who has always been the resident manager; George Harper, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Mary Darby, of this city.

RUNAWAY DIDN'T STOP.

Driver's Scheme to Check It Leads to a Collision.

A horse attached to a light carriage of the rural type became frightened at a passing automobile in front of the First Presbyterian church just as the congregation was leaving yesterday forenoon and ran away. A little ahead of the runaway, but well out of its path, the carriage of Mrs. Warren Ackerman, of Scotch Plains, who had been to the church, was starting homeward. The driver of the carryall pulled the runaway directly toward the carriage, evidently thinking it would stop when confronted with the barrier.

It didn't. Runaway and carriage came together with a crash, and the carriage was almost overturned. The horse was staggered and the driver succeeded in checking it by jumping to its head.

The carriage was not damaged, but the horse was cut and its harness was strained. The driver, whose name was not learned, led the rig away.

Talk to P. H. S. Pupils.

Franklin S. Smith, B. S., M. S., Class 1880, Rutgers, and for several years science teacher at the Plainfield High School until 1893, addressed the High School, this morning, on the subject of "Appreciate Your Advantages." His remarks were listened to with considerable interest. Several fine cabinets of minerals at the High School were gifts of Mr. Smith. He is now a resident of Montclair and engaged in business in New York, being at the head of a large manufacturing concern.

Youngest Elk in County.

In entering the local lodge of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks at Elizabeth, upon having attained his majority, Abe Isaac, son of Hyman Isaac, of that place, became the youngest Elk in Union county. There is an age limit in the order limiting membership to those who are at least twenty-one years old. Mr. Isaac just passed that a few months ago.

Dr. Blaustein to Talk.

The first meeting of the year of the Men's Club, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will be held tomorrow night in the chapel at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by Dr. David Blaustein, of New York, whose subject will be "The Jew of New York." He is an interesting and forcible speaker.

Herbert Buxton,

Herbert Buxton is the Republican candidate for member of the Common Council in the Fourth ward. When Robert A. Lee was made collector of taxes Mr. Buxton was prominently mentioned as his successor, but he retired from the race. His selection at this time is taken as a deserved reward for his valuable services to the party.

NEW FLIM-FLAM GAME WORKED ON COLORED MAN

AN OFFER OF $100 A MONTH "JUST TO SWEEP OUT."

George Carter, an imposing looking young colored man, who is employed by a Park avenue family, according to his own story, was victimized out of $14 Saturday by a game new to the local police. It was worked on him by a representative of his own race, he declares, but with a Caucasian color and tongue as glib as that possessed by the best known green goods men and "come on" gentry.

Carter was making his way downtown to buy a suit of clothes when the stranger hailed him at Park avenue and Fourth street and asked him if he "wanted a job at $100 a month just to open doors and sweep out." Offers like that don't grow on every bush, and Carter hurriedly said he most certainly did. He and his new-found friend stepped inside a drug store while the latter wrote out a note of introduction to the man that wanted to hire a likely-appearing fellow. His name was "Davis," he said, and to assure him that Carter was honest and hard-working he (Carter) was asked to put some money in the envelope. Carter handed out $24 which he intended exchanging for a suit, and he saw it carefully tucked away with the note. He remembered afterward that the stranger fumbled around the envelope for some time, but as everything seemed to be all right and the light-completed benefactor talked so nice he let it go at that.

Carter started for the home of "Davis," stated to be on West Front street, but on the way made up his mind that he would get his suit of clothes after all and rely on his honest appearance to get him the job. He dropped in a clothing store, and after selecting a splendid checked affair, store open the envelope to get his money. It contained nothing but a few pieces of blank paper. Gasping out "stung," Carter made a bee line for the police station without the new suit.

P. S.—Chief Kiely and his soft-shoe men are now on the trail of the young man who has $100 a month jobs "just to open doors and sweep out."

PAROCHIAL FEAST DAY.

Grace Church Chooses All Saints as the Date for Festal Observance.

Grace P. E. church now has a parochial feast day. The rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, announced from the pulpit yesterday that the parish would observe All Saints' Day hereafter as its festal day. It is the usual thing for Episcopal churches that are named after Saints to celebrate the name day of the Saint whose name it bears so that Grace, in choosing a feast day, is merely following an established custom.

The coming celebration will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening with a church service. After the service a social gathering, to which all the church members and their friends are invited, will be held in the parish house.

Men's Club to Elect.

The Men's Club, of the First Presbyterian church, will meet at the chapel Wednesday night following the prayer meeting for the election of officers and transaction of other business. This meeting was postponed from last week.

Retail Druggists to Banquet.

The County Retail Druggists' Association will hold its annual banquet at the Hotel Iroquois in this city tomorrow night. Thirty members are expected to be in attendance.

DAVID T. KENNEY'S GIFT

Donates Forty Acres of Picture Land to Sisters of Mercy.

IN MOTHER'S MEMORY

Bishop McFaul Visits Site—Deed Presented By Mr. Kenney to the Mother Superior.

Forty acres of the big tract of Watchung mountain land, situated on Johnston's drive, just back of North Plainfield, purchased recently by David T. Kenney, have been donated by him to the Sisters of Mercy, of the Trenton diocese. The site was given by the donor in memory of his mother and was made known to the Mother Superior of the Sisters Saturday. Mr. Kenney went to Bordentown, where the convent is located, and presented her with the deed.

Bishop McFaul, of the Trenton diocese, was in the city yesterday and after confirming a large class of children at St. Joseph's church, went with Mr. Kenney to look over the property. They were accompanied by the bishop's secretary, Rev. Father Powers; Very Rev. Mgr. O'Grady, of New Brunswick; Rev. Father Terrell, of Rahway; Rev. Father Miller, of St. Joseph's, and Rev. Father Bogan, of St. Mary's.

The bishop was greatly pleased with the location and surrounding country and expressed himself in enthusiastic terms. The other members of the party also thought well of the place. Returning from the trip, the bishop and priests were entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Kenney at their home on Rockview avenue.

The entire tract purchased by Mr. Kenney comprises several big estates and has an area of 300 acres. It has a frontage of over 5,000 feet on Mountain avenue, extending back to Johnson's drive, where they frontage is 3,000 feet. It also goes back to the Washington Valley road. It was the biggest deal in unimproved property in this section consummated in many years and was secured by Mr. Kenney after much negotiating. It is one of the prettiest stretches of land in the State and has been known for a long time as the "Picture lands."

It is understood that the Sisters of Mercy will have a large convent school building erected on the forty acre site, one that in architectural beauty will correspond with the natural view.

DEAD AT EIGHTY-SIX.

John Ledger Passes Away on His Farm.

John Ledger, aged eighty-six years, a well-known farmer living near Westfield, died last night after an illness of several weeks. He had many friends here, whom he frequently visited. Mr. Ledger was an active member of the Westfield Baptist church and always attended the services regularly.

Mr. Ledger's wife died about nine years ago and he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Curtis, of Cleveland, and Miss Ledger, of Brooklyn, who is a teacher in the public schools of that city.

The funeral services will be held from the Baptist church, Westfield, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and the interment will be at Westfield.

Sleuth Spots a Drunk.

James Dennison, a machinist employed at the Pond shop, had a gay time in Newark Saturday night. He kept out of trouble in the wicket metropolis, but he couldn't escape the eagle eye of Detective McCarthy when he left the train at the North Avenue station yesterday afternoon. The sleuth detected a wobbling in his legs and unerringly deduced that he was drunk. Dennison was promptly pinched. He was released under a suspended sentence this morning by Judge Runyon.

Decision on Police Commissioners.

The case of Peter Egenolf, Philip Mohr and other against the mayor and the Police Commissioners of Elizabeth to test the constitutionality of the appointment of the commissioners will come before the Supreme Court at Trenton, Judge Gummere presiding, November 13, for final disposition. The decision in this case will apply to Plainfield and all other cities which have taken advantage of the law now being attacked.

Saueracker Woman Jailed.

Julia Saueracker, who has a police court record on both sides of the brook, and William Storm, one of Julia's convival friends, were arranged in the city court this morning charged with drunkenness and disorder. She was sentenced to forty days straight and the man was given the option of paying $10 or going to jail for twenty days.

THE JAUNTY TOP COAT

The top coat with its dashy appearance just appeals to the smart dresser—Especially Watson's Top Coats, so brimful of that touch of exclusiveness which immediately gives them distinction. And that should be your demand, something distinctive.

How about a top coat made of a covert,—tan for instance, loose fitting back, clinging shoulders and close fitting neck, with all our originality and exclusiveness of design. Won't that hit you right? We believe it will when you learn of the moderate price we ask—a typical Watson price. But your choice isn't confined to one material,—one color. You can see other materials, other colors—all stylish,

O. F. C. OUTPLAYED DUNELLEN'S ELEVEN

SCORED ONLY GOAL, BUT DEMONSTRATED ITS SUPERIORITY PLAINLY.

Much of the doubt regarding the relative form and ability of the Orange Field Club and the Dunellen elevens was removed Saturday afternoon when the teams came together. The Field Club won, 5 to 0, and the way the victory was scored puts the Dunellenites on the defensive. Although they contested the game closely and gallantly, O. F. C. palpably outplayed them.

The teams were practically equal as to weight. In team work the difference was all in favor of O. F. C. They played a snappier, surer game and worked on the offensive. Both teams marred their play with fumbles, but Dunellen was considerably slacker than O. F. C.

Line plays marked the contest. In the first half the ball was mostly in O. F. C. territory, but neither goal was seriously threatened, and the half closed without scoring.

In the second half O. F. C. went at Dunellen with a rush and carried the opposing line off its feet. After three minutes of play, Todd was hurled through tackle for the feature run and only touchdown of the game. He sprinted thirty-five yards. The kick failed. O. F. C. carried the ball to within fifteen yards of the enemy's line again, but lost it on a fumble and never had another chance to score.

Brilliant plays by individual members of both teams marked the game. The stars were Joseph, Todd, Thayer, McCullough and French, of O. F. C., and Maltby and Pond, of Dunellen.

The difference in the teams' effectiveness is indicated by two things. In the whole contest the Dunellenites held the ball only three times, and they held the opposing combination for downs but once. The line-up:

O. F. C.	Dunellen.
Emmons	Fletcher
	left end.
McCullough, Jos.	Pond
	left tackle.
Banks	Snyder
	left guard.
Hillyer	Utzinger
	center.
McCullough, Jack	Coons
	right guard.
French	Smalley
	right tackle.
Johnson	Lake
	right end.
McVoy	W. Hamilton
	quarterback.
Todd	Maltby
	left halfback.
Thayer	R. Hamilton
	right halfback.
Sherwin, Joseph	Smith
	fullback.

MORRISTOWN AGADEMY DEFEATED LEAL'S BOYS

SCORE OF GRIDIRON CONTEST WAS 6 TO 5.

In one of the best games of the season the Morristown Academy eleven defeated Leal's team at Morristown Saturday afternoon by a score of 6 to 5. The contest was a sharp, clean one throughout and was marked by many brilliant plays. The Plainfield boys showed decided improvement in their play and are sure to give the Plainfield High School team a hard struggle on Election Day.

The Plainfield boys made the trip to Morristown in a stage, and after the game were entertained at dinner by the Morristown team. They were then shown about the academy and given a good time. It was nearly 11 o'clock Saturday night when Leal's team reached home.

In the first half of the game Morristown kicked off to Leal's and the latter worked the ball toward their opponents' goal, where they were held for downs. Morristown then worked the mall to Leal's goal for downs when within three feet from the line. Leal's then pushed the ball back, when Morristown held them again and by clever work carried it over the line, after which the goal was kicked. The score was 6 to 0 in favor of Morristown.

Leal's kicked off the ball in the second half to Morristown, and the Plainfield eam held the ball for downs, when Dallas kicked. Morristown fumbled the ball and Chapman made a fine run to within five yards of the goal. Dallas carried the ball over the line, and Tillotson was chosen to kick the ball. He missed the goal by a few inches. The score at the end of the second half was 6 to 5 in favor of Morristown, and that was the final score. The lineup and score:

Referee—Leary. Timer—Hallock. Time of halves—20 and 15 minutes. First half—6 to 0, favor Morristown. Second half—6 to 5, favor of Morristown. Final score—Morristown, 6; Leal's, 5.

A JAPANESE SPEAKER.

H. O. Saijo Addresses Meeting at the Y. M. C. A.

H. O. Saijo, a second year student at the Drew Theological Seminary, was the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. Mr. Saijo had for his subject, "Christianity in Japan." He referred to the recent war in the East and asserted that it would be more beneficial to China than anything that had ever happened. The Japs, he asserted, were far more enabled, by their close relationship to China, to take the gospel through that country.

Several solos by Carl Haynes, of Washington, D. C., accompanied by Miss Sampson, were much appreciated.

A. C. LaBoyteaux had charge of the meeting, and W. C. Leek led the singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, of Rockview terrace, have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Patrick, wife of Captain Patrick, at West Point, N. Y.

Miss Katharine Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee, of Santiago, Cuba, is spending the winter with her aunt, Mrs. Robert Lowry, of East Seventh street. Mrs. Lee and her two younger daughters have returned to their home in Cuba, after spending some weeks in this place.

RESOLVED, That the question of the adoption of the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water," approved April 21st, 1876, be submitted to the legal electors of the City of Plainfield at an election to be held in said city on Tuesday, the seventh day of November, A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Five, that is to say, at the general election required by law to be held at that time and place; that the City Clerk of said City be and he hereby is directed to cause public notice of the time and place of holding such election to be given at the time and in the manner provided by the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled, "An Act to regulate elections, Revision of 1898," Approved April 4th, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and that, in addition thereto, said City Clerk cause public notice of the time and place of holding such election to be given by advertisements signed by himself and set up in at least twenty (20) public places in said city, and published in one or more newspapers printed therein, for at least six days previous to the day of such election; that said Clerk be and he hereby is directed to provide for each elector voting at such election, ballots to be printed, or written or partly printed and partly written, upon which ballots the following proposition shall be printed beneath the list of candidates thereon, with the word "for" and the word "against" printed above and immediately preceding such proposition, viz: "The adoption for this City of the provisions of an act entitled 'An Act to enable cities to supply inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water;'" it is further resolved that the polls for such election shall be held at the usual places of holding the annual charter election in said city, that is to say:

First District, First Ward, 152 North Avenue.
Second District, First Ward, 545 East Third Street.
First District, Second Ward, 319 Watchung Avenue.
Second District, Second Ward, 699 South Avenue.
First District, Third Ward, "Casino," West Seventh street.
Second District, Third Ward, Clifton's Barn, Corner West Seventh Street and Spooner Avenue.
First District, Fourth Ward, 204 West Second Street.
Second District, Fourth Ward, 672 South Second Street.
Third District, Fourth Ward, 921 West Third Street,

and shall be opened at 6 o'clock in the forenoon and closed at 7 o'clock in the afternoon, and such election shall be conducted by the proper election officers of said city for the time then being, and in the manner as may then be prescribed by the ordinances (if any) of said city regulating elections therein, and such officers shall return to the Common Council of said City a true and correct statement, in writing, under their hand, of the result of said election, the same to be entered at large upon the minutes of said Common Council.

an election will be held in said City of Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday, the seventh day of November, A. D. 1905, that is to say, at the general election required by law to be held at that time, in the places hereinbefore designated in said resolution (the polls to be opened at 6 o'clock in the forenoon, and closed at 7 o'clock in the afternoon, as in said resolution provided) for the object and purpose of voting "for" or "against" the adoption for this city of the provisions of an act entitled, "An Act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water," Approved April 21st, 1876.

The Board of Registry and Election will meet in their several districts at the places above named, on Tuesday, October 31st, 1905, from 1 to 9 p. m., for the purpose of revising and correcting the original Registers.

By order of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

E. B. SHOEMAKER LEADS IN CUP COMPETITION

BY WINNING SATURDAY, INCREASES HIS LEAD TO FIFTEEN POINTS.

In winning second honors for the golf committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday, E. B. Shoemaker increased his lead for this trophy two points, which gives him a total of fifteen points. This gives him a better chance to win the cup, as there is but one more Saturday left to compete for it. C. B. Morgan, who is in second place, failed to win any points on Saturday, and it is practically impossible for him to get the cup.

W. L. C. Glenney won first honors for the cup, with a net score of 75, while E. B. Shoemaker finished second with a score of 76. Charles A. Stover won the remaining point, his score being 83. These scores were posted for the cup:

W. L. C. Glenney, 94, 19—75; E. B. Shoemaker, 75, plus 1—76; Charles A. Stover, 93, 10—83; D. H. Rowland, 95, 11—84.

In addition to the weekly competition there was a mixed foursome for two cups. The winners were Miss Cruikshank and H. R. Stockton, who returned a net score of 85. The scores were are follows:

Miss Cruikshank and H. R. Stockton, 94, 9—85; Mrs. Walter Gaston and W. D. Rae, 98, 11—87; Miss Daisy Elsberg and George Schoonmaker, 103, 11—92; Miss Margaret Goddard and W. L. Glenney, 99, 2—97; Miss M. H. Holly and Walter Gaston, 123, 18—105.

An even six scores were returned for the president's and club trophies at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, although the course was well crowded with players throughout the day. Charles A. Reed won first honors for the president's cup with a net score of 87, while Reuben Knox finished second with a score of 89. D. H. Rowland and Charles W. McCutchen divided the one remaining point, each returning a score of 95. For the scratch cup Mr. Reed won first honrs, Mr. Knox second and S. St. John McCutchen third. The scores returned for the two cups are as follows:

Charles A. Reed, 99, 12—87; Reuben Knox, 102, 13—89; Charles W. McCutchen, 114, 19—95; D. H. Rowland, 107, 12—95; S. St. John McCutchen, 105, 8—97; Alex. Gilbert, 112, 12—100.

Five Take Examination.

Five men took the postal civil service examination at the postoffice on Saturday afternoon for the positions of carrier and clerks. The examination was conducted by Clerk William Sharp. The papers have been forwarded to Washington and in about two weeks the result will be known. There is now great need for sub-carriers in the local service and Postmaster Bird feels sure that he will get the extra help through Saturday's examination.

Plainfield, N. J., October 23, 1905.

Loomis is to go to Morocco. That's right, keep him in the dark.

Senator James Smith says he is out of politics. Speaking of farewell tours—

Secretary Taft seems to be the Court Circular of the Roosevelt administration.

There are no Alphonse and Gaston tactics being indulged in among the rival mayoralty candidates in Gotham.

It's up to Chairman Wilson to let the merchants know why street sprinkling has been stopped in the business section of the city.

The New Jersey political writer for the Philadelphia North American says in today's issue: "Senator Childs has made an excellent record in the New Jersey Senate, and there exists nothing tangible to change the vote of last year. Therefore, the re-election of Senator Childs may be looked for."

David T. Kenney's purchase of a large tract on the Watchung Mountains is no doubt but the beginning of a movement to develop the "picture lands" for residential purposes. No more ideal spot for a home can be found in this section of the State, at least, and it will not be long before Mr. Kenney will be able to realize handsomely on his investment.

TRIP TO TRENTON FAIR LED TO THE ALTAR

THOMAS WHITENACK WEDDED SECRETLY A MONTH AGO.

Thomas S. Whitenack and Miss Ora Spoker, both well known residents of Scotch Plains, announced to their friends Saturday that they had been married for a month. The information came as a great surprise, as the fact had not been even hinted at before.

The bride had been housekeeper for Mr. Whitenack, who had been a widower for a year and a half, and on September 27 they went to Trenton to see the State Fair. After spending the day on the ground, they decided they would be married, and visited a clergyman in that city, who performed the ceremony. They kept the fact a secret and it was only Saturday that they gave it out.

Mr. Whitenack is employed by Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, and has many acquaintances in Plainfield. His bride is a former resident of New York State, but has lived in Scotch Plains for several years.

Two Still Alarms.

Fire headquarters was notified by telephone yesterday morning of a dangerous blaze in a hedge on Sherman avenue. A hose wagon was sent to the scene but it had been put out before its arrival. Another still alarm was turned in this morning for a chimney fire in a house on West Second street, near Plainfield avenue, occupied by colored families. There was no damage.

Many Attended Big Shoot.

The all-day shoot of the Plainfield Gun Club, held Saturday, was one of the most successful the organization has yet conducted. It was attended by a large number of local shots and many of the professional cracks. The full scores are now being prepared and the award of prizes will be made when they are completed.

Story of His Conversion.

H. O. Saijo, a Christian Japanese, told the story of his conversion at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. He appeared in native costume. The musical programme included baritone solos by Carl Haynes, who will sing at the orchestra concert tonight.

programme will include the following features: 2:00—Singing; 2:10—Reports of committees and other business; 2:15—Address, "The Need of Ministers for Foreign Speaking Peoples," Frank C. Woods; 2:35—Discussion of the report of the board, opened by H. E. Fosdick; three-minute speeches; 3:15—Singing; 3:20—Election of officers; prayer for our beneficiaries; 3:25 — Discussion, "What Shall the Baptists of New Jersey Do With Their Two Schools?" opened by F. W. Ayer; five-minute speeches; 4:10—Singing; 4:15—Address, Rev. Dr. John Humpstone.

In accordance with annual custom, the evening of the closing day of the convention will be given up to a banquet. It will take place in the lecture room. Tables are to be set, at which about 200 persons will be seated. The banquet will mark the eighth anniversary of the Baptist Social Union. George E. Dimock, whose father, the late Rev. Anthony Vaughn Dimock, was for many years one of the best known Baptist clergymen of the State, is president of the union. The officers are arranging for the dinner and the toasts which are to be responded to. The mid-week prayer meeting of the church will be omitted Wednesday evening.

Although the Baptist denomination of Elizabeth is more than a half century old, this is the first time the convention has been invited to meet in Elizabeth. From every section of the State the Baptist will come to the annual convention. The general committee of arrangements is composed of Frank H. Davis, the Rev. Dr. T. E. Vassar and Mrs. Alonzo Pettit.

VICTIM OF DIPHTHERIA.

Thomas Leacock Succumbs After An Illness of Ten Days.

Thomas Leacock, an employe in the blacksmith shop at Pond's, died at his home on George street, last night, following an illness of ten days with diphtheria. He was forty-eight years old and leaves a widow and eight children, the eldest but sixteen years of age.

The funeral will be held at Hillside cemetery tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. A. S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church.

Street Work.

Working under the recent grading and macadamizing ordinance, the street department has begun to grade Randolph road between Central avenue and Cedar brook. The gravel from there is to be used in grading Randolp road between theb rook and Arlington avenue. Randolph road at this point is not to be macadamized on account of the introduction of storm sewers. The men will next work on either Lee place or Spooner avenue.

Preached on Work.

Rev. Dr. Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, preached a strong sermon yesterday morning, in the course of which he touched on the relations between the employer and the workingman. He treated the subject from a religious standpoint.

ALIS III OUTWEIGHED.

Junior Eleven Loses Hard Game to Twilight A. C., of New Brunswick.

Hopelessly outweighed, the Alis III eleven was defeated by the Twilight A. C., of New Brunswick, on Hope Common Saturday afternoon. Capt. Phillips handled his men with notable success in the face of unusual odds, and the Plainfield youngsters made their opponents battle stiffy for the victory. The Twilights were unable to score in the first half, but Alis, shaken by the heavy work, weakened in the second half and three touchdowns were scored against them. The playing of Eckert and Taylor deserves special mention.

The line-up:

Alis III.		Twilight A. C.
Bogart		Toole
	centre.
T. Miller		Morehouse
	right guard.
Eckert		Pickering
	right tackle.
Mosher		Van Horne
	right end.
Aalholm, Fluck		Kaplan
	left guard.
Bentley, Manning		Church
	left tackle.
Miller		Freeland
	left end.
Phillips		Jacobs
	quarterback.
Douglas		Fehosky
	right halfback.
Taylor		Davison
	fullback.
Manning		Henry
	left halfback.

Referee, J. Douglass; umpire, M. Leech; timers, Flanders and Holtz; linesmen, Williams and Martin.

ENDORSE DR. LAWRENCE.

Colored Voters Will Wait to See If He Puts Them on Juries.

The Colored Republican County Committee unanimously endorsed Dr. W. H. Lawrence for sheriff at its meeting at the Keystone Hotel, Elizabeth, Saturday night.

Chairman Hawkins told the committee that it would be futile for the colored voters to oppose any of the Republican candidates at the present election as their Democratic opponents were too weak to make any help from the negro vote effective. Hawkins pointed out that in his letter Dr. Lawrence had said that if elected he would "do justice to all the people of the county." As the negroes were a part of the people of the county they might naturally suppose that their interests would be protected. At any rate, it would be only fair to give him a trial, and then if after the election of Lawrence no negroes appeared on the lists of jurors for the January and May terms, then the fight should be taken up, not against Dr. Lawrence, but against the Republican party of Union county.

As it was decided to carry on a winter's campaign of education among the colored voters of the county in order to raise funds for the purpose a committee to arrange for an entertainment was appointed. The committee consists of William Hammond, of Rahway; Henry Wortman, Howard Wortman, Mahlon Gibbs and Julius Copeland, Elizabeth.

In the County Court.

Sheriff Coriell selected a special jury today to try the case of Benjamin F. Clark against Lewis Hergert, and the jury was excused until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The case is one of a shooting affair at the Wheatsheaf Hotel in Linden township, some time ago. With the exception of the jury which is trying a contract case in the county court today, all jurors have been excused until Monday.

Gas Water-Heater Exploded.

The explosion of a gas water-heater in the apartments of Miss Olga Lockert, in the Babcock building, Saturday afternoon, was felt throughout the greater part of the structure. The heater was wrecked and various articles in the room were scattered about. Miss Lockert was not near the heater at the time and escaped injury.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT.

Tax Ordinance to Be Adopted On Third Reading.

A special meeting of the Common Council has been called for tonight for the purpose of adopting on third reading the tax ordinance, and adopting a resolution authorizing the public affairs committee or some appropriate committee to supervise and attend to matters in connection with the election to be held on Tuesday, November 7, in reference to acquiring a pure and wholesome water supply under municipal control.

According to the call for this meeting only such matters referred to in it can be considered. It has been reported that an effort would be made on the part of the anti-organization members to interfere with the work of the police commissioners, and that they would seek to prevent them from paying the police bills.

A WORTHY EFFORT.

Gesang and Turn Verein Arranging Benefit for Mr. and Mrs. Haurand.

Members of the Gesang and Turn Verein are making arrangements for an entertainment and dance for the benefit of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haurand, who have had a great deal of sickness in their family recently. It will be given in Saengerbund Hall November 20, and from the number of volunteers it promises to be a big affair. The details are being looked after by a committee composed of Frank Jellig, chairman; William Claassen, John Retzer, Walter Koeppel and Lawrence Fahn.

Mr. and Mrs. Haurand have both been in Muhlenberg Hospital with typhoid fever and in addition they have had a child very ill with a spinal trouble. Mr. Haurand has been more or less afflicted since the Spanish War, in which he served and passed through an active campaign.

Francis F. Genot Dead.

Francis F. Genot, for many years a local resident, died this morning at his home, 543 West Front street. He was about seventy-five years old and leaves a widow and one son, the latter a New York business man. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

AMUSEMENTS.

Would you rather sit moodily at home or go to a good show? It is safe to say that the average person would rather see a good show. Messrs. De Cordova and Allen have provided that good show, and it will be seen tomorrow night at the New Plainfield theatre. It is called "The Shadow Behind the Throne" and is a melodrama of the highest class. There is not an impossible character nor an impossible situation in it from start to finish. It is clean, intensely interesting, has rapid action, many deeds of heroism prompted by a spirit of sturdy Americanism, and is flavored with delightful comedy. If you miss this play some of your friends will see it and tell you how much they enjoyed it—and it does not come back here this season.

This season's plays will furnish no opportunity for character portrayal which will rival those afforded Miss Grace George when on Thursday, at the New Plainfield theatre, she will be presented by William A. Brady in "The Marriage of William Ashe." This novel of Mrs. Ward's is by all odds her best book and the gist of all the reviews of it is that her characters live and breathe. If one feels this in reading the book, think how doubly fascinating the drama will be. Lady Kitty's personality is of the elusive yet haunting kind; one moment strangely irresponsible, the next more than ordinarily loyal, and Miss George's previous work in "Pretty Peggy," "Under Southern Skies," "Frou Frou," and "The Two Orphans" has shown her mistress of gay and serious moods. Temperamentally, Miss George can more than compass the intricacies of the complex "Lady Kitty," and physically, she suggests her more than any actress, in fact, so much so that Mrs. Ward wished her to create the part. Englishmen will have the two leading roles. H. Reeves Smith will play William Ashe and Mr. Ben Webster, Geoffrey Cliffe. H. Reeves Smith was the original "Capt. Jinks" with Miss Barrymore, and last year Mr. Webster was leading man with Ellis Jeffries. The stage settings are faithful reproductions of the scenes, and they have Mrs. Ward's sanction since Mr. Brady went to the expense of sending the little model sets to London for her inspection. From every point of view "The Marriage of William Ashe" is a notable presentation of the greatest book since "Vanity Fair."

The best company ever seen in Mr. Carle's support composes the cast of "The Mayor of Tokio," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. The player-playwright has done a wise thing in writing a number of good parts in his new farcical opera. So many stars sacrifice all else to their own desire to monopolize the centre of the stage, that no matter how clever that may be, the play becomes top-heavy by the preponderance of one man or woman. The big individual hit of the piece is scored by Mr. Carle, but aside from his personal success in the role of Marcus Orlando Kidder, a comic opera impressario, stranded with the remnants of his troupe in Japan, the strongest artistic impressions are made by three women—Miss Emma Janvier, Miss Cecilia Rhoda and Miss Hortense Mazurette. Miss Janvier, as Madame Stitch, achieves a character portrayal that reminds one of Mrs. Annie Yeamans' work in her halcyon days. Miss Rhoda, who plays the leading comedian, is a pretty girl with a voice of decided quality. She has been playing in England for the last four years, and while spending her vacation in this country last summer was engaged by Mr. Carle for her present part. Miss Hortense Mazurette, who sings the prima donna role, possesses a voice which in quality and volume is unequalled on the light musical stage. Her vocal organ is exceptional, inasmuch as it is a mezzo-contralto, and at the present time is the only voice on the stage to come under this classification. One of the distinugishing features of the new Carle opera is its decided class. "The Mayor of Tokio" is a compromise between musical comedy and light opera.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Tickets for the Y. M. C. A. orchestral concert to be repeated Tuesday, October 24, may be obtained at drug stores without charge. A silver offering will be received at the box office.

—The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with Mrs. W. W. Howland, of 76 Rockview avenue, if pleasant, but if stormy, with Mrs. William de W. Miller, 309 East Seventh street.

—The work of making improvements at the old Spicer and Hubbard mill property at Madison avenue and West Third street, has been started by the new owners of the Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Company.

Dunellen Republicans' Literature.

The literature being put out by the Republicans of Dunellen is cutting, and is possibly intended to skin the Democratic candidate for Mayor as completely as was the Republican nominee when he was caught in the Westfield wreck.—Newark News.

Harold Durar, of Netherwood, is detained at home with a sprained ankle.

By virtue of the above stated writ, to me directed, I shall expose for sale, by public vendue, at the Sheriff's Office, in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., on

WEDNESDAY, THE FIFTEENTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1905,

at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all those two tracts of land situate, lying and being in the City of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey.

First Tract: Known as Lot No. Eight (8) on a certain map made by F. A. Dunham, Civil Engineer, for William Cortwright, November, 1887, as filed in the office of the County Clerk for Union County, New Jersey, having a frontage of thirty (30) feet on Fourth Street and one hundred and fifty-seven (157) feet on each side line and thirty (30) feet in the rear, with all the rights and privileges of said Fourth Street as a public highway.

Second Tract: Beginning at a point in the southeasterly side of West Fourth Street distant one hundred (100) feet northeasterly from the northeasterly side of Plainfield Avenue being a corner of L. E. Hart's land, now or formerly, thence running in a southeasterly course parallel with Plainfield Avenue and along the rear line of lots fronting on Plainfield Avenue and now or formerly owned by Hart, Coddington and Kitchen, and land of William Cortwright, one hundred and fifty-seven (157) feet more or less to a stake in direct range with the rear line of other lands of said Conway; thence northeasterly and parallel with West Fourth Street eighteen (18) feet more or less to the southerly corner of said Conway's other lands, thence northwesterly and along the line of said Conway one hundred and fifty-seven (157) feet more or less to the southeasterly side of West Fourth street; thence southwesterly along the southerly side of West Fourth Street nineteen and two one-hundredths (19.02) feet to the place of beginning, with all the rights and privileges of said West Fourth street as a public highway. Being a portion of lots 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 on Map of Desirable Building Lots on Plainfield Avenue, Fourth and Fifth Streets, Property of William Cortwright, Plainfield, N. J., November, 1887, on file in the Clerk's Office of Union County.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

FASHION JUST AT PRESENT.

A stylish automobile coat is shown in a deep red taffeta made waterproof. The garment is cut with a deep yoke back and front. The body and skirt are box pleated and hang full from the yoke. The sleeves are voluminous and are finished with a wide turn back cuff. The collar is in the high storm effect. Two rows of dark pearl buttons form the trimming.

A stylish model for a young girl is shown in royal blue velvet. The skirt is fitted close with clusters of fine fan pleats at the front and side seams. The eton blouse is trimmed with collar, revers and cuffs of ermine.

In children's fashions an attractive modification of the "Buster Brown" modes is shown in dark green cheviot with linen collar, silk tie, and a patent leather belt. The style is an excellent one for little folks, and can be worn either with bloomers or petticoats.

A dainty and useful little garment for a child in the cool autumn days is a house sack of baby blue cashmere, cut with a long tab collar and bishop sleeves. The edges are buttonhole and fancy stitched in white.

A pretty Russian frock is shown in albatross of hydrangea blue. Bands of darker silk and small steel buttons form the trimming.

An attractive afternoon toilette is fashioned in melon rose pink voile. The skirt is laid in soft bok pleats. The bodice is cut in directoire style with deep pleats reaching over the shoulders and forming revers. Venice lace is used in the construction of the chemisette and collar and deep elbow cuffs. Fancy buttons form the trimming with a touch of black velvet at the throat to relieve it.

DON'TS FOR WOMEN.

Don't alight from a car when it is stationary. Wait until it is going some and then jump off backward.

Don't look appealingly at a man, expecting him to give you his seat. Sit on his lap.

Don't hand the conductor anything less than a $1 bill. It might jar him into insensibility.

Don't fail to occupy one of the three rear seats. The smokers can walk.

Don't rise to depart until the car has come to a full stop, especially if it is crowded. The other passengers are in no hurry.

Don't stare at the young men in the car. You have no idea how embarrassing it is to them.

Don't swear or blaspheme or otherwise misconduct yourself. Remember there are usualy one or two old sports or ribald young men on the car, and it would shock them terribly.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MRS. WILLIAMSON BACK.

County Probation Officer Arrives from Budapest.

Elizabeth, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, probation officer of Union county, and one of the foremost women in the State in charitable work, arrived Friday in Boston from Budapest, where during the summer she has represented, in company with several other women, the United States at the International Prison conference. She is expected in this city today. Mrs. Williamson will give a reception next Friday night to the officers and delegates of the State Federation of Women's Club, which will hold its annual convention here Friday and Saturday.

Arrangements for the meeting are in the hands of Mrs. David Miller, arrangements; Mrs. Charles J. Silvers, luncheon; Mrs. William B. Hamilton, decorations; Miss Julia Mackey, registration; Mrs. C. N. Bingham, printing and sale of lunch tickets; Miss Wilding Bernie, waitresses; Mrs. John K. English, ushers; Mrs. Anna Whittemore, music, and Mrs. Henry C. Kiggins, check room.

Probably 250 delegates from every section of this State will be present at the meeting. When the delegates arrive they will be met at the trains by Mrs. Fred Woodruff, president of the W. A. S. Club and a staff of assistants.

Ministerial Union Formed.

A Warren county ministerial union has been formed. The officers are: President, Dr. Horace Butler, of Blairstown; secretary and treasurer, the Rev. F. G. Eland, of Washington. A special committee is now preparing a constitution, and the next meeting of the union will be held at the Washington Presbyterian church, November 6.

"Cop" No. 13 Is Brave.

Metuchen, Oct. 23.—John Breen has no fears or superstitions about "thirteen." He was appointed a policeman on Friday, October 13, and he is No. 13 on the force. His district is also No. 13, but for all that he says he does not believe in the "thirteen hoodoo," and he expects to attend strictly to business.

Women Ticket Choppers Fail.

The experiment of women ticket collectors on the New York side of the Edgewater ferry has proved a failure. Yesterday the two women who had been stationed there served their last day.

Mrs. Howard Williamson and Miss Fanny Field, of Bound Brook, have been visiting Mrs. George Strathie, of the borough.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

And so this sweet April morning, with a soft, languorous air playing about the wooded, sun-kissed heights, she had two such awfully nice young girls to cheer him, while she herself turned dutifully to another wounded officer, a youth in dark blue and gold who had been for over an hour a silent watcher of the merriment about Chilton's cot, while he, Fred Benton, sat lonely and longing to get far away.

It was not that they were cold, constrained or inconsiderate when speaking to him, but, the doctor had to be much away now; Lieut. Jack was always surrounded by his fair bodyguard; the one man Benton loved, his boon companion Paul, had gone to rejoin his regiment, and the one woman who could have made Benton's stay a world of strange, sweet, watching delight was beginning day after day to show less inclination to approach him at all. A fortnight of watching that beautiful dark face had done its work. Fred Benton was mending in body, but not in mind, for doubly now was he a prisoner.

And this April morning the news he heard had made him all the more restless and troubled. The federals were landing in force and marching on Yorktown, and Longstreet's whole command had been sent away, with others, to meet them. He doubted not that his old comrades of McDowell's corps would be in action ere ever he could reach them, and the thought drove his pulses up to fever heat again. Rosalie Chilton, without seeming to look, saw it in the flush of his anxious face.

"You will be having fever again, Mr. Benton," said she, and the cool, white hand that at first had arranged the bandages of his head and arm without a sign of hesitancy, seemed now to falter and shrink as though it had to be forced to an unwilling task. It stung Benton sore, for, man-like, he could read only one interpretation. How different had she been with Ladue when, for three days, he was feverish and headachy.

For several days after his capture it had been Benton's belief that Paul was concealed in the room Rosalie declared hers at the Henry house—the room sacred to her stricken brother—and not until after their coming to Charlottesville was he undeceived. There, one afternoon, the week before he went away, the young confederate was moved to refer to the matter mainly by seeing that it was a subject of which Benton fought shy.

"I had been with Miss Chilton and poor Jack some hours that morning," said he, "for the guard never came in the front part of the house, but she had ordered me to go and get some sleep in the afternoon, it having been fully determined that I should make the attempt to escape that night. Lying there in a sort of cat nap toward five o'clock, I heard the soldiers speak your name and could not resist the longing to see you. Then when you turned back I knew you had come to search and had plenty of time to flatten out between the joists and pull my section of the floor over me. You stamped on my nose with your spurred boot-heel, Fred, and I never winced."

So that ghost was laid, at least as far as Rosalie was concerned! But how about the other—the far more significant and now mysterious freak of clothing herself in Paul's uniform and slipping through the darkness of night to the stone house? For whose sake had she so carefully disguised, yet recklessly exposed herself? Not even her father had been told as yet. He had so confided to Benton only a day or two after Paul's departure, and now, with her growing shyness, aversion, or whatever it might be toward him, little likelihood was there, thought Benton, of his learning the secret from her lips, and that, too, when he was beginning to feel that he must know.

Every day for hours he could pace up and down the pretty, home-like garden, listening to the low chatter in the arbor, or the soft, bubbling laughter when "Jack's girls" were there. Of course the story of all his kindness to the doctor had been told, otherwise his presence would have been insupportable. But some one had said he was very handsome, very silent, very interesting, and that he couldn't keep his big blue eyes off Rosalie, and so there was much curiosity mingling with the stately little curtseys each in turn accorded him.

This April evening as he sat at the window awaiting the doctor's coming to look at his arm before tea-time, his eyes were attracted by the sight of a certain broad-brimmed drab felt hat that he had noted more than once before that day, passing along the fence at the side of the house where the hedge was thick and high. Now Fred Benton saw distinctly much of the form and some of the face beneath it, and face and form were those of a young and slender girl. She lifted up her eyes and looked full at the captive Yankee; then stopped short, glanced hastily about her; took from the bosom of her gown a little white note; held it high that he should see it; turned and walked back to the gateway. One moment she held her note aloft again, then lowered her hand as though working vigorously at the bricks, and when a second time she uplifted the hand the note was gone. Another moment and—so was she. Obviously, however, that girl wished him to mark the spot, then come down and get that note.

Not until the following morning came there opportunity. Then, while Jack in his latticed, vine-covered arbor was listening to the chatter of the new relief of his fair bodyguard, Benton stepped quickly to the gateway, and, after brief search, hauled aside a loose brick or two and found a tiny billet folded three-cornered, that when opened said:

"Be alert. Orders coming send you to Libby. Watch every morning and evening for further warning. Escape possible."

CHAPTER X.

LIBBY OR LIBERTY.

Then came three days of rain. And while McClellan's men were wallowing in the mud of the lower peninsula, held by the elements, not by the enemy—for Magruder's little force at Yorktown could not have stopped two divisions when led by a later day general of the Army of the Potomac—here about Charlottesville the wooded heights were draped in filmy mist, the mountain streams ran bank full, and Jack Chilton's bodyguard came on duty with blooming, rain-kissed cheeks.

Rosalie, secretly disturbed about her captive, as the girls called him, professed to think Mr. Benton ought to be glad to come downstairs and watch Brother Jack being worshipped—"it ought to make any man better to see how Virginia girls honor a Virginia soldier stricken while battling for his native state." Bull Run victims were few and far between now—either were they dead or again on duty—and Virginia girls by the hundred were longing to lavish smiles and sweetness and soothing potions, all in one, on Virginia lads shot or sabered in their defense. Time was soon, and far too soon, to come when every house and every room should be filled with the sore stricken, and there could be nowhere near enough girls to go around; but just now, in April, Charlottesville had but three wounded Southrons and one "Yank," and to the foremost of these Southrons all but a corps d'elite of Miss Chilton's choosing were denied admission. As to the Yank, no one of their number dare let another know how gladly would her charity have been extended—even to him. Of course, however, that was merely through curiosity.

OLD SCHOOL DOCTORS OPPOSE OSTEOPATHS

ORGANIZATION IS BEING PERFECTED TO INFLUENCE LEGISLATURE.

Physicians, druggists and dentists of Trenton started today a movement which is calculated to spread all over the State, to combine the forces of medicine and surgery against the threatened attack on the next Legislature by osteopaths, who want recognition from the law to practice their profession.

Those behind the movement here say that last winter there was no combined attack on the osteopath bills in the Legislature, and in consequence their bills nearly got through.

It is known that the osteopaths will make a determined effort to succeed this year, and the medical men of the old and established schools are seeking a closer organization to fight the granting of certificates of practice to osteopaths.

REV. MR. WALKER ORDAINED.

Many Clergymen Participate in Impressive Service.

As stated in Friday's issue the Rev. Robert T. Walker was advanced to the priesthood of the Episcopal church Friday morning at the Church of the Heavenly Rest. The service was impressive and well-attended. Fourteen vested clergy were in the chancel, the choir rendered a beautiful musical service, and the body of the church was filled with an appreciative congregation. The Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook preached an eloquent sermon from 2 Timothy I:12, "I know whom I have believed." He laid great stress on a personal knowledge of Christ as the key of success in all a clergyman's work and teaching.

The candidate was presented by the Rev. M. B. Nash, the head of the Associate Mission at Trenton. The litany was read by the Rev. Dr. H. H. Oberly, rector of Christ church, Elizabeth. The Rev. H. M. P. Pearse, of South Amboy, read the Epistle, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman, of Plainfield, read the Gospel. Bishop Scarborough proceeded with the ordination service, and the following clergy took part in the laying on of hands: The Revs. E. M. Rodman, E. V. Stevenson, O. A. Glazebrook, D. D., H. M. P. Pearse, William N. Baily, William H. Neilson, D. D., H. H. Oberly, D. D., M. B. Nash, J. M. Harding, W. R. Mulford, E. E. Miller, J. D. Ferguson and M. A. Craft.

At the communion service the Bishop dedicated a silver chalice and paten which had been presented to the church by the last will of a Somerville woman, and these vessels were used for the first time at this ordination service. The offering was for the Associate Mission at Trenton, on the staff of which the newly-ordained priest has been a valued worker.

After the service a liberal luncheon was served in the parish house by the ladies of the church.

PRIVATE BANK FAILS.

The Deficiency in Assets Will Not be More Than $5,000.

After an investigation that disclosed insolvency the New Jersey Department of Banking and Insurance, through two of its examiners, today assumed charge of the financial institutions of Michael Lujanovits, at Passaic and Boonton.

Lujanovits appears in the department's official reports as a private banker, being the only one of the kind in New Jersey.

The deficiency in assets will not be more than $4,000 or $5,000, but this shortage is apparently in the cash accounts. So many errors have been found in the books by the examiners that it has been impossible for them to submit a comprehensive and accurate report.

The report shows the resources to be $122,046.53, including mortgages and investments, stocks, bonds, etc. This, with the deficiency of $3,816.68, makes $125,863.21. The liabilities, including deposits payable on demand, deposits payable on time, collections, accrued interest, etc., are $125,863.22.

Will of William H. Murphy.

Large bequests to charitable and religious institutions are made in the will of William H. Murphy, which has been filed for probate in Newark. He was the father of former Governor Franklin Murphy. The largest bequests to institutions are $10,000 to the Drew Theological Seminary and $10,000 to the Centenary Fund and Preachers' Aid Society of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. Bequests to other institutions, relatives and friends of more than $60,000 are made, and there is a large residue.

Ship Owners Acquitted.

Trenton, Oct. 23.—Officials of the Hinchcliffe Steamboat Company were acquitted in the United States Court here today of a charge of violating the Federal statute limiting the number of passengers to be carried on an excursion steamer. It was alleged that the William Storie, playing between New York City and Midland Beach, carried, July 31, 1904, sixty-eight passengers in excess of the 828 allowed by the regulations. A forfeiture of $10 for each excess passenger was claimed.

HOBOKENS WON.

Royal Giants Defeated by Score of 3 to 2.

The Hobokens defeated the Royal Giants at St. George's Cricket Grounds yesterday by a score of 3 to 2. "Willie" Deegan was in great form, allowing the dusky braves but two hits, while the Hobokens secured nine singles off Andrews, the opposing pitcher. The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Hoboken ..0 0 1 1 0 1 0 0 x	3	9	5
Royal G. ..0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0	2	2	2

Batteries—Deegan and O'Neill; Andrews and Hawk.

Wiltse in Double-header.

"Lou' Wiltse pitched a double header yesterday for Brighton A. C., defeating the Philadelphia Giants in the first game by a score of 5 to 3. He held the colored team down to three hits. In the second game he pitched against the Brooklyn Nationals, Doescher opposing him. This game ended a tie, score 9 to 9. The Brooklyns only got eight hits off Wiltse. "Chief" Bender pitching for the Philadelphia Professionals, defeated the Ridgewoods, yesterday, by a score of 7 to 4. Linderman pitched for Rridgewood.

FIGHT FORECLOSURE.

Church of Christ Alleges That Second Mortgage Was Illegally Given.

Before Vice Chancellor Bergen, in the Council Chambers, Mrs. Emma Weigman, of West Front street, began action today to foreclose a second mortgage of $1,000 on the First Church of Christ, Grove street, which is owned by the American Christian Missionary Society. The church is fighting the foreclosure on the ground that the mortgage was illegally given, and without the consent of the proper church authorities.

The action is complicated by site issues. John Goodwin, one of the trustees of the church, is accused of withholding the church records, which, it is alleged, would prove the mortgage illegal. This was not tuoched upon at the hearing, which began at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and was still on at 3 o'clock.

S. S. Swackhamer is the church's counsel, and W. L. Hetfield, Sr., is the lawyer for the mortgagee.

A. O. H. SERVICE.

Special Vespers in St. Mary's Last Night.

Special vesper services for the Ancient Order of Hibernians were held at St. Mary's church last night, there being present members of the order throughout Union county to the number of about 300.

The processional was sung by the altar boys, followed by solemn vespers. Father Bogan was the celebrant, Father Delehanty the deacon, and Father Federici the sub-deacon. The boys sang "Veni Creator," preceding the sermon by Father Bogan. This was followed by the solemn benediction and the recessional, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a social in the church on Thursday night. A fine programme will be presented.

ESCAPING THIEF SHOT FARMER IN A RIVER

WM. H. HILL SHOT NEAR THE HEART BY FORMER EMPLOYE.

Somerville, Oct. 2.—A posse of farmers and the Somerset county authorities are searching for a farm-hand who shot William H. Hill, a well-to-do farmer of Blackwell's Mills, under peculiar circumstances on the Millstone River, ten miles from here, last evening. The man who did the shooting formerly worked for the farmer and was discharged several weeks ago. He returned to the home of his former employer while the family was at church yesterday morning and ransacked the house.

The farmer discovered the robbery yesterday afternoon and notified the Millstone Vigilant Society, which started out in pursuit of the thief. A detachment of the posse headed by the farmer who had been robbed came up with the thief near the Millstone River. The thief plunged into the river and the farmer pursued him in a boat. As the thief feigned drowning and threw up both his hands the farmer grabbed him by the collar of his coat and was about to pull him in the boat when the thief thrust a hand under the water, took a revolver from his coat pocket and shot him near the heart.

The farmer is reported to be in a critical condition.

IN THE SCHOOL ROOM

The annual inter-class and individual outdoor field meet of the Plainfield High School A. A. will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Plainfield Driving Club grounds. The contests promise to be well attended, as the results will undoubtedly be close. The prizes have been donated by the local newspapers.

Word was received by Manager J. W. Gavett, Jr., of the Plainfield High School football team, this morning from the management of the Bayonne High School team that the latter will be unable to play the local High School team next Wednesday, October 25. No reason was stated, but the Bayonne manager wishes the date to be changed to October 27. But as a game is scheduled for October 28, the next day, this date will probably not be accepted.

DEMOCRATS GET UNEASY.

Middlesex Ticket Injured by Refusals to Run on It.

New Brunswick, Oct. 23.—The leaders of the Democratic party in Middlesex county are becoming alarmed over the resignations from the Democratic ticket. There are now three withdrawals of the nominess from Perth Amboy, one of them being the nominee for Assembly on the county ticket. There are two factions in the Democratic party in Perth Amboy, with the result that the Republicans will gain many votes because of the fight among the Democrats. The Republican leaders in that city expect to poll a majority of 600, which, it is thought, will be enough to elect the Republican county ticket.

B. M. Gannon, nominated for the Assembly, was the first man to drop off, and the leaders have as yet failed to get a man to fill the vacancy. They must name some one by tomorrow, as that is the last day for the filing of certificates of nomination with the county clerk. Garret Brodhead was named by the Perth Amboy Democrats for the office of alderman at large, and he declined the honor. He was followed by James Growney, one of the three commisisoners of appeal, and these vacancies must be filled, as well as the county Assembly nomination.

The Democrats in Perth Amboy seem to be centering their fight in the Fourth and Sixth wards, where thye hope to elect their alderman. W. H. Quackenboss and Andrew S. Church, the nominees for sheriff, are making a personal canvass. Mr. Church, the Republican nominee, who was beaten nine years ago through sentiment aroused against him because of his connection with Washington Park, a dancing park, it is believed, will be elected this year, as many who voted against him at that election think he was wronged by the stories circulated about him then.

The Young Men's Republican Club here is making plans for a lively campaign. It has already held one meeting, at which Robert Carson and Prosecutor George Berdine made speeches, as well as Drury Cooper, the nominee for Mayor. A mass meeting will probably be held before election.

Injured Playing Football.

John Todd, a member of the Orange Field Club football eleven, sustained a severe injury to his left leg while playing on Saturday against the Dunellen team. Yesterday he was obliged to call a physician and it is thought that there may be water on the knee.

Mrs. William Holmes is at Atlantic City for the benefit of her health. She is accompanied by Miss Olga Lockert. They are registered at the Hotel De Villa.

—The street men have finished the work on New street.

GOTHAM MAYOR IN JERSEY.

McClellan Has Rented Dwelling at Princeton.

Princeton, Oct. 23.—Mayor McClellan for three weeks has been seeking an occasional haven of rest from his public duties and has rented a dwelling in Bayard lane, which he and his family generally occupy for a few days at the end of each week.

The McClellan residence is so near that of former President Grover Cleveland as to make the two almost next door neighbors, and nearly across the way lives Dr. Henry Van Dyke. Mr. McClellan feels at home in Princeton for the reason that he is a Princeton graduate and never has lost his longing for the campus air.

First Ice of Season.

Trenton, Oct. 23—Ice, for the first time this season, made its appearance early yesterday morning. The thermometer registered 38 degrees at 6 a. m. yesterday. At noon it was 54 and 50 at 6 p. m. Late last night the mercury had gone down to 46. The Delaware is much higher than usual for this time of year and arose considerably yesterday. A slight west wind blew all of yesterday. The thermometer Saturday morning was 43 degrees. At 2 p. m. it had risen to 54, and at 6 p. m. registered 58 degrees.

Krom Machinery Arriving.

Ten carloads of machinery for the Krom factory, which is to be located in the former Aluminum shop at North avenue and Berckman street, arrived Saturday and will be put in place at once. Ten more loads are expectd toward the last of the week, all coming from the present plant at Jersey City.

CONFIRMED 80 CHILDREN.

Bishop McFaul Pays Visit to St. Joseph's.

Bishop McFaul, of the Trenton diocese, visited St. Joseph's church yesterday morning and confirmed a class of eighty children. He was assisted in the ceremonies by his secretary, Rev. Father Powers; Rev. Father Terrell, of Rahway, and Rev. Fathers Bogan and Schandel, of this city. The exercises were largely attended and at their conclusion Bishop McFaul congratulated the class and also the choir of St. Joseph's church for its conformation with the Pope's wishes in the rendition of the musical part of services.

In the afternoon the bishop went to Stony Hill, where he confirmed another class at that place.

Ostrich Was Obstinate.

Though it gave a good exhibition of running, the ostrich "Jacksonville" did not finish its race with a horse at the Driving Park Saturday afternoon. The bird became obstinate and refused to run more than a short distance at a time. It was the first time it had ever acted in this manner and the owner will make another attempt in this city in the spring.

Auction Sale of Furniture.

Auctioneer Latourette will conduct a sale of household furniture at 648 Belvidere avenue, tomorrow morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. The lot includes a handsome Chickering, square piano.

Miss Margaret Harding, of John street, has been very ill for the past three weeks.

Mrs. P. A. McVoy, of East Front street, returned home yesterday after a week's visit to relatives in Brooklyn.

AIRING POLICE AFFAIRS

Ousted Committee to Have Something to Say at Special Meeting Tonight.

IT MAY BE WARM

Rumor That Voluminous Report Will Be Presented—May Attempt to Block Mayor's Commission.

Another special meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight and this time there will be "something doing," for the police department is to get an airing. As stated in yesterday's Daily Press, the councilmanic police committee, which was deposed by Mayor Buckle, is not altogether satisfied that the new police commission has the full powers over the department, and it may hold up the bills.

A lengthy report will be made by the ousted committee, it is said, and it is quite likely that the management of the police department will be severely attacked. The story of the raid on John Goff's alleged speakeasy may also come out at tonight's meeting. At any rate, there is going to be a warm meeting.

It is further stated that the police committee has obtained legal advice as to its rights and jurisdiction and will proceed in accordance with it. The police commissioners appointed by Mayor Buckle have not been ignorant of the movements of the police committee, and, it is said, are prepared to meet any action that may be taken.

The first intimation of opposition to the appointment of police commissioners by Mayor Buckle was learned when the Mayor communicated with the Common Council concerning his action and offered individual bonds for each commissioner. At that time the Common Council laid the communication on the table, where it has remained ever since. By this action the members showed that at the time they did not want to recognize the Mayor in what he had done, and the disposition of the matter at tonight's special session will be watched with interest.

SUNDAY GOLF PARTY NAMES A COMMITTEE

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING SHOWS DETERMINATION TO FIGHT FOR INNOVATION

Members of the Plainfield Country Club, at a meeting held in the Casino last night, decided to go ahead and do all in their power to secure the privileges of Sunday golf, either on the course of the Plainfield Country Club or in the establishment of a new course, and a committee was appointed to take charge of the matter and do whatever is thought best. There was an animated discussion of the question, it being the general opinion that Sunday golf should be permitted under proper restrictions.

This action follows a previous effort made to amicably adjust the differences between those opposing and those favoring Sunday golf. A committee was appointed by each faction and a meeting was held. After thoroughly discussing all points of the question, it was found that no agreement could be reached. Those opposed to Sunday golf would concede nothing, while those in favor were persistent in their claims for recognition. When it was learned that it was useless to argue, the conference was called off and the meeting for last night was arranged.

As previously stated in The Daily Press, it is the intention of those in favor of Sunday golf to either secure these privileges at the Plainfield Country Club and, failing, to take steps toward establishing a new course. It is said that there are a sufficient number of members ready to put up the necessary money for a new course and clubhouse, and judging by last night's action this will probably be done, as those who oppose Sunday golf declare that they will not give in.

Druggists to Feast.

The Union County Druggists' Association will hold its regular meeting at the Hotel Iroquois at 7:30 o'clock tonight, and after the business, the Plainfield Druggists' Association will tender a banquet. The banquet is called for 9:30 o'clock and all of the local pharmacies will close at that hour for tonight only.

Married at Manse.

Miss Florence Kean and Benjamin F. Scribner, of East Second street, were married Saturday night by Rev. J. O. McKelvey at his home on Grandview avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Deter, also of East Second street, attended the bride and groom. The couple will reside on East Second street.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS TO HOLD CONFERENCE HERE

IMPORTANT ADDRESS BY PEACE SOCITY SECRETARY ON THE PROGRAM.

Members of the Society of Friends from all over this section will gather in the Watchung avenue meeting house on November 25, when the conference of the association will be held.

There is much of unusual interest in the approaching conference. Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, of Boston, secretary of the American Peace Society and a delegate to the recent Peace Congress at Lucerne, Switzerland, will deliver an important address. His subject will be "The Present Status of International Arbitration."

The general subject of the conference, "Preparation for Service in the Society of Friends at the Woodbrooke Settlement in England." Eleanor Wood and Arthur M. Dewees, both recent students at Woodbrooke, will speak.

Y. M. C. A. ORCHESTRA BEGINS NEW SEASON

WARMLY WELCOMED BY A LARGE AUDIENCE OF MUSIC LOVERS'

There was no lack of warmth in the welcome extended to the Y. M. C. A. orchestra upon its opening of the new season last night. The association hall was filled with music lovers, and unstinted applause greeted every number of a delightful programme.

Martin A. Korff continues to lead the organization, and his success is undiminished. He got the best there was in his musicians last night, without apparent effort, and their best was very good indeed. There are thirty-seven pieces in the orchestra this year, more than in past seasons.

The programme was not particularly light, but there were no forbiddingly heavy numbers. The soloists were Carl B. Haynes, a baritone, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., who sang two numbers, and DeWitt Frazee, cornetist. Mr. Haynes was markedly successful with Hamill's "The World is Full of Sunshine," singing with a power and melodic force that won continued applause. Mr. Frazee played "The Great White Throne" with his usual force and skill.

The programme in full:

Entr'acte, "Phantasca," Adolph Wirz; seclections (a) "Peer Gynt," "Ase's Death," Grieg; (b) Morceau, "A Summer Dream," Hans Flath; baritone solo (a) "Tit for Tat," Henry Pontet; (b) "Sing Me to Sleep," Edwin Greene; violin obligato by George Speir; intermozzo, valse, "Voice of the Flowers," L. O. Smith; march, "Yankiana," E. E. Loftis. Part Two—March, "Yankee Grit," A. Holzmann; overture "Titania," Hildreth; selection from "Tannhauser," "Evening Star" and "Alegro Marcia," R. Wagner; string orchestra; baritone solo (a) "The World is Full of Sunshine," Hamill; (b) "Sleep Little Baby of Mine," Charles Dennee; Carl B. Haynes, accompanied by orchestra; cornet solo, "The Great White Throne," L. O. Smith, Mr. Frazee and orchestra.

The concert will be repeated tomorrow night.

RALLY PLANS.

Concert Will Precede the Big Republican Ratification Meeting.

Plans for the big Republican ratification and mass meeting to be held next Wednesday night at the theatre are practically complete. It will be a great rally.

Speeches by Senator John Kean, Congressman Fowler and Ernest R. Ackerman are assured, and it is likely that Governor Stokes will also be a speaker. The Governor has been urged to come, and is understood to be in favor of appearing here, but no reply has yet been received to the invitation extended to him. Positive statements that he will speak here are premature, but the managers of the meeting are very hopeful of having him on the platform on the great night.

A half hour before the meeting begins, at 7:30 o'clock, there will be a concert by a brass band. Seats will be reserved for women, and a large number of them are expected to attend.

Talk on Wyoming Missions.

Rev. George Mooney, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will attend the meeting of the Women's Home Mission Society of the church this afternoon and give a talk on his missionary experiences in Wyoming, where he lived for two years. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Pound, of West Sixth street.

CITS' CHARGE DENIED

Charles A. Reed Answered Statements as to Payments to Himself and the Mayor

SOME OTHER SPEECHES

Former Councilmen Peter A. Peters, Capt. W. C. Smith, and Mayor Smalley Talk at Good Government Club Meeting.

At a meeting of the Borough Republican Good Government Club held in the rooms on Somerset street, last night, Charles A. Reed took occasion to explain to the voters how much was facts in the recent statements by Citizens of the money payments to himself and Mayor Smalley. Mr. Reed showed just how North Plainfield and Somerset county had received dollar for dollar in either work or services for all expenditures, and that the contracts A. I. Smalley & Co. were awarded were secured in competition with other bidders. Other addresses touching on the same matter were given by Mayor Smalley, Peter A. Emmons and Captain William C. Smith. Mr. Reed's address in part was as follows:

In the statement of pretended facts recently read at a meeting held by the "Citizens," and published in Saturday's issue of their "organ," another attempt is made to deceive the voters in regard to the expenditures of borough funds.

The impression apparently sought to be given is that moneys belonging to the fire department have been wrongfully "diverted" and that Smalley and Reed, in some mysterious and reprehensible manner have succeeded in abstracting from the public treasury something like $22,000.

The statement is cunningly worded, as is usual with insinuations emanating from that source. It is so constructed that its author may deny that he said what his reader would naturally understand that he meant. But the impression apparently sought to be given is as far from the truth as possible.

The plain facts are that the Council expended on the volunteer fire department, including the lot and building, during the years 1899-1904, inclusive, nearly $4,000 more than the total so-called "appropriations," instead of $3,400 less, as alleged by the "Citizens."

In addition to the amounts shown under the head of "Fire Department" in the annual borough report for 1903, there was a disbursement on October 24, 1902, of $2,500 for purchase of the lot. In 1903 there was spent, in addition to the regular fire department account, $9,459.42 on the engine house (See 1904 report). In 1904 there was also spent, in like addition, $5,924.23 (See 1905 report). The net cost of the new engine house and lot, after deducting the receipt for sale of brick, etc., was $17,289.65.

Toward meeting this cost bonds were issued to the amount of $10,000. They sold at a premium and brought $10,100. This left a balance of $7,198.65 paid on account of the fire department out of the borough treasury. Add this to the amount of the disbursements shown in the ordinary fire department account by the reports for 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903 and 1904, $5,822.23, and you have a total expenditure over and above the bonds of $13,020.88. The Citizens claim that the total proposals for the same years was $9,200. Admit that to be true and we find that there was spent on the fire department $3,820 more than the "appropriations."

And yet the "Citizens" try to make the public believe that $3,400 was "diverted" during Mayor Smalley's administration from funds belonging to the fire department.

It is another case of "Honeymanism."

The Citizens also charge that I have received some $7,000 from the borough, and seem to believe that I got it wrongfully. It is true that I have been corporation counsel for about eighteen years. My salary is $350 per year. Multiply 350 by 18 and you will have $6,300. For a number of years I was attorney for the Board of Health, and received the magnificent salary of $75 per year. Mr. Swackhamer has that job now and he knows that I earned the money. During my service as corporation counsel most of the important ordinances were drawn or revised. Some have been tested in the courts. The borough has had some important business. It has never been beaten in a law suit in all that time. Eighteen years salary added together may sound like a large sum, but it was all well earned and the borough, I believe, has paid less for legal services in that eighteen years than any other town of its size and with its business in the State. It is said that the City of Plainfield pays its corporation counsel $2,000 per year.

BOROUGH'S GALA NIGHT

Exempt Firemen Arranging For Big Time On Hallowe'en.

PARADE A FEATURE

Everybody Invited to Participate—Supper and Entertainment at Club House to Follow.

Plans for the big Hallowe'en celebration to be conducted by the North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association next Tuesday night, are rapidly being consummated, and from present indications it will be one of the most unique affairs the borough has seen in a long time. John Shroop, who has the arrangements in charge, has already received the names of 300 persons who will participate, wearing masks and oddish costumes. Entries are not restricted and anyone in outlandish rig will be welcomed. The more "crazy" the dress of the crowd, the better the committee will appreciate it.

Music for the occasion is to be furnished by the Crescent Band, of Raritan, numbering twenty-four pieces, and two local drum corps. A delegation of fifty men from the Prideville section has asked for a place in line and will come with its own music. Other sections will also come well represented, while the exempt firemen themselves will have several surprises in the way of interesting features. It is possible that some of the borough merchants will have floats in line and if the affair proves a big success it is not improbable that it will be made an annual event, as is done in many other cities.

The parade is to start from in front of Exempt headquarters, Somerset street and Manning avenue, at 8:30 and will traverse the borough's most important thoroughfares. The route has not yet been fully prepared, but will be made known in a few days. At the termination of the open-air demonstrations, adjournment will be made to the club rooms, where supper will be served and an entertainment provided. Admittance to this part is to be limited strictly to those who take part in the procession and wear masks.

For the programme a fine arry of artists has been secured. Several well known local people will provide vocal and instrumental music and imported talent from New York and Brooklyn will add professional touches.

SERVICE FOR THE DEAD.

Annual Ceremony in St. Mary's Sunday Afternoon.

The annual ceremony for the dead will be held at St. Mary's cemetery on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This memorial service has been held annually for many years. The date for the observance this year is on November 2, but inasmuch as there are many people who would be unable to sacrifice the time to attend on that day, it has been arranged to hold it on Sunday afternoon.

Members of the Catholic faith from all thte nearby towns will join in the service. Father Bogan, of St. Mary's church, will be in charge, assisted by other priests.

Mission Study Leaders.

The first meeting of the Mission Study Classes of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held in the chapel on Friday night at 8 o'clock. Classes have been arranged as follows: Japan, leader, A. C. Maclay; Africa, leader, Miss Scribner; Home Missions, leaders, Miss Munger, Mrs. Edgar Williams, L. R. Hopton and Howard Williams. The missionary committee is fortunate in having secured a generous equipment of maps, pictures and reference books, and the outlook is bright for an interesting term. All young people of the church and congregation are invited to join these classes.

Will Arrest Truck Jumpers.

The local firemen have again been greatly bothered by men catching on the apparatus when it is responding to alarms, and Chief Doane has emphasized his instructions to have all outsiders arrested found on any of the trucks. The drivers are to hand over to the police very person they detect jumping on the apparatus, whether it is going to a fire of returning to the houses. An instance where the practice might have cost a life was witnessed at Second street and Park avenue last night, when a colored man attempted to catch hold of the hook and ladder truck and was dragged nearly fifty feet.

Sewer Stoppage.

A stoppage of the East Seventh street sewer, at a point just east of Scott avenue, was detected last Saturday. The stoppage was remedied immediately. It occurred at a point where difficulty had been encountered by the contractor in testing the sewer.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP LIGHT

Councilmanic Committee to be Bureau of Information in Present Campaign.

COUNCIL TO HELP

Anything a Voter Wants to Know About Municipal Ownership of Water Works Can Be Learned from Public Affairs Com.

Believing that questions may arise concerning the proposed vote at the coming city election regarding the water question, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh had a provision incorporated in a call for last night's special meeting of the Common Council authorizing the public affairs committee to take charge of that part of the election and give such information as voters may desire.

The chairman of the committee on public affairs, Councilman Stephen A. Higham, stated last night that prior to coming to the meeting he had no knowledge of the provision being in the call, and thought it strange that he had not been acquainted with the action. Mr. Higham said that he was willing and anxious to do all in his power to help the matter along and give such information as any voter might desire. Inquiry among the members of the public affairs committee showed that not a single member knew anything about the provision inserted in the call.

President Daniel stated that he did not believe that Mr. Marsh had placed any great significance in the matter, other than that he wanted to make provision for any questions that might arise. He felt sure that Mr. Marsh would be willing to assist the committee in any way possible. Mr. Daniel said further that there were certain questions bound to arise regarding this election, as many people do not know exactly what the adoption of the water question would mean, whether it would compel the city to buy the present water plant or establish a new plant or take any one of a dozen different steps which might arise in their minds.

Mr. Daniel stated that Mr. Marsh had informed him that so far as he knew all necessary legal steps had been taken and the statute complied with. Mr. Tyler suggested that the corporation counsel be asked to assist the committee on public affairs, but Mr. Daniel said that he thought Mr. Marsh would do this if requested by the committee.

After the call for the meeting was read, Mr. Higham introduced a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the committee on public affairs to take charge of the election on Tuesday, November 7, in reference to the water question. The vote on this question will determine whether the people want the Common Council to investigate the desirability of acquiring the water supply.

J. Stephen Higham, H. D. Hibbard, Theodore D. Wilson, W. S. Tyler and Clarence L. Murphy comprise the members of the committee on public affairs.

The other matter referred in the call for the meeting was the tax ordinance, and on motion by Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, it was adopted on final reading.

MUST SUPPORT WIFE.

Erring Husband Put Under Bond by Judge Runyon—Second Arrest.

When John Thompson was arraigned in the city court for non-support of his wife early in September, Judge Runyon suspended sentence for thirty days to give him a chance to do better. Last night Mrs. Thompson reported at police headquarters that her husband had continued in the same way, neglecting her and their four small children completely and drinking up all his earnings in saloons.

Thompson was arrested within a half hour and spent the night in jail. This morning Judge Runyon put him under a $200 bond to pay his wife $5 or go to the county jail.

Got Her Rug Back.

Mrs. Mishler, of 809 Kensington avenue, telephoned to police headquarters yesterday afternoon that a $40 rug had disappeared from her backyard, where she laid it to air. She seemed a lot put out, and Chief Kiely hurried Cops Higgins and Kelly to the Mishler yard. After a few minutes of sleuthing the cops found the rug in the yard two doors below. Dogs had probably dragged it there.

Rev. A. E. Finn Honored.

Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was elected secretary and treasurer of the Baptist convention yesterday. This convention has been in session since Monday and will close tomorrow night with a banquet and social time.

MISS ELSBERG THROWN FROM HER CARRIAGE

PAINFULLY INJURED, BUT PLUCKILY STOPS RUNAWAY IN ROADWAY.

Miss Daisy Elsberg, of Willow avenue, was painfully injured in a driving accident yesterday afternoon. Her escape from serious injury was very narrow.

The accident occurred on East Ninth street. In turning her runabout around Miss Elsberg lost her balance and was thrown out. She was cut about the face and arms, but pluckily held to the reins. The horse started to run, but Miss Elsberg clung to the reins determinedly and brought the runaway to a halt after being dragged nearly 100 feet in the roadway.

The wagon was not damaged much and Miss Elsberg drove home without assistance. Her injuries were dressed by a physician at the house.

REV. G. M. SHOTT FOR LYONS FARM

FORMER PASTOR OF SCOTCH PLAINS ACCEPTS A CALL.

Rev. G. M. Shott, formerly pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, who preached in the Lyons Farms Baptist church the last four Sundays, has accepted a call to the latter church. At a recent meeting of the officers and congregation, a unanimous call was extended to him. He will succeed Rev. Thomas Edwin Vassar, Jr., who resigned to become pastor of the Holmdel Baptist church. Mr. Shott has been in the ministry thirty years. His first charge was at Newport, Ky, where he was ordained. He has also filled pulpits in West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, New York and New Jersey.

In West Virginia he built the Fairmount Baptist church. He was president of the Young People's Baptist Union of West Virginia. While he was pastor of the North Baptist church of New York City, he was successful in uniting that congregation and the McDougall Street church. During his four years as pastor of the Scotch Plains church he instituted the temperance society which is still in existence. Mr. Shott's family consists of himself, a wife and two children, who moved during the past week to the parsonage on Lyons avenue. This week he will attend the eighth annual session of the New Jersey Baptist Pastors' Conference, which will be held in the Central Baptist church at Elizabeth. Arrangements will be made by the elders and trustees of the church to hold an installation service at an early date in November, at which time he will be installed as pastor.

TRINITY C. E. COMMITTEES.

President Young Names Those to Serve for Coming Year.

Edmund D. Young, the newly-elected president of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church, announced his appointment of the various committees for the ensuing year, at the meeting of the society, last night. The committees are as follows:

Lookout and visiting—Mrs. Harry F. Crawford, chairman; Charles M. Dolliver, Miss Eliza Dufford, Miss Ella C. Benedict, Horace J. Martin, Sr. Prayer meeting—Miss Sadie M. Searing, chairman; Edgar F. Sheppard, Miss Minnie Young, A. H. VanArsdale, Mrs. Sidney Frazee. Social and reception—Miss Harriett Randall, chairman; Miss Anna Randall, Miss Lucy Coriell, Miss Minnie Wyman, Henry Seader, William Kriney. Sunday-school—F. E. Smith, chairman; Mrs. J. P. D. Kirch, Miss Anna Searing, William Latourette. Missionary—Philip A. Vroom, chairman; Miss Dollie Bolsterle, Miss Mabel Scribner, Miss Bessie Randall, Frank Bach. Temperance—Harry F. Crawford, chairman; Miss Kate Bodine, Miss Anna Bodine, Miss Mabel Wilson, William F. Oliver. Flower—Miss Lyda Wyman, chairman; Mrs. William Tunison, Miss Edith Leek, Miss Delia Dufford. Music—Miss May Randolph, chairman; Miss Eva Dunavan, Miss Abbie E. VanCleef, Mrs. Edmund D. Young, Mrs. F. J. Huff.

Wanted Peanuts for Nothing.

Charles Gorman bought a pint of peanuts at Tony Lusardi's stand last night and refused to pay for them. He had a cantankerous drunk on and raised a fuss until Patrolman Martin pinched him. He was fined $5 or twenty days in jail this morning. He hadn't secured he five up to noon.

—The celebrated White Label canned goods are the best in the market—everybody says so. Neuman Brothers sell them and quote a special price for a dozen or more cans.

ALFRED MARSH WEDS.

Miss Mary Frances Bittle Is His Bride.

Miss Mary Frances Bittle, of West Second street, and Alfred Berry Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, were quietly married last night at the parsonage of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, by the pastor, Rev. George Mooney. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bittle.

The groom is employed at the Potter Press Works, and was formerly a prominent member of Hope Y. M. A. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will reside on West Second street.

A $75 BLAZE.

Gas Stove the Cause of a Fire at the Home of Albert Wilson.

A gas stove at the home of Albert Wilson, of West Fourth street, near Plainfield avenue, set fire to a table, in the absence of the family early last night, and started a good-sized blaze. It had communicated to a window and was burning the sash when discovered. An alarm was turned in from box 34 and the department put out the flames with extinguishers.

The damage will probably reach $75 and is fully covered by insurance.

Alex Kape's Troubles.

The contract case of Van Orden against Alexander Kane, which was to have been tried before Justice Nash yesterday afternoon, was adjourned for one week. It is another chapter in the history of troubles of the Fillmore Baptist church. The complainant claims that he was under contract to Mr. Kane to do certain work and that the latter broke his contract. He alleges that $30 is due him. On the other hand, Mr. Kane says that he engaged Mr. Van Orden by the day and had the right to discharge him at any time he saw fit.

Trolley Rowdy Fined.

George Allen ran into the stringent ruling on trolley car disorder recently established by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. He was charged with being disorderly on a late main line car Sunday night, and the conductor, B. L. Cramer, was present to press the complaint. Allen was fined $5, and heard some bold truths about his conduct.

Guttridge-Gaddis Nuptials.

The wedding of Miss Grace Elizabeth Gaddis, daughter of Mrs. William Gaddis, of Regent street, to Robert Leonard Guttridge, of South avenue, takes place this evening at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony will be witnessed by a gathering of relatives and friends.

Explosion Victims Recovering.

Miss Mary Brown and her sister, Mrs. L. C. Hurtt, who were injured in the explosion at the former's cleaning establishment, Friday, were reported today as doing nicely. Both have been very weak since Saturday and though suffering greatly, their eventual recovery is assured.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Arrangements for the revival campaign are practically complete. The services will begin next Sunday night in the Methodist church. They will continue there Monday and Tuesday nights, and on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights in the Presbyterian church. On Sunday night and all the week following they will be held in the Baptist church, and during the week after that in the Presbyterian church. The next week Evangelist Birch and Mrs. Birch will take charge of the campaign for two weeks.

Owing to delay in getting out printed matter, the concert to have been given by the Sagamore Club, of Plainfield, at the Presbyterian church next Thursday night, has been indefinitely postponed. It is not likely that the affair will be held now until after the evangelistic services.

The landlord and tenant action of Elias Baily against Walter Elliott was settled in Justice Von Minden's court yesterday morning, by the payment of the rent and costs. The premises are in the township.

W. M. Dealaman has been spending a few days in the Pocono mountains on business. He was looking for potatoes primarily, but combined business with pleasure.

Otto Muller was among those who played at the Y. M. C. A. orchestra concert in Plainfield last night. He will appear in the repetition of the concert tonight.

Charles James, a pattern maker at the Plate and Press Works, is nursing a mashed hand, the result of an accident while at work in the shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Burke and Mrs. Frank Burke were guests at the wedding of Mr. Burke's brother in Carteret last week.

A new gravel covering has been laid between the rails at the borough depot.

Miss Carrie Heyl has been entertaining Miss Julia Fern, of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Fowler Vail has returned from a stay with friends in Newark.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The announcement that Harper, Hollingsworth and Darby intended retiring from business during the coming month came as a surprise to the residents here. Some of the employes of the firm have been with them for nearly a quarter of a century.

The marriage of Robert Guttridge and Miss Grace Giddes, of North Plainfield, takes place tonight at the bride's home. Upon their return from their wedding trip they will reside in the Marsh flats over Mr. Guttridge's meat market.

George Ogden, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital under treatment for painter's colic, has returned home much improved, although still confined to his home.

The lovers of good music will enjoy a treat tonight by attending the concert given by the Plainfield Symphony Club in the auditorium of the Baptist church.

The boys in town last night serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Whitenack, whose marriage was announced in last night's Daily Press.

The Commissioners of Appeal meet in the town rooms tomorrow for the purpose of listening to your troubles, if you have any.

James Hunt, of the borough, who has been visiting his old home at Long Branch, has returned home.

Mrs. William Sharp has been spending a week with relatives in New York.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The home of Harry Sofield came near burning yesterday morning, when the sofa in the living room in some accidental way took fire. Neighbors being called in, soon put out the fire.

J. A. Cubberley is attending the Baptist State Missionary convention being held at Elizabeth.

Prayer meeting will be held as usual at the church this evening at 7:30.

The Potter Press Works Mutual Aid Association elected new officers at a meeting Saturday night. William Gamble was made treasurer in place of Samuel Humpston.

Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Liquid Cream Balm is becoming quite as popular in many localities as Ely's Cream Balm solid. It is prepared for use in atomizers, and is highly prized by those who have been accustomed to call upon physicians for such treatment. Many physicians are using and prescribing it. All the medicinal properties of the celebrated Cream Balm are contained in the Liquid form, which is 75 cts., including a spraying tube. All druggists, or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivaled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

For first class plumbing go to John J. Leahy, of Richmond street. Prices always right.

It is only after a Turkish bath that your system feels just right. Brookside Sanitarium, Somerset street.

Give M. D. O'Keeffe, West Fourth street, your carpentering work to be done right and at a reasonable cost.

F. J. Huff, Esq., the lawyer, promptly attends to all legal matters left in his charge, such as searching titles, settling estates, etc.

Express orders entrusted to A. E. Hoagland are always executed just as the sender instructs. Reliability is the keynote of the Hoagland system.

O. M. Dunham, of Park avenue, has a full line of the latest style hats, also men's furnishings of all kinds. His goods are the dependable kind.

Putnam & DeGraw are advertising a fine line of men's negligee shirts, hosiery for men, women and children and outing flannels and flannelettes.

The nursery stock at W. H. Forrestel's Belleview establishment affords you a wide variety in making selections. He has an especially new lot of trees, shrubs and plants.

Why risk everything that poor milk can bring about in the state of your health when it is so easy to get good and pure milk by ordering of Marchant Bros., North avenue.

I. Goldberg, of Somerset street, the New York ladies' tailor, guarantees perfect fit and entire satisfaction. His patrons number many of the city's best known residents.

Timbo, of North avenue, is the man who caters to the inner man. There is a uniform excellence in the meals served here. A full line of cigars and tobaccos always in stock.

If you wish to enjoy breakfast, have H. A. Voehl, the Somerset street baker, leave some fresh rolls at your door each morning. They are the kind that you hear the people talk about.

For the very best cigars—the kind that are real Havanas, and not cheap imitations—call at J. P. Kirch's North avenue tobacco emporium. His stock is one of the largest to be found outside the metropolis.

Trade at S. C. Peck's store, West Front street, is always increasing. The reason is easy to see. Peck values are the best to be had in dry goods. The Peck way of doing business attracts women of discernment.

There are many kinds of soap, but none that will give such entire satisfaction as L. W. Randolph's celebrated benzoin witch hazel soap. It is absolutely pure and makes a bath most refreshing. It is also excellent for children.

Business is going on as usual at M. A. Brown's dyeing and cleaning establishment, West Second street. The work will be done better than usual, although this is a hard proposition. It was as near perfection before as you usually find.

Kolb's candy specials are the talk of the town. Not a day passes but what there is always something good to be found at his store. He makes a specialty of chocolate confections made from the purest materials. Kolb's ice cream is delicious—have you ever tried it?

Savings entrusted to the Plainfield Trust Company will be well cared for. They will grow rapidly under a sound and conservative business management at the highest rate of interest compatible with proper banking methods. Depositors of the P. F. T. Co. are fortunate in their depository.

AUTO RUNS INTO CROWD.

Three Women Knocked Down and One Severely Injured.

Three women were hit by a motor car in Elizabeth Saturday afternoon and one of them was severely injured. The accident occurred just as the matinee audience was leaving Jacobs' theatre. The women were crossing the street, when the motor car came dashing down the avenue at a high rate of speed. The women had no time to get out of the way and one of them, Mrs. A. B. Weedon, of 315 Elizabeth avenue, fell under the wheels and was dragged 100 feet before the car was stopped. When picked up she was found to be badly bruised about the face and body.

Mrs. Weedon's companions were her daughter, Miss Louise Weedon, and her cousin, Mrs. William Armstrong. Miss Weedon and Mrs. Armstrong were hit by the machine and thrown several feet.

The occupants of the automobile were Peter Cron, the owner; Cornelius Phillips and a little girl. Phillips was pitched out of the car by the shock of the collision, and was cut and bruised.

The matinee crowd was much excited over the accident, and several men ran after the auto as it sped on, dragging Mrs. Weedon along with it. Cron stopped as soon as he could, and a policeman at once arrested him. He was taken before Police Court Judge Mahon, who held him in $500 bail.

Harry Slauson, of East Ninth street, has returned after several days' stay in Philadelphia.

Miss Anna Fisk, of West Seventh street, a student at Miss Master's School, Dobbs Ferry, returned yesterday after spending a few days at home.

TUNNELS ARE FOR THE PENNSY ONLY

NO TROLLEYS IN NEW ONES FROM EXCHANGE PLACE.

The twin tunnels to be constructed between Exchange place, Jersey City, and Cortlandt street, New York, are to be used solely by the Pennsylvania Railroad as part of its tunnel system for the accommodation of the short haul traffic, which even now taxes the resources of the company to an extent that interferes more or less with the through traffic.

This statement was made to a reporter last night by a Pennsylvania Railroad officer. He drew a map of the tunnel, which showed that the shaft for the entrance to the tunnels has been sunk on property owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad on the south side of Exchange place, Jersey City, in the rear of the trolley car shed. The first tunnel completed will extend to and through Cortlandt street, New York, to a loop at Church street, and thence under Dey street and southwesterly under the river to meet the east bound tunnel at the train sheds at Exchange place in Jersey City. The bores will be extended westward beneath Railroad avenue and the present elevated structure of the company, trains entering and leaving it at a point near the Point of Rocks, Marion, or between that and the Hackensack river as may be deemed best by the engineers. From this point trains will run on the present surface tracks.

In New York property has been secured for a station on Cortlandt street, near Church street. From this station an underground passage will be constructed to Broadway for passengers who wish to use the subway.

It is the purpose of the Pennsylvania to run all trains between Newark and New York by electricity when the uptown and downtown tunnels are completed. The reporter was assured that Mr. McAdoo had nothing to do with the new tunnels and that E. F. C. Young is connected with any trolley project as a representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The two tunnels referred to are built solely for the accommodation of passengers to downtown New York from the Jersey suburbs.

Since the first announcement of a purpose to build up a new trolley system in Hudson county, its extent and ramifications have been steadily enlarged upon by the guessers until its main line and branches cover every part of Essex, Bergen, Passaic and Union counties with accommodations already secured in what are known as the McAdoo tunnels under the Hudson river.

The published statements that the tunnels to extend from Exchange place to Cortlandt street are McAdoo tunnels and that the proposed new trolley lines are to run through them are nothing but guesses, and poor ones at that.

In are first place the Pennsylvania is not, as has been stated, looking for feeders in the shape of trolley lines. It has already more trolley feeders now that it wants. As a matter of fact the Pennsy years ago began to take steps to relieve itself of some of its feeders, one of the first being the sale of the old Jersey City and Bergen street railway, the old Plank road between Jersey City and Newark, stipulating that the purchasing company should build and operate a passenger car line between the two cities.

HAS DUG 1,800 GRAVES.

A Sexton for Nearly a Half-Century —Village Tailor as Well.

For nearly half a century John Davis, of Cranbury, has served as the sexton of the First Presbyterian church in that place. In that time he has dug about one thousand eight hundred graves in the graveyard surrounding the old church. It is believed that the record of Davis is not equaled in New Jersey.

Born near Southampton, England, Davis came to this country fifty-three years ago. He lived in Brooklyn for three years and then he moved to Cranbury. He is the village tailor as well as the sexton of the old First Presbyterian church.

Gambling House a Hotel.

Long Branch, Oct. 24—Phil Daly's Pennsylvania Club, with its golden domes, is to become a summer hotel. This announcement was made today by Mrs. Catherine Daly, who has been fighting for the past two years to save the clubhouse from being sold under the hammer, at the suit of the executors of the estate of Edward W. Marks, Elkwood Park, with its famous shooting box, inn, one-mile track and grand stand, was sold a few weeks ago to Walter and Fred Lewisohn, sons of Adolph Lewisohn, the big copper king. With the money received from the sale of the park, Mrs. Daly has quieted the Marks mortgage and once more the famous club is free and clear of debt.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The National League clubs played fifty-two extra inning games during the past season, including one of twenty innings, one of eighteen, two of fourteen, six of thirteen, five of twelve, eleven of eleven and twenty-nine of ten.

Two hundred and six players were used during the season by the eight American League clubs, New York leading with thirty-two, followed by Detroit with twenty-nine, Washington with twenty-eight, Cleveland with nineteeen and the Athletics with eighteen.

Among those prominently mentioned for the presidency of the Eastern League is Dave Fultz, of the New York Americans. The popular Highlander has decided to give up professional baseball and devote his time to the practice of law. By doing this he could fill the position of president very well.

FOOTBALL.

Leal's School football eleven will meet the Pingry School team on the Cricket Grounds on Saturday.

The Plainfield High School team play two games this week, one with Rahway and the other with Perth Amboy.

The Alis eleven is making a fine record this season. The work on Saturday against Dunellen showed great improvement.

Ray Biglow's work for Yale against Penn. State on Saturday was the best, and he gives promise of being one of "Old Eli's" strongest players.

The various football teams in this city and the borough are as strong as any to be found on an average throughout the State among the High School and some excellent material has been found and is being developed.

OFF ON SHOOTING TRIP.

Governor Stokes and Prominent Parties with Shooting Association.

Trenton, Oct. 24.—Governor E. C. Stokes, United States Senator John Dryden, Colonel A. R. Kuser, Ferdinand W. Roebling, Washington A. Roebling, Jr., John L. Kuser, former State Senator J. H. Blackwell, Mr. Hepburn, of the Chase National Bank, of New York; Captain Mahlon R. Margerum, B. C. Kuser and John P. Hutchins, of Bordentown, left Trenton Wednesday morning in automobiles, for Blooming Grove Park, Pike county, Pennsylvania, where thye will spend a week.

The party left Wednesday to be present at the opening of the fall tournament of the Blooming Grove Park Shooting Association, which is one of the most select stag events in this section of the United States. In this tournament men prominent in every walk of life participate for valuable prizes, given by the association.

The automobile journey from Trenton to Blooming Grove Park is equal to a distance of 125 miles, and the party arrived at its destination late yesterday afternoon, after easy going. The machines used were the Leon Boleau of Colonel Kuser, the Clement-Bayard of F. W. Roebling, and the Locomobile of Washington A. Roebling, Jr., all touring cars of high speed.

ARMORY SCHEME A SWINDLE?

Young Man in Paterson Soliciting Financial Aid for Armory.

Trenton, Oct. 24.—From a letter received at the State House Thursday by Captain John M. Rogers, adjutant of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., what is believed to be a swindling attempt to collect subscriptions for a new armory in Elizabeth has been discovered in North Jersey.

Thomas Pieling, secretary of the Passaic Worsted Mills, Passaic, wrote the letter to Captain H. C. Kramer, adjutant of the Third Regiment, Camden, who forwarded it to Captain Rogers. It stated that one Raynor Johnson was in Passaic soliciting subscriptions for an armory for "Company C," Third Regiment, Elizabeth. Company C, Elizabeth, belongs to the Second Regiment. The letter said the subscription list was signed by a Mr. Hart, brevet major. A considerable sum, is was stated, seemed to have been subscribed. Mr. Pieling asked for information.

Nothing was known about the scheme by the military authorities here and Captain Rogers immediately telegraphed the Passaic police that it was believed to be a fraud.

Wouldn't Jimmie Hope have made a president for a life insurance company?

What you don't know about municipal ownership, after reading all the text books and articles on the subject, step right up and ask the Councilmanic committee on public affairs. Common Council hath so ordered.

It will not be strange to see a big crowd at the Common Council meeting tonight for report has it that the police department will receive the attention of the city fathers. The oused councilmanic police committee has not played its last card, it seems, and in all probability will endeavor to prove to the local public that the department has not been well conducted. This is the talk. Whether it amounts to anything tonight's meeting will tell.

CITS' CHARGE DENIED

The Citizens also say that the Smalleys have received from the county and borough at least $15,000 since 1896. Well, about that year, and while our present Mayor held no official position whatsoever, Mountain avenue was macadamized by the county. The freeholders were forced by the Supreme Court, by mandamus, to do the work, and that is the only stone road ever built in North Plainfield by the county. When bids were opened at Somerville, it was found that A. I. Smalley was the lowest bidder. His bid was about $10,000. The highest was about $18,000. The Board of Freeholders didn't want to give him the contract, but couldn't get out of it.

He, or his firm, did the work, and did it well. Better and cheaper than any other similar work has ever been done for the county before or since. And that is part of the $15,000.

Subsequently he did some other work for the county and also for the borough, and was paid for it. There was no secret about it. The work was well done and openly and honestly and was worth every dollar he received for it. What is there about that to raise a hue and cry about?

Since Mayor Smalley has been an official, he has never been connected in business with any individual, firm or corporation which has done a dollar's worth of work or furnished a dollar's worth of material for the borough. That is to say, that he has never directly or indirectly received a single penny out of any money paid by the borough either for work or goods or any other thing whatsoever.

The leaders among the Citizens know that to be the truth. Why, then, do they publish such statements as those which appeared in their organ last Saturday?

Isn't it another "Honeymanism?"

Commissioners Held Meeting This Morning.

Elliot T. Barrows, Lewis G. Timpson and Evarts Tracy, commissioners appointed by the Common Council to treat with property-owners in the matters of widening Park avenue, Sycamore street and the opening of Stebbins place, met at the office of Street Commissioner Gavett, this morning at 7:45. They went over Park avenue and Sycamore street. Interested property-owners can now communicate with the commissioners regarding these improvements.

There will be no further public meetings as supposed, the commissioners having decided that it is unnecessary. They will not meet at the Common Council rooms tonight as previously stated.

—The Sesame Club will meet Thursday morning at the residence of Mrs. G. S. Simmons, 1405 Watchung avenue.

CHURCH MUST PAY THE DISPUTED MORTGAGE

VICE CHANCELLOR BERGEN RULES IN FAVOR OF MRS. BERGEN.

Vice Chancellor Bergen decided against the First Church of Christ in the mortgage action yesterday. After weighing the evidence of the dozen or more witnesses he ruled that the mortgage must be paid. The case will be appealed.

The contention as to liability hinged solely on the question of the authority of the trustees to give the mortgage. The congregation contended that the mortgage proposition had been voted down, and sought to prove that the trustees had no right to put the lien on the church. Mrs. Weigman's lawyer, W. L. Hetfield, Sr., brought witnesses to prove authority for the action, and the Vice Chancellor decided that the trustees had been given sufficient authority to legalize the mortgage.

The original mortgage was given to the estate of the late William Stewart, who donated the church property to the congregation. To give the property he was forced to mortgage his own place, and at his death Benjamin Hand, then pastor of the church and a member of the trustees, decided that Stewart had paid out more than he could readily afford and suggested to the congregation that a mortgage for $2,100 be given to the estate. After urging the matter for a time, Mr. Hand placed the mortgage. This mortgage was afterward taken up and divided, Mrs. Weigman taking the one foreclosed yesterday.

The defense was unable to find John Goodwin, who held the minute books. They had messengers scouring the city for Goodwin, but the latter seemed to have disappeared. It was said that the church trustees held a subpoena for Goodwin for a week and failed to serve it.

Without Goodwin and the minute book the defense had a harder time than they expected to prove the congregation's disapproval of the mortgage. The plaintiff brought proof of the book's contents, however, and opened the door for similar testimony by the defense, enabling the latter to score practically as strongly as if the record had been secured.

The church was represented by S. S. Swackhamer, and Mrs. Weigman by Walter L. Hetfield, Sr.

VICTIM TO STATE HOME.

Sent to Institution by Judge at Request of Father.

Fannie Miller, fifteen years old, of Newark, who, with several companions about her own age, was lured to Manhattan by the peculiar methods, it is alleged, of a gang of "cadets," was committed yesterday to the New Jersey State Home for Girls.

The commitment was at the request of her father, who personally had dragged her away from evil companions in a Harlem chop suey restaurant, after a three weeks' search for her in the purlieus of Manhattan.

The case came before Judge Skinner, in the Court of Special Sessions, and the appeal of the father was promptly granted.

The Newark police believe that the action taken last Saturday by the New York police in arresting several men and women on information given by Amelia Komisky, one of the Newark victims of the "cadet" traffic, has been the means of effectually breaking up this particular gang. In addition to those in the custody of the New York authorities, three men, Louis Aukin, Samuel Villawood and Angelo Percierello, the latter a reputed leader, known as "Big Andy," are awaiting trial in Newark.

WIFE GONE; CONSULTS LAWYER

Thinks Hotel Boniface Knows of Woman's Whereabouts.

Oxford, Oct. 24.—Elisha Teeter, a prosperous farmer of Oxford Township, called on a lawyer in Belvidere Saturday and sought advice concerning the disappearance of his wife, Mrs. Teeter. He told the lawyer he had reason to believe that Jeremiah Thomas, proprietor of the Oxford Hotel, on Dutch Hill, formerly known as the McCabe Hotel, knew of the woman's whereabouts.

According to Teeter, his wife left home, saying she was going to visit some friends. He says she took with her all the available cash in the house, amounting to several hundred dollars.

At the Oxford Hotel is was said that Thomas was not at home. He has a wife and three children.

Searching for Italian's Assailant.

Rahway, Oct. 24.—Chief of Police Wright has policemen out searching for the assailant of Michael Magnolia, on Main street, here, Saturday. Magnolia is in the hospital, improving. A man arrested at a fire here this morning proved not to be the shooter, but was an escaped prisoner wanted on another charge. "Cornhusker," the only name by which the negro who did the shooting is known, had worked for Ayres & Co., lumber dealers, for a week. He came to Rahway from Baltimore. No clue has been obtained to his whereabouts.

BOY DREW REVOLVER.

Tony Falconi Gets Into Trouble for Second Time in a Year.

Tony Falconi, fifteen years old, was arrigned before Justice Mosher this morning under a charge of assault and threats to kill preferred by J. W. Manhattan, a flagstone dealer. Manhattan ordered the boy from his barn Sunday afternoon and Falconi started quarreling. He struck at Manhttan and drew a revolver to hold the man off.

The court committed the boy to await the action of the probation officer. Falconi was put in the probation officer's care last winter for misbehavior, and was sent to a school of correction.

The Men's Association, of Trinity Reformed church, will meet in the lecture room on Thursday night.

David M. Runyon will lead the mid-week prayer meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow night.

The subject of the prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night will be "The Lord's Prayer."

Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, will have charge of the prayer meeting in Vincent chapel tomorrow night.

The Epworth League, of Grace M. E. church, will hold a Hallowe'en social in MacLaughlin's barn on Somerset street, on Friday night.

The Ladies' Society for Christian Work will meet in Trinity Reformed church this afternoon to prepare for a mission box to be sent away in the near future.

Rev. Dr. K. Ibuka, one of the foremost of the Christian educators of Japan, will speak at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday morning.

The women of the First M. E. church will be at Vincent chapel Saturday to receive articles of clothing to be sent to Haven Home and to a minister's family.

Rev. Dr. J. R. Bryan and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis preached for Rev. A. C. McCrea at the First M. E. church on Sunday, owing to a slight throat affection of the pastor.

Rev. W. M. Zumbro, of New York, who spoke at the Congregational church yesterday on mission work in India, was the guest of Rev. C. L. Goodrich while in town.

The Women's Home Missionary Society, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will meet in the chapel of the church Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock for sewing.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, will hold an all-day sewing meeting in the church parlor tomorrow, to prepare for the mission box to be sent away. Each person is requested to bring her lunch.

Vesper services will be held at St. Mary's church on Sunday night, November 12, for Watchung Council, No. 42, Knights of Columbus. It is expected that members of the order from all parts of the county will attend with Watchung Council.

The annual convention of the Elizabeth District Epworth League will be held at West Brighton, Staten Island, all day Thursday. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions. The local chapters of the league will be well represented.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will meet Friday night and consider the topic: "The Foreign Mission Work of Our Denomination." Miss May Pierson will be the leader. The monthly business meeting will be held at the close of the service, instead of the following Tuesday.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Congress an echo meeting of the Baltimore and Morristown conventions will be held in the First Presbyterian church on Thursday night. J. T. Sproull, State president of the Endeavor Society, will speak concerning the Baltimore convention, and Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, will tell of the State convention. There will be special music and after the meeting there will be a social and a collation.

PERSONAL.

Walter Dennis, of Watchung avenue, has returned from a visit with friends at Bloomsbury.

Samuel Cunningham, treasurer at the Plainfield theatre, has been visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Abram P. Williamson, of Stevensville, Montana, returned home today after a pleasant visit of about two months with his cousin, Mrs. John R. Naylor, of East Third street.

Mrs. John Hiscox and daughter, of the Jackson building, expect to leave town soon for Mrs. Hiscox's former home in western New York. They will remain there while Mr. Hiscox is at St. Louis, Michigan, under treatment.

Dr. Myron A. Carman, of Franklin place, has disposed of his dental practice in New York and will soon remove with his family to the lower part of Florida to make his home permanently. During his residence in Plainfield, Dr. Carman has made a host of friends and his departure will be greatly regretted.

Gen. Sewell Estate Sues for $14,203.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Suit has been filed in the United States Court of Claims to recover $14,203 from the Government for the estate of the late Senator William J. Sewell, of New Jersey. This sum, it is alleged, was illegally collected as an internal revenue tax on $1,800,000 in stocks and bonds, constituting the personal estate of the Senator. The suit is brought by the Camden Safe Deposit and Trust Company as executor of the will of the late Senator.

Death of Mrs. Peter Donald.

Some of the older residents of the town will learn with regret of the death on Thursday, October 19, at her country home in Ossining, N. Y., of Anna Judson Edgar, wife of Peter Donald, of New York. Mrs. Donald was the only child of John Edgar, an old resident of this place, and her youth was spent here. Her rare mental endowments and many graces of character made her a power in her domestic, social and church life. Her funeral was held yesterday at her late New York residence in West Forty-sixth street. Interment was made at Greenwood cemetery.

POLITICAL PULL A PRESSING EVIL

JUDGE CHARACTERIZES AS "PETTY AND ROTTEN."

In the First Criminal Court, Newark, Judge Algernon T. Sweeney severely scored Friday the practice indulged in by high city officials in interceding for clemency in behalf of low grade criminals.

Mrs. Clara Reynolds, who had pleaded guilty of maintaining a disorderly house, was arraigned for sentence.

The woman seemed to have been able to call to her aid considerable political influence, but her advocates pleaded in vain with this Judge.

In sentencing the woman to three months in the Caldwell Penitentiary, Judge Sweeney said:

"Every once in a while a wave of reform sweeps over this city and certain citizens rise up and begin to complain of the lack of discipline and demoralization of the police force. I have this to say :This state of affairs is solely because of the petty, rotten politics of influential friends of such as this woman. The rank and file of police patrolmen out on duty are afraid—yes, have been almost taught to be afraid by past experiences—to do their duty because of the protected interests persons of this woman's calibre have succeeded in weaving about themselves. It is a bad state of affairs, but it is nevertheless true.

"Last night the newspapers told of the experiences of two young girls, both of them now at hospitals, because of brutal treatment they received at the hands of young men who were endeavoring to lure them to houses such as this woman confesses she kept. These stories I have every reason to believe are true, and they show a shocking, horrible condition in this city. These girls have had their futures blasted, have broken mothers' hearts, while at the same time they are not entirely to blame."

Judge Sweeney made it known that a man holding a high elective position in one of the governing boards of the city had called on him and interceded for Mrs. Reynolds, urging that she be punished with a fine, but not sent to the penitentiary. The official informed the Judge, it is said, that he came not for any interest he had in the woman, but because he had been appealed to by an "influential friend."

AMUSEMENTS.

Wherever human beings lige, struggle, love, hate, plan and suffer, the melodrama will always be the most popular form of theatrical entertainment. It is simply because the melodrama appeals with a wonderful directness and intimacy to the average person by its close affiliation with everyday human life. It is said truth is stranger than fiction, and the same applies to plays as well as to books, and while there are enacted about us every day little plays, comedies or tragedies, that equal and often excel in interest or pathos the plays put upon the stage, it is not always that playwrights succeed in presenting no less interesting stories in such shape upon the stage that they will appeal strongly to the theatre patron. In the case of that great masterpiece of modern high class, up-to-date melodrama called "The Shadow Behind the Throne," which is at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, the authors, Alicia Ramsay and Rudolph De Cordova, have with rare skill succeeded in furnishing a play that has all the naturalness of reality with the thrills, comedy and romance of a stage production. The managers, De Cordova and Allen, have given this play a magnificent scenic production of such gorgeous costliness that other managers have been astounded. They have also costumed the piece lavishly with an eye not only to artistic effect, but with a faithfulness to detail that is as pleasing as it is unusual.

Richard Carle in "The Mayor of Tokio," which will be seen here at the New Plainfield theatre on Friday night, has made one of the most pronounced hits that has been scored by a musical star for a number of seasons. The great drawing power of the piece seems to lie in its witty lines. There is no use denying that the American public, particularly that class represented by theatregoers, wants to laugh. In "The Mayor of Tokio" Mr. Carle has presented a piece that is full of hearty laughs, not the laughter that is engendered by the indiscriminate use of slapsticks and stuffed clubs, but the legitimate merriment that is inspired by comedians who possess intelligence and witty lines that have the genuine American tang.

To Pray for Reform.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—Fasting and praying, the women of the Northwest Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will spend six hours on Election Day in the Twenty-ninth Street Methodist Episcopal church, seeking the blessing of God upon the cause of reform and the City party. The service will be held in obedience to an order issued by the executive council of the W. C. T. U. of Philadelphia county. Mrs. Jennie Morley will preside and among those who will take part will be Bishop McCabe and former BishopCyrus D. Foss, whose son is secretary of the City party campaign committee.

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

IS WOMAN RESPONSIBLE?

Here was a topic which promised to be both entertaining and instructive, viz., the inquiry whether men or women are more responsible ofr the disappearance of the simple life and the self-evident increase of sumptuary luxury.

"The woman," said the Sybaritic Bachelor, "did give me and I did eat: and, though herself a model of abstemiousness and prudence in every direction, she continues to provide long and lovely banquets for Sallust and his friends, even when they may have arrived at that stage of masculine deterioration described by our Universal Denouncer, and eat but sparingly, no matter how largely or lavishly she caters for them."

"Yes," said the personage last mentioned with unchivalrous frankness, "because love of display and love of power, or the manifestation of it, are still her dormant passions. She dresses her table, as she dresses herself, not only in order to shine, but to outshine. Far be it from me to reproach her for an ambition which is as pardonable as it is natural. The Simple Life affords no scope for the exercise of her talents, no field for the exhibition of her genious."

"On behalf of myself and my now more or less liberated sisters," said the Emancipated Maiden, who is one of the most welcome and most willingly listened to of our suburban circle, "I thank you for your just eulogy. It is well that at last it should be recognized that we have both genius and talent, and are sometimes animated by laudable ambition. You can please yourselves as to whether we shine in our own sphere, or, denied the use of that arena, invade yours. I proudly allow that we are irrepressible because pertinacious, and not subject to those fits of discouragement which so often paralyze the stronger sex. Our rivalry is with other women, as yours is with other men. We neither dress nor provide dinners with a single-minded desire to delight or conquer men. We ornament ourselves, our tables, our boudoirs, our everything, at other women, just as you make speeches, run horses and build yachts in competion with other men. We are more like each other than is generally supposed. The Simple Life would relegate us once again to obscurity, to jam-making, and counting the household linen, and therefore we shall take care that the bad old simple times are not recalled."

"No confession of guild or responsibility," observed our host, "could be more candid or more graceful. It only demonstrates once more than the real promoter of progress and refinement is woman—woman, when she is a happy mixture of Martha and Mary. Men are stolid and stationary conservatives. Women are progressive opportunists. It was a woman who invented clothes, in a roundabout sort of way; and it is women who, by their love of locomotion and speed, vindicate the flighty aggressions of the motor car. Let us gallantly believe that they are the source and origin of all good."—From "Colloquies in a Suburban Garden," in the September National Review.

RELIC TO BE SOLD.

Washington's Headquarters to Go Under the Hammer.

Washington's Preakness Headquarters, from which all general orders were issued while the army was in Northern New Jersey, is to be sold at sheriff's sale because of the default of the missing Mayor, William H. Belcher, of Paterson, to pay interest on two mortgages.

Belcher, in pursuit of his hobby of "gentleman farming," bought the Preakness headquarters and the surrounding farm of Henry Ibserman, giving a mortgage of $2,500 and assuming a previous mortgage for $2,000 held by the Howe estate. The farm was one of the half a dozen maintained by Mayor Belcher. Like the others it was mortgaged at almost its full value, and for more than a year Belcher had neglected to pay the interest.

The building is practically as it was when Washington occupied it. At that time it was known as the Day mansion. The rooms are large, and few of the country mansions in the vicinity compare with it. Since the flight of Belcher after a career of forgery and of swindling several persons have made offers for the property.

Garland Fund, $2,892.25.

New Brunswick, Oct. 24.—The total receipts for the benefit of the family of the late Alfred C. Garland, a musician, formerly of Plainfield, are $2,892.25. The contributions have been made by friends in this city, Asbury Park, Metuchen, Bound Brook, Rahway and many other places. Mr. Garland and his eldest son died within a few days of each other, the musician leaving a widow and several children. The money contributed to the testimonial fund will be used in purchasing a house for the Garland family.

Americans Honored by Belgium.

Liege, Oct. 24.—In connection with the international exhibition here, Commissioner General Gore, of the United States, has received the Grand Cordon of the Order of Leopold. Commissioner Ware has been appointed an officer of the same order.

The Iron Brigade

A Story of the Army of the Potomac

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

No. Fred Benton was chafing, restless and unhappy, and, even now that Paul was gone, again suffering the pangs of jealousy. A tall confederate officer, a very distinguished looking major of the staff, had called thrice in two days, and had had long conversation with the little lady of the house—one, in fact, behind closed doors after Jack had been "toted" to his room. Fred heard the colored house of commons discussing the pros and cons as to that indication, and in like manner is certain i that the officer was Maj. Lounsberry—long a resident of Albemarle and now of the staff—the inspector's department of the confederate army, and Fred could have sworn his pretty jailor was in tears when she came hurrying up from one interview. Morning and evening both had he watched for the return of the lady of the broad-brimmed felt, but the rain or something had been too much for her, and she failed to reappear. Maj. Lounsberry's deep voice, however, was heard in the broad lower hall three hours after his long afternoon interview with Miss Chilton, and the doctor came briskly forth from his study to greet and welcome the distinguished representative of the war office—the son of an old familiar friend. There was good news from Yorktown, it seems, and small Pomp brought it in with a little pitcher of cool buttermilk and some "cohn pone" for Marse Benton—"De Yankees done got licked agin down by Yohktown." "Marse Lounsberry" had so told the doctor, and Fred went down to Jack's room, his arm still slung, to wish him good-night and learn what he knew. Rosalie departed and left them to each other, and it happened that as the doctor was ushering his martial visitor from his study to the door full 15 minutes later, and long before Benton's usual hour for retiring, the door to Jack's room opened and the Yankee lieutenant came forth, looking very tall, erect and by no means broken down.

The doctor gave a start—an unmistakable glance of warning. A crouching bundle of femininity near the head of the stairs, out of Lounsberry's sight but plainly in Benton's view, frantically signalled with both impetuous hands—with wild eyes and wide-opening mouth gasping dismay—the imperious order to go back at once, but obtusely Benton stood his ground and faced, half defiantly, this new visitor, who in turn stopped short and calmly, even somewhat insolently, surveyed him. The major was the first to speak.

"Lieut. Benton, I presume," said he "and looking vastly better than I had been led to—hope." How near he there came to saying "believe!"

"Looking quite well, my dear major," hastily interposed the doctor, "yet, I assure you, but the ghost of the fine young fellow who rescued me that night at Centerville. It will be months before he can handle a sabre again."

"How about a pen?" asked Lounsberry, significantly, his eyes burning into Benton's gaze as though striving to read his innermost thoughts.

"Mr. Benton has certainly managed to write three home letters—left-handed," answered Dr. Chilton, speaking for his captive guest, yet glancing nervously toward him. "They were duly forwarded to Richmond to be censored. Was it there you saw them, Maj. Lounsberry?"

"I had reference to possibilities, doctor, though I am not acquainted with the lieutenant's left hand-writing. It would be injudicious, for instance, not to say ungrateful to those who have shielded him, were he to answer the letter he found at the old side gate of the garden, Monday evening!"

The hot blood leaped to Benton's face. Lounsberry had spoken with the cool deliberation of one absolutely sure of his ground. The doctor turned and stood gazing at his guest as though expecting him promptly to deny the imputation. From the stairway came the sound of faint rustle as though Rosalie shrank still further away, and Benton felt, rather than saw that her eyes were fixed upon him in mingled scrutiny and indignation. The silence was painful and Benton broke it.

"There was nothing new in the note, doctor," said he, purposely ignoring the staff officer. "It was to tell me—what I already suspected and, since this gentleman's arrival, have felt sure of—that I was to be sent to Richmond. Do not let it worry you. I have been preparing for it, and now I am quite ready to go."

For the life of him as the sentence closed he could not avoid shooting one swift glance at the stairway to note the effect of his words. The major saw, turned and finding that from where he stood the landing and stairway were hidden from view, stepped quickly forward. Benton instantly did the same, and almost breast to breast they met there in the middle of the room—the blue and the gray—the fire flashing in the eyes of each. There was the sound of whisking drapery, a soft swish along stair and balcony rail, and in an instant Rosalie had darted to the landing and out of sight. A half smile, contemptuous and cutting, played about the confederate's lips. He gave no sign whatever that he had heard. He addressed himself to Benton:

"I presume you have burned that note, sir, and therefore have nothing with which to back your statement, but I take you at your word. You are ready to go, you say; be ready to start then at six in the morning."

"My dear major!" broke in Dr. Chilton. "Surely you——"

"Those are my orders, doctor. I have no volition," answered Lounsberry, coldly. "And now if I may say adieu to Jack I'll leave you to such preparation as may be necessary. The guard will call for Mr. Benton at six. I go myself to Gordonsville to-night."

With that Maj. Lounsberry turned haughtily away, as though the possibility of further talk with a federal prisoner was something intolerable. The doctor, stunned and silent, looked helplessly from one to the other, and again it was Benton who spoke a reassuring word. Cordially he held forth his one free hand.

"It's all right, doctor," said he. "You and Miss Chilton have p led me round famously. I can stand Libby diet now just as well as anybody, and I'm betting on speedy exchanges. Then—our fellows will be doing something now," he added, with significant smile. "Who knows but they may gather in game as big as that!" with a laughing nod toward the resplendent major. "Or, is he, like so many of our staff, only for duty at the rear?" And Benton meant that Lounsberry should hear, and hear he did and flushed red under the taunt.

"Do not judge our methods by the little you know of yours, Mr. Benton," he retorted, albeit with admirable self-control. Then, as though again determined to ignore the northerner, "may I be permitted a word with Lieut. Chilton, doctor?" a question which seemed to recall the doctor to himself and left Benton to his own devices. Without another glance at the unwelcome visitor, the latter turned and ascended the stairs to the second story, and there, in the dim light of a night lamp, by the eastward window, stood the girl he longed to see and speak with, and she who had avoided, now came half timidly forward as though to meet him.

From the neighborhood of her aunt's door and her own, and close to the westward windows Rosalie Chilton silently led her captive soldier, and then turned, her face pale and sorrow-stricken, her great dark eyes filling with unshed tears.

CONFERENCE DECIDES TO CALL ON HEALTH BOARDS TO SEND DELEGATES

Eight mosquito exterminators, members of the State conference, met in the rooms of the Newark Board of Health at Newark Wednesday night and talked of what had been done since their work was organized two years ago and of plans for the future. They were Dr. T. M. Gray, East Orange, president; L. J. Richards, Elizabeth, secretary, and Dr. F. W. Becker, Dr. W. S. Disbrow, J. W. Dobbins, Newark; Dr. N. L. Wilson, Elizabeth; John B. Thompson, Arlington, and Spencer Miller, South Orange, who has done a great deal of practical work in his locality.

Dr. Gray said that when the mosquito war was started two years ago the pioneers in the work were met with ridicule, but that had been overcome by the results accomplished. The draining of the Newark meadows had done much to rid the city of the pests and increase the value of the marsh land. In other localities good results had been gained, especially in South Orange and Elizabeth, and State Entomologist Smith's idea that mosquitoes could be exterminated by intelligent and persistent work on his lines had been amply demonstrated. Under the direction of Dr. Becker, the work on the Newark meadows had been well done. Professor Smith had written that with $500,000 the mosquito pest could be practically eradicated in New Jersey. Dr. Gray then told of the many appropriations for the work by Newark and Elizabeth and the State. He said that the membership of the conference ought to be greatly increased from twenty by getting every board of health contiguous to Newark and Essex county to send a representative.

Mr. Miller proposed that a good plan was to have a banquet and invite members of different boards of health. He would also invite Messrs. Colby and Gregory and all Assembly candidates, and hold the banquet before election day.

Dr. Gray said Mr. Colby and Mr. Gregory would be engaged every day and night up to the election, and therefore no banquet should be held until after the election. Mr. Miller then suggested that a lunch be had at each monthly meeting to arouse interest, as few men had attended meetings during the past two years. No action was taken on this.

Secretary Richards was requested to send circulars to boards of health telling what has been done for mosquito extermination and asking each board to send a representative to help in the work.

An executive committee and committees on legislation and good will, the latter to do educational work, were appointed. Mr. Miller said efforts should be made to get fifteen more members from Newark, and certainly a man ought to be secured to look after Vailsburg, where there were mosquito breeing spots. Mr. Dobbins said his inspector reported few mosquitoes in Vailsburg, and Mr. Miller said he knew they were bad there and would be pleased to show them to the inspector.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

Plainfielders Attend Pleasant Gathering at Flemington.

Flemington, Oct. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob E. Cole celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in South Main street, Saturday. The couple were married fifty years ago by Rev. Horace Doolittle, then pastor of the Stanton Reformed church. Of those who witnessed the ceremony a half century ago all have died except one, John Davis, of Dreahook, who was among those who congratulted the old couple on the occasion of their jubilee. Mr. Cole was born at Pleasant Run, September 15, 1831. Mrs. Cole's maiden name was Miss Sarah E. Carkhuf. She was born near Espycille, Pa., May 23, 1833. The couple resided at Pleasant Run for forty-seven years and removed to Flemington three years ago. The union was blessed by seven children, three of whom are living. They are Irvin Cole and Mrs. Garret P. Van Doren, of this place, and Freeman L. Cole, of Whitehouse. There are eleven grandchildren, all of whom were present at the anniversary. There were 125 guests present from Newark, Hagerstown, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Somerville, South Branch, Readington, Three Bridges, Pleasant Run, Whitehouse, Dreahook, Stanton, Jutland, Barley Sheaf and Flemington. The guests were entertained with music by Miss Anna L. Case, of South Branch, who rendered selections on the piano, and Arthur B. Cole, a Newark violinist. The couple were the recipients of many presents, which included a purse containing $142, of which amount $105 was in gold.

Let's Go Back to School.

It is reported that a pretty school teacher in a Bucks county village recently inaugurated a new cure for tardiness. She offered to kiss the first arrival each morning and it is stated that the next morning at 5 o'clock three young men were seen roosting on the fence and by 6 all the boys of the school and two directors had put in their appearances.—Bristol, Bucks Co., Gazette.

INSIST ON REFERENDUM.

Resident of Montclair Oppose Action of Town Council.

Julius H. Pratt, of Montclair, is contesting the right of the Town Council to spend $100,000 for the purchase of park sites without submitting the matter to a vote of the people. The town attorney has given an opinion sustaining the contention of the Council that a referendum is not necessary under the law. Mr. Pratt, however, cites an act of the Legislature, adopted in 1892, under which all proceedings to acquire land for part purposes must be sanctioned by a vote of the people.

Mr. Pratt is not opposed to the acquisition of park land, but declares the bonds would be worthless if the law was not complied with. Several other prominent residents agree with Mr. Pratt.

Griggs on an American and a Russian.

Tolstoi is a Russian Count who goes barefoot and works at a trade for Christ's sake; Emerson was a yankee preacher without a church. Edward Howard Griggs says each is a moral leader. Bishop Vincent ranks him among the greatest of lecturers. Boston's largest hall would not hold the thousands that flocked to hear these two lectures. Tonight in Vincent chapel of the First Methodist church, "Emerson." Next Tuesday night "Count Tolstoi." Admission 50 cents.

TAFT'S SPEECH AMAZES.

Surprise Over Declaration That He Would Cut Republican Ticket.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The remarkable speech of Secretary of War Taft at Akron, O., Saturday evening, in which he so severely denounced the Republican organization of Cincinnati and Hamilton county, has created almost as great a sensation here as it did in the Buckeye State. Astute politicians are puzzled over his castigation of George B. Cox. Many think they see in the speech the hand of President Roosevelt. Although it has been the policy of the President to keep the national administration out of State politics, especially where the Republican forces are divided among themselves, there are those who believe that Taft's utterances were inspired by the man who said last Friday at Atlanta:

"It is the duty of every honest patriot to rebuke in emphatic fashion the politician who does not understand that the only kind of 'practical politics' which a nation can with safety tolerate is that kind which we know as clean politics."

Taft certainly did "rebuke" in emphatic fashion" the Cox regime in Cincinnati despite the fact that his brother, Charles P. Taft, is the editor and proprietor of the acknowledged machine organ in Cincinnati. Secretary Taft announced to the good people of Akron he would not vote for the local Republican ticket in his home town this fall, if he were able to be at the polls. This declaration is believed by many of his party friends to have been ill-advised in view of the capital which the opposition will make of it, not only in Hamilton county but throughout the State.

D. K. Watson, former attorney-general of Ohio, discussing the Secretary's utterances, frankly admits that he does not understand their purpose. "It is a little singular," he declared, "for one of our great party leaders to say that he would cut his own county and city ticket and vote for the Democratic candidates. Will he not be misunderstood and quoted all over the country, to the great disadvantage of the Republican party?"

COULTER SELECTED.

Rahway Man Takes Dobbins' Place on Democratic Ticket.

Henry C. Coulter, of Rahway, has been selected by the committee on vacancies appointed by the recent Democratic convention, to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of Francis V. Dobbins, of Rahway, to accept the nomination for member of the General Assembly. This statement was made by County Chairman John L. Crowell Saturday.

Mr. Dobbins told a reporter Saturday over the telephone from his office in Jersey City, that he had declined the nomination. He was asked why. He said:

"I am forced to earn a living. I have to choose between politics and law. Heretofore law has given me a better living than politics. That's why I am going to stick to law."

Mr. Coulter comes from the same ward in Rahway that Mr. Dobbins lives in. He has been a faithful party worker.

The committee on vacancies consisted of City Attorney James C. Connolly, W. E. Tuttle, of Westfield, and Stephen J. Cox, of Cranford. County Chairman John L. Crowell was made an ex-officio member, and he had much to do in filling out the ticket.

The annual meeting of the State Board of Horticulture will take place at the State House January 4 and 5, 1906, and the State Board of Agriculture will meet in annual session at the State House January 17, 18 and 19. Another schedule of 17 or more county farmers' institutes will be announced after the annual meeting.

WALKOVER FOR REPUBLICAN.

Summit Democrats Name a City Ticket, but Without Mayoralty.

Summit, Oct. 24—The Democratic city convention was held on Saturday night and a complete city ticket nominated, except for the office of Mayor, and before the convention was held the delegates had decided to allow the unanimous election of the Republican nominee, the present Mayor, George Wilcox. The work of Mayor Wilcox has been peculiarly satisfactory to the taxpayers generally for the past two years, and for several weeks the Democrats have allowed it to be understood that if he was renominated no candidate in opposition would be named, while if the Republican machine plan to name Councilman Franklin for the office was carried out, a warm fight would be certain.

The machine finally decided to name Wilcox, but refused to renominate Councilman-at-large Finch. He was the only officer who was refused a renomination, and it was solely because he had refused to obey the instructions of the organization on some questions submitted to the Council during his term. George F. Vreeland, who has been an ardent machine man under all conditions, was named to succeed him.

At the Democratic convention M. J. Pingston was elected chairman and Leroy A. Gibby secretary. Dr. J. Boyd Risk, an independent, and one of the city's largest property owners, was named for councilman-at-large, Leroy A. Gibby for city clerk, Holkins Palmer, cashier of the First National Bank, for city collector; A. A. Taylor, James W. Reeve and Robert J. Mooney for commissioners of appeals.

DR. VAN DYKE'S ENGAGEMENTS.

List That Will Call Him from Princeton Many Times This Winter.

Princeton, Oct. 24.—Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke has accepted an unusually large number of invitations for this fall, which will call him from Princeton on several occasions. This evening he will preach the installation sermon at the Central church, of Rochester, N. Y., and on October 29 will open the new building of Christ church, in New York. He will deliver the address at the dedication of the new Young Men's Christian Association building at Washington, D. C., on October 30, and will address the students of Columbia University on November 9.

He will deliver an address before the Interchurch Conference on Federation on November 16, and from November 19 to 26 will act as university preacher at Harvard.

On November 23 he will speak at the Boston Institute of Technology. Mr. Van Dyke will return from Cornell University today, where he has been acting as university preacher.

Folk's Mansion Burned.

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 24.—The executive mansion caught fire yesterday morning in the big reception hall just below the sleeping apartments of Governor and Mrs. Folk, who were asleep at the time. In a short time the fire was extinguished, the damage amounting to $1,000, fully covered by insurance. The fire originated from a defective wire. Yesterday morning convicts from the penitentiary removed the debris.

—Neuman Brothers' display of vegetables is still the largest to be found in the city. New consignments received each day.

EPWORTHIANS TO MEET

Elizabeth District Leaguers' Convention Next Week.

GRACE CHURCH, S. I.

Three Sessions to be Held, Morning, Afternoon and Evening—This City to Be Well Represented.

The fifteenth annual convention of the Elizabeth District Epworth League will be held at West New Brighton, Staten Island, on Thursday next, October 26. The sessions of the convention, commencing at 9:45 in the morning and 7 in the evening, will be held in Grace M. E. church. The luncheons will be served in Trinity M. E. church.

Grace church is very easy of access from Plainfield or points west. Those who go to West Eighth street on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, or by trolley via Elizabethport, and get off at Richmond avenue and Richmond terrace, have but a short walk to the church. Arrangements have been made to provide for all who wish to remain over night.

Every effort has been put forth by the officers in charge to make this convention one of great profit to the leaguers and their friends, and every one is invited to participate whether members of the league or not.

Exceptional speakers have been secured in the Rev. Drs. Coultas and Downey to make the afternoon and evening addresses respectively. Skilled leaders will conduct the four departmental and Junior League conferences.

The full programme is as follows:

MORNING.

9:45—Song Service.

10:00—Devotional: Rev. Dr. Daniel Halleron, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district.

No Money for Sprinkling.

Lack of money prevents the continuation of the street sprinkling through the dusty days of fall. Chairman Wilson, of the street committee, explained this morning that sprinkling costs $327 per month, and that the committee has barely $1,000 a month left for the rest of the year, which must be used for several important pieces of street work that were promised at the beginning of the year.

Fell Dead on His Train.

When the Wells Fargo Erie train rolled yesterday into the station at Paterson, Baggagemaster Walter Carlengh, standing on the train platform, pitched forward and rolled down the steps. He was dead when other train hands picked him up. Heart disease caused death. Carlengh was thirty-eight years old and had been employed by the Erie for thirty years.

Trenton Fair Earned Over $20,000.

Trenton, Oct. 24.—The directors of the Interstate Fair Association have announced that the final returns will show a profit of between $20,000 and $21,000 from the late fair, or $5,000 more than was realized last year. Some of the money will be used for improvements, while the balance will reach the stockholders in increased dividends.

City Committee Meeting.

The Republican City Committee will meet tomorrow night. The list of challengers will be announced and other election arrangements will receive attention.

TIMES TOO STRENUOUS, DROPS $10,000 OFFICE

PHILADELPHIA'S DIRECTOR OF HEALTH AND CHARITIES RESIGNS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 24.—Dr. Edward Martin, director of Public Health and Charities, yesterday sent his resignation to Mayor Weaver. His position paid $10,000 a year.

The letter of resignation written by Dr. Martin was unusual, and Mayor Weaver told the director he was at first inclined to think it a joke. The letter read:

Some time in October,
Beginning of the XXth Century.

Dear Chief—This is my resignation. Times are too strenuous for my simple peasant soul.

This from the sad and glad sawbones,

EDWARD MARTIN.

Dr. Martin said politics had nothing to do with his resignation. He added: "My practice and my university work demand more of my time than I can give them." Appointed by Mayor Weaver on June 1, 1903, he reorganized the municipal and Philadelphia hospitals and the inspection of public schools.

MORE ROOM FOR BOYS.

Legislature to Be Asked to Give $25,000 for Jamesburg School.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg, Saturday, coincided with the visit of inspection of State Commissioner of Charities Dr. George B. Wight and Assistant State Commissioner George E. Poole. While the visitors expressed themselves as well pleased with many things found there, it was evident to them that the facilities afforded to the executive officers of the school by the State were far from adequate.

An appropriation of about $25,000 will be asked from the next Legislature for the erection of new buildings for the accommodation of any boys who are at present necessarily refused admission to the school.

The fact is that the school has become so overcrowded that judges throughout the State have been in the habit of inquiring from the management whether any additional boys could be taken before sentencing them to the institution.

There are at present eight "family" houses or cottages, which were built for the accommodation of fifty boys each, a total of 400 for the school. The exigencies of the situation have made it necessary to crowd the cottages beyond a desirable limit, the average for each house being over fifty-nine boys. The need of the school for at least two new cottages is beyond question.

The school is overcrowded, not only in respect to the housing of the boys, but in respect to the froce of teachers employed.

Rev. Dr. S. G. Nelson.

Rev. Dr. S. Gifford Nelson, a retired Baptist minister, died on Saturday at his home in Stratford road, Flatbush, Brooklyn, after an operation. He was born at Cookstown, North of Ireland, in 1845. He came to Brooklyn at the age of twenty-two and for years was engaged in newspaper work on the Brooklyn Eagle. Then he studied law and was a member of the firm of Place, Nelson & Place, of which former Mayor Charles H. Place, of the borough, was connected. Feeling that his work lay in the ministry, he took a theological course at the Hamilton Seminary. During his ministry he was pastor of the following churches, Rhinebeck, N. Y., Jersey City, Trinity Baptist, Bedford avenue and Bethel chapel in Brooklyn and Mt. Holly, N. J. Dr. Nelson was former pastor and a personal friend of J. V. E. Vanderhoef, of this city, and some years ago when Mr. Vanderhoef was connected with the Park Avenue Baptist church, he had Dr. Nelson preach as a supply several Sundays. The funeral will be held at the Emmanuel Baptist church, LaFayette avenue and St. James' place, tonight.

State Firemen Meet Monday.

The annual meeting of the State Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association will be Monday afternoon in Turner Hall, Trenton, and indications are that it will be well attended. The session will conclude with a banquet, at which the Rev. Charles H. Elder will be the principal speaker. The members of Common Council and the fire board of Trenton will be the guests of the association. Ten branch organizations will be represented at the meeting.

Two Receivers Appointed for Bank.

Louis A. Allen, a lawyer of Passaic, was appointed receiver yesterday by Chancellor Magie for Lujanovits' Bank, which was closed Friday. Samuel Weinberger was appointed on Saturday by United States District Judge Cross under the bankruptcy law. The dual receivership may cause considerable confusion.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a social in the church on Thursday night, November 2, and not this week Thursday as previously stated.

—The orchestral concert of the Y. M. C. A. will be repeated this evening. Tickets may be obtained free at drug stores. A silver offering will be received at box office.

NO CORPORATION INFLUENCE.

So Says Carl Lentz in Campaign Speech.

Never mentioning Everett Colby, candidate for State Senator on the Republican ticket, Carl Lentz, chairman of the Republican County Committee, opened the committee's campaign in Orange last night before a large audience. He severely criticised the newspapers, Julian A. Gregory, the Democratic candidate for State Senator; Alden Freeman, one of Lentz's opponents, and others.

Lentz made no direct allusion to Colby, but there were several veiled digs. He declared that the Republican party in Essex county was neither corrupt nor influenced by corporations.

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST CHIEF OF POLICE KIELY STARTLE COMMON COUNCIL

Committee Report Also Holds Up Andrew McCardell as the Real Government of the City And Reflects Gravely Upon Mayor Buckle's Official Actions.

WHY GOFF WAS RAIDED

Intoxication, Disobedience and Failure to Pay Debts Among Accusations Against Kiely—"Ham" Kean's "Friendly" Work—McCardell as Acknowledged "Boss."

Sensational disclosures, including serious charges against Chief of Police Patrick S. Kiely, the alleged corrupting political influence of Andrew McCardell, referred to as the aspiring political leader of the city, the history of the Goff raid, as well as many incidents leading up to and the appointment of a police commission by Mayor James F. Buckle, were the startling features of the report of the councilmanic police committee presented at a special meeting of the Common Council last night.

Intimation as to what the report would be attracted a crowd. The meeting was called specially for the purpose of receiving the report which had been prepared by Councilman W. S. Tyler and William Starr Bullock, of the police committee. It covered fifteen typewritten pages. The charges are of a very grave nature. They furnished food aplenty for gossip and it was the general opinion that the report was the most sensational attack yet made on the "machine."

The call for the meeting was signed by Council W. S. Tyler, William Starr Bullock and Henry D. Hibbard. After it was read, President Daniel stated that only the question referred to in the call, namely, the receiving of the report of the police committee and consideration of matters in reference to it, could be discussed.

Gloak's Protest.

Before reading the report, Councilman Gloak, a member of the police committee, took occasion to remark that he thought calling a special meeting to receive such a report was an unusual proceeding. He said that he had been ignored entirely in the matter under consideration and that the action of the committee was unknown to him and he did not approve of it. He explained that he made the statement to be put on record as opposing the action under such circumstances.

After City Clerk MacMurray read the report, Mr. Tyler moved that it be accepted, its recommendations adopted and sent to Corporation Counsel Marsh at once for immediate action. The motion was adopted.

Mr. Tyler then said that he had nothing special to say about the report, believing that it speaks for itself. He referred to it as a most important document and added that no time should be lost in attending to its provisions at once.

The Report.

The complete report is as follows:

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

The Committee on Police begs leave to submit the following report and recommendations:

At a regular meeting of the Common Council held on the 3d of October, 1905, it was reported to your Honorable Body that the Mayor had appointed a Police Commission, under an Act of the Legislature of 1905, for the purpose of transferring to said Commission the control and management of the Police Department, hitherto vested in the Board of Police, and subject to the control of the Common Council.

The undersigned have each received through the mail a letter reading substantially as follows:

"Plainfield, N. J., October 6th, 1905.

"Dear Sir:

"As a member of the Police Committee of the Common Council, you are probably in possession of information concerning police matters in this city, which will be of undoubted value to the newly appointed police commission in entering upon the discharge of their duties.

"The commission will esteem it a favor if you will meet with them at their next meeting, to be held on Tuesday evening (at eight o'clock), October 10th, when, we trust, you will put us in possession of such information as shall be at your command.

"Very truly yours,
"H. W. Marshall,
"Secretary."

To which replies have been sent as follows:

Refused Commissioners Aid.

"Oct. 10, 1905.

"Mr. H. W. Marshall, Secretary,

"Dear Sir:

"In response to your note, dated October 6, 1905, inviting me to appear before the newly appointed Police Commission, I submit that as the question is now pending in the Courts of the State as to the Constitutionality of the Act of the Legislature under which the Mayor has acted in attempting by the appointment of said Commission, to supersede the Police Board, composed of members of the Common Council and the Mayor of the City, in their control of the affairs of the Police Department, and as the result of a decision adverse to the constitutionality of said Act within a few weeks could vacate the appointment of said Commission by the Mayor and render null and void their proceedings, and continue the old Board in its control of the affairs of the Police Department as hitherto; out of respect to the Common Council, to whose ultimate control of the Board of Police is subject, and with a sense of personal duty and responsibility to the public in the premises, I must decline to recognize in any way whatever the so-called newly appointed Police Commission, and in particular to voluntarily appear before them or submit in any way to their claimed jurisdiction over the Police Department.

"I will, however, do anything in my power to aid in expediting the determination of the said question of the constitutionality of said Act of the Legislature.

"Very truly yours."

This produces a condition of affairs, the importance of which will appear more fully with the progress of this report.

In this connection we desire to report certain things pertaining to the administration of the Police Department which it seems proper should be brought to the attention of the Common Council at this time as a possible and very probable explanation of the hasty and unwise action of the Mayor in transferring the control of the Police from the Common Council to a oPlice Commission of his own appointing. Nothing is more essential to a proper administration of public affairs than an efficient and well ordered police department. To maintain such a department, it is of great importance that the Chief should be above suspicion, that his example should at all times incline those under him in the direction of efficiency, god discipline and prompt discharge of duty. With such an example, the police force will, at all times be under good discipline,—with a bad example the result will surely be laxity and demoralization.

Charges Against Kiely.

During the past year evidence has accumulated tending to show that the example of our own Chief of Police has for a long time been prejudicial to correct discipline and efficiency. Rumors and statements apparently well founded have from time to time come to the Board, the correctness of which can only be ascertained by a thorough investigation. Among those which appear to be well supported by evidence are the following:

Wilful disobedience of orders in neglecting to enforce certain provisions of the hack ordinance and of the liquor ordinance, after repeatedly being instructed so to do.

Wilful violation of police rules and of the police ordinance.

1st. By frequenting places where intoxicated liquors are sold or furnished while on duty.

2nd. By unduly neglecting to pay just debts.

3rd. By permitting Police Hearquarters to be made a lounging place by parties not connected with the force.

4th. By intoxication.

5th. By permitting a person not a member of the police force to exercise authority and control over or concerning persons confined in the city jail and by permitting the release of such prisoners without due authority.

6th. By collecting political assessments from members of the force in a manner demoralizing to good order and discipline.

7th. By collecting a large amount of reward moneys for another officer of the force, under a promise to pay over the same when collected, and neglecting to pay over the said moneys to said officer, or to otherwise account for them to said officer.

8th. By permitting the employment of officers of the force for the distribution, on the day of the primaries, of ballots favorable to certain powerful political influences.

Investigation Needed.

These are very grave charges and it is due to Chief Kiely as well as to the Police Board who are in a measure responsible for the morale of the force that a thorough investigation of them should be made, and the Police Board was about to institute such an investigation when the Mayor interrupted the proceedings by the appointment of the Police Commission. We feel justified in saying, from facts that have come to our knowledge, that the action of the Mayor was hastened by his fear that charges would be preferred against the chief, and we regret to note among the new appointees in control of the Police Department a politician whose influence in department affairs is charged as being in part responsible for some of the conditions complained of. It would seem as if it ought to be a simple thing to hold the Chief of Police in such a city as Plainfield to the faithful performance of his duties, but members of the Board of Police have found that they, representing the main branch of the city government, to wit: the Common Council, could not accomplish this in cases where it did not meet the approval of Mr. McCardell, who seems to control the politics of the Fourth ward, and aims to be the political leader of the whole city. To be such a boss he must control the liquor saloon business of the city, say who shall have a license and who not. No other business interest controls so many votes, and it is convenient for him to be able to control the police, because through them he can lay hands upon both the licensed and the unlicensed saloonkeeper, as well as upon other violators of the law.

Makes McCardell Powerful.

If in addition, you put such a man at the head of the Police Board or Commission, and give him the power to make or unmake the police, he becomes a boss indeed. State and county bosses do him reverence and make terms with him. Our whole local machinery for the administration of the laws falls into his hands.

The action of the Mayor in interrupting the continuance of the police investigation, and in placing Mr. McCardell in the forefront of control of the department, at such a time comes dangerously near to a participation by our chief executive in this ever growing system of political control, the evil effect of which is about to come to light, (unless suppressed in some such way as this) with the revelations of laxity in our Police Department, and of open violations of law by those who rely upon the protection of political leaders. As illustrative of this the history of Goff's unlicensed saloon and the recent raid upon it are most instructive. The raid was undertaken as incident to the police investigation and for the purpose primarily of getting evidence in that connection. It is only that side of the Goff affair relating to the pending investigation which will be incorporated into this report.

The old Board of Police, at its first meeting early in January of this year, resolved to hold regular meetings every month during the year, and special meetings when required, so as to exercise more active participation in the manage-

Andrew McCardell.

"Some two years before, the Chief of Police had talked at some length with Mr. Tyler, upon his then newly assumed duties as councilman, and expressed a desire to be the one to introduce him to Mr. McCardell and the other politicians, saying that it would make all the difference in the world if he could become acquainted with McCardell, in the right way, and that McCardell was the real power in Plainfield, and that without his good will no man could amount to much politically, and that he, Kiely, would like to be the one to bring about the meeting."—From report of Councilmanic police committee.

Mayor James F. Buckle.

"We feel justified in saying, from facts that have come to our knowledge, that the action of the Mayor was hastened by his fear that charges would be preferred against the Chief, and we regret to note among the new appointees in control of the Police Department a politician whose influence in department affairs is charged as being in part responsible for some of the conditions complained of."—From Councilmanic police committee's report.

DR. BLAUSTEIN TELLS OF "THE JEW OF NEW YORK"

GIVES ADDRESS BEFORE CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH MEN'S CLUB.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church Dr. David Blaustein, of New York, addressed a large gathering in the church parlors last night on "The Jew of New York City." He is superintendent of the Educational Alliance of New York City, established by Baron Hirsch to fit Jews for entrance to American schools, and in this capacity has made the subject a close study.

According to Dr. Blaustein, 50,000 immigrant Jews land in New York every year, and thta one-half of them remain in the city. Those coming now are from Russia and Roumania, but up to 1848 they were of the branch known as the Portuguese aristocracy. From 1848 to 1882 they were of the German type, from which developed the rich merchants of Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street. They adhere to the Reformed Jewish faith and worship in temples on upper Fifth avenue. The immigrants from Russia and Roumania are those found on the great "East Side" in the densely populated district east of Fourteenth street and the Bowery. Thoug oppressed and working under disadvantages, the Jew, Dr. Blaustein saidd has an individuality of thought and conduct and commands respect by his persevering methods. He also described the life of the Jews in Russia and paid them a tribute.

Dr. Blaustein, who is a Jew, was formerly a professor in Brown University.

Symphony Trio Musicale.

The Plainfield Symphony Trio, comprised of Elmer D. Cutting, tenor; Arthur S. Mosher, violin; C. Kenneth Shupp, 'cello; Herbert J. Harold, piano, conducted a musicale at the Scotch Plains Baptist church last night. It was largely attended, many being from this city.

CHIEF TO SUE FOR DAMAGES

Judge William N. Runyon, counsel for Chief Kiely, declared to a Daily Press representative today that immediate action would be instituted against William S. Tyler and William Starr Bullock for the alleged injury to his client's reputation. "A civil action will be begun in the courts at once," said the lawyer, "for damages, and the two councilmen will either have to prove what they have alleged or pay big damages."

The Chief's counsel seemed amazed at the charges, but declared that he did not wish to fight the case through the newspapers. "I have always adhered to the rule that the place to get justice is in the courts and I propose on behalf of my client to do so in this instance."

The Judge said that he had not gone over the report very carefully, but had seen enough of it to convince himself that a suit for damages was necessary to place Chief Kiely in a right position. "The accusations and absurd allegations," said he, "are grossly libellous. They have been placed on the minutes of the Common Council and are open to the public. Their privileges as a member of the Common Council, I do not believe, entitle them to grossly malign and assail the reputation of Mr. Kiely or the other officials he has attacked so bitterly.

"I cannot tell what steps Mr. McCardell will take to obtain redress," said the Judge. "He is ill in bed and I have not seen him. I presume, however, that the commissioner will call both Tyler and Bullock to account for their insinuations against his character. He knows how to take care of himself and I am quite sure the two gentlemen will find that out before long."

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE MADE MAN AND WIFE

WEDDING OF MISS GRACE E. GADDIS AND ROBERT L. GUTTRIDGE.

In the presence of a large gathering of friends, Miss Grace Elizabeth Gaddis, daughter of Mrs. William Gaddis, of Regent street, and Robert Leonard Guttridge, of South avenue, Netherwood, were married last night, the ceremony taking place at the bride's home at 8 o'clock. It was performed by Dr. C. W. Parsons, pastor of Grace M. E. church, the young couple standing before a large bank of potted plants and ferns in the parlor.

Miss Helen Adele Guttridge, sister of the groom, and Miss Margaret Gaddis, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaids, while Percy L. Gaddis was best man. William Myles, of Elizabeth, and Harry Gaddis, of the borough, were ushers. Miss Jennie May Guttridge made a charming little flower girl and Herman L. Phifer, of Bayonne, a youthful cousin of the bride, acted as page. The bridal party entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's march rendered by Miss Margaret Shepherd; Miss Gaddis leaning on the arm of her brother, who gave her away.

The bride's gown was a creation of white silk trimmed with embroidered chiffon. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaids wore white net over pink and carried pink roses, while the flower girl was attired in white lace over blue.

Following the ceremony, a reception was accorded Mr. and Mrs. Guttridge, and they were the recipients of hearty congratulations. After a collation had been served they departed on a wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. On returning they will make their home at Scotch Plains.

Both Mr. Guttridge and his bride are widely known in the city and borough. The former is the son of James B. Guttridge, of Netherwood, and is associated with him in business. He has been prominent in local social affairs and is one of the leading members of the Fanwood Suburban Club. Friends remembered them with a handsome array of presents, comprising furniture, cut glass, silverware, bric-a-brac and several checks. The guests were from Brooklyn, Bayonne, Rahway, Bound Brook, Mount Horeb, Dunellen and Nyack, N. Y., as well as Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The decorations throughout the house were exceptionally pretty and arranged with extreme taste. In the parlor the color scheme was green and white, palms, plants and chrysanthemums being used; in the dining room pink and green, and in the hall red and green.

Chief of Police P. S. Kiely.

"During the past year evidence has accumulated tending to show that the example of our own Chief of Police has for a long time been prejudicial to correct discipline and efficiency. Rumors and statements apparently well founded have from time to time come to the Board, the correctness of which can only be ascertained by a thorough investigation. Among those which appear to be well supported by evidence are the following:

"Wilful disobedience of orders in neglecting to enforce certain provisions of the hack ordinance and of the liquor ordinance, after repeatedly being instructed so to do.

"1st. By frequenting places where intoxicated liquors are sold or furnished while on duty.

"2nd. By unduly neglecting to pay just debts.

"3rd. By permitting Police Headquarters to be made a lounging place by parties not connected with the force.

"4th. By intoxication.

"5th. By permitting a person not a member of the police force to exercise authority and control over or concerning persons confined in the city jail and by permitting the release of such prisoners without due authority.

"6th. By collecting political assessments from members of the force in a manner demoralizing to good order and discipline.

"7th. By collecting a large amount of reward moneys for another officer of the force, under a promise to pay over the same when collected, and neglecting to pay over the said moneys to said officer, or to otherwise account for them to said officer.

"8th. By permitting the employment of officers of the force for the distribution, on the day of the primaries, of ballots favorable to certain powerful political influences."—From report of Councilmanic police committee.

M'CARDELL SAYS HE'LL MAKE THEM PROVE CHARGES

Police Commissioner Andrew McCardell was ill in bed when a reporter for The Daily Press sought an interview with him today, but he was not reluctant in making a statement. "The only violation of police department rules or ordinances of the city that I know anything about is when Councilman Tyler took members of the police force out of the city on a Fourth of July night," said the commissioner. "That was two years ago and Mr. Tyler had some of the policemen out at the Plainfield Country Club grounds, which are in Middlesex county. He will remember that."

Some of the councilmen will be given an opportunity to prove what they have said about the Fourth ward leader. This was intimated in so many words by the commissioner at noon today when talking with the reporter.

"I have no knowledge of police department affairs prior to the time I became commissioner," declared Mr. McCardell. "I'll answer Tyler and Bullock's statements at the proper time and in the proper way. You may bet on that."

Commissioner McCardell dressed himself and came down stairs to see the reporter and stated that he was only too glad to answer any question that might be put to him. He has ben ill in bed with a severe cold.

CHIEF KIELY'S REPLY TO THE POLICE COMMITTEE'S CHARGES

To a representative of The Daily Press, Chief Kiely said today: "If Mr. Tyler knew since last January all these charges against me, I should not be at the head of the police department. I have nothing more to say other than I stand on my record. For anything else, I refer you to my counsel, Judge Runyon."

The Chief did not appear to be at all worried when discussing the charges today. He seemed to take the matter lightly, but intimated strongly that he would compel Mr. Tyler to prove the accusations.

STOLEN BICYCLE DID SOME QUICK TRAVELING

CHANGED HANDS THREE TIMES WITHIN ONE DAY.

Edward Korman, of Harrison street, left his wheel on the porch of the Arlington Hotel Monday night while he remained inside about five minutes. When he came out the machine had disappeared and he reported the fact to the police.

Yesterday some boys told Korman that James Lowery, also of the Prideville section, had the stolen wheel, and Chief Weiss found the fact to be true. Lowery declared he had bought it from his brother-in-law, Frank Palmer, a motorman, and the latter was invited around to police headquarters last night. The "ring-around-a-rosy" was continued, Palmer asserting that he had procured it from "a fellow he didn't know," giving him a ring and a pint of whiskey for it. Chief Weiss was afraid he might be going on a chase like the boy who was sent after a left handed monkey wrench, and decided to let Palmer produce the unknown. He was released in the custody of Counsellor Swackhamer to do so by Saturday morning.

Scalded His Foot.

Patrick Bray, of 203 Stebbins place, scalded his foot with boiling water yesterday afternoon. He was taken to the hospital, and after treatmentr eturned home. The accident happened at Mr. Bray's home.

DR. CHAMBLISS AGAIN HONORED BY BAPTISTS

RE-ELECT MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS AT STATE CONVENNION.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, was re-elected a member of the Board of Managers of the State Baptist Missionary convention, in session at Elizabeth, yesterday. The term is for three years.

O. B. Leonard, of this city, was elected president of the East Association of the convention.

Last night the seventh annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Social Club was held in the Central Baptist church, and was followed by an address and banquet. Today the 67th annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Education Society is being held.

'Ware the Second Story Men.

Local residents are warned by Chief Kiely that this is the season of the year when extra care should be taken in keeping doors bolted and barred. It is the time when "second story" men are prevalent and a little forethought might be the means of preventing a robbery. The Chief asks that headquarters be notified whenever suspicious characters are seen loitering about houses.

Auction Sale of Horses.

The auction sale of horses to be held at the Plainfield Driving Park on Tuesday, October 31, as advertised in this issue, is attracting the attention of horsemen in general, there being many well bred ones in the collection. The sale catalogue is now ready and may be had by addressing Peter C. Kellogg Co., 107 John Street, New York.

PILL MAKERS' CONFERENCE

Union County Druggists Association Hold a Banquet at Hotel Iroquois.

ENDING "CUT RATES"

Standard Prices for Patent Medicines More Closely Adhered to According to Report—Guests of Local Association.

The Union County Retail Druggists' Association held its quarterly meeting at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, after which the members of the Plainfield Retail Druggists' Association entertained the county association at a banquet at the hotel. The executive committee of the county association met in the afternoon and formulated a report to be presented at the later meeting held at 7:30 o'clock.

Trade conditions and the discussion of plans whereby greater harmony might be secured among the druggists of the county, together with the reports of T. S. Armstrong, of this city, and Joseph G. Smith, of Rahway, as delegates to the recent convention of the National Retail Druggists' Association in Boston, formed the principal business of the meeting.

Joseph G. Smith, who is president of the county association, was in the chair, and Henry Schmidt, the secretary, was present. One encouraging feature of the meeting was the report that the standard prices for patent medicines and other prepared articles are being more strictly adhered to and the "cut rate" method is rapidly growing stronger each year and trade conditions are reported as being greatly improved.

Mr. Armstrong, who is president of the Plainfield Association, and Mr. Smith, the county president, gave interesting reports of the Boston convention, referring to the cordiality of the reception accorded by the Boston association, and to the very satisfactory condition of trade in general throughout the country. Mr. Armstrong was chairman of the New Jersey delegates at the convention.

After the meeting the members adjourned to the dining room, where a fine dinner was served by Proprietor Leary. At the conclusion of the feast, Berthold Schreiner, from the local association, welcomed the county association members in a short speech. There were also remarks by Mr. Smith, county president, and Mr. Armstrong. It was about midnight when the festivities were concluded and the county association extended its hearty thanks to the local members for the entertainment and banquet.

These druggists were present:

Frank Stutzlein, Mr. Todd, David Strausse, Benjamin Davis, Henry Schmidt, George Horning, Thomas J. Graham, W. R. Richert, of Elizabeth; Mayor J. N. Terrill, Joseph G. Smith, A. F. Kierstein, of Rahway; L. W. Randolph, Thomas S. Armstrong, Dudley S. Miller, Peter B. Hodge, Berthold Schreiner, Charles H. Hall, Frank Rowley, Clayton M. Nagle, R. J. Shaw, Jasper Cadmus, Alex. Mallinson and John P. Powers, of this city.

GREAT SABBATARIANS.

David E. Titsworth Delivers an Interesting Biographical Lecture.

David E. Titsworth delivered an interesting biographical lecture on prominent men of the Sabbatarian faith at the Seventh-day Baptist church last night. There was a large attendance.

Sixty-five slides were shown, all photographs of the men in Mr. Titsworth's list of church notables. The list included laymen as well as clergymen. Mr. Titsworth gave brief terse and illuminating sketches with every picture. Several of the men mentioned were will known here, among them Rev. Lucius Crandall, first pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church; Rev. W. B. Maxson, George H. Babcock, Charles Potter and E. R. Rope.

The lecture was given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Will Enter Grand Opera.

Mrs. Edward Smack, nee Amy Delanoix, formerly of this city, is preparing to make her debut in grand opera in New York within a short time. An opera has been written for her and she will take the leading part. Mrs. Smack has appeared here in musical affairs, one notable event being an opera given by William Holmes. She has a soprano voice of great richness and strength.

New Raspberry Season.

Henry Rogers, of Highland Farm, came to town today with a large display of raspberries, second crop, produced by the recent warm spell. The berries are large and very sweet. They were grown on Highland Farm.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Sanborn Map Company, of New York, has prepared and will publish an insurance of Dunellen. The map shows where the fire risks are greatest in the borough. The preparation of the chart is an evidence of the advancement of Dunellen. Until now it was not considered important enough to map for the insurance trade. Major Howard K. Bird will have one of the maps.

A new street is being cut through the Bird property in the west end of the borough. It will run north and south, parallel with the Levering & Garrigues line, for 1,200 feet. It goes from South avenue to the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The street has been plowed up and the men started to grade it yesterday. Mr. Bird has not decided on a name for it.

Levering & Garrigues are to have a 150-foot sign put up on the South avenue side of their plant. It will be by far the biggest sign ever raised in the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Manning are on a month's trip to California. They will attend the annual convention of the W. C. T. U. in Los Angeles.

Several New Market Seventh-day Baptists attended the illustrated lecture on men prominent in the faith at the Plainfield church last night.

Miss Louise Brakeley is on the eve of a five-months' trip through the West. She will travel as far as San Francisco.

After completing the campaign here, Revivalist Chester and Mrs. Bich will hold meetings in Bound Brook.

Miss Nettie Baldwin and Miss Mary Baldwin attended the Y. M. C. A. concert in Plainfield last night.

Ground was broken yesterday for William Ruhl's new house on South avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Randolph are visiting in Philadelphia for a few days.

Mrs. Eugene Runyon is entertaining Friendship Circle this afternoon.

Bernard Siriski has had new window fixtures installed in his store.

Mrs. Muller has opened a dressmaking parlor on Front street.

N. M. Giles has purchased the Goldson Smalley milk route.

The Junior eleven will play a Somerville team Saturday.

M. D. Worley is on a business trip in Massachusetts.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The work of repairing the bowling alleys of the Suburban Club will be finished this week. The improvements being made will give the Suburbans one of the best alleys in the State and some high scores are looked for during the coming season.

Mrs. William R. Buckley and daughter, Miss Evelyn, who have been spending August and September amid the Massachusetts hills, returned home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Coddington, who have been residing on the Chase farm in the borough for the past year, have removed back to town.

Miss Jennie Frentz, who has been spending three weeks with friends in Washington, D. C., has returned home.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra concert last night in the association hall was enjoyed by a number from here.

The dog list recently posted shows 230 good, bad and indifferent canines living in our midst.

Mrs. Charles Mooney has returned from a visit with Rahway friends.

William S. Rapp is entertaining his son from Albany for a week.

The Town Committee meets Friday night in the town rooms.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The prayer meeting at the church last night was conducted by Mrs. W. H. Manning, the pastor being absent as a delegate to the Baptist State convention.

Miss Emma Tappen attended the Baptist convention at Elizabeth yesterday.

The Women's Home Mission Society of the First Baptist church will meet in the lecture room of the church this afternoon. The topic will be "Sowing Good Seed and Tares."

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes.

Collector's Office, City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on

16th of November, 1905,

at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said City, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and four remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature entitled: "An act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following list contains the lot and block numbers of the lots, tracts and parcels of land to be sold in pursuance of this advertisement, as they appear on the official assessment maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, together with a statement of the Wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the amount due from each of said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage thereon, except that only one-half of such fees shall be chargeable when the city is a purchaser, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

A Complete Kitchen.

You cannot have your kitchen completely furnished unless you have a first-class Range, therefore insuring the most convenient cook. You should have one of our Ranges by all means, because of their construction which insures a perfect fire, even heat in the stove rather than in the kitchen. These are made for cooking, and are good enough for heating.

We also have a fine line of Oak and Cylinder Stoves, Pot Stoves, Stove Boards, Coal Hods, Ash Cans, Pipe, etc.

Our OIL HEATER, "The Waterman" is ideal.

We can get you any STOVE REPAIRS in the market.

WHEN 10 STANDS FOR 12.

Says Decimal System Could Be Improved.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Dr. W. H. Smith, head professor of mathematics in Tulane University, whose works are used as text books in Michigan, Harvard and other universities, in an interview here expressed some radical views regarding the decimal system.

"As a matter of fact, instead of being an ideal system," he said, "the decimal system is actually very cumbersome, owing to its indivisibility into exact thirds. It would be much better if we had our numerals constructed on a twelve-time scale, that is, with single characters for the numbers ten and eleven, with the 1 and 0 used to represent twelve. This would give us 144 numbers in our scale in place of 100, but it would also give us four dividing points in each set and do away with the miserable 66 2-3, 33 1-2 and other inconveniences of numerals."

GOT BOOTY WORTH $1,000.

Entered in Broad Daylight a South Orange House.

A robbery, the loss in which it is believed may reach more than $1,000, was committed yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary C. Matthews, 190 Montrose avenue, South Orange. It may not be possible for several days to determine just what was taken.

Mrs. Matthews and one of the servants were the only persons at home at the time. The maid was hanging out clothes in the back yard and Mrs. Matthews had gone out to the stable to give the coachman some instructions. She was gone about twenty minutes. When she returned to her room she found that it had been ransacked and a lot of her jewelry stolen. She missed two solitaire diamond rings, a gold watch and other jewelry.

JAIL FOR FREEHOLDER.

He Pleaded Guilty to Charge of Atrocious Assault.

Michael J. Dillon, one of the Passaic county Board of Chosen Freeholders, was arraigned Wednesday before Judge Scott at Paterson and pleaded guilty to a charge of atrocious assault. He was fined $200 and sentenced to thirty days in jail.

About three months ago, according to the charge against him, Dillon went to his home in Passaic and beat his wife. Dr. Vanderclock was summoned to the house and when he arrived found Dr. Huntlisch there ahead of him. Both doctors allege that Dillon was intoxicated. Mrs. Dillon was found to have been badly bruised and cut, and while they were treating her the husband ordered both the doctors from the house after assaulting them.

POSSE CAUGHT DESPERADO.

Terrorized a Town Till the Citizens Armed Themselves.

A young man claiming to be John Dorn, of Newark, visited, Sunday, Sussex, in Warren county. He rode a bicycle and carried a big pistol.

He first visited the store of Martin W. Majle, near the Lackawanna station. He trained the pistol on the proprietor and demanded the cash in the drawer. Several persons on the street saw the act and raised such an outcry that Dorn ran away.

Later he again appeared and held up two farmers on their way to town. He then visted the local hotel and demanded his dinner. By this time several men had armed themselves with shotguns. The man was captured in a batch of woods by Harvey Sagers and two constables.

CHARGES AGAINST KIELY

ment of the department that previous Boards had done.

The chairman was charged with the executive duties of the Board, and with the responsibility of keeping in touch with what was done in the department, and exercising a general supervision over its affairs. In this way, the chairman was brought immediately into very close relations with the Chief of Police and they having known each other for many years, these relations were unusually cordial from the start, and so continued during the first half of the year, notwithstanding frequent differences of opinion, resulting sometimes in sharp disagreements over certain of the changes insisted upon by the Board. These cordial relations were never broken until the Goff affair came to an issue. The Chief was clearly given to understand from the beginning that the Board would hold him personally responsible for the administration of the department, so as to avoid any possibility of a division of responsibility, and that the Board would support him as far as it could with propriety.

Kiely Says McCardell is "It."

Some two years before, the Chief of Police had talked at some length with Mr. Tyler, upon his then newly assumed duties as councilman, and expressed a desire to be the one to introduce him to Mr. McCardell and the other politicians, saying that it would make all the difference in the world if he could become acquainted with McCardell. In the right way, and that McCardell was the real power in Plainfield, and that without his good will no man could amount to much politically, and that he, Kiely, would like to be the one to bring about the meeting.

When the Saloon District Ordinance, so called, was under consideration by the present Council, Mayor Buckle stated to the chairman that his chief objection to the ordinance was that if passed it would prevent the granting of a license to John Goff, who, he said, had invested $15,000 in a building erected for that purpose on West Front street, near Clinton avenue. At the same time the Mayor admitted to the chairman of the Board that Goff had paid several hundred dollars to McCardell for the campaign fund, with the understanding that a license would be obtained from the Common Council. The chairman protested to the Mayor that the question of Goff and his private interests ought not to control the principle involved in the Saloon District Ordinance, and that Goff's having invested $18,000 in a building was no argument which should entitle him to a license, and that it was impudent effrontery for Goff to expect the Common Council of Plainfield to redeem the promise of Mr. McCardell, for which promise Goff had paid to McCardell a campaign contribution.

The Mayor replied that McCardell was wholly misunderstood by the chairman, and he asked Mr. Tyler to let him, the Mayor, introduce him to McCardell, and have McCardell take him to the Pond's Tool Works, where he was employed, and show him through and give him an opportunity to get acquainted with McCardell's men, so that he might appreciate the high moral influence that Mr. McCardell exercised over the men, and the great philanthropic work which he was doing.

These conversations are referred to to show the light in which Mr. McCardell is looked upon by certain of the executive officers of the City of Plainfield, including our chief magistrate, the Mayor, and the Chief of Police.

Kean's "Friendly" Aid.

By way of further illustrating Mr. McCardell's position and influence in Plainfield politics, it may be stated that a day or two after Mr. Goff's application to the Council for a saloon license had been refused, Mr. Hamilton Kean, a brother of the United States Senator, asked for an interview with the chairman in New York, and stated that he was interested in the refusal of Goff's application because George Seeber, of the Rising Sun Brewing Company, in Elizabeth, was a personal friend of his, and Seeber had appealed to him and that he merely desired an answer to the question whether Goff was likely to get his license or not. Mr. Tyler having stated that he was opposed to granting the license, Mr. Kean went further than his question, and insisted that there was still opportunity to offer in the Council a resolution to reconsider the action of the Council, which he deemed to be unfair in the extreme, inasmuch as he said Goff had always been a good Republican and not only had paid handsomely to the campaign fund the previous year, but had got the assurances of Mr. McCardell, whom he always believed was the recognized leader in that section of the town, that he was perfectly safe in going ahead with his building, and Mr. Kean thereupon exclaimed, "What's the matter with you people up there in Plainfield? Why don't you support your leader?"

Very early in the year complaints were made to members of the Board by residents in the neighborhood, that Goff was violating the liquor laws. As time went on, and nothing was done, these complaints increased, and protests were freely made that if the police did not know about it, everybody else did. The question was often asked of members of the Board, "Where are the police anyway?" and it became a not uncommon experience to hear the remark, that everybody knew it was a case of police protection due to political influence.

It was as long ago as January, three months before the meeting of the April Grand Jury, that the chairman of the Board protested to the Chief of Police that these rumors of Goff's illicit selling were so persistent as to require attention from the Police Department, and stated that the influences which were at work in Goff's favor were such as to make it most difficult for the Board to get the evidence which it would need, but that the Board was determined that the place should be closed, and wanted him to go right at it. This he promised to do, but suggested that the best way to accomplish the purpose was to get Mr. Hibbard, of the Safe Works, in that neighborhood and a newly elected member of the Common Council, to arrange with two of his employes to live in Goff's building and furnish them with the needed evidence.

Working Over Kiely's Head.

The chairman of the Police Board made an effort to get two men from Mr. Hibbard's shop, which Mr. Hibbard said was impracticable, and the Chief of Police then insisted that it would be impossible for him, in his conspicuous position as Chief of Police to do anything, unless the Board would furnish the witnesses, in which case he would bring the matter before the next Grand Jury. It was at the Board meeting on June 30, that the continuance of this attitude of indifference on the part of Chief Kiely elicited an indignant protest from the Board and he was informed that he must take steps to close Goff's place at once, or he would find himself in trouble. The seeming unwillingness of the Chief of Police to act, notwithstanding the accumulated evidence, was so in contrast with the spirit of one anxious to co-operate with the Board in its efforts to get to the bottom of the matter, that it became evident that whatever was to be done would have to be done over the head of the Chief of Police, and with all possible secrecy. It was arranged that a raid should be made upon Goff's place as soon as possible, by legally constituted authorities of the County, in such manner as would show at once whether the complaints of Goff's open violations of the law were true or not, and help the Board to discover, without further loss of time, whether Kiely was indeed playing false with them.

On Sunday evening, Sept. 3d, the raid was successfully made. Justice of the Peace Kelly with his constable from Elizabeth, Councilmen Bullock and Tyler and Officer Vanderweg composed the party. Officer Vanderweg was the only one who did not know where he was going, until he arrived at Goff's place, where he recived his instructions. They rang the bell, which was answered by John Goff himself. The outside vestibule doors were not locked. The inside door had a pane of clear glass in it through which he could have looked out to see who his callers were if he had thought to take the slightest precaution.

Mr. Goff did not hesitate to express his surprise that so shameful a thing should have been permitted. The fourteen convivial spirits within gave their names and addresses, falsely at first, but correctly when the found they were known to the officers. Samples of the liquid merchandise which was for sale were secured. Goff gave two bonds with sureties, and the visitors having taken what documentary evidence was found lying carelessly unprotected behind the bar, and counted the twelve odd dollars of change lying loosely on the counter, and returned it to Goff, retired.

Evidence Collected.

The papers which were secured, in form of accounts, receipted bills and the like, indicate that Goff was doing business at the rate of about 230 cases (of two dozen bottles of beer each) a month, obtaining his supplies partly from George Seeber, of the Rising Sun Brewing Co., his patron, but in large part also from the Eastern Bottling Co., in Plainfield, from the latter of whom he had purchased and paid for, as shown by the receipted bills, 50 cases of beer during July alone.

The room is large, with a high ceiling, and is said to be the most elaborately fitted up bar-room in the city. It was brightly lighted with electricity. The patrons who were found in the place on that rainy Sunday evening were sitting about the tables with glasses of beer in front of them, playing cards or otherwise amusing themselves. A piano served the musical accompaniment of a party of singers upstairs. Altogether the air of the place, even from the exterior before we entered, was so much more than suspicious that no passerby could have avoided an approximate guess as to the character of the place.

Immediately after the raid, as is credibly stated, the Mayor and Chief of Police were closeted with Mr. McCardell and a certain lawyer for several hours together, and a few days afterwards two letters were published in the papers, side by side, and both dated on the same day, one from the Mayor demanding an explanation from the Chief of Police with respect to the Goff raid, and the other the Chief's reply, stating that he had been gathering evidence to present to the October Grand Jury, having proceeded in this as in other cases along the general lines which had always been laid down for him by the Corporation Counsel and the County Prosecutor. This amounts to a defiance of the special order of the Board of Police, in this particular case.

Should Oppose Mayor's Act.

It is respectfully submitted that the attempt of the Mayor to transfer the control of the Police Department to a commission, of which Mr. McCardell is the four year member, upon the eve of an official hearing of these charges by the Common Council, should be opposed by such lawful means as the Common Council can demand.

Furthermore, if the act of the Legislature above mentioned shall be declared unconstitutional, all proceedings of this new commission would then be null and void, and would only prejudice the possibility of a proper investigation of the matter ultimately by the old Board. The above mentioned letter from the new commissioners requesting members of the Board of Police to put them in possession of such information as has been accumulated is at least partially confirmatory of the report that it is their desire to take some action upon the proposed charges without waiting for the Court's determination of the question as to whether they are a legally constituted body or not.

But aside from the foregoing, there is another point of view from which the public interest demands the attention of the Common Council to this matter. In one of the supplements to the original act of the Legislature providing for the appointment of Police Commissioners, it is provided that "the said Commissioners shall receive an annual salary, not exceeding $1,000, to be fixed and determined by the Common Council," and that the Board may appoint a clerk and fix his salary, which shall be raised and paid in the same manner as other employes of the department. Although the present incumbents of these offices may have volunteered to serve without pay, and to dispense with the services of a paid clerk, because of temporary public excitement over their appointment, if the Act under which the Board is appointed is declared unconstitutional, it will continue a part of our city government so long as the Act is unrepealed by the Legislature, and its member will according to the Act be entitled to be paid. With a complacent Common Council, the Mayor's action is very likely in the near future to bring with it the burden of these new salaries, which future Common Councils are authorized to fix at $4,000, beside the additional salary of the clerk.

Common Council's Duty.

It is respectfully submitted that it is the duty of the Common Council, by all lawful means to prevent, if possible, the saddling of this new and useless burden of taxation upon the city.

We respectfully recommend that this report be sent to the Corporation Counsel and that he be requested to facilitate an early final determination of the question whether the Act under which the said Police Commission is appointed is constitutional and the appointment of the said Police Commission thereunder, as the same has been accomplished, is binding upon the City of Plainfield; and if there is any probability that the proceedings now pending in Court involving said question, will not finally determine that question for the City of Plainfield, or that the interests and rights for the City of Plainfield will not otherwise be fully and fairly represented to the Court in said proceedings, then that the said Corporation Counsel be requested to initiate a proceeding in behalf of said city which will in speediest manner lead to such a determination and will fully protect the interests of the City and of the Common Council, not only ultimately, but also in the meantime.

Dated, Plainfield, N. J.,
October 24, 1905.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) WILLIAM S. TYLER,
WILLIAM STARR BULLOCK,
Committee on Police.

TO TEST LAW OF 1901.

Levy on Income of Judgment Debtors to Be Contested.

To test the validity of the law of 1901, providing for the levying by creditors upon the income of judgment debtors, Franklin W. Fort, counsel for John A. and Bruno Schaeffer, has secured a writ of certiorari from Chief Justice Gummere to review the action of Judge Skinner, in the Court of Common Pleas, granting an order for the arrest of the Schaeffers for contempt.

The Schaeffers were in partnership, and failed about ten years ago. The Murphey-Hardy Lumber Company obtained a judgment of about $90 against them, and began supplementary proceedings under the act of 1901. Judge Skinner directed that the Schaeffers should pay $5 a week from their income to pay the judgment and the costs of court, which they have never done. It was for this reason that Frederick F. Guild, representing the lumber company, applied for the order for their arrest. When it was granted Mr. Fort at once applied to the chief justice and secured the writ.

Still Deliberating.

The freeholders of Union and Somerset counties have not as yet determined upon a date for meeting to further consider the question of building a new bridge on West End avenue. It is expected that a meeting will be held within the next month.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of my groin, growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Plainfield, N. J., October 25, 1905.

Both startling and serious are the charges lodged against Chief Kiely in the councilmanic police committee's report. Their nature is so grave that an investigation should be begun at once to ascertain the truth or falsity of what Messrs. Tyler and Bullock have had spread upon the official records of the Common Council. These two men constitute a majority of the councilmanic committee and, aside from the fact that they are reputable citizens, this is sufficient to command serious attention for their report. Not only is Chief Kiely placed in an unenviable light by their damaging statements and insinuations concerning his conduct of police affairs and of himself personally, but others need vindication as well. Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell, a member of the new police commission and one of the Republican organization leaders, is made the object of an attack which calls for proof for the good name of the city if not in justice to the man accused. In addition, Mayor Buckle is arraigned in no pleasant way, he being held partially responsible for the alleged condition of affairs in the department in question. The free American people and the law of the land happily do not hold a man guilty until he is adjudged so. They are willing to give him a clean bill of character unless and until a court of record decides against him. Chief Kiely, it should be remembered, has performed unusually creditable work in his official position, and today he is held in high regard by fellow heads of police departments in the East. These charges, if true, serious affect his official as well as his private reputation. The same is true as respects both Mayor Buckle and Police Commissioner McCardell. Therefore, it is the duty of everyone to "suspend judgment" until the result of a proper investigation in the courts, or otherwise, is made known.

"Who steals my purse steal trash;
'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been the slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor, indeed."

The statement of Chief Kiely's counsel, published on the first page today, to the effect that an action will be begun in the courts to obtain a vindication from the serious charges made by Councilmen Bullock and Tyler, is encouraging for it will bring to light what merit there is in the allegations. But this should be apart from the city's connection with the affair. So far as an action for libel is concerned, that is purely between the accusers and the men under fire. What the city has to do with, is to rid itself of the stigma that the chief is not the sort of man to be at the head of the police department and that Andrew McCardell is not a proper person to be an officer of the municipality. The Common Council, co-operating with the Mayor, should lose no time in having the charges investigated. And the investigation should be a thorough one.

ASPHYXIATED IN A HOTEL.

Young Man Found Dead in Bed—Gas Turned On.

Red Bank, Oct. 25.—Joseph Ruf, son of William Ruf, of Manasquan, was found dead in bed at the Union Hotel yesterday morning, his death having been caused by suffocation by illuminating gas. Ruf, who was twenty-one years old, came to Red Bank last Thursday and secured employment in a furniture store. He boarded at the hotel. Early yesterday Theodore Morris, another boarder at the hotel, who occupies an adjoining room, was awakened by the odor of gas.

Ruf's door was locked and it was found necessary to break the door down. The lifeless body lay in bed and the gas issued from a burner, which was only partly turned on.
